MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

POSTAGE.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Overland Mail from India, which arrived on Saturday night, has brought intelligence from Bombay to Dec. 12, and from Calcutta to Dec. 3. The most important feature of the news thus received relates to the continued excitement which prevailed in the Bombay Presidency with respect to the Income-tax. At Surat the natives assembled in great numbers on the 29th November, and tumultuously demanded the repeal of the unpopular impost, threatening to close their shops unless Government yielded to their clamour. Fortunately, the local magistrate, Mr. E. Ravenscroft, is a man of courage and promptitude. Instantly calling out the police, horse and foot, he dispersed the mob, captured thirty of the ringleaders, and sentenced twenty-five of them to six months' imprisonment with hard labour; against the others the evidence was not sufficiently conclusive, and they were accordingly set at liberty. The effect of this energetic action is said to have been decisive, and the returns of income have since been sent in with becoming regularity.

At Bassein a more serious disturbance took place on the 5th December, and Mr. Hunter, the deputy magistrate, with some difficulty made his escape to the water-side through the midst of the rioters. On the following day he returned from Tanna, accompanied by three gentlemen and a body of police, with whose assistance he arrested some of the Bunniyas who had displayed the greatest violence, and carried them off, hand-cuffed, to Tanna. It does not appear, however, that they were in any way punished beyond having to give bail for their future conduct, to the amount of Rs. 2,000 each.

In Bombay and Poona a few tradesmen in a respectable way of business, having refused to send in any return of their income, have been fined Rs. 200 each, and assessed three times the supposed amount they would otherwise have had to pay. This summary process has brought the other shopkeepers to their senses, and, although they still grumble, there is no further talk of suspending business operations.

A very important notification appears in the Bombay Gazette with regard to the reorganization of the native cavalry of that Presidency. The ten regiments of horse hitherto existing are to be converted into fourteen regiments, each 300 strong, and modelled upon the Silladar or Irregular system. The establishment of European officers for each corps will consist of a commandant, a second in command, a subaltern, an adjutant, and a medical officer. The pay of the private sowars will be Rs. 30 a-month, and of all other ranks according to the scale of the Southern Mahratta Horse. By this new arrangement the strength of the cavalry arm of the Bombay Army will be reduced by 1,200 to 1,500 sabres, but its efficiency greatly increased, and the cost very sensibly diminished.

but prefaced his departure by an act of clemency, against which we have nothing to say. In promulgating the amnesty of 1858 Lord Canning held out a hope to those already convicted that their sentences might after a time be revised and mitigated if such indulgence were justified by their good conduct in confinement. The pacification of the country being now complete, his Excellency has been pleased to direct that the provisions of her Majesty's Proclamation shall be extended to all those who would have been entitled to pardon had they been at large at the time the amnesty was proclaimed. An exception will, of course, still be made in the case of those who directly took part in the murder of British subjects, or knowingly afforded shelter to murderers, or who were ringleaders of revolt, or were present with any body of troops who killed their officers.

The number of courts-martial announced by the present mail is far greater than at any period since the stern and salutary command of Sir Charles Napier. In some instances the charges appear very frivolous, but that very circumstance indicates a want of that cohesion and unanimity without which no corps can ever be orderly in quarters or effective in the field. If the officers do not pull well together it is useless to expect a proper subordination among the soldiery.

The Lucknow libel case is still occupying public attention in India. A Mr. Fitzgerald, who describes himself as an Uncovenanted Servant out of employ—that is, a footless stocking without a leg—has written a letter to the Delhi Gazette, which seems to have rekindled the smouldering embers of that abominable scandal. He says that it is only quite recently he has heard of these famous trials, or he would have come forward on the first occasion, and deposed that one day as he was passing by the Chutter Munzil he observed a crowd of natives apparently in a state of excitement; that on joining them he saw some peons hustling along two respectable looking men, whom they pushed into a building in ruins, and upon the head of each placed a mass of broken masonry. Being unacquainted with Hindustani he was unable to inquire into the meaning of what he beheld, and as it took place close to the court-house, he supposed it was "all right." The Oudh Gazette, now the truckling organ of the local Government, pretends to explain away this story by stating that certain demolitions were going on at the time mentioned by Mr. Fitzgerald, and that the men in question were, doubtless, employed with others in removing the rubbish. The explanation is ingenious, but it is certainly rather strange that the editor and proprietors of that journal did not remember the fact of these demolitions when they accused Ramdial of being accessory to such acts of torture as those described by the Delhi Gazette's tardy correspondent.

According to a late telegram from Calcutta received by the Bombay Times, a small body of the Sebundee Sappers and Miners sent into the territory lately wrested from the British Rajah have been repulsed with considerable loss—a three-pounder hill gun at the same time falling into the hands of the enemy. As no further particulars are given, it is impossible to account for this reverse, though probably attributable to the dangerous and too frequent mistake of despising a half barbarous enemy. It does seem an act of mad presumption to march a force of no more than one hundred natives with one small gun—it being a military maxim that there should never be fewer than two guns—into a hostile and difficult country, where nothing is easier than a surprise. But at present we forbear making further comments, in the expectation of receiving in a few days such ample information as will leave no doubt that everybody did what ought to have been done, and that this reverse is precisely the very thing that ought to have happened.

We have before us the Sketch Estimates for the current financial year 1860-61, but for the moment shall confine ourselves to the remark that the expenditure is still more than 16 per cent. in excess of the revenue:—

The total income of the Government of India for the year 1860-61, from all sources, exclusive of Income-tax, is estimated, in round numbers at	£38,140,000
Income-tax at ... ..	1,000,000
Giving a total income, from every source, of ... ..	39,140,000
The expenditure in India is estimated at ... ..	£38,430,000
That in England, according to the latest information received here, at ... ..	6,983,000
Giving a total expenditure by the Indian Government, in India and in England, of ... ..	45,413,000

Thus leaving a deficit of income, as compared with expenditure, of not less than £6,273,000 which must be met, for the time, by drawing on the balances in the Government treasuries.

Though the deficiency is yet a matter of deep anxiety, it is three millions less than that of last year, and it is sometimes well to be thankful for small mercies. By making further retrenchments, and introducing a systematic economy into all departments of the State, it is reasonably expected that next year's "Sketch" will be much less unfavourable.

The death of the Sultan of Bokhara is announced by the Delhi Gazette's quaint news-writer at Cabul, who also states that Dost Mahomed's grandson, Sirdar Shere Ahmed Jan has been killed in an engagement with Ubdoollah Khan Jumshadee, near Herat.

OUTWARD MAILS.

The Indus, from Southampton, 20th December, reached Malta on the 30th, 6 P.M. Left at midnight for Alexandria.

The Valetta (from Marseilles, 28th) arrived at Malta on the 31st, 10 A.M.; left at 2 P.M. for Alexandria.

The Ganges delivered the London mail of the 20th—26th of September—in Hong Kong on the 14th of November.

The Colombo, with the English mail of the 20th—26th of October—reached Calcutta on the 29th of November.

The Emeu, with London mail of the 4th—10th of November, left Ceylon for China on the 7th of December.

The Nemesis, with same dates, left Madras for Calcutta on the 10th of December.

BENGAL.

THE CHRONIC DEFICIT.

With its last gasp the expiring financial system of our Indian Empire has spoken. Out of its ashes new fiscal machinery is now arising, of which, directed by Mr. Laing and adapted in its working to the necessities of our administration by the Audit Board, we hope the best. But until it is established and produces results, we must rest content with the utterance of the past, which we print elsewhere, vague, suspicious, unsatisfactory as it is. Since the 18th February last we have had no less than five readings of the budget of 1860-61. Mr. Wilson himself gave us two, Sir Charles Wood laid a third before the House of Commons, Sir Bartle Frere sketched a fourth in the Legislative Council, and now he has published a fifth under the authority of the Governor-general in Council, which is said "to foreshadow a result somewhat less unfavourable" than had been anticipated from its predecessors. Hitherto Indian finance has indulged in three readings of each budget. Two and-a-half months prior to the beginning of the official year in May, the Accountants of the local Governments have been in the habit of sending up their estimates, which have formed the "Anticipation Estimate." On this Mr. Wilson's first budget was based. When four months of the official year have expired, corrections have been made up to date, and the "Sketch Estimate" has then been formed. On this, drawn out a little earlier, Mr. Wilson's second budget and Sir Charles Wood's improvement of it by a more correct statement of the home charges were founded. Finally, three months after, or not till the seventh month of the year, have Indian financiers been certain that they have reached definite results, and the third, or "Regular Estimate" has been achieved. The financial machine, exhausted by these repeated efforts, has relapsed into a state of complaisant satisfaction with itself; like Brumho it has gone to sleep for another period. Now that it is to sleep the sleep of death, it utters this eulogy on itself:—"My documents have generally been found to represent a close approximation to actual financial results of the year to which they relate." And so it perishes, forgetting the hundred millions of debt; the chronic deficit; the financial paralysis of the whole State, which it ought to have prevented; the ruin which only the interference of England has averted; the gross inaccuracies and contemptuous disregard alike of statesmanship and arithmetic of which it has been so often convicted. As it has died we do not quarrel with the Governor-general for burying it decently.

But its last words deserve examination, the deficit of 6½ millions which it has bequeathed requires analysis.

Revenue ... ..	£38,140,000
Income-tax at ... ..	1,000,000
Giving a total income, from every source, of ... ..	£39,140,000
The expenditure in India is estimated at ... ..	£38,430,000
That in England, according to the latest information received here, at ... ..	6,983,000
Giving a total expenditure by the Indian Government, in India and in England, of ... ..	£45,413,000
Thus leaving a deficit of income, as compared with expenditure, of not less than ... ..	£6,273,000

This must be met, for the time, by drawing on the balances in the Government Treasuries. Now of what use are these figures to the public, in what respect do we know more than before? We want details, like those of Mr. Wilson's June estimate, only still more minute. The railway accounts are entirely ignored, the extent of the cash balances is not hinted at, though they are accurately reported every month to the financial department. These are the two sources of confusion and error in all the financial statements given to the public. They are never stated; we have asked for them again and again. Mr. Sconce tried to obtain them in the Legislative Council. The home charges are put at nearly seven millions. How much of that can be met by the cash balance in England, which is seldom allowed to fall below two millions? How much by the loan of three millions which Sir Charles Wood was empowered to raise? The whole expenditure is given at 45½ millions. We suppose the compensation claim now paid is not included. We shall strike out the railway payments altogether, except in so far as they are included in the 45½ millions, while the railway receipts are credited. We shall suppose that the English Treasury shows more honesty in keeping Mr. Wilson's promise as to reimbursing us for the China war month by month than they have ever done before. And how will the deficit stand, when we add the 52 lakhs for the Mysore family, and the 160 lakhs for the prize money? Thus:

Revenue ... ..	£39,140,000
Expenditure ... ..	...
As in budget ... ..	£45,413,000
Mysore family ... ..	520,000
Kirwar prize ... ..	1,000,000
Other " ... ..	600,000
	47,533,000
Deficit ... ..	£8,393,000

That is, giving Government the benefit of every doubt, taking their figures, which must be the most favourable possible to themselves, we have a deficit of nearly 8½, not 6½ millions,—for no Government will dare to say that the prize money will be "annexed." It cannot, it is true, be paid this year, but it is still a charge on the Treasury which must be provided for. And at what price do we purchase this? At the cost of the stoppage of railway works on which the tax-payers of India must continue to pay five per cent., whether the lines be finished or not. At the cost of the uselessness of public works throughout the country, on which millions have been already wasted, which great English contractors, such as have covered the Canadas, America, and the Continent of Europe with railways, would have undertaken more cheaply, and finished long ago, and which lie unproductive of good to the people, and unremunerative to the State; for want of eight millions more India cries for roads, railways, cheap justice, good police; every department of the State clamours for extensive and expensive reform; the whole peninsula waits only for the same facilities of Government as the Colonies enjoy to yield more wealth than mythology ever dreamt of in its fables. And even after Government thus regretfully ceases to discharge its proper functions there is still a financial deficit of eight-and-a-half millions.

And what of future years? Even if it be possible to pay this sum out of the cash balances for once, the State cannot always live on its capital. The cash balances in England and India cannot with safety be reduced below thirteen millions sterling. They were stated at above nineteen millions when it was expected that the Income-tax would be levied from 1st May. A whole quarter was lost. If Government wish the public to believe that the balances are so large, why will they not yield to repeated solicitations and state them? As it is, we shall start in May 1861-62 with at least three millions of debt. If we allow the large sum of three and a-half millions from the Income-tax and two from reductions we shall still have a deficit of four millions. Now, with this difficulty before them in the present and the future, the Government addresses earnest words to its officials on the necessity for reduction. If they had been only spoken in 1858, or if they were only uttered now with an energy which would make disobedience impossible! That they have been spoken at all we owe to the press and Sir Bartle Frere.

The truth of this, the last budget under the old system, we believe to be—India has avoided an open loan by asking Sir C. Wood to raise three millions in England, by stopping railway works, by pleasantly ignoring the payment of 52 lakhs to the Mysore family and 160 lakhs of prize money to the heroes of 1857.—Friend of India.

THE LANDOUR OF BENGL.

Less than two hundred miles from Calcutta, and not seventy from the railway terminus at Raneegunge, rises the hill of Parisnath. Near its base the range of low hills begin to take their rise, which extend 130 miles to the foot of the Dunwah Pass, dividing the muddy plains of Lower Bengal from the half cultivated wastes of Behar, once the garden of India. On the rocky plateau between the two points, through which the Grand Trunk Road winds its way, are attractions of hill and forest scenery, reminding the traveller of the tanner beauties of the Ross-shire Highlands, such as the hard-worked clerk and merchant who swelter in the heats and filth of Calcutta have been slow to be allured by. A week's ramble among them would suffice for a glance at the fresh beauties of this hill country, while the sportsman or the naturalist would take months to exhaust them. Inferior in all respects to the lower range of the Himalayas with the majesty of the snowy range in the distance, this district charms the Bengalee who may not have seen hills since the rocks of England faded from his sight. The surrounding country contains more mineral wealth than any similar area in any other part of the world, and it will not be long ere it is covered, as it is now beginning to be, with such great works as smelt the ores of Ayrshire and South Wales, or raise the coal of the Lothians and Northumberland. Meanwhile it lies, for the most part, in undisturbed wildness, but little appreciated by the great city which the extension of the railway will in a few months place within fifty-four miles of the base of its sacred hill. During an absence of three days the resident of Calcutta might pay a visit to the top of Parisnath and return to his duties for an expense, if with a companion, of less than a hundred rupees. Starting by the night train from Calcutta, he would leave Raneegunge at two o'clock next morning, breakfast at the Taldanga Bungalow on the banks of the Burrakur, dine at Topechaunce, and engage bearers to rouse him at three next morning, who would place him half way up the hill to witness the rising of the sun on the plains of Beerbhoom. After spending the second day on Parisnath, in a temperature 15 degrees below that of Raneegunge, he could return to Topechaunce for dinner, and be in time to catch the train for Raneegunge on the night of the third day. The traveller to or from the North-West would do well to delay his journey for twelve hours to explore a spot sacred as Mount Abo in the annals of the Jains, and now being made, as a station for military invalids, the Landour of Lower Bengal.

The Lieut.-governor has just returned from a second visit to the hill. The Governor-general has sanctioned the expenditure necessary for converting it into a sanitarium. On the eastern peak, which is covered by Jain temples or shrines to which pilgrims resort from all parts of Eastern and Central India in the months of February and March, by levelling peaks and filling up hollows, building sites could be obtained of considerable extent. But the Jain priests have possession of the whole, and the Ranees of Palgunge, who owns the hill, while willing to make it over to us, insists that the temples shall be allowed to stand, and the pilgrims shall not be molested. It has been resolved accordingly to leave the eastern peak to the Jains, and establish the convalescent depot on the north and west. There the highest spot is 4,312 feet above the sea, which is just the elevation of Subathoo and Cherrapoonjee, and only 200 feet below Mount Abo, the twin hill, where Parisnath is worshipped. The minimum heat at the end of April was 75 deg. at daybreak, and at noon the maximum was 86 deg., when at the base it was 107 deg. At Nynee-Tal the thermometer has been known to stand at 82 deg. in the verandah, and where the doors and windows closed at noon, as at Almerah, the heat would never exceed 84 deg. This we conceive to be an advantage. It is moderate heat, not the cold and frost which induce dysentery, which the invalid Bengalee wants. Good drinking water is plentiful, and stone and wood can be procured in abundance for building. The only drawback is the limited extent of level ground on the western side. Besides a plateau on which a house could be built for sixty invalids, there are only three other sites. Convalescents from the surrounding military stations of Fort William, Dum-Dum, Barrackpore, Chinsurah, Raneegunge, and Dehree might be sent there, but the general public cannot avail themselves of it. Hazareebagh, not far off, is deservedly a favourite station for European troops with the present Commander-in-Chief, and it is likely that it will supersede Barrackpore in this respect. Meanwhile Government has sanctioned the erection of one bungalow on Parisnath as an experiment, and the improvement of the road which leads for seven miles to the top. The cutting of wood is prohibited, and the hill will be purchased from the Ranees of Palgunge.—Friend of India.

A CENTURY OF PROGRESS.

Hidden among the crowded pages of the Report of the Indigo Commission, is a tabulated comparative statement, showing the rise of prices and wages in Bengal for the last five years. The seemingly repulsive figures speak with that convincing eloquence of which only accurate statistics are masters, of a social revolution in the peasantry of India as wonderful, and evidently as real, as any which is recorded in history. And this revolution is not confined to the peasantry, but has extended to every class of native labourers and traders in Bengal, and in the vicinity of the cities of Madras and Bombay. It has affected most seriously the position and the income of Europeans by the mass of whom it has been unnoticed. It comes home to the purse of every householder, not only in increased dearness of articles of European consumption, but in the increased salaries paid to domestic servants. But it affects far more the capitalist and manufacturer who engages labour on an extensive scale. The mills, the factories, the distilleries which fill Howrah and Calcutta, and line the banks of the Hooghly for thirty miles above and below those cities, the great railway works which pass through districts more densely populated than any out of China, the factories, filatures and warehouses which so plentifully cover the surface of lower Bengal, the trading houses which buy up country produce from Naraingunge to Mirzapore, all are affected by the high price of labour, by the rising value of articles of trade and consumption. We do not believe it was ever true, but the comparison made by the member for Barnstaple in the House of Commons in 1680, would not certainly hold good now, when he said that English textures could not maintain a competition with the produce of the Indian looms, for an English mechanic was paid a shilling a-day, while the native of Bengal slaved for a piece of copper. Relatively, if the native of Bengal has not the advantage of the English mechanic, he is far better off than the Suffolk peasant on seven shillings a-week, or the Irish cottier on less.

In the five years from 1855 to 1860 the wages of labour have increased just one-half, and in many cases have been doubled. In Jessore they have risen from three to five pence a-day, in the poorer district of Burdwan from two to three pence halfpenny, in Mymensing from three to six pence, in Midnapore from six pence halfpenny to ten pence halfpenny. The hire of a cart per day, which was six pence, is a shilling; of a boat, which was 40s. per month, is from 60s. to 80s. The price of brass pots, ploughs, milch cows—all necessities to the peasant, and the keep of a pair of bullocks, have increased from one-half to twice the former rates. So with the prices paid for produce. Coarse rice not in the husk, which was 2s. for 82 lbs., is now nearly 4s. Ghee has risen from 40s. to 70s. per 82 lbs., mustard from 18s. 6d. to 25s., tobacco from 3d. to 4½d. the 2 lbs. A suit of clothes (dhootee and chudder) which cost in Jessore half-a-crown, is now 3s., and in Cutwa, a river town of Burdwan, 7s. Fish is three times the price it was; a bullock cart, once made for 7s., is now sold for 15s. In the one year 1858-59 the prices of all kinds of grain, of cotton, and of indigo, rose one-sixth in Madras. The extent to which prices and wages have increased in Bombay has long been a subject of comment in the local journals.

If we compare these figures, which denote the progress of only five years, with those which such historians as Froude and Macaulay delight to give to illustrate the progress of English society in a century, we shall the better appreciate the extent of the social revolution now going on in India. In the time of the Tudors, when the principles of an enlightened political economy were unknown, Parliament legislated for the comfort of the artisan and the tradesman, arbitrarily fixing both wages and prices, and always in favour of the labourer and seller. The penny of Henry VIII's days was equivalent to the shilling now. The rates fixed by statute were such that an ordinary intelligent artisan, by working on all but saints' days, made 20s. a-week of our money, the rate at which labourers are paid in the colonies. But if we come down to the beginning of the 17th century, a time when statesmen began to care more for the accumulation of capital than for the physical well-being of all classes, we find the peasant and the artisan in a much less prosperous condition. In the century and a-half which has elapsed since then Macaulay considers that rent has quadrupled. The agricultural labourer received four shillings a-week, while at present, except in one or two counties, the rate is double that. The workman at the loom then was well paid with six shillings a-week. The daily earnings of the bricklayer, mason, carpenter and plumber have just doubled, being now about five shillings a-day. As to prices, the cost of wheat is still the same, meat and beer were cheaper than now, but all the luxuries from tropical countries were unknown, while coal, soap and clothing were more expensive than now. So far as mere prices are concerned, the figures of the Indigo Commission reveal the startling fact that the Bengal peasant and trader have made as much progress in five years as the English labourer and artisan in a century. That outwardly this is not apparent must be ascribed partly to the climate which requires fewer necessities, partly to the hoarding character, which makes even the richest native gentleman dress like a coolie, but chiefly to the absence of that education and Christianity, without which civilisation, even of a material character, is impossible. Still no one can penetrate into the interior of Bengal without being struck, except in a few districts of poor Burdwan, with the busy, substantial, prosperous appearance of the villages and their inhabitants.

But we should be mistaken were we to jump to the conclusion that all India has been similarly benefited. The acquisitive Bengalee, the eager trader all over the country, have increased in wealth, but the lazy Mussulman and the still savage aboriginal tribes of the Hills are as yet unaffected. The inquiries of the Ceylon Emigration Agent in the district of Ganjam have discovered the fact that an able-bodied labourer there is paid at the rate of only two pence a-day, the women at three half-pence, and the boy at three farthings. Rice sells at 2s. 9d. for 82 lbs., and a sheep may be bought for 2s. 3d. These facts are explained by the absence of roads, the badness of the ports, and the geographical position of the district thus isolated from its neighbours. As roads are made, and the elevating influences of commerce are allowed to penetrate into the wilds of the hills and the jungles where the aborigines live, they too will be swept upwards with the tide. India has become what China ought to be, the labour market of the tropics. While its own capitalists, whether railway contractors, or tea and indigo growers, cry for labour and offer fabulous prices, reaching on one occasion, in the case of the Eastern Bengal Railway to a rupee a-day, emigration agents from all the English and French colonies bid against each other for coolies.

Separated from native society like oil on the top of water, how little do even the wisest and most experienced Anglo-Indians know of the strata of native society beneath them. A glance at Calcutta or Bombay will shew the wealth which flows into the coffers of the native merchant. A table of figures like that in the Indigo Blue-book denotes a change in the material condition of the agricultural classes of Bengal in five years as thorough as that which it has taken a century to accomplish in England. Yet our statesmen leave this class growing in wealth to grovel in the densest ignorance, to feel their own strength without intelligence, without education to guide and develop it. They are treated as Christian Englishmen, and ever ought they to be treated so, as far as natural rights are concerned. But when equality and English law and rights, which England bought with centuries of suffering, are placed ostentatiously before them in abstract proclamations and by hot-headed youths, can we wonder that the most peaceful districts simmer with discontent? As they grow in wealth, they will increase in danger, unless they be guided like children to the enjoyment of rights which only Christianity will teach them not to abuse. While we tax their wealth, how long are we to abstain from enlightening their minds?—Friend of India.

THE LATE MR. ADOLPHE SCHLAGENTWEIT.

Copy of a Letter from Lieut.-Col. A. H. Irby, H.M.'s 51st L.I., to the Lieut.-Gov. of the Punjab, relating to the murder of the late Mr. Adolphe Schlagentweit, dated Te Ladak, Sept. 22, 1860.

"I think I cannot be far wrong in at once writing to apprise you of a circumstance which may be interesting to yourself, and perhaps to the Government of India and the public, the fate of Mr. Adolphe Schlagentweit, whose death appeared to be enveloped in mystery when I left the Punjab in April last. Though the Government may have then been in possession of the facts which I am now about to communicate, there must have been doubts still existing which may now be wholly removed. I may premise that, on arrival here in July, I made searching inquiries as to the fate of this unfortunate gentleman, feeling a deep interest in his fate, and believing any authentic information would be welcomed by the Government, in which opinion I was strengthened by ascertaining here that strenuous efforts had been made at the instance of Government to obtain authentic intelligence of the circumstances of the death, and to recover any papers and effects of the deceased. I examined many persons of respectability from Yarkund, whose statements, though varying in details, agreed in the principal fact of the murder of Mr. Schlagentweit by one 'Wullee Khan,' a native of Kokan. I pursued my travels hence towards Yarkund, and learned additional particulars from merchants met with; and when in camp, a few days from Yarkund, where I was hunting, when talking over the practicability of entering into communication with the authorities of Yarkund, with a view to obtain full particulars of the death of Mr. Schlagentweit, as also to recover, if possible, his effects, I was told, to my surprise, one of my attendants had been engaged in this search by the Deputy Commissioner of Kooloo. This man assured me Mr. Schlagentweit's servant was residing in Yarkund, and that he had in his possession the head of the deceased, as also some property. In consequence of this information, I resolved to proceed to the frontier post of the Yarkund territory and demand an interview with the principal official, and so open negotiations. My arrangements were under consideration the day following this disclosure, when, to my utter astonishment, I was informed the Sahib's servant, in search of whom I was going to Yarkund, had arrived in my camp and requested an interview. This person, by name 'Murad,' a native of Bokhara, in faith a Jew, showed me his credentials, a promissory note for 600 tillahs for some furs purchased by Mr. Schlagentweit, by whom this acknowledgment was given, dated and signed (at the place where I was then encamped) Soogheit, Yarkund Road, July 3rd, 1857. Murad wore this concealed as an armlet: he had with him the head (as asserted) enveloped in cotton, in shape of a pillow, a book in German without name, but being a scientific geographical work, in all probability the property of deceased, and an instrument. His narrative, succinctly rendered, is as follows:—Murad, travelling from Delhi to Yarkund in pursuit of his business as trader, met Mr. Schlagentweit in Kooloo, who engaged him to enter his service, and accompany him to Kohan. Mr. Schlagentweit had with him much merchandise, cloth, silk, &c. He took the white furs from Murad at his valuation, left them at Lahoul, from which place Murad went to Le to engage servants and horses for Mr. Schlagentweit, and all arrangements being complete, they travelled by the Cian-Tan route. The night before reaching Soogheit nearly all the servants and coolies hired at Le absconded. At Soogheit Mr. Schlagentweit was plundered at night of all his goods, which were carried off on fifteen of his best horses, of which he had forty. The tracks of the robbers were found to take the direction of Kargyl, a province of Yarkund. Mr. Schlagentweit and his few remaining servants followed on them; among the servants was one Mahomed Dahomey. Mr. Schlagentweit had despatched his kidmtugar from Soogheit with his journals and letters. This Mahomed Dahomey informed Mr. Schlagentweit that one Wullee Khan, a chief of Kokan, a country under the English Government, he said, was now supreme in the Yarkund territory, which he held with a large force—that Mr. Schlagentweit should write to him the case of robbery, and claim his assistance to recover his property. Mr. Schlagentweit did so. Murad was intrusted with the letter, the goods were found exposed for sale in Kargyl by Wullee Khan's emissaries and the whole restored by authority of Wullee Khan to Mr. Schlagentweit, to whom also the arch-traitor sent most courteous messages and invitations to visit him. He was then near Anjan, and endeavouring to capture that city. All Yarkund was in anarchy—the Chinese shut up in their strongholds; the man Mahomed Dahomey used every persuasion to prevail upon Mr. Schlagentweit to visit Wullee Khan, who, however, said his destination was Kokan—that was his road, why should he turn aside from it, to where was tumult and fighting? But in an evil hour he was induced to forego his resolve, and yielded to the representations of Mahomed Dahomey. Arrived at the quarters of Wullee Khan, that villain ordered the keys of Mr. Schlagentweit's boxes to be taken from the Khansamah, and the contents minutely examined, and on receiving a report thereof, ordered the Sahib to pay duty upon them. Mahomed Dahomey alone entered the presence of Wullee Khan, and addressed a few words to him. Mr. Schlagentweit expostulated at the demand made upon him, saying he was on his way to Kokan, when invited there, and the demand was unjust, and so forth. At this time, the horses setting to fighting, Mr. Schlagentweit directed Murad to go and quiet them; he did so, and on returning, found his master sabred and dead on the ground beside his property. He himself was seized and imprisoned; the Khansamah, a Cashmerie, and a Ladak man also. The Cashmerie after some days' confinement was released; being a Mussulman, the Ladak man was killed, and Murad, after some months' duration in fetters, professed Mahomedanism and was released. For six months Wullee Khan held possession of the country, and much slaughter took place, but the Chinese retained the cities and strong places until a large force arrived to their assistance. Wullee Khan's army then broke up and dispersed. He himself is now prisoner in the hands of the ruler of Kokan. Murad's brother (or uncle) being resident in Yarkund now befriended him, who made search for the remains of his late employer, and found the head, which had been severed from the body, near the place where the murder was perpetrated. Though much decayed, he easily identified it, by some peculiarity of the teeth; the other portions it was impossible to recognise, as hundreds of men had been slain in battle on that spot. He made search for any property of deceased, and brought in the bazaar the book and instrument. He was on his way to Kangra with his relative, at which place he hoped to find the brothers of his deceased master, and deliver their brother's relics to them. Such was the gist of this man's story as translated to me from Toorkee into Oordoo; it is not free from incoherency. I had to put many searching questions to elicit thus much. He said he dared not have gone to Le, owing to suspicions entertained there against him. No wonder, as he engaged the traitor Mahomed Dahomey; but having heard from some merchants who had been travelling towards Yarkund in my company of my approach and inquiries, he had joined some Hajjis to come to me. I offered him my escort down to the Punjab; he is now travelling under my protection. The promissory note he holds for value Rupees 3,000 would doubtless have proved a strong temptation to Murad to risk much, had he been guilty of complicity in the treachery to which Mr. Schlagentweit fell a victim, in order to obtain its amount. It strikes me as remarkable that if innocent he should have delayed so long in coming forward, especially as he was aware of the inquiries set on foot by the British Government, and must have felt sure of justice at their hands. I have evinced no suspicion of the truth of his statements, which can be thoroughly sifted by competent linguists on his arrival at Lahore. Murad is certain that Mr. Schlagentweit despatched his journal from Soogheit. He had commenced another, a book which was half complete. Of this and other papers, Murad states, after every search and inquiry he could gain no tidings. He has just been with me, and says that his horses being lame, and being indebted to a merchant here, he will not be able to accompany me to Cashmere (for which place I start in two days), unless I discharge his liabilities, &c., which I judge to be unnecessary on my part, as the note which has brought him thus far will surely lead him to where only it is valid. I enclose an exact copy of it. I have necessarily omitted much detail in this precis, as also other versions of the melancholy event, some of which bore strong resemblance to truth and would inculpate Murad, together with the other undoubted traitor Mahomed Dahomey. I could not wholly give up the belief that the journal and other papers of Mr. Schlagentweit are yet in existence, and think that, if the Government attached great value to them, they might be recovered, from inquiries I made of several Yarkund people as to the animus of the ruler of that country."

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE DEATH OF THE NANA.—We (Englishman) have taken some trouble to inquire about the death of the infamous Nana, which some of our contemporaries throw doubts upon. From reliable reports we have ascertained that this scoundrel died on the Hills immediately below Nepal in Srawun Budee Punchmee, in the month of August, 1858, with some two hundred followers around him. Bala Rao, his brother, who is still alive, although the Government reported him dead also, performed the funeral ceremonies, burning the corpse, as usual, on the banks of the Soopernorekka. On the day of his shraddh, that is, twelve days after the burning, the Mohummudans in his suite quarrelled with the Hindoos, because Bala Rao would not allow any cattle to be killed at that time. A battle was fought, but which was soon put an end to by Mohummud Khan, a follower of Huzrut Muhul, interfering. This detestable scoundrel, Nana, was destroyed by jungle fever, after having been ill for twenty-seven days.

SHERIFF OF CALCUTTA.—Mr. John Cochrane is the high sheriff elect for 1861. Mr. Jonathan Carey, one of the oldest attorneys of the court, is to be the deputy sheriff.

MR. SCONCE, member of the Legislative Council for Bengal, leaves India by the mail steamer of March next, and his successor, it is said, will be Mr. C. B. Trevor, of the Sudder.

THE FAMINE.—The Mofussilite regrets to say that the distress in Agra amongst the poor, in consequence of the scarcity of grain, is something terrible, whilst in the station itself every compound is daily besieged by numbers of natives, of both sexes, whose visages, and wasted limbs, too plainly tell that they are really dying of hunger.

THE PALACE OF BITHOOR, formerly the property of the infamous Nana, has been given to the Maharaja of Gwalior; the value to him, probably, being its site on the banks of the sacred Ganges. The palace of the Ranees of Jhansi has also been given to the Dewan of the Maharaja of Gwalior.

REPULSE OF DR. CAMPBELL'S FORCE FROM SIKKIM.—By special telegram from Calcutta, dated Dec. 7, intelligence has reached us of the defeat of the force which advanced into Sikkim in October last. From thirty to forty of the Sebundee sapper corps are reported killed, and the gun which accompanied the force is lost. As it is not often that public attention is drawn to this remote district of the Himalayas, the following short account of British connection with it, and of the causes which led to the expedition whose disaster we now record, may prove acceptable to our English readers. In 1835 we wanted a sanatorium for Bengal, and offered to purchase Darjeeling from the Rajah, as we now offer to buy Parisnath from the Ranees of Palgunge. He at first declined to take payment, but subsequently received Rs. 3,000 a-year, which was afterwards doubled. All went on well till he appointed a Dewan, who has been described as a bad specimen of Yeh. At his instigation regular raids were made into our territory, our subjects were murdered or carried off, and no satisfaction could be obtained. At last even the Superintendent of Darjeeling and Dr. Hooker were kidnapped, and were rescued only when we despatched troops to their assistance. In consequence of this we ceased to pay the Rajah his allowance, and in 1850 annexed a portion of his territory. In 1853 he abdicated in favour of his son, and since then our relations with Sikkim have been at least peaceable, if not friendly. But for some time back the old Dewan, having asserted his influence over the new Rajah, has resorted to the old custom of massacre and plunder. Warnings, remonstrances, and threats were alike in vain, and unavailing to procure redress. Aggression on the part of the Sikkim State reached its climax, when during the past rainy season in July last a party of kidnapers suddenly crossed over into our territories, and having cruelly maltreated a man and his wife, made a rapid retreat into Sikkim, carrying away as captives the two young children of their victims. Some of our ryots also have been forcibly carried into captivity by these marauding subjects of the Sikkim Rajah; and this insecurity of person and life has tended greatly to disturb the minds of our peaceable subjects. Dr. Campbell, the Superintendent of Darjeeling, promptly demanded redress at the hands of the Rajah, the restitution of the children, and the delivery of the criminals to us. The children, after some little delay, were recovered; but the Rajah, yielding to the pernicious counsels of the Dewan, refused to surrender the guilty parties, or to restore the ryots carried off from British territory, notwithstanding that the justice of the superintendent's demands was urged upon him by the Lamas and influential men of the country. In this state of affairs the Government, adopting the recommendations of the superintendent, authorised the occupation of a further portion of the Sikkim territory, in addition to that annexed on the misunderstanding of 1850. Accordingly, in October, a hundred men of the Sebundee Sappers, under their commandant, Captain Murray, with one gun (a 3-pounder), marched down to a place called Goke, upon the confines of the British territory, ready to cross the Rummam river into Sikkim, should the Rajah decline to accede to our demands. This potentate still refusing reparation, the force above-mentioned, accompanied by the superintendent, crossed the river and entered Sikkim on the 1st of November last, hoisting the British flag under a salute of twenty-one guns, and taking possession in the Queen's name of a tract of country defined in a proclamation issued by the superintendent to the Sikkim officials. It sets forth merely that the Rajah having declined compliance with our just demands we were going to occupy that portion of his country lying to the north of the Rummam River, and to the west of the Great Runjeet River; that we intended injury to no one, provided our force were not molested, in which case the people must expect the chances of war. The superintendent also addressed some friendly and conciliatory remarks to the officials, enjoining them to use their influence for the preservation of quiet and order. This proclamation is stated to have produced the best effects upon the population. The area of the newly occupied territory is stated at about 550 square miles, and contains within its limits one of the loftiest peaks of the Himalayas.—Bombay Times.

SIR RICHMOND SHAKESPEARE, Gov.-general's agent in Central India, goes home almost immediately, and will be succeeded by Colonel Ramsay, resident at Nepaul. We have not heard who succeeds Colonel Ramsay. Doubtless, the Colonel's removal will be a great relief to Jung Bahadoor, who, however, we trust, will be equally well looked after by Colonel Ramsay's successor.

BAREILLY, Nov. 29.—There is a serious case for the consideration of a general court-martial here, involving the life of the deluded offender. It would perhaps be premature to enter into particulars; but suffice it at present to say, that one of the men of the artillery here has a charge of the most aggravated nature against him. Whilst under arrest, and awaiting the sentence of the court by which he had been tried, he seized an opportunity, and made a rush on the officer on duty with a sword which he had snatched from the sentry on duty; but ere any mischief was done he was pinned, and is now in irons. The spirit of discontent has for some time been abroad, and though frequently repressed, has not been adequately punished. The discontent is not chronic, it was awakened by the bounty question; nor is it inherent, arising from social improvement and progress in education; but simply a reaction brought about by the mutiny. Sir Hugh Rose is undoubtedly the right man in the right place, and the effectual quenching of the spirit of discontent may be calculated on with certainty.—Delhi Gazette.

GRAND TRUNK ROAD.—A correspondent of the Englishman gives the following description of the great military road of Northern India:—"My further journey lay through Cawnpore, Allyghur, Delhi, and Umballa. Travelling chiefly by night, I had not a very good opportunity for observing, but generally the road was of the same character as in the first half of the journey. The railroad is excellent in all that concerns the comfort of the traveller. The crops seemed good all along the railroads. I was surprised at the great proportion of bajra among them, the least wholesome of all the grains both for man and animal, and from its extensive use I should be inclined to infer that there is much poverty among the people. From a few miles beyond Cawnpore, through Allyghur to Delhi, and from Delhi to Umballa, there appeared to be a general failure of crops. For fifty miles between Cawnpore and Allyghur the road seemed much in need of repair. Between Delhi and Umballa the road is excellent and well bridged, except within eight or ten miles of the latter place, where there are three unbridged rivers. There are no rivers which present any architectural difficulties, and bridges would save their cost to the Government in diminished cost for the repair of the road. To bridge these rivers was part of the plan of the road, and their non-completion shows a great want of system in the Department of Public Works. At Delhi we took a drive through the city. The brick and rubbish collected from the ruins in open spaces form enormous heaps, and might easily be disposed of in the raised road required for the permanent way of the railroad near Delhi, yet for a place that has gone through a siege the ruins are not extensive. It is surprising how many of the musjids entirely escaped injury; the palace externally appears to have been untouched by the fire of artillery, and the walls are entire; but inside the palace is no more, and the buildings which remain appear to be occupied as quarters for the soldiers. The great musjid was uninjured. It has been made over to the priests, as I heard, but they have not yet resumed religious service in it. The Chandney Chouk, which corresponds with our Burra Bazaar, is a place of business, exhibiting a motley variety of peoples from all parts of India and the neighbouring countries, and appears to have recovered its former activity. But sulkiness and ill temper were strongly marked on a great many faces. I am on the road to Simla. Three or four miles from Umballa a road begins, which owes little to art; and, except mail carts, I should think wheeled carriages rarely are seen on it. Three of these vehicles, with their cheering bugles, passed me in my dooly, at eight miles an hour. The hill road, which is cut out of the side of the mountain, begins at a place called Kalka. There we took to the jampam and pony. The first stage is fourteen miles, and we halt at Kussowlie, a hill station and a sanatorium for the European soldiers. The dāk bungalow here is a mile and a half from the Lawrence Asylum, which is on an opposite hill, and has a clear view of it. From some of the walks may be seen the more distant station of Subathoo. It is a very good road, for a mountain road, to Kussowlie; but I cannot say quite so much for the road which I have since come from the latter place to Hurriore. There are many signs of neglect toward this road, which is much to be regretted. Hurriore must, I should say, be much lower than Kussowlie. The road appeared to be a constant descent, but it is much prettier, the hills have more slopes, and every slope appears to be cultivated. Three or four villages, with much appearance of trade, lie on the road. The cultivation on the hills is of course by steps. In the course of the journey I saw only two or three tanks artificially made by banks on the hills for the purpose of irrigation. The want of tanks, next to roads, is a want which ought to be supplied by Government; and as the land, whenever cultivated, produces a rent to Government, they would, in the long run, be as beneficial to the Government as to the population. On the whole, we have been much delighted with the journey. I passed through a great military station, and was surprised that none of the regiments or messes, or clubs, took a Calcutta newspaper. The Queen's officers take no interest in the country, nor in Indian politics; they, therefore, do not want Calcutta newspapers. The change in the home organisation of Government has at present been unproductive of benefit. I have inquired if the hills are coming into tea cultivation. An opinion prevails in quarters likely to know, that it is hardly possible for Europeans to get land for tea cultivation in this part of the country; why, I do not know, but it is clear the system is unfavourable to Europeans."

THE TRIGONOMETRICAL AND GEOLOGICAL SURVEYS OF INDIA.—Letter from Lord Canning to Sir Roderick Murchison:—"Calcutta, Aug. 29th, 1859.—Dear Sir Roderick,—Last month I sent to the Secretary of State for India the first sheet of the Great Trigonometrical Survey of Kashmir, the work of Captain Montgomerie, of the Bengal Engineers, done under the superintendence of Colonel Waugh, the Surveyor-general of India. To my unlearned eye it is as fine an example of topographical drawing as I have ever seen, though the subject is one upon which I do not pretend to be an expert judge. But I can speak to the difficulties under which Captain Montgomerie's task has been accomplished; not the physical difficulties of the ground only, but the awful discouragement and anxiety of finding himself almost alone in those wild mountains, the people of which had, to say the least, no sympathy with the English rule in India, and surrounded by Hindostanee sepoys, whose comrades and relatives were amongst the most active movers in the chaos of murder and rebellion which was boiling in the plains below. You, perhaps, have heard that, at Roorkee, the head-quarters of the Sappers, and at the foot of the Himalayas, the men of that corps, early in the mutiny, shot their commanding officer at the head of his column, and joined the ranks of the rebels. Captain Montgomerie, however, by his own courage and tact, not only kept his men (soldiers of that same regiment) under discipline, and got good work out of them, but brought them back loyal and attached to the service. They have now good cause to thank him. I know that these incidents add nothing to Captain Montgomerie's claims to notice on scientific grounds; but if, as I hope may be the case, the Royal Geographical Society should consider that his labours deserve to be noticed for their result, the circumstances under which they were carried out may perhaps be taken into account. If the society think this young officer worthy of any honour, I shall greatly rejoice, both for his own sake and for that of the distinguished corps to which he belongs. I believe that there does not exist under any Government in the world a body of officers surpassing that of the Engineers of the Indian army in the combination of high intellectual ability and acquirements with the most daring and persevering courage, if indeed there be any equal to it. I wish I had been able to push forward the geological survey more rapidly, in accordance with your exhortations of four years ago. But the last two years and a half have given me other things to think of, and, which is worse, other things whereupon to spend our money; even you yourself, had you been here, would have had to turn your hammer once more into a sword. I hope, however, to get some practical benefit out of the Kumaon iron district very shortly, in the shape of castings (wrought iron will be a longer job), and the recent discovery of the extent, much greater than was known, of useful coal-fields, not far from the line of the East-India Railway in Lower Bengal, is a very welcome incident. On the other hand, I am sorry to say that I have just received a most discouraging report from Mr. Oldham of the hopelessness of finding coal north-westward of Allahabad. Believe me, dear Sir Roderick, yours very faithfully, CANNING.—Sir Roderick I. Murelison, &c., &c., Belgrave-square."

TEMPORARY ESTABLISHMENTS.—The Civil Finance Commission have, in a letter to the Financial Department, drawn the attention of H.E. the Governor-general in India in Council to the subject of the very heavy annual payments for temporary establishments throughout India. It appears from a statement submitted that in 1858-59, so far as could be ascertained, the expenses for maintaining temporary establishments were as large as Rs. 61,00,975. The Governor-general, therefore, in compliance with the request of the commission, has resolved to call upon all the local Governments to cause an immediate and special revision to be made of the temporary establishments existing at this time; and he moreover directs that the civil auditors at the different Presidencies be requested to submit as early as possible a half yearly return in tabular form of the temporary establishments in the various departments and districts; to report on the relation which they may bear in numbers and cost to the permanent establishments of the same kind in the same localities; and to point out any disparities in the expenditure for temporary establishments in districts which, in regard to general considerations, may fairly admit of being compared together.

ASSESSORS OF INCOME-TAX.—The following resolution is passed by the local Government:—"The Lieutenant governor has been pleased to determine that deputy magistrates and deputy collectors appointed assessors under Act XXXII. of 1860 shall retain their rank on the list of the subordinate executive service, and shall not, by such appointment, be debarred from receiving promotion in that line according to their general services and merits in due course. When any such assessor is promoted in the regular line, it will be determined whether he shall or shall not be required to return to his ordinary duties in that line. All persons in any of the regular services of Government, on being appointed assessors, will retain the right of returning to their former appointments or departments when their services as assessors are no longer required. In the mean time they will draw salary only as assessors, and the salaries of their substantive appointments will be available for the remuneration of those who may be appointed temporarily to fill their places in the regular line."

STAFF APPOINTMENTS.—An important General Order affecting the interests of officers on the staff has been issued by the Governor-general. It has now almost become the universal custom among officers who have proceeded to England on the longest period of leave that can be granted them in India to obtain from the Secretary of State an extension of that leave, still retaining the right to return to their staff appointments in spite of express rules to the contrary. These extensions of leave are, according to the Friend of India, the result of Horse Guards and parliamentary influence over the Secretary of State. The Governor-general, it seems, does not appreciate this state of things so highly as do the staff officers, for he has issued a resolution in the following terms:—"As the responsibility to decide whether extension of leave of absence to staff officers granted by H.M.'s Government in England shall be attended by extended tenure of office has been placed on the local Government, the Governor-general in Council resolves for the future to discontinue such extension of the tenure of staff appointment altogether. The adjutant-general will give a copy of this resolution to each staff officer going home on furlough with extension of his staff appointment."

CIVIL SERVICE RANK.—A question affecting the rank of civil servants has, we learn from the North-West Gazette, been decided by the home and Indian authorities. At present, says our contemporary, "at Madras each servant ranks from the date of landing; while in Bengal it has been usual to accord rank from April 30 of the year the civil servant stood appointed in England. And in Bombay the practice is to reckon rank from the date of arrival at that presidency of the first civil servant of a batch appointed in one season. These various and widely different practices in the three presidencies must have caused very considerable confusion in more ways than one, and it became evident that one uniform plan must be introduced throughout India. In the opinion of the Government the Bombay practice is considered the most simple and equitable; and will henceforth constitute the practice in the three presidencies."

THE 2ND CO. 4TH BATT. B.A., under command of Captain A. Wintle, arrived at Agra on the morning of the 27th Nov., halted the 28th, and proceeded on the morning of the 29th towards Gwalior. The Maharajah Scindiah came into cantonments, but, in consequence of Agra being at present without artillery, no salute could be fired in honour of his arrival. The men of the disbanded 5th European regiment have been distributed to the remaining regiments. Fifty-seven have been selected for the 3rd European regiments at this station (Agra) and left Dinapore on the 13th November, in progress to join. The officers of the late 5th European regiment are to be attached to other regiments in the service. H.M.'s 27th (or Inniskilling) regiment are expected to march into Agra on the morning of the 6th December.

PESHAWUR, Nov. 27.—Major-general Sir Sydney Cotton has recovered sufficiently from his recent attack of illness to undertake a tour of inspection to Nowshera, Attock, and other posts adjacent, for which he left this on Thursday. Brigadier Gallway took his departure hence to-day on a similar errand, and Colonel Rainer, of H.M.'s 98th, has temporary command of the station in his place, and brought out grand guard-mounting this morning to keep peoples' hands in.

MR. SHERRINGTON has been instructed to make a geological survey of the Putteala territory, and intimation has been given to the Raja of this intention.

SMALL CAUSE COURT.—From the Judges of the Calcutta Court of Small Causes, to A. R. Young, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.—Sir,—We have the honour to submit herewith for the information of his Honour the Lieut. Governor, the report of the business of this Court during the year, which ended on the 30th April last. 2. The number of cases instituted was 32,287; the average number daily being 129. 3. The net amount credited to Government on account of fees, &c., was Rs. 1,32,144-3-7, while the total expense of the establishment was Rs. 1,04,130-15-8, leaving a balance in favour of Government of Rs. 28,004-3-11. 4. These results show a considerable increase of business during the past year as compared with any previous year since the establishment of the Court. 5. Of the 32,287 cases instituted, only 17,955 were actually tried; 13,057 having been decided in favour of the plaintiff, and 4,338 having been either dismissed or nonsuited. 14,088 cases were compromised before being called on for hearing, or were struck out for non-appearance of the parties, and 204 remained undecided. 5. A considerable decrease will be observed in the number of summonses issued, though there is an increase in the number of other processes. This arises from our having altered one of the rules of the Court, which requires a duplicate summons to be prepared in every case merely to be filed with the record. We found that these duplicates could be dispensed with without any inconvenience, and the rule was altered accordingly.—We have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient servants, A. G. Macpherson, Huruchunder Ghose, and G. O. Wray, Judges.—Calcutta Court of Small Causes, June 8, 1860.

THE NUWAB OF BAHAWULPOOR has been setting the Government of India at defiance and encroaching on his neighbour's territory, killing and plundering all around. The attention of the Supreme Government has been called to his conduct.

LETTERS FROM INDORE state that the Maharajah has been establishing new transit duties, particularly on firewood. Explanations have been called for, and the meeting with Holkar will be postponed until these differences are cleared up to the satisfaction of the Viceroy.

MEMORIAL CHURCH AT LUCKNOW.—At the consecration of Christ Church, in the civil lines, a collection was made to complete the fittings and ornaments of the church, which amounted to Rs. 400. Christ Church, as is generally known, was planned by Major Hutchinson when military secretary to Mr. Montgomery, then chief commissioner of Oude. It has been built out of the city fines, as a kind of compensation for the damage which the mutineers did to the churches in Murriaon cantonments and the Residency. The sum originally granted for this purpose was 30,000 rupees, which was soon found to be insufficient, and a further sum of 20,000 allowed, on the understanding that no further sum would be given. The church is still far from finished, the reading desk and many of the seats used at the consecration having been borrowed for the occasion. It is computed that it will still require Rs. 10,000 more to finish it as it ought to be finished. Opinions are divided as to the appearance of the exterior, which, through some architectural inaccuracies, is not all that could be wished; but all judges are agreed as to the beauty of the interior. Its lofty roof, the light springing arches and elegant cornices, with brilliantly painted glass windows, marble floor, and ornamented niches and communion rail, give to the interior a very imposing and solemn appearance. The dimensions of the building are—length, from east to west, including walls and buttresses, 105½ feet; in width, from north to south, 103½ feet. It is calculated to hold 350 persons. It has a very spacious compound, with a very comfortable parsonage adjoining. It is known that the edifice was intended as a memorial church for those who fell during the mutinies. Already two pretty tablets have been set up, and several more are promised. Among them is one to be put up by the Bishop, in grateful recollection of his late pupil, Mr. Thomson, C.S., killed at Aurangabad, in Oude.—Oudh Gazette.

CHURCH BUILDING EXTRAORDINARY.—The Oude Gazette has been given to understand that Sir Robert Montgomery, Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab, has obtained the sanction of the Supreme Government for the erection of fifteen new churches in the Punjab. His Honour is of opinion that, at every station where there are a dozen Europeans, there ought to be a place of Divine worship, however small.

THE BIRD-CATCHERS.—The Punjab Government has issued one of the most amusing reports we have seen for a long time, and not at all less interesting because the matters it treats of are on rather a small scale compared with Italy and China. There are some tribes in the Sealkote district who profess to live by bird-catching, but are really hereditary thieves and vagabonds. They are called Puckewarrahs and Sansees, and the report of Captain Urmston, officiating deputy commissioner of Sealkote, details the success of an attempt made by himself and his predecessor to turn these people into decent agriculturists. Accordingly they were settled in a "kote," and the process of turning up the ground inaugurated with some eclat. The repair of an old pukka well inside the kote (says the officiating deputy commissioner) gave "immense satisfaction," and scarcely less so, the throwing a wooden bridge over the outer ditch. The distribution of presents caused intense gratification; five of the most deserving of the chief men received each a pugree and chudder, and three, only a degree less meritorious, a pugree only, the names of all being duly recorded in the margin. In return, they took the Huzoor round their fields, with evident pride, and presented him with a nuzzur of Indian corn, "as good as I have ever seen." After the presentation of the khilluts, at which the entire population, of every age and sex, took part, there was an examination of the school, seventeen children. The distribution of sweetmeats, silver coin, and pice, closed the proceedings, and "will, I think, give a stimulus to the progress of education." "They appear," says Captain Urmston, with great satisfaction, "to be as prolific as the Cashmeeries." We can only hope, in conclusion, that the Government of the Punjab and its dependencies may be prevailed on to "sanction an expenditure of Rs. 12, on account of the khilluts referred to in paragraph 6;" more especially as "there is still a balance in hand from the Rs. 540 previously sanctioned." Would that the finances of the rest of the empire were equally flourishing!—Delhi Gazette.

A DISPUTE has arisen regarding the boundaries of Tonk and Jeypoor. The forces of the latter proceeded to break down the boundary pillars, and an affray ensued in which many lives were lost.

THE KING OF OUDE has resolved on weeding the population which has grown up around him at Garden Reach. Bad and doubtful characters are to be cast out. This reform, so much required, will tend to add to the credit of his Majesty, as at present his character is rather at stake, for permitting his property being turned into a refuge for rebels and thieves.

USE OF CONSECRATED CHURCHES IN INDIA.—In India a Government circular has been issued, directing that the churches at the various stations in India may be used by chaplains of the church of Scotland, with the consent of the bishop and English chaplains. The new Bishop of Calcutta, in a pastoral circular, states that the point has been laid before the highest ecclesiastical and legal authorities in England. Dr. Lushington's opinion is to the effect, that in England a consecrated church cannot be used for any service but that of the Church of England. But the ecclesiastical law of England, save as to particular portions, has not been introduced into India. So the bishop, with the concurrence of the Government, grants the concession as "a reasonable act of kindness and courtesy to the reformed church of the sister kingdom of Scotland, established and supported by the Queen as much as our own, and embracing a large number of her bravest soldiers who must otherwise worship in a barrack or in the open air."

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE have obtained from the Government of Bengal an order for the re-adjustment of the Customs' duties on the basis of the new Tariff with retrospective effect from the 4th April last.

THE CAIRO TRIALS commence on the 5th Dec.; Colonel Palmer, of the Lucknow regiment, is president. Five officers are under arrest: Capt. Cox, Lieuts. Alexander and Brown, of the artillery, Lieut. Patton, of the cavalry, and another officer. Lieut. Brown is to be tried first. There are a great number of witnesses.

ALLAHABAD, Nov. 27.—His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief arrived on Friday morning, and took up his residence at Durrant's hotel, which was given up entirely to Sir Hugh and his staff. On the afternoon of Friday there was a general review of the whole of the troops in the station besides the Cawnpore levy. On Saturday his Excellency inspected the new station, as well as the various barracks in other parts of Allahabad, dining with the mess of H.M.'s 70th in the evening. On Sunday morning his Excellency attended church, and in the afternoon went by special train to Cawnpore.

LOSS OF THE "RATTLER."—This steamer left Calcutta for a cruise in the pilot station, and had the misfortune to be caught in the gale of the 17th November. In spite of every exertion to save her, the vessel was blown ashore off False Point, where she took the ground, and could not possibly be got off. Very soon she began to break up, and there was no alternative left but to abandon her. With the exception of the lascars, all hands have been saved. The commander, officer, passenger, and crew, made the best of their way to the land. For a few days they had to wander about from village to village, being subjected to every discomfort and suffering, until they reached Cuttack (Balasore), where they are at present, we believe. The commander and the passenger, Mr. Apear, are said to be ill from the exposure and privations they have undergone. The Vulcan had been sent down to look for the Rattler, and the Celerity is now keeping watch over the wreck.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.—At Lahore there has been a prize volunteer shooting match. The competitors were the 1st Punjab Volunteers, and a few officers and men from the corps at Meean Meer. After the minor prizes had been competed for and won, we learn from the Overland Hurkaru that the winners then competed for the last great prize of 200 rupees, which was won by Mr. Allsop, "who was hoisted on the shoulders by his comrades and borne to the tents, where his Honour the Lieutenant-governor and the beauty and fashion of the station greeted him with loud cheers." From the Oude Gazette the same contemporary learns that "102 members have already registered themselves for the Lucknow Rifle Association, and that other twenty-five adult members are expected to join it soon. Mr. G. Campbell has been elected commandant; Col. Abbott second in command, and Captain T. Chamberlain, adjutant. East Indians as well as Europeans are eligible to become members. The association is to be called the Oude Volunteer Brigade, and the words 'Daily Guard' are to be inscribed on its colours. The Martiniers have been invited to form a cadet company. The colour of the uniform is blue."

ANOTHER PLEASANT MATTER FOR BANK MANAGERS.—A gentleman of prepossessing appearance and engaging manners presents himself as Lieut. W. T. Goad to Mr. Parry of the Delhi Bank; and by the kindness of that functionary cashes a cheque upon the Oriental Bank for Rs. 400. This cheque is returned dishonoured. The prepossessing gentleman next "bags" Rs. 500 worth of property from Nanuck Chund, and pays the unsuspecting tradesman with a piece of paper on the same institution. He then takes his departure. In ordinary course up came the reply adverted to, "dishonoured." The manager of the Delhi Bank and the defrauded merchant repair to the magistrate of Delhi, whereupon, on their solemn affirmation as to the facts, he telegraphs by the "wires that hung John Tawell," to the executive authority of Kurrachee, to wait upon the said

Lieut. Goad as soon as a vessel by which he was supposed to have taken a passage for his gentlemanly person, should arrive. The lightning message proved no flash in the pan. Within twenty-four hours up comes the response from Kurrachee, "Lieutenant Goad is under arrest." "What is the charge?" Here comes the inevitable hitch; the prosecutors are on, as it were, the top of the isosceles at Delhi, with their ultimate destinations under recognisances to prosecute, if the accused plead British born subject, at either Bombay or Calcutta. They want their money, but can't afford to get it! They would, of course, prefer some punishment in seeing Lieut. Goad carefully and ignominiously re-imported to Delhi. But what if he pleads British born when he comes there? which such an astute personage is sure to do; or what if, at Bombay, well aware of the fatuous state of the law, he plead the same on the reply, flashing back that the charge is felony? Then the hopeless prosecutors are equally undone. Here are swell mob swarming about the country with no credentials but plausible deportment; the riff-raff who levant and are posted after races, and such like scum, and where is to be the end? If the opinion was taken of the unprejudiced European public in these parts, what would the show of hands be for?—Mofussilite.

MONGHYR, Nov. 25.—Yesterday was a great day for our quiet little station. Soon after ten o'clock the two steamers which bore Cæsar and all his fortunes, in other words, Lord Canning and his secretaries, anchored at the Coal Ghat, and as intimation had been given that his lordship would land to inspect the town and neighbouring railway works, preparations had been made by our active magistrate. A light carpet had been laid down the somewhat steep slope of the river bank; on either side of this was a line of plantain trees connected with festoons of leaves and flowers. At the top, the word "Welcome" was seen intertwined with foliage, forming an arch across the path. Those doughty warriors, the Hill rangers, were paraded, and the best carriages of the station were drawn up. A crowd of natives was present, and the European residents assembled to greet his Lordship. At noon Lord and Lady Canning, attended by Mr. Yule, the commissioner, and the aides-de-camp, had left the barge and approached the shore, where the magistrate received them. Immediately the viceregal party landed they drove away to see the fort, a commanding view of which is to be obtained from the magistrate's house. This house has long been celebrated in Indian history; even Clive and Hastings once inhabited it when Monghyr was a frontier station. Now, when the place is in the heart of a peaceful province, a fair view may be obtained from its roof of poppy fields, fields of pulse, the teeming bazaar, the mighty Ganges, and meandering round the fort and through the cultivation, may be noticed the railway, winding its subtle course in the midst of old world prejudices, and destined, ere long, let us hope, to correct them. About two the cortege drove through the bazaar, and soon arrived at the old village of Suffia Serai, the point at which the rail terminates for the present. Here a body of railway officials was gathered, and one of the managing engineers was introduced. He pointed out the conveyances which were to be used, which were,—name it not in Gath,—common earth trucks, but earth trucks so metamorphosed that their mothers—if earth trucks have mothers,—never would have known them. Red paint and white calico did their uttermost, and three gay equipages were the consequence. In front, a light trolly was used by Lord and Lady Canning, attended by one of the railway gentlemen. Arm chairs were placed on the scarlet covering of the trolly, which, with its pretty monogram in a wreath of leaves, was tastefully arranged. Coolies ran behind, pushing the conveyance merrily over the iron road, which soon arrived at Jumalpoore, the site of one of the central stations of the railway. During the journey, which on an unfinished railway, mind you, is not quite so rapid as a description, plenty of time was afforded for admiration of the beautiful scenery and close cultivation. The Kurruckpore hills, at the distance of a mile or so, bounded the view. At Jumalpoore the trucks were taken through the station, which is now assuming, with its engine-shed, passenger-station, and other buildings, quite an imposing appearance. All sorts of devices in the way of triumphal arches were passed under, and the railway people seemed determined to show all the honour they could to Lord Canning, as a friend of railway enterprise, however much others might criticise his policy. The general burden of the decorations was the word "Welcome," differently arranged. One structure in particular was so solid and ornamental in appearance that it seemed a pity to remove it, and yet, on close examination, it proved to be composed solely of bamboos, leaves, shreds of cloth, and the most frail material. Three verdant Gothic arches, surmounted by an entablature and flags, formed the main feature at the point where the branch railway to Monghyr diverges from the main line from Calcutta to Delhi. On each side arch were the letters E. I. R. in red on a white ground, and following the curve of the large central arch was to be read "Welcome Viceroy" with a crown at the top and no end of flags. Other smaller arches of varied form and festooned with leaves enlivened the scene, which was crowded with railway overseers and natives in holiday costume. On leaving the station the direction was changed towards the tunnel, which pierces a spur of the Kurruckpore hills. This is the solitary tunnel on the railway, and has been a work of great difficulty. The rock is unusually hard. It looked very gay on Saturday, for Mr. Harris, the resident engineer, who has from the first superintended the work, had decorated the rugged rocks outside his gloomy cavern, and inside, where the visitors had, with the assistance of a rope, clambered up the face of the rock and entered the long gallery which has been excavated throughout, a fairy scene was disclosed. Innumerable lamps attached to the roof showed in a long vista, and their light was reflected in the water which had percolated through the joints of the rock over head. A dry path had been formed for the ladies; and, guided by torch-bearers, the Viceregal party walked through the tunnel. After a short journey on the eastern side they returned. At the western face a pause was made, sketch-books were produced and the scientific part of the visitors examined the effect of the gunpowder on the quartz rock. A rumbling sound only was heard when the blasts were fired in the body of the tunnel, but the reports from the shots in the face were very startling. Lord Canning seemed greatly interested in all that was going on, and having satisfied his curiosity, again took his seat in his trolley, and the whole party returned to the Jumalpoore station, where his Lordship walked through the workshops and looked over a series of beautiful drawings prepared by Mr. Galway, the engineer in charge. By this time night was coming on, and Lord and Lady Canning were conducted quickly down the incline to Suffia Serai, and thence in carriages to the river side, where they embarked for the barge. The visit seemed to gratify all, and at an early hour this morning the steamer left for Patna.—Englishman.

THE OUDE LIBEL CASE.—On the 26th November the Advocate-General renewed the application for a rule nisi for a criminal information against the printer and publisher of the Oudh Gazette, Mr. Hardinge, the late editor, and Mr. Carruthers, solicitor, who is asserted to be a part proprietor. The application was grounded upon affidavits of Mr. Carnegie, Ramdial, Mr. Bickers, and others, denying the truth of certain statements which appeared in the Oudh Gazette of September 8th. The learned counsel stated that his clients did not wish to press the case against any of the parties but Mr. Hardinge, who it is understood has gone home, but that no doubt in law the other parties were also liable. The publication of the alleged libellous statement in Calcutta was proved by the production of a copy of the newspaper containing it from the Foreign Office. This newspaper was received by post. Sir Charles Jackson, who was sitting alone, owing to the indisposition of the Chief Justice, granted the rule, laying a significant stress upon the word nisi.

SIR HUGH ROSE arrived at Jounpoor on the 21st Nov. at half past seven A.M., and ordered out the 47th regiment N. I. in half an hour. He inspected the regiment, made the commandant put it through some manoeuvres, catechised the officers, and expressed himself much pleased with all he had seen. He then inspected the fort and returned to Benares at eleven A.M. He is expected at Cawnpore in the course of the week. There is some excitement at Lucknow, in consequence of the inquiry arising out of Koorban Ali's case, in which it will be remembered some disreputable jobbing in Government securities had been brought to light.

AN EXPEDITION INTO THE HILLS.—The Government has authorised an expedition, under Lieutenant Martin, to enter the Garrow Hills, on the borders of Mymensing and Goalparah, for the purpose of chastising the Hill men for their frequent inroads and depredations.

RAEPOR.—Letters from Nagpore state that the rebels at Raepore have fled and dispersed in various directions. The Government has granted to the ranees of the late Raja three valuable jagheers in the Bombay Presidency, the profits of which are to be paid to them annually.

THE BENGAL GOVERNMENT has granted an honorary sunnud to Raja Bhore Sing, of Nunklow, in Assam, recognising his services and thanking him for the same.

COLONEL BOULDERSON has tendered his resignation of the offices now held by him as head of the municipality of the police force, and designs proceeding to Europe by the ship Marlborough, which is advertised to sail at the end of December. It has been no secret for some time past, that Colonel Boulderson meditated retiring from India, where he has served uninterruptedly for nearly forty years, but we believe that the necessity of his presence at home has hastened his determination. His resignation has been accepted by Government in fitly complimentary terms.—Athenaeum.

COCHIN.—We (Courier) have been favoured with the prospectus of the Palni Coffee and Tea Company, proposed to be established with a capital of Rs. 150,000 in 3,000 shares of Rupees 50 per share. The Pulni Hills were most favourably noticed by Sir Charles Trevelyan during his official visit to them. The climate was described as equal to the best climates of the Indian mountain regions, and the vegetation as having a much closer analogy to that of England than is the case at Simla. Coffee is successfully grown there, and the cultivation might be carried to any extent. It is proposed to bring 500 acres of this tract under cultivation, and in respect to coffee alone, the profits are computed at no less than 10 per cent. per annum after the first three years. There can be no doubt that the tea plant will thrive as luxuriantly on this range as it does on the Neilgherries or the Shevaroy Hills; but the difficulty which has prevented the introduction of Indian produce into the European markets, consists in the manipulation of the leaf. It is hoped, however, that the company will be able to command skilled labour for this purpose, by means of their capital. A gentleman in Wynaud, of the highest respectability and of some experience, has offered his services as the resident manager of the proposed company.

THE CINCHONA EXPERIMENT.—On that most important subject, the introduction of quinine yielding cinchonas, into India, we are glad to learn from the Proceedings of the Madras Government that the experiment has been made, and that it has, so far, proved successful. Mr. Markham, who was deputed by the home Government to bring specimens of these plants from Peru, has reported to the Secretary of State that he arrived at Ootacamund on the 12th October, and that the cinchona he had brought with him had been planted on the site chosen by Mr. McIvor, the superintendent of the Botanical Gardens. Of this site Mr. Markham expresses his entire approval, and observes that in many respects it closely resembles the localities where the cinchona is originally found. After a week upwards of fifty of the plants had begun to grow. "Thus," writes Mr. Markham, "the successful introduction of the Cinchona Calisaya and Ovata into India is certain." While this first nursery is growing up, it is Mr. Markham's intention, in accordance with instructions to that effect from home, to visit the Pulneys in Madura, the hills on the borders of Tinnevely and Travancore, those of Wynaad and Coorg, and those of Mohableshwar in Bombay, for the purpose of ascertaining "whether any or all of these are suitable for the cultivation of the cinchona plant." When it is considered how prevalent fever is, both among Europeans and natives, and furthermore, at what an immense cost quinine is brought to this country, it will readily be acknowledged that the importance of this experiment cannot be over-rated.—Athenæum. We regret to learn from the Eclectic that all the Cinchona plants taken to the Neilgherries by Mr. Markham are dead. Some cuttings from the parent plants, however, are budding, and likely to do well. They grow in the Government gardens.

PUBLIC WORKS.—Government on the 1st of November sanctioned, on the recommendation of the consulting engineer, an expenditure of one lakh thirty-three thousand six hundred and twenty-four rupees eight annas on buildings and works required on the South-West and North-West lines of the Madras Railway. Captain Johnston represented that all these buildings and works were absolutely necessary, and would have to be carried out, notwithstanding the restrictive order on expenditure. The places where the works are required are Perambore, Salem, Coimbatore, and two bridges on the North-West line.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LE ROI EST MORT: VIVE LE ROI!—It is with deep regret that we (Bombay Gazette) announce the death, from acute dysentery, of Mr. John A. Mackenzie, clerk of the Insolvent Court, and Secretary of the Byculla Club. After a fortnight's painful illness, Mr. Mackenzie died on the 6th Dec. at the club. There is no one in Bombay whose loss could be more generally felt and lamented than that of Mr. Mackenzie. The gentleness of his manners and amiability of his disposition, coupled with his hearty love of, and excellence in, all manly sports, made him a universal favourite, and his premature decease has cast a gloom over the whole society of Bombay. The public will be gratified to learn that no interruption of business in the Insolvent Court is likely to occur, in consequence of the lamented death of Mr. J. A. Mackenzie, Mr. Orr having stepped into the shoes of the late clerk as soon as they were vacated. Mr. Orr is a promising young gentleman, who has the good fortune to be nephew to Chief Justice Sausse. This qualification, destitute as Mr. Orr is of any profession, is considered to qualify him for the multifarious duties of two or three posts, to which, in this age of amalgamations, he has been appointed. Although we believe he is scarcely of age yet, this young judicial scion already enjoys an income of Rs. 2,000 a month, from the consolidated fees of clerk to the Chief Justice and general dispenser of sealing wax and clerk to the Insolvent Court—an income greater than that allowed by the law to the Master in Equity or the Advocate-General. The only justification offered of Mr. Orr's appointment is that the duties of the offices named are so light he is perfectly competent to discharge them. But surely, if this be true—if the holder of these situations requires neither marked ability, nor professional skill, nor large experience—the emoluments ought not to be as great as the pay of the most learned and important officials, next to the judges of the Supreme Court. We offer this suggestion in all humility, hoping that in due time it will germinate and bring forth fruit. Meanwhile, what can we say more than that happy is the chief justice who has a nephew on whom to bestow the most lucrative offices in his court, and happy the nephew who has a chief justice to take care of him!

RIOT AT BASSEIN.—On Wednesday, the 5th Dec., Mr. Hunter, C. S., the collector of Income-tax for the district, was sitting in his office, and about which several thousand persons, Hindoos and Mahomedans were assembled. Mr. Hunter asked these men why they did not send in their return of income, when several nearest to him stepped forward, and insolently replied, Why should we send in our returns? The collector read the clauses of the Act relating to this point, and added in a conciliatory tone, and by way of explanation, that if any petition were presented he would take care to forward it to the Government. To this the answer from the people was that they would not give in their returns, and that Mr. Hunter must discharge several prisoners whom he had in custody on account of non-compliance with the provisions of the Act. The Collector repeating that the Act must be obeyed, and that the orders of Government compelled him to retain these prisoners, one of the crowd seized his arm. The office sepoy attempted to interfere, on which the people assaulted him and his master, and it was with the utmost difficulty that Mr. Hunter effected his escape and made his way to the Bunder. Here he was met by the fishermen and coolies, who pelted him with mud and tried to stop his boat. He, however, got clear away, and reached Tanna in safety. The next day Mr. Hunter, accompanied by Mr. Boswell, Mr. Harpur, and another gentleman, and by a police guard conveying a supply of handcuffs, went back to Bassein. The Mamlutdar gave up the names of several Banians and others who had been prominent actors in the riot, and these men were at once seized in their own houses, put in irons, and taken off to Tanna. A search was then made for others of the rioters, three boat-loads of whom were brought into Tanna on Sunday. The first batch of prisoners, after being kept in the Tanna gaol all night, were discharged on a bail of Rs. 2,000 each. The fate of the others is not yet decided.—Gazette.

DISTURBANCES AT SURAT.—Surat has endeavoured to improve on the examples set by Poona and Bombay. On the 29th of November, between nine and ten a.m., a mob of three or four thousand people assembled in one quarter of the city, declaring with much clamour that they would not pay the Income-tax, but would shut up their shops, and suspend all business till the Act imposing the tax was repealed. They then began to close their shops, and sent messages to other parts of the city for aid and co-operation. Word was brought to the magistrate, Mr. Ravenscroft, of these illegal proceedings, and he, accompanied by Captain Hodgson, superintendent of police, and a large body of police, foot and mounted, immediately repaired to the spot, and in a very few minutes the rioters were dispersed, without any great violence having been used. Thirty of the ringleaders were taken prisoners, placed in irons, which the police had been ordered to bring with them so that they might be handy for the occasion, and forthwith conveyed to prison. The same day all these men were brought up before Mr. Ravenscroft, and tried for rioting. Five were acquitted for want of evidence, the remaining twenty-five were convicted and sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labour.—Bombay Gazette.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF proceeds early in the ensuing week to Ahmednuggur, and after remaining there a few days will go on to Aurungabad to decide on the site selected for the newly-formed cantonment at that station. The Quartermaster-General and Dr. Hadaway, Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals, accompany his Excellency.—Poona Observer, Dec. 6.

BOMBAY VOLUNTEER CORPS.—The Bombay Government has expressed its approval of the election of Colonel North as commanding officer of the volunteer corps, and has made only one condition, in approving the formation of the corps,—that the name should be "The Bombay Rifles" instead of "The First Bombay Rifles." This change is rendered compulsory by Lord Dalhousie's decision that not more than one corps shall be formed in any place till the number of volunteers exceed 500. A meeting of the members of the Bombay Volunteer Rifle Corps was held on the 10th December, in the Exchange Rooms, Colonel North, the commanding officer, occupying the chair. The report of the preliminary committee, whose duties have now terminated, and the treasurer's account, were received and adopted. In conformity with the requisition of Government, the title of the corps was changed from "First Bombay Volunteer Rifles" to "Bombay Volunteer Rifles." Mr. W. C. Sillar, the originator of the movement, was unanimously elected adjutant of the corps. The election of officers was postponed for two months, so as to allow of the opportunity of ascertaining who are the most zealous and intelligent of the corps, and their merits for the responsible posts. The appointment of a permanent committee was also deferred for the same reason, as by the rules, the committee is to be mostly composed of the officers. It is most gratifying to find that, notwithstanding the inaction to which the corps has been condemned for two months, its popularity increases every day. The accession of one or two distinguished civil servants to the ranks marks the progress the corps is making in public estimation; and we do not doubt that, ere long, nearly all the able-bodied Englishmen in Bombay will be proud to call themselves Volunteers.

Mr. A. W. HUGHES, Assistant Superintendent of Revenue Survey, S. M. Country, has been appointed Deputy Collector of Rutnagherry, in the room of John Henry Trott, Esq., deceased.

THE TRADERS AND SHOPKEEPERS OF BOMBAY have prepared a petition to be presented to Parliament for the abolition of the Income-tax Act. A deputation from among them is shortly to wait upon his Excellency the Governor to request him to suspend the operation of the Act until the reply is received from Parliament. It is said that the Bombay Association has already sent a Memorial to Parliament protesting against the tax.

THE BEEJAPPOOR GUN.—It seems singular that with all our mechanical inventions and modern appliances, the Beejapoor gun should defy all attempts at removal; and yet it was conveyed from Ahmednuggur to its present position. This enormous piece of ordnance, we learn from Chesson and Woodhall's Miscellany, was cast in the year 1540, by a native of Constantinople, named Hussein Khan, at Ahmednuggur, from the king of which place it was subsequently taken. Its length is fifteen feet, and the calibre two feet four inches. The Hindoos more sua worship it, and, consequently, it is generally besmeared with ghee and red powder. The last time it was fired the effect was so terrific,—it is said throwing down walls, and frightening females in' an interesting condition into premature delivery,—that, we believe, no attempt has been made since. Another extraordinary gun may be seen not far off, on the summit of the high tower called the Oopuree Boorj, measuring thirty feet in length, and composed of bars of iron curiously welded, or rather bound together. The legend current regarding the Oopuree Boorj is worth relating, as it shows the way in which many of the buildings were constructed. One of the kings, wishing to get his city fortified with as little expense to himself as possible, gave each of his nobles a certain portion of wall and rampart to build, and excited the greatest emulation among them as to whose work should be best done. One of the chief nobles was absent at this time, and on his return, found the city completely walled in, and his peers rejoicing in their patriotic endeavours. Stung at being excluded from such a noble work, he expostulated with the king, who, to comfort him, promised him that what he should build would surpass in height and splendour the work of the others. Hence this tower.—Bombay Telegraph.

Finance.

Financial Dept., Fort William, Nov. 16, 1860.—The following resolution is published for general information:—

The leading principles upon which it was resolved that a more efficient system of financial control throughout the various branches of the civil and military departments of the public service in India should be established, have been fully stated in the Government Resolutions, Nos. 27 and 31, dated respectively 7th and 23rd April, 1860, and in the G.O. of Government of July 6 last, No. 710, which is the resolution specially affecting the military department.

2. The military finance commission reconstituted by G.O.G.G. No. 684, of June 29, 1860, on the one hand, and the Budget Committee convened under the order of Government of India, No. 39, dated May 11, 1860, on the other hand, have been sedulously engaged in considering how the details of the several measures involved in the new system may best be carried out, with the fullest possible adaptation of the principles prevailing in England to the existing circumstances of this country.

3. In Resolution No. 710 of July 6 last, the general functions to be entrusted to the Military Finance Department were defined and described in detail; and these were directed to be exercised, pending the organisation of the department, by the Military Finance Commission, as the representative, for the time being, of the Military Finance Department.

4. In Resolution No. 7371, of August 18 last, in the Financial Department, reviewing the report of the Budget Committee, and in the report No. 7, dated June 15, 1860, of the Military Finance Commission, approved by Government in letter No. 1,309, dated July 31, 1860, the general principle to be followed in approximating the Indian to the English system in all departments were considered and determined; and the formation of a Board of Audit has accordingly been resolved on, with the view to ensure the strict appropriation of the moneys in the Civil and Military Departments, in accordance with the grants made, and for the performance of the duties below detailed.

5. The time has now arrived for giving full effect to these resolutions, by such a practical organisation of the several subordinate departments as shall provide efficiency of financial control at the most reasonable cost, and at the same time secure the smooth and uniform action of the system.

6. The functions of the Chief of Military Finance Department, as described in the Resolution of July 6, are, in most material points, similar to those that will be exercised in the Civil Finance Department by the Accountant-general to the Government of India, who will, in future, be designated the Auditor-general of India. It is desirable, on considerations of economy and efficiency, as well as for the sake of uniformity of system, to assimilate the arrangements which it is proposed to introduce into these two great divisions of the public service, by bringing these two functionaries (Auditor-general and head of the Military Finance Department) into co-ordinate relations, so that, whilst retaining entire freedom of action in matters specially relating to their respective departments, they may act in unison in regard to all questions of general organisation, policy, and economy, as affecting estimates, budget, audit, and accounts, and determine together any important questions that may arise in connection with the final appropriation audit, and other arrangements of a general nature.

7. H.E. the Governor-general in Council is therefore pleased to resolve, that the new Board of Audit shall consist of two members, of whom the first will be Auditor-general of India, hitherto the Accountant-general to the Government of India, and the second the Chief of the Military Finance Department.

8. The members of the Board will act together in all matters of general organisation and control connected with the objects set forth in paragraph 6, and will together be responsible for the right and strict conduct of the final appropriation audit; but in all other respects, as heads of the Civil and Military Finance Departments, they will exercise independent jurisdiction over their respective divisions of the service.

9. The Civil and Military Finance Departments will thus be respectively presided over by a chief, with a seat at the Audit Board; and both these officers will exercise independently of each other, in reference to the departments assigned to them, all the functions of the character described in the Resolution of July 6, 1860, passed for the Military Department. Under this arrangement in the Military Department there will be, in addition to the chief, a controller at each Presidency, who, exercising the general powers laid down for that officer in the same resolution, will supervise and control the military accountant as well as the local auditors, examiners, and compilers. The compilers will be charged with the classification and preparation of the accounts; and there will be independent examiners, who, under the general rules framed for the department, will perform the duties of detailed examination and check of charges, being subject to the final control of the chief of the department; and also in matters of office detail to the immediate and close inspection and supervision of the controllers.

10. In nearly similar manner, the Civil Department will consist of a chief of the department, designated Auditor-general of India, of local auditors under each Government, nearly corresponding with the military controllers, and of local examiners or the civil paymasters; as defined in paragraphs 81 to 85 of the Report of the Budget Committee, and already prescribed in Resolution of August 18 last.

11. In furtherance of these resolutions, H.E. the Governor-general in Council is pleased to make the following appointments; those for the Madras and Bombay Presidencies being subject to such modifications and alterations as may hereafter, in communication with the Governments of these Presidencies, be deemed necessary:—

Board of Audit.—1st member and president.—Hon. E. Drummond (Accountant-general to the Government of India).

2nd Member.—Colonel G. Balfour, c.b. (President of the Military Finance Commission).

12. The members of the Board of Audit, in their respective depts., will be in direct communication with Government, and will aid the financial and other depts. of the Government of India, in examining and deciding on the various arrangements for the Budget estimates and accounts, and in performing all the functions set forth in the resolutions referred to in paras. 1, 2, and 4 of this resolution. And to this end every assistance will be afforded by the several departments of Government to the Board of Audit, by furnishing papers and information of every kind in connection with the functions of the Board.

13. When the Budget estimates have been sanctioned by the Government of India, it will rest with the members of the Board of Audit, each in his own dept., to see that the financial officers of his dept. efficiently and punctually discharge the duties severally assigned to them. All questions unprovided for by the Budget estimates, or standing rules of the dept., will be referred, through the proper channel, to the head of the Civil or Military Department to which they relate, and will be considered and decided on by him, if it be within his own competence to dispose of them.

14. In all cases where the matter referred involves questions which it is beyond the powers of either head of department to dispose of—such as when both Civil and Military Departments are involved, or where the orders of any local government are in question—the head of the department referred to will, if necessary, consult his colleague in the Audit Board; and if the occasion calls for further reference, the matter may be referred to the Government of India for final decision.

15. All questions arising during the course of the year for which the estimates have been sanctioned, having been disposed of, the final appropriation audit of the two departments (Civil and Military) will be conducted independently by the head of that department, who will satisfy himself and report to Government on the mode in which the several controllers of finance, and all officers subordinate to them, have performed their respective duties.

16. Whenever those duties have been efficiently performed, and the limits of the Budget estimates carefully observed, the Appropriation Audit will be effected by the head of the Finance Department (Civil or Military), without reference to his colleague, or to any other authority.

17. It is only when there has been a departure from the limits of the Budget estimate, or when the proceedings of other departments, or any orders of any local government are in question, that any reference to the Board of Audit in its collective capacity will be necessary; and it will rest with the Board to decide how far their own authority will suffice to dispose of such questions, and when it may be necessary to refer to the Government of India.

18. The direct control of the Audit Board, and of the two heads of departments forming it, will, however, be confined to the offices of audit, finance, and account. No orders or instructions will be issued to any local government or administration; nor will any orders or instructions of such government, or administration be altered or amended, except by the Government of India, or under its express authority.

19. The Military Finance Department will, with due regard to the requirements of the Audit Board, as respects the accounts for ensuring strictness of appropriation audit, be administered, in accordance with this and the resolutions above quoted, by the chief of the department, in association, for the present with his colleagues in the commission, R. Temple, Esq., and Lieut.-col. R. S. Simpson.

20. The general and executive duties of account, examination, and check, now entrusted to various officers in the three Presidencies—the military and medical accountants, the military auditors general, the auditors of commissariat, ordnance, medical, clothing, barrack and stud accounts, and others—will continue to be performed by the officers in charge, until regularly transferred under orders from the head of the department, to the officers appointed as above, in each Presidency respectively, for the several duties; and all orders and regulations hitherto in force will, as far as they may be consistent with the instructions contained in the resolutions of Government, continue to be observed. Such modifications of existing arrangements as may be found necessary will be applied for in due course; but no duty will be discontinued or relaxed until due provision has been made for the interests of the public service.

21. Detailed arrangements will be made by the Board of Audit and the chiefs of the respective departments, for the right performance of the duties for which they are respectively held responsible.

22. The several controllers and examiners will exercise the functions and perform the duties prescribed by this resolution and those herein referred to, from the earliest practicable date, which will be determined by the chiefs of the respective departments: pending which, the duties of all departments will continue to be conducted under existing rules.

23. The Military Finance Commission (originally constituted with Colonel Jameson as president, and Colonels Burn and Balfour as members), whose services have already been of great value, and are deserving of the highest commendation, will continue to aid the Government of India in carrying out the work of retrenchment and economic reform for which it was originally constituted; but all functions of direct administration, check and control heretofore exercised by the commission as a body, when re-constituted, will hereafter devolve on its president, who, in the capacity of a member of the Board of Audit, and head of the Military Finance Department, will, in conjunction with the other members of the commission, continue to assist in the general organization of the department.

24. The auditor general will, in like manner, enforce the principles of economic reform in the civil branch; and the heads of the Civil and Military Departments forming the Audit Board will, in concert, devise the arrangements necessary for the proper rendering of the accounts, and for ensuring strictness of appropriation audit.

25. The subsidiary orders necessary for the exercise of the independent functions entrusted by the resolution of Government to the Auditor General of India, and the chief of the Military Finance Department (aided by the members of the Commission), will be issued by those officers respectively: and the Audit Board will likewise issue such subsidiary orders as may be requisite in regard to the appropriation audit.

26. It is to be understood by all the departments concerned that, as a general rule, and except in special cases of emergency, or in cases in which the Governor-general in Council shall otherwise direct, all proposals in the Military, Political, or Financial Departments bearing on questions of military finance, and all proposals in the Public Works Department for expenditure (other than that on ordinary repairs), on Military Public Works, shall be sent for opinion and report to the Military Finance Department before the orders of the Governor-general in Council are taken upon them.

By order of the Governor-general in Council.

Appointment of Controllers.

Public Works Dept., General Establishments, Fort William, 13th Nov.—Notification.—H.E. the Viceroy and Gov.-gen. of India in Council having had under consideration the subject of the organization of the establishment for dealing with the accounts of the Public Works Department, and the manner in which the examination and audit of those accounts shall be connected with the general scheme of audit and accounts of H.M.'s Indian Empire, of which an outline was published in the Financial Resolution of the 7th April, 1860, No. 27, has now approved of the following scheme:—

The monthly accounts of the executive engineers and other disbursing officers of the Public Works Department will undergo examination by officers under the orders of the local government to be styled Controllers and Examiners of Public Works Accounts, of which officers one will eventually be attached to each local administration, with a deputy in the larger local governments. These officers will receive salaries and departmental rank corresponding with the officers of the engineer establishment, as follows:—

Controller and examiner, 1st class, corresponding with superintending engineer, 1st class.

Controller and examiner, 2nd class, corresponding with superintending engineer, 2nd class.

Dep.-controller and examiner, 1st class, corresponding with executive engineer, 2nd class.

Dep.-controller and examiner, 3rd class, corresponding with executive engineer, 4th class.

The principal subordinate accountants in the examiners' offices will (within the limits of the sanctioned scale of expenditure,) likewise be classed in rank and salary with the officers of the upper subordinate establishment of the Public Works Department, thus:—

Head accountant, 1st class, corresponding with sub-engineer, 1st class.

Asst. accountant, 2nd class, corresponding with asst. supervisor.

Asst. accountant, 3rd class, corresponding with overseer.

These situations will be considered specially open to subordinate officers of the Public Works Department, who have shown peculiar aptitude for accounts, but not to the exclusion of other qualified applicants.

The accounts compiled and examined by the controllers' offices will undergo detailed or concurrent audit by the deputy auditor general (now accountant to the local government,) entrusted with the audit of the civil accounts of the local government, and will further fall under the final or appropriation audit by the auditor general (now accountant-general,) at Calcutta.

Until the details of the operation and organization of the general Audit Department of the Government of India shall have been published, the controllers and examiners will exercise their functions in the manner heretofore laid down for the chief engineers, (and for the Public Works Controllers and Auditors where they have been appointed,) and will have the same powers to pass accounts. Where controllers are not appointed, the public works accounts will continue to be dealt with as heretofore, till further orders.

In order to preserve uniformity of system throughout the empire in the matter of public works accounts, and to give the Public Works Department of the Government of India a proper general control over the financial operations of this department, an inspector-general of public works accounts will be appointed, who will have the salary and departmental rank of chief engineer of the 2nd class, and will be ex-officio an under secretary to the Government of India.

This officer, besides having a power of inspection and general control of matters of form and system in the local Public Works Account Offices, will have similar general powers in the matters connected with the accounts of joint stock companies working under Government guarantee. He will also afford assistance to the auditor-general's department in dealing with questions connected with the accounts of the Public Works Department.

Appointments.—In connection with the foregoing notification, the Rt. Hon. the Gov.-gen. in Council is pleased to make the following appointments:—

Capt. H. Hyde, Bengal Engineers, to be Inspector-gen. of Public Works Accounts.

Maj. G. Chesney, Bengal Engineers, to be a 1st class Controller and Examiner, and to retain charge of the Bengal Public Works Office of Account.

Mr. H. Marten to be a 2nd class Controller and Examiner, and to retain charge of the Public Works Office of Account of the N.W. Provinces.

Maj. J. McLeod Innes, of the Bengal Engineers, to be 2nd class Controller and Examiner of Public Works Accounts for the Punjab; but will continue at Nagpore, till relieved of the charge of the chief engineer's office and public works office of account.

Capt. F. N. Smith, 30th Madras N.I., to be a 2nd class Deputy-Controller and Examiner of Public Works Accounts for the Pegu circle.

Capt. C. M. J. Thornton, of the Madras Art., to be a 3rd class Deputy-Controller and Examiner of Public Works Accounts for Nagpore; and will proceed and relieve Maj. Innes as soon as practicable.

Sketch Estimate for 1860-61.

Financial Dept., Fort William, Nov. 19.—Resolution.—The Gov. gen. in Council has lately had before him the sketch estimates for the current year 1860-61. These documents have generally been found in former years to represent a close approximation to the actual financial results of the year to which they relate. They have been prepared this season with unusual care, and they foreshadow a result somewhat less unfavourable than had been anticipated from returns and calculations which have been for some time before the public; but they show more clearly than ever the imperative necessity which exists for the most active and sustained exertion to enforce economy in all branches of the administration, in order to bring the current expenditure of the State within its income.

2. The total income of the Government of India for the year 1860-61, from all sources, exclusive of income-tax, is estimated, in round numbers, at £38,140,000; income-tax, at £1,000,000; giving a total income, from every source, of £39,140,000. The expenditure in India is estimated at £38,430,000; that in England, according to the latest information received here, at £6,983,000; giving a total expenditure by the Indian Government in India and in England of £45,413,000. Thus leaving a deficit of income, as compared with expenditure, of not less than £6,273,000, which must be met for the time by drawing on the balances in the Government treasuries.

3. This deficit is equal to more than 16 per cent. on the total expected income from all sources, including taxes only lately introduced, and the produce of which is, therefore, a matter of extreme uncertainty. As compared with the income from permanent sources (i.e., exclusive of income tax which is imposed for only a definite period), the deficit would be nearly 16 per cent.

4. But the fact that the current expenditure of India is still 16 per cent. in excess of the largest safe estimate of current income, does not represent the full gravity of the present condition of our finances.

5. There is much of the estimated expenditure which admits of no possible reduction during the current season. Such, for instance, is the interest of the Public Debt, which now forms a total annual charge of £4,480,000, and on account of which £4,246,600 are estimated to be paid in 1860-61. There are other charges, which it is needless to specify, but which amount in the aggregate to a very large sum, and are not practically susceptible of any immediate reduction, and some, like the guaranteed interest on railway capital, must, for years to come, annually increase.

6. Again, the estimates for some services are, for the current year, not only lower than it is desirable for efficient administration, but lower than it is possible to keep them permanently.

7. For example:—Not only are necessary and useful public works of all kinds deferred, but works calculated directly to improve the revenue, and to the execution of which Government is more or less pledged, and on some of which large sums have been already expended, are suspended to such an extent that an outlay of not less than eight millions sterling would be required to complete them. The expenditure in the construction of railways also has been curtailed to a very considerable amount, so as to avoid immediate pressure on the finances, owing to the temporary inability of some companies to deposit such an amount of capital as would save the Government from the risk of having to take the works into its own hands, and to complete them at the public expense.

8. No precautions have been neglected by the Govt. of India which could tend to enforce the most rigid economy in every branch of the administration. In addition to general measures of reduction, commissions have been apptd. to scrutinize charges in the principal branches of the public service, and their labours, especially those of the mil. finance commission, have been attended with the best practical results.

9. No officer of Govt. can fail to be aware of the earnest efforts which have been made to reduce expenditure in every dept., and it is only due to the several govts. and administrations of India, and to the whole body of Govt. servants who have so ably seconded the wishes of the Govt. of India, and by whose united exertions great reductions have been carried out; to draw attention to the result as shown in the diminution of expenditure,* which has been already effected since the restoration of peace to India. When it is considered that the struggle in 1857-58 was one quite without parallel in the history of our empire; that the restoration of peace was not proclaimed till late in 1858, and that up to the latter part of 1859 the necessity for keeping troops on a field establishment had not passed away; the Gov. in Council feels strongly that the thanks of the Govt. of India are due to its officers and servants of every grade, alike for the rapid manner in which means were organised and augmented to meet and crush mutiny and rebellion, and for the vigour with which retrenchments were enforced, when the immediate necessity for unusual exertion had passed away.

10. Nevertheless, the fact remains that we are still spending month by month 16 per cent. more than our current expected income.

11. It is also a fact, which daily becomes more clearly evident, that reductions of expenditure, comparatively easy at first, become more difficult as the process continues, and that each successive measure of economy becomes directly, as well as relatively, more arduous than its predecessor.

12. Moreover, the just expectations of H.M.'s Government, and of the people of India and of England,

* Total expenditure in England and in India.
1856-57	£33,974,000
1857-58	40,51,000
1858-59	50,480,000
1859-60 Estimate	46,417,000

will not be fulfilled by a simple return to the state of things which existed previous to 1856-57. Late events have made it apparent that the finances of India were not then, and had not been for many years previous, in a really sound and healthy condition. The Government of India was not able to do its duty with regard to public works, public education, or even the administration of public justice. The income and expenditure were so nearly balanced, even in the time of the most profound peace, that no sufficient surplus of income was left to meet temporary increase of charges, without adding to the public debt, whilst some of the most productive sources of income were precarious, and liable to sudden and serious diminution.

13. To revert to a state of things so little satisfactory will not be an adequate result after years of the strictest economy, and after the imposition of new taxes which have brought the necessities of the Government home to the personal interests of every artisan and trader in every corner of British India.

14. The Government of India hopes, as the result of the efforts that are now being made, that the finances of India will be placed on a thoroughly sound footing; that they will be rendered adequate, not only to enable the Government of India to provide fully for the legitimate wants of every branch of the public service, but to be free from all serious elements of uncertainty. Provision must also be made for that increase of expenditure on the whole machinery of civilized administration, which must be foreseen by any Government desiring to do its duty to the nations which Providence has entrusted to our rule in India.

15. But so large a financial result can never be expected from any action of the Supreme Government alone. The united efforts of the whole body of its servants in every branch of the administration are needed for it, and the Gov. gen. in Council feels that he can confidently rely on the well-trying sense of duty and public spirit of the Indian services, and that he will receive the cordial co-operation he requires from all to whom the true financial condition of the empire is known.

16. In accordance with the resolutions of Government which have been already published,* rules have been prepared and forms prescribed for carrying out a regular system of budget and audit in every Government and province, and throughout every department of the Government service.

17. The object of these measures is twofold—first, to ascertain beforehand the probable requirements of the public service, so as to enable the Government of India to review and provide for the wants made known to it, and to maintain an effectual check on the subsequent expenditure; secondly, to enable every branch of the public service periodically to review its own wants, and to submit the result of such review to the Government of India.

18. For this purpose every office in every department will be required to prepare annually an estimate of its probable requirements during the coming year. This will be submitted, through the head of each department, to the local Government, and ultimately to the Government of India, by which the estimate will be finally sanctioned, and laid down as the guide for expenditure during the coming year.

19. Every authority, through whose hands the estimate passes on its way to the Government of India, will be required carefully to scrutinise the demand thus made on the public income, and as long as the present financial pressure continues it will be the imperative duty of every head of an office or department to reduce the estimate to the very lowest amount consistent with the absolute necessities of the public service.

20. The facilities which will be given for effecting reductions will henceforward be greater than have ever before been afforded; for the budget and audit rules have been so framed as to leave to the head of each local government, or of each branch of administration, a much greater discretionary power than has heretofore been allowed in re-arranging the details of expenditure.

21. The grand totals of each department will be fixed by the Government of India in the sanctioned estimates, and the responsibility of keeping within the limits so fixed will be strictly enforced. But, in rearranging the details of the expenditure within each department, the discretion of the local administration will be fettered only by the necessity of immediate report to the Government of India, and by the observance of such rules relating to prospective expenditure, and to rates of salary and of pension, as are needed to secure uniformity of practice, and a due regard to the pledged faith of the Government of India.

22. The time, moreover, is peculiarly favourable for such a review of the requirements of the public service as this duty demands. India is at peace, externally and internally; and while the presence of an army much stronger than has ever before been at the disposal of the Government of India gives a feeling of general security, it has been the desire of the Government of India to give the fullest effect to the principles laid down in her Majesty's proclamation, to remove every cause of heart-burning, distrust, and animosity, and to secure to her Majesty's subjects of every rank, and of all races and creeds, the fullest and most undisturbed enjoyment of their respective rights and lawful usages. The renewed influx of European capital and enterprise, after a brief period of suspension, is one of the many facts which indicate the necessity for a revision and extension of many branches of our administrative machinery; but it is, at the same time, evidence of a return of that public confidence which alone can render such revision profitable, and such extension practicable.

23. It follows, however, that to bring the expenditure in each office down to the standard of any former year will not be sufficient. The reasons of, and necessity for, every item must be closely scrutinised, and must be tried by the test of the present and prospective wants of the public service. Nothing but the clearest proof that the faith of Government is committed can be allowed to excuse the continuance of any expenditure for which absolute necessity cannot be shown.

24. The fact that we are at present spending 16 per cent. in excess of our estimated income has been already noticed. It is thereby evident that after making allowance for those items which, like the interest on the public debt, are beyond our immediate control, it will be necessary that that portion of our current expenditure which we can control must be reduced by a much higher rate than 16 per cent., in order to bring the total outlay within the limits of an income equal to even that of the current year 1860-61, which, it must be remembered, is estimated at a higher rate than that of any previous year.

25. Unless, therefore, the aggregate estimates for 1861-62 show, exclusive of interest on the public debt, a total reduction exceeding 16 per cent. on our estimates for 1860-61, we shall not attain the desired and absolutely indispensable result of equalising on our current income and our current expenditure in the coming year; and considerably more than this must be effected in the way of reduction of expenditure, or of increase of income, before the finances of India can be pronounced as resting on a sound and satisfactory footing.

26. The Gov. gen. in Council trusts that every head of an office, whatever the class of that office may be, will bear this truth in mind in framing his estimates for the coming year. There is probably no offi in which some immediate reduction is not practicable, and the smallest reduction in expenditure or increase in revenue will have its effect.

27. The higher the class of the office or department the greater will be the responsibility of its head in this respect.

28. Many will have some control over income as well as expenditure, and will be able to promote the desired result by increasing the former, as well as by diminishing the latter. Projects for general taxes cannot be considered with a view to any immediate action; but there are many branches of existing income which are susceptible of material improvement, some by a modification, others by a stricter enforcement of the present rules; there are many more which must become more fruitful with the general prosperity of the country, and there are probably none which will not feel the effect of a wise and liberal general administration.

29. There is one great branch of the public expenditure over which few minor offices or departments have any direct control. The military expenditure is directly affected mainly by the action of the Governments of India, of Madras, and of Bombay, and by the great officers and departments of military administration. But it may be truly said that there is hardly an office or department in the public service in India whose action does not more or less affect the answer to that most important question—What is the amount of military force indispensably required in India? The great political functionaries and officers at the head of the various separate administrations have a direct voice in the amount of the military force to be kept for local protection within their several jurisdictions. Every detachment saved, nay, every sentry dispensed with, is a practical and effectual step in reducing our military expenditure. This power for reduction is shared by many district officers; and there is no officer of that class, with a range so limited, but that he can contribute so to rule the country that it shall be possible to reduce our standing army to the lowest reasonable limit. The more prosperous and the more contented we can make the people of each district, the nearer we shall be able to approach to that limit.

30. Over the police expenditure, and the cost of various semi-military bodies, all administrations and district officers have direct influence. The mode in which economy and efficiency in this branch of the public service may be best promoted has lately been prominently brought to the notice of all officers concerned, and the Gov. Gen. in Council would only further commend the subject to their serious attention, as affording, next to the military charges, the readiest means of at once diminishing the burdens on the resources of Govt.

31. The Gov. gen. in Council trusts that the united efforts of the various offices and departments through which the estimates will have to pass, and of each Government and Administration by which they will be submitted to the Government of India, will effect such a reduction in their aggregate amount that it will not be necessary for the Government of India to enforce any further check beyond a strict observance of the limit of the sanctioned estimates. The work is one in which every officer of every grade in the service of Government can bear his part, and it is one which the Gov. gen. in Council feels confident will not be neglected by any who have at heart the prosperity of the country, or who duly value the character and credit of the British Government in India.

C. H. LUSHINGTON,
Sec. to the Govt. of India.

Extension of Pardon to Convicted Rebels and Mutineers.

Foreign Dept.—Extract from the proceedings of the Govt. of India, under date the 15th Nov., 1860.

Read again despatch from the Sec. of State, No. 11, dated 31st Jan., 1850 (public department) regarding the Amnesty Clauses of her Majesty's proclamation.

Read again despatch from the Sec. of State, No. 55, dated 15th June, 1860 (judicial department), on the subject of the memorial of Dooteram Burroah, who was convicted of complicity in the conspiracy at Assam, and sentenced to banishment.

In paragraph 21 the Governor-general's minute, dated Allahabad, 4th December, 1858, it is said:—“In regard to rebels and mutineers, already convicted and undergoing sentence, undoubtedly the amnesty does not extend to them. But I take this opportunity of saying that I am satisfied that both in policy and in justice a revision of many of the sentences under which men have been transported, and imprisoned, will be necessary. I think, however, that this measure should not be undertaken at the present time. For the moment we have enough to do to watch the results of the pardon given to those who are unconvicted, and of the disbandment of the disarmed regiments. Any considerable remission or relaxation of sentences legally passed should be reserved till the districts, still disturbed, shall have been reclaimed to order.”

Resolution, Public Works Department, No. 278, dated 13th November, 1860, organising the establishment for dealing with the Accounts of the Public Works Department (published in the Calcutta Gazette, page 2474, dated 17th Nov., 1860).

Financial Resolution, No. 11,390, dated 18th November, 1860, approving generally of the Forms of Budget Estimate proposed by the Budget and Audit Committee in their Report, No. 6, dated 27th October, 1860 (published in page 18 of this Appendix).

Financial Resolution, No. 11,322, dated 15th November, 1860, passing orders in the Report of the Budget and Audit Committee, No. 7, dated 2nd November, 1860, regarding the Division of Heads of Branches of Service which can best be adopted for the allotment and specific appropriation of expenditure (published in page 21 of this Appendix).

Financial Resolution, No. 119, dated the 18th November, 1860, organising the new Board of Audit in the Military Finance Department (published in the Calcutta Gazette, page 2492, of the 21st November, 1860).

In paragraph 6 of the despatch from the Secretary of State of Jan. 31, 1859, it was observed that "the cases of convicts undergoing sentence may be considered hereinafter, but not before the pacification of the country shall have been completed."

In paragraph 5 of the despatch from the Secretary of State of June 15, 1860, the contemplated measure was again noticed.

It appears to H.E. in Council that the time has now arrived when the amnesty declared in her Majesty's proclamation may be safely extended generally to those convicted of, and undergoing sentence of imprisonment for, offences connected with the mutinies, who would have been entitled to pardon had they been at large or unconvicted at the time of the promulgation of the amnesty, and had they complied with the terms on which pardon was then offered. But before issuing orders to this effect, H.E. in Council considers it advisable that it should be ascertained from those officers in whose custody the convicts have been during the period of their imprisonment, whether, in respect to any individuals of the classes which would be included in such a general pardon, anything has come to the observation or knowledge of those officers in respect to the previous history of such individuals, or to their conduct and bearing while undergoing sentence, which should disqualify them from sharing in the benefits of the proposed acts of grace, or might make it dangerous and inexpedient that they should be permitted to return to their homes.

Resolution.—The Gov. Gen. in Council resolves, therefore, that a return be called for by the superintendent of the Andaman Islands of all persons remaining in his custody, who may be undergoing sentences of imprisonment or transportation for offences committed in connection with the disturbances of 1857-58, other than those offences noted in the margin,* showing what has been the behaviour of each convict during the period of his confinement, and what, if anything, is known of his antecedents and general character.

1st regt. S. Maratha horse ...	713
2nd do. do. ...	713
Guzerat irreg. horse... ..	800

Total.....10 corps and 6,882 men
4. The Guzerat horse is not at present under the orders of H.E. the C. in C. The necessary reductions will be carried out, and the transfer to the control of the C. in C. will be effected under the orders to be given in the civil department. The organisation of the Guzerat horse, in accordance with the following arrangements, will be subsequently carried out by H.E. the C. in C.

5. The cavalry of the entire Presidency will be henceforth organised in fourteen corps, on the Silladar system, and designated as follows:—

1st regt. Bombay L.C. (Lancers); 2nd ditto ditto; 3rd ditto ditto. These are the three corps of regular cavalry to be hereafter organised on the Silladar system.

4th regt. Poona horse; 5th ditto ditto. These to be formed from the present Poona horse.

6th regt. Guzerat horse; 7th ditto ditto. These to be formed from the present Guzerat horse.

12th regt. Southern Maratha horse; 13th ditto ditto; 14th ditto ditto. These to be formed from the present Southern Maratha horse.

6. The native establishment of each corps will be as follows:—

1 Russadar Major. 1 Qmr. Duffadar. } Non-effect.
2 Russadars. 1 Trumpet Major. }
3 Russadars. 6 Pay Duffadars. }

6 Jemadars. 1 Writer.
1 Kote Duffadar Major. 1 Chowdry.
6 Kote Duffadars. 1 Mootsuddie.
30 Duffadars. 1 Hospital Assistant.
3 Nishan Burdars. 1 2nd Hospital Assistant.
6 Trumpeters. 3 Lascars.
300 Sowars. 3 Flagmen.
1 Warder Major. 6 Bheesties.
1 Farrier Major.

Stationary allowance ... ..Rs. 30
Mess allowance ... .." 60
Command allowance for repair of arms for 860 " 90

7. The pay of the private sowars of all the corps under the orders of H.E. the C. in C. will be Rs. 30 from the 1st Jan. next. The men of the Guzerat horse will receive the same pay so soon after 1st Jan. next as the transfer to the control of the C. in C. shall have been effected. The pay of other ranks in the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd regts. will be the same as in the Southern Maratha horse, pending the sanction expected from H.M.'s Govt. to the increased rates lately recommended for all.

8. In addition to the advantages of pay as above-mentioned, every man of the regular cavalry wishing to remain in the service will have his horse, his arms, and such articles of equipment as may be required under the new organization, presented to him on certain conditions hereinafter specified.

9. No man is to be permitted to remain in the service who is not in every respect fit for the duties of a Silladar horseman, such men of the regular cavalry as may be deemed unfit shall be disposed of by a pension, or discharge with gratuity, according to length of service, as detailed below.

10. Every other man will have the option of remaining in the service on the new conditions, or of taking his discharge. Men so discharged, who have served fifteen years and upwards, will receive pensions according to the regulations. Those under fifteen years' service will receive a gratuity of one month's pay for each year's service, and if under three years' service, a minimum of three months' pay.

11. Those who shall elect to remain on the new condition will be entitled to pension hereafter on the same terms as hitherto established for the regular cavalry, but they will have no other special claim upon Government, and will be subject to all other regulations of irregular regiments.

12. These conditions should be carefully explained to the men of the regular cavalry.

13. Enlisted followers, not required under the new system, will, according to their time of service, be pensioned or discharged with gratuity of one month's pay for each year's service or three months' pay if under three years' service.

14. The arms and accoutrements presented to the men will be considered the property of the regiment, and will be handed over to the men who may enter the corps to fill vacancies at such valuation as shall be regimentally determined.

15. The horses now to be presented to the men will not immediately become their personal property, but will be treated as such in the case of men being invalided or discharged after three years' service, under the new conditions, or in case of death or voluntary discharge after five years of such service.

In case of discharge for misconduct at any time, the horse will be regarded as the property of the regiment.

16. No horse fit for the service will be allowed to be taken out of the regiment. On occasion of death or discharge, the horse will be sold by auction, and the proceeds disposed of under the foregoing rules, either for the benefit of the man's heirs, or, in case of unfitness, for the man, or for the regiment.

17. The troopers of these regiments who remain under the new system will all be one horse silladars.

This will hereafter be subject to modifications under regimental arrangements, it being understood that no one out of the regiment will be allowed to hold an assamee, and that the following number of assamees to be held by one person is never exceeded:—

Russadars and Russadars ... .. 6
Jemadars ... .. 4
All others ... .. 3

18. The dress of these regiments will be altered to suit the nature of the service, when the present uniform shall have been worn out. The colour of the future uniform will be hereafter determined.

19. One baggage tattoo will be maintained for every three sowars.

20. Such funds as it may be necessary to establish in each corps should be clearly laid down, together with the amount of subscriptions and donations required from the men.

21. The amount of monthly stoppages to which each man will be subject on account of clothing, arms, and other regimental necessities supplied by commanding officers should be clearly detailed. The horse fund subscriptions must be under the same strict rule. No debts or loans will be permitted.

22. All minor details connected with the formation of these regiments will be arranged by commanding officers under the orders of the C. in C. A full report of the system to be established should be forwarded to H.E. for information and approval with as little delay as possible.

23. The old troopers will be subject to the rules and Articles of War as now established, Act VI. of 1860 doing almost all that will be required except in extreme cases.

24. The establishment of European officers for all the cavalry corps under the new organisation will be as follows:—

1 Commandant.
1 Second in command.
1 Subaltern.
1 Adjutant.
1 Medical officer.

25. The cavalry officers in excess of this establishment not otherwise provided for will be distributed as supernumeraries throughout the cavalry corps at the discretion of H.E. the C. in C.

26. The regimental officers appointed to the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd regiments of light cavalry on the Silladar system will look on their situations in the light of staff appointments, as is the case in the old regiments of irregular cavalry.

27. The rolls of officers of the three old regular regiments of light cavalry will still remain in the army list, and regimental promotions will proceed in the three bodies of officers as heretofore. This subject to any change in the system of the arm which may be ordered by her Majesty's Government with reference to questions now pending.

28. Field officers of the cavalry (regular) who may be placed in command of Silladar cavalry regiments will receive the same pay and allowances, including command allowance, as they would have received in command of their original corps.

29. Captains in command will receive the consolidated pay given to officers in command of irregular corps.

30. Captains of the regular cavalry holding the position of 2nd in command will receive a consolidated pay of Rs. 750 per mensem.

31. Lieutenants of the regular cavalry of ten years standing appointed 2nd in command will receive consolidated pay of Rs. 600 per mensem.

32. All other officers will receive the rates of pay allowed to irregular cavalry officers by the regulations.

33. Stores, the property of troop commanders, will be valued by committees, and the amount paid by Government to the officers.

34. Articles in use with men or horses will go with them. The balance will be sold by auction for the benefit of Government.

35. The difference between the present pay of private sowars of several of the existing irregular corps and the rate sanctioned from 1st January next, should in the case of each individual soldier who may be in debt, be applied wholly to the extinction of his debt. The Governor in Council requires that commanding officers will effect gradually the extinction of debt in all these corps.

Reduction of the Bombay Artillery.

Under instructions from Government, Nos. 10 and 17, light field batteries attached to the head quarters of the 1st and 3rd battalions of artillery at Kirkee are abolished, and the following companies of artillery to which light field batteries are attached will be constituted reserve companies, the batteries and equipment in each case being disposed of under the orders of the commandant of the regiment:—

4th company 3rd battalion artillery No. 7 light field battery.

Golundauze company No. 8 light field battery.

2nd company 2nd battalion artillery No. 16 light field battery.

This reduction of batteries will diminish the establishment by about 500 horses.

In paragraph 6 of the despatch from the Secretary of State of Jan. 31, 1859, it was observed that "the cases of convicts undergoing sentence may be considered hereinafter, but not before the pacification of the country shall have been completed."

In paragraph 5 of the despatch from the Secretary of State of June 15, 1860, the contemplated measure was again noticed.

It appears to H.E. in Council that the time has now arrived when the amnesty declared in her Majesty's proclamation may be safely extended generally to those convicted of, and undergoing sentence of imprisonment for, offences connected with the mutinies, who would have been entitled to pardon had they been at large or unconvicted at the time of the promulgation of the amnesty, and had they complied with the terms on which pardon was then offered. But before issuing orders to this effect, H.E. in Council considers it advisable that it should be ascertained from those officers in whose custody the convicts have been during the period of their imprisonment, whether, in respect to any individuals of the classes which would be included in such a general pardon, anything has come to the observation or knowledge of those officers in respect to the previous history of such individuals, or to their conduct and bearing while undergoing sentence, which should disqualify them from sharing in the benefits of the proposed acts of grace, or might make it dangerous and inexpedient that they should be permitted to return to their homes.

Resolution.—The Gov. Gen. in Council resolves, therefore, that a return be called for fr. the superint. of the Andaman Islands of all persons remaining in his custody, who may be undergoing sentences of imprisonment or transportation for offences committed in connection with the disturbances of 1857-58, other than those offences noted in the margin,* showing what has been the behaviour of each convict during the period of his confinement, and what, if anything, is known of his antecedents and general character.

H.E. in Council further resolves that the several local govts. and administrations be authorised, after calling for similar returns from all officers in charge of jails under their control, to remit the remainder of the sentence in every case in which they see no objection to such a course.

Reorganisation of the Bombay Cavalry.

Bombay Castle, Dec. 4.—No. 674.—Under the authority of H.M.'s Govt. and the Govt. of India, the cavalry of this Presidency will be reorganised as follows:—

2. The whole will be on the Silladar system.

3. The existing corps are as follows:—

	Estab. strength of all N.I. ranks.
1st regt. Bombay L.C. (Lancers) ...	500
2nd do. do. ...	500
3rd do. do. ...	500
Poona irreg. horse ...	756
1st regt. Sindh irreg. horse ...	800
2nd do. do. ...	800
3rd do. do. ...	800
1st regt. S. Maratha horse ...	713
2nd do. do. ...	713
Guzerat irreg. horse... ..	800
Total.....	10 corps and 6,882 men

4. The Guzerat horse is not at present under the orders of H.E. the C. in C. The necessary reductions will be carried out, and the transfer to the control of the C. in C. will be effected under the orders to be given in the civil department. The organisation of the Guzerat horse, in accordance with the following arrangements, will be subsequently carried out by H.E. the C. in C.

5. The cavalry of the entire Presidency will be henceforth organised in fourteen corps, on the Silladar system, and designated as follows:—

1st regt. Bombay L.C. (Lancers); 2nd ditto ditto; 3rd ditto ditto. These are the three corps of regular cavalry to be hereafter organised on the Silladar system.

4th regt. Poona horse; 5th ditto ditto. These to be formed from the present Poona horse.

6th regt. Guzerat horse; 7th ditto ditto. These to be formed from the present Guzerat horse.

8th regt. Sind horse; 9th ditto ditto; 10th ditto ditto; 11th ditto ditto. These to be formed from the present Sind horse.

12th regt. Southern Maratha horse; 13th ditto ditto; 14th ditto ditto. These to be formed from the present Southern Maratha horse.

6. The native establishment of each corps will be as follows:—

1 Russaldar Major.	1 Qrmr. Duffadar.	Non-elect.
2 Russaldars.	1 Trumpet Major.
3 Russaldars.	6 Pay Duffadars.
6 Jemadars.	1 Writer.
1 Kote Duffadar Major.	1 Chowdry.
6 Kote Duffadars.	1 Mootsuddie.
30 Duffadars.	1 Hospital Assistant.
3 Nishan Burdars.	1 2nd Hospital Assistant.
6 Trumpeters.	3 Lascars.
300 Sowars.	3 Flagmen.
1 Wordee Major.	6 Bheesties.
1 Farrier Major.

Stationary allowance ... ..Rs. 30

Command allowance for repair of arms for 860 " 90

7. The pay of the private sowars of all the corps under the orders of H.E. the C. in C. will be Rs. 30 from the 1st Jan. next. The men of the Guzerat horse will receive the same pay so soon after 1st Jan. next as the transfer to the control of the C. in C. shall have been effected. The pay of other ranks in the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd regts. will be the same as in the Southern Maratha horse, pending the sanction expected from H.M.'s Govt. to the increased rates lately recommended for all.

8. In addition to the advantages of pay as above-mentioned, every man of the regular cavalry wishing to remain in the service will have his horse, his arms, and such articles of equipment as may be required under the new organization, presented to him on certain conditions hereinafter specified.

9. No man is to be permitted to remain in the service who is not in every respect fit for the duties of a Silladar horseman, such men of the regular cavalry as may be deemed unfit shall be disposed of by a pension, or discharge with gratuity, according to length of service, as detailed below.

10. Every other man will have the option of remaining in the service on the new conditions, or of taking his discharge. Men so discharged, who have served fifteen years and upwards, will receive pensions according to the regulations. Those under fifteen years' service will receive a gratuity of one month's pay for each year's service, and if under three years' service, a minimum of three months' pay.

11. Those who shall elect to remain on the new condition will be entitled to pension hereafter on the same terms as hitherto established for the regular cavalry, but they will have no other special claim upon Government, and will be subject to all other regulations of irregular regiments.

12. These conditions should be carefully explained to the men of the regular cavalry.

13. Enlisted followers, not required under the new system, will, according to their time of service, be pensioned or discharged with gratuity of one month's pay for each year's service or three months' pay if under three years' service.

14. The arms and accoutrements presented to the men will be considered the property of the regiment, and will be handed over to the men who may enter the corps to fill vacancies at such valuation as shall be regimentally determined.

15. The horses now to be presented to the men will not immediately become their personal property, but will be treated as such in the case of men being invalided or discharged after three years' service, under the new conditions, or in case of death or voluntary discharge after five years of such service.

In case of discharge for misconduct at any time, the horse will be regarded as the property of the regiment.

16. No horse fit for the service will be allowed to be taken out of the regiment. On occasion of death or discharge, the horse will be sold by auction, and the proceeds disposed of under the foregoing rules, either for the benefit of the man's heirs, or in case of unfitness, for the man, or for the regiment.

17. The troopers of these regiments who remain under the new system will all be one horse sildars.

Russaldars and Russaldars ...	6
Jemadars ...	4
All others ...	3

18. The dress of these regiments will be altered to suit the nature of the service, when the present uniform shall have been worn out. The colour of the future uniform will be hereafter determined.

19. One baggage tattoo will be maintained for every three sowars.

20. Such funds as it may be necessary to establish in each corps should be clearly laid down, together with the amount of subscriptions and donations required from the men.

21. The amount of monthly stoppages to which each man will be subject on account of clothing, arms, and other regimental necessities supplied by commanding officers should be clearly detailed. The horse fund subscriptions must be under the same strict rule. No debts or loans will be permitted.

22. All minor details connected with the formation of these regiments will be arranged by commanding officers under the orders of the C. in C. A full report of the system to be established should be forwarded to H.E. for information and approval with as little delay as possible.

23. The old troopers will be subject to the rules and Articles of War as now established, Act VI. of 1860 doing almost all that will be required except in extreme cases.

24. The establishment of European officers for all the cavalry corps under the new organisation will be as follows:—

1 Commandant.
1 Second in command.
1 Subaltern.
1 Adjutant.
1 Medical officer.

25. The cavalry officers in excess of this establishment not otherwise provided for will be distributed as supernumeraries throughout the cavalry corps at the discretion of H.E. the C. in C.

26. The regimental officers appointed to the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd regiments of light cavalry on the Silladar system will look on their situations in the light of staff appointments, as is the case in the old regiments of irregular cavalry.

27. The rolls of officers of the three old regular regiments of light cavalry will still remain in the army list, and regimental promotions will proceed in the three bodies of officers as heretofore. This subject to any change in the system of the arm which may be ordered by her Majesty's Government with reference to questions now pending.

28. Field officers of the cavalry (regular) who may be placed in command of Silladar cavalry regiments will receive the same pay and allowances, including command allowance, as they would have received in command of their original corps.

29. Captains in command will receive the consolidated pay given to officers in command of irregular corps.

30. Captains of the regular cavalry holding the position of 2nd in command will receive a consolidated pay of Rs. 750 per mensem.

31. Lieutenants of the regular cavalry of ten years standing appointed 2nd in command will receive consolidated pay of Rs. 600 per mensem.

32. All other officers will receive the rates of pay allowed to irregular cavalry officers by the regulations.

33. Stores, the property of troop commanders, will be valued by committees, and the amount paid by Government to the officers.

34. Articles in use with men or horses will go with them. The balance will be sold by auction for the benefit of Government.

35. The difference between the present pay of private sowars of several of the existing irregular corps and the rate sanctioned from 1st January next, should in the case of each individual soldier who may be in debt, be applied wholly to the extinction of his debt. The Governor in Council requires that commanding officers will effect gradually the extinction of debt in all these corps.

Reduction of the Bombay Artillery.

Under instructions from Government, Nos. 10 and 17, light field batteries attached to the head quarters of the 1st and 3rd battalions of artillery at Kirkee are abolished, and the following companies of artillery to which light field batteries are attached will be constituted reserve companies, the batteries and equipment in each case being disposed of under the orders of the commandant of the regiment:—

4th company 3rd battalion artillery No. 7 light field battery.

Golundauze company No. 8 light field battery.

2nd company 2nd battalion artillery No. 16 light field battery.

This reduction of batteries will diminish the establishment by about 500 horses.

The commandant of artillery will instruct the officers in command of the field batteries at Mhow, Kurrachee, and Hyderabad to make careful selection of all the best horses in the batteries to be reduced, drafting them into those which are to be retained on the present establishment in place of such as may be considered indifferent and not likely to be of use for the artillery service.

This principle of reduction should be applied as far as possible throughout the regiment of artillery, all inferior horses being disposed of and their places supplied by good horses from the excess.

After this reduction the remaining batteries will be permitted to retain ten horses in excess of establishment to be drafted from the batteries ordered to be reduced.

When these measures shall have been carefully arranged, all horses in excess are to be handed over to the commissariat for sale on account of Government, under such arrangement as may be considered best by that department.

The commandant of artillery will arrange under the above orders for the disposal of the horses of Nos. 10 and 17 light field batteries, retaining fifty (50) horses for the instruction of recruit and drill purposes with the head quarters of the regiment at Kurrachee, and that the battery establishments of Nos. 7, 8, and 16 be immediately discharged, on the batteries being returned into stores.

Officers commanding divisions and 1st class brigadiers will be good enough to see that these orders are carefully carried out.

The C. in C. expects that the above arrangements will be completed as early as possible, a report being hereafter sent accordingly to the Adjutant-general of the army for H.E.'s information by the commandant of artillery.

The Golumdauze company with No. 8 light field battery at Nusseerabad will move after the receipt of this order to Mhow, when the battery will be dissolved.

The commandant of artillery will be good enough to arrange for the renumbering of the batteries to remain on the establishment.

The establishment of horses for the royal field batteries is henceforth reduced from 142 to a peace footing of 130 horses. Nos. 1 and 7 having each a few horses in excess of the new establishment, will retain them as supernumeraries to be gradually absorbed.

Sir William Mansfield on H.M.'s Local European Forces.

Poona, Dec. 5.—The C. in C. has lately observed in the public prints certain slanderous and groundless aspersions on the fair fame of H.M.'s local European forces.

He has the greatest satisfaction in testifying that according to his firm conviction these calumnious reports are without a shade of truth. H.E. would have refrained from noticing the circumstance were it not that he has become aware of an attempt having been made to give an appearance of reality and circumstantiality to the original calumny by an account of a conversation alleged to have taken place between the C. in C. and Maj. Logan, 57th foot.

H.E. need hardly assure the army that the whole story is a fabrication from beginning to end.

The War in China.

THE CONVENTION.

The following is the Convention between her Majesty and the Emperor of China, signed, in the English and Chinese languages, at Peking, Oct. 24, 1860:—

Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China, being alike desirous to bring to an end the misunderstanding at present existing between their respective Governments, and to secure their relations against further interruption, have for this purpose appointed Plenipotentiaries; that is to say, her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, the Earl of Elgin and Kincardine; and his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China, his Imperial Highness the Prince of Kung; who, having met and communicated to each other their full powers, and finding these to be in proper form, have agreed upon the following Convention, in Nine Articles:—

ARTICLE I.

A breach of friendly relations having been occasioned by the act of the garrison of Taku, which obstructed her Britannic Majesty's Representative when on his way to Peking for the purpose of exchanging the ratifications of the treaty of peace concluded at Tien-tsin in the month of June, 1858, his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China expresses his deep regret at the misunderstanding so occasioned.

ARTICLE II.

It is further expressly declared that the arrangement entered into at Shanghai in the month of October, 1858, between her Britannic Majesty's Ambassador, the Earl of Elgin and Kincardine, and his Imperial Majesty's Commissioners Kwei-liang and Hwashana, regarding the residence of her Britannic Majesty's Representative in China, is hereby cancelled; and that, in accordance with Article III. of the Treaty of 1858, her Britannic Majesty's Representative will henceforward reside permanently or occasionally at Peking, as her Britannic Majesty shall be pleased to decide.

ARTICLE III.

It is agreed that the Separate Article of the Treaty of 1858 is hereby annulled, and that in lieu of the amount of indemnity therein specified his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China shall pay the sum of 8,000,000 taels in the following proportions or instalments:—namely, at Tien-tsin on or before the 30th day of November, the sum of 500,000 taels; at Canton, and on or before the 1st day of December, 1860, 333,333 taels, less the sum which shall have been advanced by the Canton authorities towards the completion of the British Factory site at Shameen; and the remainder at the ports open to foreign trade, in quarterly payments, which shall consist of one-fifth of the gross revenue from Customs there collected, the first of the said payments being due on the 31st day of December, 1860, for the quarter terminating on that day.

It is further agreed that these moneys shall be paid into the hands of an officer whom her Britannic Majesty's Representative shall specially appoint to receive them, and that the accuracy of the amounts shall, before payment, be duly ascertained by British and Chinese officers appointed to discharge this duty.

In order to prevent future discussion, it is moreover declared that of the eight millions of taels herein guaranteed, two millions will be appropriated to the indemnification of the British mercantile community at Canton, for losses sustained by them, and the remaining six millions to the liquidation of war expenses.

ARTICLE IV.

It is agreed that on the day on which this Convention is signed, his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China shall open the port of Tien-tsin to trade, and that it shall be thereafter competent to British subjects to reside and trade there under the same conditions as at any other port of China by treaty open to trade.

ARTICLE V.

As soon as the ratifications of the Treaty of 1858 shall have been exchanged, his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China will, by decree, command the high authorities of every province to proclaim throughout their jurisdictions, that Chinese choosing to take service in the British colonies, or other parts beyond sea, are at perfect liberty to enter into engagements with British subjects for that purpose, and to ship themselves and their families on board any British vessel at any of the open ports of China; also, that the high authorities aforesaid shall, in concert with her Britannic Majesty's Representative in China, frame such regulations for the protection of Chinese emigrating, as above, as the circumstances of the different open ports may demand.

ARTICLE VI.

With a view to the maintenance of law and order in and about the harbour of Hong Kong, his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China agrees to cede to her Majesty, the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, and to her heirs and successors, to have and to hold as a dependency of her Britannic Majesty's colony of Hong Kong, that portion of the township of Cowloon, in the province of Kwang-Tung, of which lease was granted in perpetuity to Harry Smith Parkes, Esq., Companion of the Bath, a member of the Allied Commission at Canton, on behalf of her Britannic Majesty's Government, by Lan Tsung Kwang, Governor-general of the Two Kwang.

It is further declared that the lease in question is hereby cancelled; that the claims of any Chinese to property on the said portion of Cowloon shall be duly investigated by a mixed Commission of British and Chinese officers; and that compensation shall be awarded by the British Government to any Chinese whose claim shall be by the said Commission established, should his removal be deemed necessary by the British Government.

ARTICLE VII.

It is agreed that the provisions of the Treaty of 1858, except in so far as these are modified by the present Convention, shall without delay come into operation as soon as the ratifications of the Treaty aforesaid shall have been exchanged.

It is further agreed that no separate ratification of the present Convention shall be necessary, but that it shall take effect from the date of its signature, and be equally binding with the Treaty abovementioned on the high contracting parties.

ARTICLE VIII.

It is agreed that as soon as the ratifications of the Treaty of the year 1858 shall have been exchanged, his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China shall, by decree, command the high authorities in the capital and in the provinces to print and publish the aforesaid Treaty and the present Convention, for general information.

ARTICLE IX.

It is agreed that as soon as this Convention shall have been signed, the ratifications of the Treaty of the year 1858 shall have been exchanged, and an Imperial decree respecting the publication of the said Convention and Treaty shall have been promulgated as provided for by Article VIII. of this Convention, Chusan shall be evacuated by her Britannic Majesty's troops there stationed, and her Britannic Majesty's force now before Peking, shall commence its march towards the city of Tien-tsin, the Forts of Taku, the north coast of Shang-tung, and the city of Canton, at each or all of which places it shall be at the option of her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland to retain a force until the indemnity of eight millions of taels guaranteed in Article III. shall have been paid.

Done at Peking, in the Court of the Board of Ceremonies, on the 24th day of October, in the year of our Lord 1860.

THE MILITARY DESPATCHES.

WAR OFFICE, Dec. 28.

Major the Hon. A. Anson arrived yesterday evening with a despatch, addressed to Mr. Secretary Herbert by Lieutenant-general Sir J. Hope

Grant, G.C.B., commanding her Majesty's forces in China, of which the following is a copy:—

No. 56.

Head Quarters, before Peking,

Oct. 22, 1860.

Sir,—In my despatch, No. 46, of the 20th of September, I had the honour to report the illegal capture, by the Chinese, on the 18th of that month, of several officers and soldiers who had accompanied Mr. Parkes to Tungchow, when he went there to meet the Chinese Commissioners.

I have since reported the return of Messrs. Parkes and Loch, and of one Sikh soldier on the 8th of October, and of eight more Sikhs on the 12th of October.

I have now to report that on the 14th inst. two more Sikhs were brought back, the Chinese declaring that they were the last survivors of those who had been taken prisoners.

To prove their assertion they brought out to us the bodies of Lieutenant R. B. Anderson, of Fane's Horse; Private John Phipps, King's Dragoon Guards; Mr. De Norman, of Her Majesty's Legation; Mr. Bowlby, the Times' Correspondent in China, and eight Sikhs.

This accounts for all those who are missing, except Captain Brabazon, Royal Artillery, and of him I cannot at present obtain any tidings, but I fear that there can be no doubt but that he is dead.

It appears from the statements of the surviving Sikhs that after Messrs. Parkes and Loch had quitted the party, on the 18th of September, to speak to Sang-ko-lin-sin, as detailed in my despatch of the 9th inst., the Chinese crowded round them in great numbers to disarm them.

The position in which they found themselves precluded any attempt to cut their way out with any chance of success, upon which Lieutenant Anderson very properly determined to trust to the protection of the flag of truce, and ordered the Sowars to make no resistance. They were accordingly disarmed and taken to the rear, being permitted to retain their horses. They halted for the night at a joss-house between Tungchow and Peking; and the following morning Captain Brabazon and the Abbé Deluc (a French missionary who spoke Chinese) were taken out and sent back, ostensibly for the purpose of communicating with the Allied commanders. The remainder of the party, being again mounted on their own horses, were taken through Peking to Yuen-Ming-Yuen, where they arrived soon after midday. Up to this time they had been very well treated, but about half an hour after their halt at the palace they were called out one by one, thrown on their faces, and their hands and feet tied together behind their backs. In this state they were left, without food or drink, for three days. On the 22nd of September the Chinese, probably fearing, after our victory of the previous day, that we should advance and recapture their prisoners, took them out, and dividing them into four parties, placed them in carts, with their hands still bound, and drove them off to four small hill fortresses, varying from twenty to forty miles from Peking.

I beg to append a statement showing how these parties were divided, and which of the prisoners died in captivity.

Of the cause of their death there can be no doubt; the survivors of each party tell the same sad tale of how they remained with their hands tightly bound with cords until mortification ensued and they died. The whole party would have doubtless shared the same fate, had not their cords been cut on the ninth day, or thereabouts.

Messrs. Parkes, Loch, and their Sikh orderly, more fortunate than their companions, were confined in the common prison of Peking, and laid in irons for several days—a far more merciful treatment than that vouchsafed to the rest of the party.

I cannot conclude this report without adverting to the loss her Majesty's service has sustained in Captain Brabazon, Royal Artillery, and Lieutenant Anderson, of Fane's Horse. The former, an officer of much professional ability, had proved himself to be an excellent officer in the field also, by his energy and intelligence while serving through the present campaign as Deputy Assistant-Quartermaster-General of Artillery.

The latter was Adjutant of his regiment, and had earned for himself both here and in India the reputation of being one of the best Irregular Cavalry officers in her Majesty's Indian army. Nor can I omit mention of Private Phipps, of the 1st Dragoon Guards, who, when last surviving European of his party, encouraged the Sikhs in every way he could, until his decease on the 14th day of his captivity, thus well sustaining the reputation of a British soldier, under the most trying circumstances.

By the kind permission of the Russian Minister, General Ignatieff, the bodies of the Englishmen have been interred in the Russian cemetery here. They were buried on the 17th inst., with military honours, in presence of General Montauban and many officers of the French army, of the officers of the Russian Mission, and of the majority of the officers of the English army and Embassy.

I have, &amp;c.,

J. HOPE GRANT, Lieutenant-General,
Commander of the Forces.The Right Hon. the Secretary of State

1ST PARTY TAKEN TO HILL FORT.

Lieutenant R. B. Anderson, Fane's Horse, died on the 9th day of captivity, 27th of September; Mr. de Norman, Attaché of her Majesty's Legation, died on the 17th day of captivity, 5th of October; 1 duffadar, Fane's Horse, returned to camp on the 12th of October, 1860; 4 sowars, Fane's Horse, 1 died, 3 returned the 12th of October. Bodies of those who died brought in on the 14th of October, 1860.

2ND PARTY TAKEN TO HILL FORT.

1 French officer, died; 2 French soldiers, 1 died, 1 returned, 12th October; 5 sowars, Fane's Horse, 1 died, 4 returned 12th October, 1860. Bodies of those who died brought in on 14th October, 1860.

3RD PARTY TAKEN TO HILL FORT.

1 French officer, died; Mr. Bowlby, died on the seventh day of captivity, 25th September; Private J. Phipps, King's Dragoon Guards, died on 14th day of captivity, 2nd October; 1 sowar, 1st Sikh Irregular Cavalry, died on the 9th day of captivity, the 27th of September; 1 duffadar, Fane's Horse, died the 16th day of captivity, the 4th of October, 1860; 2 sowars, Fane's Horse, returned to camp the 14th of October, 1860. Bodies of those who died brought in on the 16th of October, 1860.

4TH PARTY TAKEN TO HILL FORT.

1 French officer, 2 French soldiers, 4 sowars, Fane's Horse. Died in captivity; bodies brought in on the 17th of October, 1860.

PEKIN PARTY.

Mr. Parkes, Mr. Loch, one sowar, 1st Sikh Irregular Cavalry, one French officer, four French soldiers. Brought back to camp on the 8th of October, 1860.

MISSING.

Captain Brabazon, Abbé Deluc (French missionary). Believed to have been beheaded in the Tartar camp during the battle of Palichau on the 21st of September, 1860.

H. M.'s 75TH.—We (Delhi Gazette) hear from Allahabad that Captain Pym, of her Majesty's 75th, is to be tried on what our correspondent calls, "vexatiously frivolous charges." He was accosted by his commanding officer, Colonel Radcliffe, with coming late on parade. He replied that he was not late, but that the Colonel was early; and pulling out his watch, called out the time, showing that he was right. Some words ensued, which ended in Captain Pym being placed under arrest. We are informed that at one time it was seriously thought of bringing no less than four officers of the 75th to trial, but that there was some difficulty in getting up the "counts," so the "intention" broke down. It would seem that the very best of feeling does not pervade all ranks of this corps.

RETROSPECT OF 1860.

In our last annual survey of the events of the preceding year it was our unpleasant task to record the triumph of Chinese treachery, and the consequent repulse of a British squadron at the mouth of the Peiho. That disaster—it cannot be called a disgrace—has already been signally redeemed, notwithstanding the immense distance of the scene of outrage from the seat of the English Government. A terrible, if not swift, vengeance has overtaken the weak and treacherous advisers of a false and imbecile monarch. His forts taken and dismantled, his towns occupied by a foreign army, his bravest troops slaughtered and overthrown, his very capital at the mercy of the enemy, his Summer Palace in flames and himself a fugitive, the Emperor of China has been taught, by an example that came home to him, the force of the homely truth that “honesty is the best policy.” Had he consented to receive Mr. Bruce, in accordance with the Treaty of Tien-tsin, and faithfully exchanged its ratifications, he would have been spared a frightful waste of life and treasure, the loss of his beautiful residence, and an ignominious flight. The ulterior results of recent events may not yet be fully divined, but it is at least not difficult to foresee that ere long there will be a disruption of the Chinese Empire, and a complete subversion of its system of selfish isolation.

An admirably organized force of British troops was despatched from the three Indian Presidencies to Hong Kong in the early part of the year, under the command of Sir Hope Grant, assisted by Sir Robert Napier and General Michel. A regiment of English dragoons, two corps of Sikh cavalry, and a formidable park of Armstrong guns, removed the defects that had marred the success of preceding expeditions. A slight delay, however, occurred in the first instance by the detention of Lord Elgin and Baron Gros at Ceylon, through the foundering of the Malabar in the harbour of Galle, and again subsequently from the unpreparedness of the French auxiliary force. But all preliminary difficulties were finally overcome by the tact of the English Plenipotentiary and the firmness of the English general, and towards the end of June the combined forces arrived at the appointed rendezvous in Talien Bay, about 200 miles distant from the Taku Forts. It was not, however, until the 1st of August that the Allied troops were disembarked at Pehtang, near the mouth of the Peiho. On the 12th the entrenched camp of Prince San-ko-lin-sin was carried after a brief struggle, and two days later some earthworks were taken possession of with equal facility. The reduction of the Taku Forts demanded more prolonged efforts, and for some time the Tartars offered a brave, though ineffectual, resistance to the destructive ravages of European artillery. They were at last taken by storm, and the body of the Commander-in-Chief of the province was found among the slain. This feat of arms was performed on the 21st of August, and four days later the Allies were in Tien-tsin. The Chinese then opened illusive negotiations, on the failure of which the invaders pushed on to Yantau-yeh, and on the 13th September were at Hoo-si-woo. On the 18th Messrs Parkes, Loch, Brabazon, De Norman, Bowlby, and Anderson, with their Sikh escort, and also a party of French gentlemen and soldiers, were seized by the Chinese, in defiance of a flag of truce, and subjected to such cruel treatment that all perished, with the exception of Messrs. Parkes and Loch, and a few Sikhs and Frenchmen. A battle ensued on the 18th, and another on the 21st, terminating on both occasions in the complete discomfiture of the Tartar hordes. After the last victory the Allies fixed their head-quarters only seven miles from Peking, when further negotiations were entered upon, and on the 13th of October the An-tin gate was occupied by French and English soldiers. The surviving prisoners and the bodies of the dead were then given up, and a heavy indemnity paid for the benefit of their relatives. A Convention was signed on the 24th by Prince Kung, the Emperor's brother, and two days afterwards Lord Elgin and Baron Gros took up their residence within the walls of the capital of China. The terms of the new Treaty are nearly identical with those of the Treaty of Tien-tsin, excepting that the indemnity is doubled in amount, that Kowloon is added to the settlement at Hong Kong, and that the British Government insists upon its right to maintain a Resident Legation at Peking whenever it may think proper to do so. On the 9th of November the Allied forces withdrew to Tien-tsin, and while the “greasy citizens” of London were gaping with annually recurring wonder at the Lord Mayor's gilt carriage and his redoubtable men in armour, the equally “greasy citizens” of Peking were standing on one leg with mingled joy and astonishment at beholding the retreat of the “fierce barbarians,” without a single house being sacked, townsman maltreated, or woman insulted.

In our Indian Empire, although the shouts of battle have not been altogether unheard in the course of the twelve months under review, there has been no great action fought, nor a single reverse sustained. Towards the close of November, 1859, the last embers of the sepoy revolt were trampled out by the Nepalese troops, acting in concert with the column under Brigadier Holditch. Beni Madho Sing fell in battle; the other leaders and the remnant of the Nurseerabad brigade, still 800 strong, surrendered at discretion. The Begum of Oude, and her son Brijis Kudr, were allowed to reside at Katmandoo, but her alleged paramour, Mummoo Khan, was given up to the British authorities, put upon his trial for murder, and acquitted. The infamous Khan Bahadoor Khan was less fortunate. The evidence against him was irresistible, and on the 24th March he expiated his crimes on the gallows in front of the Kotwallee at Bareilly. Prince Feroze Shah alone remains at large. According to one account he has gone on a pilgrimage to Mecca; but according to another and more probable story he is still wandering in disguise among the jungles of Central India. The offer of a full and free pardon would, doubtless, lead to the discovery of his lurking place, and no evil could result from such an act of mercy. Rumours, indeed, are still rife as to the existence of Nana Sahib. He is said to be at the head of some thousands of armed men in the midst of the mountains of Nepal, and to possess several elephants, thirty pieces of artillery, and a considerable amount of treasure. The story reads like the myth of King Arthur and his mail-clad knights, or the similar one of the mountains of Salzburg—

“Where the Kaiser Barbarossa and his mailed host withdrawn, Sleep enchanted in the mountains till the fated day shall dawn—
The fated day for Europe, when the warrior king shall ride,
With a storm of steel behind him from the mountain's rifted side.”

In order to avenge the murder of Captain Meham, an expeditionary force under Brigadier Chamberlain invaded the hill country of the Wuzerees, and on the 22nd December, 1859, the death of the British officer was expiated by the blood of many a mountaineer. Again, in the month of April, the same general was compelled to enter the territory of the Mahsood Wuzerees, and teach them by the destruction of their homes and the plunder of their property the superior advantages of a refined civilisation. In this expedition Colonel Lumsden particularly distinguished himself in repelling a midnight attack.

In another quarter some trouble was caused by the depredations of the Waghers, who, although severely chastised by Major Honner at Porebunder, ventured in October to seize upon the town of Korinar, which they partially plundered,—afterwards dispersing themselves amid the surrounding jungles. The Bheels have also occasionally exhibited symptoms of restlessness, and in the Nizam's territory the chronic disturbances excited by the Arabs and Rohillas have continued in their usual intermittent manner. Not even the outskirts of Bengal Proper have been exempt from occasional outbreaks. In February the wild Kookees descended from the Tipperah hills, devastated several villages, and massacred a number of unoffending peasants; and in April the Khasias of Jyntiapore raised the flag of rebellion. The Kharen Levies, too, obeyed the same unreasoning impulse, and went off with their arms and accoutrements, ready to exchange a secure sufficiency for a life of hardship, danger, and uncertainty. Not much importance, perhaps, is to be attached to these occasional and local escapades. They are no more serious in themselves than the sudden appearance of a volcano in the Indian seas, when a cone of ashes rises for a few days through the bubbling waters, ejecting clouds of smoke, and filling with amazement the awe-stricken minds of untutored sailors. And yet it may be worth while to reflect that these ebullitions, trifling and evanescent as they may be, indicate the presence of deeply-seated volcanic fires, which may one day break forth with appalling fury.

Disturbances of another kind have been, and are still being, reported from the indigo districts of Bengal. Owing to the injudicious intermeddling of some young civilians, and the intemperate onesidedness of the Lieutenant-governor, the Ryots have been encouraged to refuse to complete their contracts with the Planters, and ruin consequently stares the latter in the face. A Commission was appointed to inquire into the real merits of the dispute, but the majority summed up dead against the evidence. The introduction of European capital and enterprise into Bengal must therefore be deferred to a future day.

At Maulmain, at Poona, and even in Bombay, considerable excitement still prevails on account of a new Income-tax, to which the natives in those places are disposed to offer a sullen resistance. In other parts of India, though naturally unpopular, it does not appear to have aroused a similar feeling of antagonism. It is now time to say a few words as to the origin of this impost.

The rapidly increasing financial embarrassments of the Indian Government, and the manifest incapacity of Indian officials to deal with such questions, induced her Majesty's Government send out to Calcutta the Right Hon. James Wilson, a gentleman both theoretically and practically versed in all matters relating to finance. On his arrival in India, Mr. Wilson found that the Governor-general was absent from the Presidency, and was making "a progress" through the newly tranquillised provinces of the North-West. Desirous to form his own judgment on the industrial and commercial condition of the people, he resolved to take advantage of this opportunity and travel through the length and breadth of the land, using his own eyes and ears. It was accordingly the 18th February before Mr. Wilson was able to lay his exposition of the Indian Budget before the Legislative Council of Calcutta. The revenue, he said, fell short of the expenditure for the current fiscal year to the extent of more than nine millions sterling. This deficit could be made good to a certain extent by retrenchments in the civil as well as in the military department, but a huge chasm would still remain to be filled up. This could only be done by an Income-tax, the nature of which he explained, aided by a duty on tobacco, and another on trade and professional licences. Amazed by his dexterous manipulation of figures, and delighted by the apparent frankness of their new Financial Minister, all classes of the community at first hailed his advent as a real blessing, and regarded his scheme for the adjustment of the Treasury as little short of inspired wisdom. Little by little, however, its defects began to show themselves. It was not so certain that the natives would submit to a tax essentially inquisitorial, or that if they did, it would produce the anticipated amount. Lord Elphinstone saw many objections, and stated them quietly, but clearly. The Bombay Chamber of Commerce memorialised the Legislative Council against it; the Bombay Times and Madras Athenæum denounced it with journalistic virulence; while Sir Charles Trevelyan attacked both the scheme and the Supreme Government with great ability and greater indiscretion. Not content with laying his views before the Council, he published his "confidential" Minute in the local papers, and thus committed an act of gross insubordination towards his superior authorities. For this he was deservedly reprimanded by the Viceroy, and recalled by the Home Government. In spite, however, of all its assailants the Income-tax was passed, to continue in force from the 31st of July until the 1st of August, 1865. The duty on tobacco has since been given up, and other measures recommended by Mr. Wilson have been delayed, or set aside, in consequence of his lamented death, which took place on the 11th August. Among the reforms which survive him are—annual budgets, a revenue board, and a board of audit. His successor is Mr. Laing, M.P. for the Wick Boroughs.

The latter part of 1859 and the commencement of 1860 were spent by the Viceroy in visiting the chief cities of the Upper Provinces, and in holding stately durbars for the reception of the native princes and chiefs who had remained faithful to the Paramount Power during the mutinies. Magnificent grants of land were bestowed on those who had rendered the most signal services to the State, and speeches in the happiest style were delivered with excellent effect. As the hot weather set in the noble Earl gradually made his way to Simla, whence he was suddenly summoned to Calcutta—arriving there on the 21st May—by the extraordinary conduct of the Governor of Madras. It must be confessed that Lord Canning is not generally popular with the European community, though at times he electrifies them by his scholarly address and calm dignified demeanour. Nothing, for instance, could be in better taste, more truthful, or more appropriate to the occasion than his speech on the 17th October, at the opening of the railway to Rajmahal. But his acts destroy the soothing effect of his words. The Arms Act, by which he sought to prevent Europeans from possessing fire-arms, called forth a general Volunteer Rifle Movement throughout the empire, and which, in a spirit of seeming paradox, he at once warmly encouraged. It is supposed that his lordship's tenure of office will expire in March or April, when he will probably be succeeded by Lord Elgin. At present Lord Canning is making a Viceregal progress towards Central India—having left Calcutta for Benares on the 21st November, on three months' leave of absence.

Sir Charles Trevelyan's unprecedented and wholly unjustifiable conduct in publishing his private Minute on the proposed Income-tax is the more to be regretted because he had already initiated several salutary reforms, and given promise of still better things. It may be that he moved somewhat too fast, but that is so rare a fault in Indian Governors that it may fairly be condoned. Sir Charles embarked at Madras on the 24th June, Mr. Morehead officiating as Governor until the arrival of Sir H. G. Ward on the 5th July. On the 2nd August Sir Henry had fallen a victim to cholera, and the reins of government were again provisionally assumed by Mr. Morehead. The new Governor, Sir Wm. Denison, had not reached that Presidency at the despatch of the last mail.

The unfortunate "Minute," however, was not the only subject of unpleasantness in the Madras Presidency during the year 1860. An unseemly dispute arose between the Madras Bench and the Legislative Council of Calcutta with regard to the debts of the Nabob of the Carnatic, when the former sadly forgot the respect that was due to the Supreme Government, while the latter displayed but little dignity in their reply. As generally happens in such quarrels, both parties were somewhat to blame.

On the death of the Maharajah of Travancore, his second nephew succeeded to the throne, by reason of the mental aberration with which the elder brother is afflicted. The faithful adherence to treaties exhibited by the Nizam during the years of trouble has been worthily recognised by the Supreme Government. His Highness receives back the formerly ceded districts of Dharaseo, Raichore, and Shorapore, besides being favoured with remission of debt to the amount of sixty-five lakhs. Khilluts of great value have also been conferred upon his Highness, upon his sagacious Minister Salar Jung, and upon other officials who did their best to keep their Royal master in the path of honour and sound policy.

The reduction of the Madras army has already commenced, while that of the Bombay army was not to take place before the first of the present month. Lord Elphinstone having been compelled to return to Europe on account of his health—and alas! he returned only to die—Sir George Clerk was appointed governor of Bombay, to the satisfaction of all parties. The part he has to play is not an easy one. Personally he is popular with all classes of the community, but his Government is opposed by the passive and combined resistance offered to the Income-tax. In spite of this discontent, the old Presidency is evidently full of youthful vigour. Cotton mills have been established, a new bank opened, and various schemes set on foot for the improvement of the port and the embellishment of the town.

Speaking in general terms, the past year has not been favourably distinguished by progress in public works, owing to the deficiency of revenue. A portion of the railway from Baroda to Ahmedabad, to the extent of thirty-six miles, has, however, been opened for general traffic; and the line from Calcutta to Rajmahal has also been completed. With the submarine electric telegraph no practical results have been attained. The cable connecting Batavia with Singapore conveyed a complimentary message from the Governor-general of Netherlands India to the Governor-general of British India, on the 24th November, 1859, and on the following day it carried back an equally complimentary answer. Intoxicated, apparently, by this sudden introduction into high life, it has since pertinaciously refused to carry messages for any one. No better fate has attended the line between Kurrachee and Aden, or that between Aden and Suez. No sooner were they reported in good working order than they ceased to work. One private message, however, was said to have been despatched from Calcutta on the 10th March, which was delivered in London on the 16th.

General Lord Clyde, having resigned the command of H.M.'s Forces in India, arrived in England on the 16th July. The noble and gallant lord has since been made an honorary member of the Skinners' Company, and likewise of the worshipful Company of Merchant Taylors; and on the 20th December he was presented, at the same time as Sir James Outram, with the freedom of the City of London, and a sword of honour valued at 100 guineas. Lord Clyde was succeeded, as Commander-in-Chief in India, by Sir Hugh Rose, by whose promotion Sir Wm. Mansfield became Commander-in-Chief in the Presidency of Bombay. The new chief has already won golden opinions. In his first general order he announced his intention of looking solely to an officer's merit, and not at all to his connections. Soon afterwards he rebuked an officious busy-body who had doomed to death "the soldiers' pets," and this kindly recognition of the men's harmless amusements he followed up by an admirable order on the subject of their recreations, and the profitable employment of their many leisure hours. Circumstances soon happened which placed him in a different light, and proved that in matters of duty he could be stern, just, and inexorable. The 5th European Fusiliers, stationed at Dinapore, had acquired an unenviable distinction by their want of subordination and discipline. A party of them even endeavoured to seduce the artillery at the same station, but were thwarted by the firmness and presence of mind of the sergeant-major in command, whom Sir Hugh at once promoted to an ensigncy. The ring-leaders, on the other hand, were sentenced to long periods of penal servitude, the non-commissioned officers severely rebuked, and the commissioned officers significantly admonished. This salutary lesson, however, was lost upon the regiment. A few days afterwards two men of the picket refused to obey the repeated orders of their sergeant, and one of them was consequently shot by sentence of court-martial. The entire regiment was then disbanded on the spot, the non-commissioned officers reduced to the ranks, and the disarmed men started off in separate bodies, to be drafted into corps at the furthest extremity of the Presidency.

What remains to be told must be condensed into a few words. Owing to the failure of the rains a drought is anticipated in the Doab, between the Ganges and the Jumna. Measures have been taken by Government to alleviate the misery that must ensue, and it is calculated that not less than a million sterling will be expended in this manner. The Terai has been ceded to Nepaul, and the insignia of a Knight Grand Cross of the Bath have been remitted, through Colonel Ramsay, to Maharajah Jung Bahadoor. The principle of adoption has been further recognised in the case of the adopted son of the venerable Banka Raec, Rane of Nagpore. A Ghoorka colony has been established in the Dhoon, apparently under an idea that mountaineers can be raised in the plains. In Oude two, perhaps more, instances of suttee are recorded, but, on the other hand, in the Punjab many converts to Christianity have been announced, and notably the singular fraternity who called themselves the Nikkul Seynee faqueers, after the late General Nicholson who fell at Delhi.

Some scandals, too, are worthy to be glanced at. Cornet Brown, of the 14th Dragoons, having formed an improper connection with a Mrs. Hunt, was shot, but not mortally, by the injured husband, who underwent a brief period of imprisonment for taking the law into his own hands. Then at Allahabad we find a Lieut. Griffin, of the Madras army, cashiered for forging, and other consequent offences; and in Pegu, the deputy commissioner, Captain Grant, is convicted of gross immorality—the only plea urged in his favour being, that he was no worse than his neighbours; in short, it was "the custom of the country." These and similar incidents bring shame upon Anglo-Indian society in general, and furnish plots to playwrights for such pieces as the "Overland Route" at the Haymarket Theatre, and "Up at the Hills" at the St. James'.

The chief events to be recorded at home are the inauguration of a statue to Lord Clive, at Shrewsbury, on the 19th of January; and a meeting at Willis's Rooms on the 16th of February, for the purpose of raising a fitting memorial to the memory of the Hon. Mountstuart Elphinstone. Some, perchance, may think it of more moment that on the 20th August the House of Commons sanctioned a loan of three millions sterling to the Indian Government, secured on the revenues of India; while others, again, may attach more importance to the fact that on the 3rd August the House of Commons, and on the 14th the House of Lords, passed Sir Charles Wood's "European Forces (India) Bill," which virtually rang the knell of the local European army. It is also interesting to remember that on the 17th September the business of the India-office was transacted at the Palace Hotel, Westminster, that the Board of Control becomes the repository of the East India Company's Library, while their characteristic museum emigrates to Fife-house, in Scotland-yard.

During the past year death has been busy with eminent men associated with Indian history. On the 4th May died Sir Willoughby Cotton, who served in the first Burmah campaign, and under Sir John Keane in Afghanistan. On the 8th the world of letters lost the learned and amiable Professor H. H. Wilson, who is succeeded as librarian by Dr. Ballantyne, and as Boden Professor of Sanscrit by Mr. Monier Williams. Lord Elphinstone closed his honourable career on the 19th July; following at no great distance his aged and venerated uncle. On the 2nd August Sir Henry Ward died at Madras, and on the 11th the Right Hon. James Wilson at Calcutta; and on the 18th of the same month H. H. the Maharajah of Travancore. Dr. Buist, so well and creditably known as an Indian journalist, terminated his laborious life on the 1st October, leaving his wife and children totally unprovided for—a seasonable hint at Christmas time,—and on the 12th Sir Harry Smith, "the hero of Aliwal," laid down his sword. Sir Henry Davidson, Chief Justice of Madras, gave a chance of promotion to the Bar on the 3rd November; and on the 19th December the most noble the Marquis of Dalhousie sank to rest.

THE ART-JOURNAL: A Record of the Fine Arts, the Arts-Industrial, and the Arts of Design and Manufacture, under the editorial superintendence of S. C. HALL, Esq., F.S.A. Each Part contains Three highly-finished Engravings on Steel, and numerous Illustrations on Wood. The ART-JOURNAL is the only journal in Europe, or in America, by which the Arts are adequately represented. It is addressed first to the Artist, next to the Amateur and Student, then to the Manufacturer and Artisan, and, finally, to the general public; endeavouring to interest all by the varied nature of its contents, but striving also, regularly, to issue matters specially directed to each class.

The January Part contains the Engravings of "War," after Drummond, "Caligula's Palace," after Turner, and "The Friends," after Landseer, all engraved on steel. Among the literary contents will be found:—

- I. An Inquiry concerning the Early Portraits of Our Lord. By Thomas Heaphy. Illustrated.
  - II. Rambles of an Archaeologist. By F. W. Fairholt, F.S.A. Illustrated.
  - III. Artists and their Models. By Walter Thornbury.
  - IV. Hermits and Recluses. By the Rev. Edward L. Cutts, B.A. Illustrated.
  - V. French and English Paper-staining. By John Stewart.
  - VI. Modern Art in Florence. By Theodosia Trollope.
  - VII. The Bronze Penny.
  - VIII. Drinking Fountains. Illustrated.
- The following series will be continued:—

Preparing for publication, in One Volume Octavo,

BY J. R. YOUNG,

A COURSE OF MATHEMATICS, PURE AND MIXED,

More especially designed for the Use of Candidates for the MILITARY & CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

WITH A VARIETY OF PROBLEMS IN, AND PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS OF THE FOLLOWING SUBJECTS:

1. ALGEBRA, TRIGONOMETRY, AND MENSURATION.
2. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (CONIC SECTIONS), STATICS, DYNAMICS, AND HYDROSTATICS.
3. THE DIFFERENTIAL AND INTEGRAL CALCULUS with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c., &c.

The object of this work is to furnish Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations with such a practical knowledge of Pure and Mixed Mathematics as may prove most serviceable to them in the course of the ordeal to which they are about to be subjected. On such occasions a mere theoretical acquaintance with principles is by no means sufficient. It is also necessary that the young aspirant should have been trained by actual experiments, as it were, to the application of the abstract rules, the enunciation of which he has otherwise mastered only by an effort of memory. To assist him in thus gathering the fruits of his intellectual industry, Mr. J. R. YOUNG has devised a multitude of problems, of greater or less difficulty, in Algebra, Trigonometry, Mensuration, Analytical Geometry (Conic Sections), Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, the Differential and Integral Calculus, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. The chief peculiarity of this work, however, is one that will recommend it to a very large class of students. The most difficult questions are rendered comparatively easy, by the practical simplifications that are introduced in their mode of solution. Instead of a pompous and puzzling display of technical phraseology, the utmost care has been taken to explain the most knotty points in a plain, unaffected manner, intelligible to every ordinary capacity. In this respect, Mr. Young's "Course of Mathematics" will be found to possess a decided superiority over all preceding works on the same subject.

London: Wm. H. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street.

ALLEN'S MAPS OF INDIA & CHINA.

MAP of INDIA; showing the British Territories subdivided into Collectorates, and the position and boundary of each Native State; chiefly compiled from Trigonometrical Surveys, executed by order of the Honourable Court of Directors of the East India Company. On six sheets—Size, 5 ft. 6 in. high; 5 ft. 8 in. wide. £2; or, on cloth, in a case, £2. 12s. 6d.; or, with rollers and varnished, £3. 3s.

The object kept in view in compiling this map has been to render it available to the greatest possible extent for popular use. For this purpose the names of all stations, civil and military, are inserted, as well as those of all towns and places of note likely to be looked for. To make clear the subdivisions of the whole of the country, both British and native, the limits of the various districts and collectorates, with their names, are distinctly indicated. The railways and telegraphs are laid down, and the trunk roads conspicuously coloured. The newly-acquired district in Burmah is included. To avoid, however, the confusion consequent upon over-crowding, and make the map clear and easy for reference, the names of many small villages, and places of no present importance, have been omitted, and thus a very wide measure of comprehensiveness has been attained, while needless diffusiveness has been avoided.

A GENERAL MAP of INDIA; compiled chiefly from Surveys executed by order of the Honourable East India Company, with the railways and telegraphs. On six sheets—Size, 5 ft. 3 in. wide; 5 ft. 4 in. high. £2; or, on cloth, in a case, £2. 12s. 6d.; or, with rollers and varnished, £3. 3s.

MAP of the ROUTES in INDIA; with Tables of Distances between the principal Towns and Military Stations. On one sheet—Size 2 ft. 3 in. wide; 2 ft. 9 in. high. 9s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 12s.

In this map are given the whole of the military and civil stations, together with the principal towns, the villages being omitted, so as to make the stations more prominent. The colouring defines the boundaries of the three Presidencies, and shows also the railways and telegraphs.

MAP of INDIA and CHINA, BURMAH, SIAM, the MALAY PENINSULA, and the EMPIRE of ANAM. On two sheets—Size, 4 ft. 3 in. wide; 3 ft. 4 in. high. 16s.; or, on cloth, in a case, £1. 5s.

MAP of the PUNJAB and SIKH TERRITORY. On one sheet, 5s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 6s.

MAP of AFGHANISTAN, and the ADJACENT COUNTRIES. On one sheet—Size 2 ft. 3 in. wide; 2 ft. 9 in. high. 9s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 12s.

MAP of CHINA, from the most Authentic Sources of Information. One large sheet—Size, 2 ft. 7 in. wide; 2 ft. 9 in. high. 8s.; or, on cloth, in a case, 11s.

MAP of the BURMAN EMPIRE, showing the Annexed District of Pegu. One sheet, 3s. 6d.; or, on cloth, in a case, 5s.

A MAP of the WESTERN PROVINCES of HINDOOSTAN, the PUNJAB, CABOOL, SINDE, BHAHUPUR, &c., including all the States between Candahar and Allahabad. On four sheets—Size, 4 ft. 4 in. wide; 4 ft. 2 in. high. 30s.; or, on cloth, in a case, £2; rollers, and varnished, £2. 10s.

MAP of ARABIA, from all the most recent Authorities, by order of the Court of Directors of the East India Company. Size, 3 ft. 3 in. high; 4 ft. 3 in. wide. On cloth, in a case, £1. 5s.

HAND-BOOK to the MAPS of INDIA, giving the Latitude and Longitude of all places of note. By Major H. V. STEPHEN, late of Bengal Army Revenue Survey Department. In 18mo, bound, price 5s.

MAP of INDIA; from the most recent Authorities, showing the railways and telegraphs. On two sheets—Size, 2 ft. 10 in. wide; 3 ft. 3 in. high. 16s.; or, on cloth, in a case, £1s. 1s.

MAP of the STEAM COMMUNICATION and OVERLAND ROUTES between ENGLAND, INDIA, CHINA, and AUSTRALIA. In a case, 14s.; on rollers, and varnished, 18s.

London: Wm. H. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street.

MUMFORD'S CONCENTRATED CORDIAL ESSENCE of JAMAICA GINGER.

The Cordial Essence, which is now taken in preference to all other preparations of Ginger, not only from its agreeable flavour, but from the value and certainty of its effects, will be found most useful in all cases of indigestion, spasms, heartburn, diarrhoea, irritability of the bowels, and in most nervous affections. To invalids suffering with impaired digestion from long residence in warm climates, and to those who are proceeding to India, this preparation cannot be too strongly recommended.

Prepared only by GEORGE MUMFORD, Chemist, 5, Bathurst-street, Hyde-park-gardens, and sold by all Chemists, in bottles at 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each; also in large stoppered bottles, for foreign use, at 21s.

TO LATE RESIDENTS in INDIA.—

A TRUE MADRAS CURRY and MULLIGATAWNEY PASTE and CHUTNIES.—Messrs. BARRIE and Co., Vepery, Madras, to enable their old correspondents returning from India to continue the use of the celebrated Condiments, have made arrangements to forward regular supplies of the above, packed in glass jars for family use, at 1s. 9d. and upwards, which may be had of CROSSER and BLACKWELL, Purveyors to Her Majesty, 21, Soho-square; FORTNUM, MASON, & Co., Piccadilly; and of the Principal Sauce Vendors throughout the Kingdom. Each bottle is labelled, and BARRIE and Co., Madras, stamped on the glass.

BLAIR'S GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

Price 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per box.

This preparation is one of the benefits which the science of modern chemistry has conferred upon mankind; for during the first twenty years of the present century to speak of a cure for the gout was considered a romance; but now the efficacy and safety of this medicine is so fully demonstrated by unsolicited testimonials from persons in every rank of life, that public opinion proclaims this as one of the most important discoveries of the present age. These Pills require no restraint of diet or confinement during their use, and are certain to prevent the disease attacking any vital part.

Sold by all medicine vendors. Observe "Thomas Prout, 229, Strand, London," on the Government stamp.

FURNISHED APARTMENTS to be LET,

on moderate terms, consisting of a spacious and well-furnished Drawing room, and three or four good Bedrooms, suitable for Gentlemen or a small family. The locality is open, healthy, and central. Good attendance, and the use of the Key of the Square.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, SET in the new

CHEMICALLY PREPARED INDIA-RUBBER, forming a beautifully fitting plate to the gums, or over stumps, without producing the slightest pain, and on this plan it is impossible to detect them as artificial when the workmanship is of superior order. Mr. BRADSHAW can, with the greatest confidence, undertake any case, no matter how difficult, with certain success, being a thoroughly practical workman, supplying for many years the first dentists of the day with their most particular work in Artificial Teeth. Doing all his own work himself, he is enabled to supply his patients at an exceedingly moderate price. Single Teeth, from 3s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.; a complete Upper or Lower Set, from £2 to £5. Mr. Bradshaw, Dentist, 20, Great Portland-street, Oxford-circus.

COMMANS' CELEBRATED ARECA-

NUT TOOTH-PASTE is used by her Majesty and the Royal Family.—Has been examined, approved, is used and recommended, by many of our first physicians and dentists as the best preparation known for cleaning and preserving the teeth. Testimonials have been received, unsolicited, from many of the nobility and gentry. The following is amongst the many in testimony of its high value.

"I have much pleasure in offering my testimony to the value of your Areca-nut Tooth Paste, and have no hesitation in saying that it is the most efficacious and agreeable Dentifrice ever produced. I have recommended its use to my patients for some years.

"W. J. NEWMAN,

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.—

SUDDEN CHANGES. Changes of temperature constantly occurring during the winter are prone to produce Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and other painful disorders of the muscles and nerves. For upwards of twenty years Holloway's remedies have been particularly celebrated for curing this class of complaints. The parts affected by the pains should be fomented twice a-day in warm salt and water, and immediately after drying, well rubbed with this inestimable Ointment. The Ointment penetrates through the skin to the affected tissue, which it first soothes, and ultimately relieves from pain, visibly reducing both redness and swelling, and healthfully balancing both circulation and sensation. Holloway's Ointment and Pills likewise cure spinal affections, weakness of the limbs, and scrofulous diseases.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.:—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

WE are in receipt of our usual overland letters and papers, to the 8th December from Calcutta, and the 29th November from Hong Kong. From the former we learn that Dr. Campbell, the superintendent of Darjeeling, having thought proper to annex 550 square miles of country belonging to the Sikkim Rajah, has been ignominiously ejected from his new possessions. With almost incredible rashness he ventured at the head of only one hundred men to invade the territories of that chief, and advanced as far as a place called Rinchinkong. Here his progress was arrested by an attack from a large number of Bhootias, who assailed his little force with great intrepidity, charging right up to the mouth of his one small three-pounder cannon. Finding it impossible to make head against such numerous and determined assailants, Dr. Campbell entrenched himself, and sent for reinforcements. A party of forty Europeans, under Major Maitland, at once set out for this purpose; but on reaching Ghoke, a small place on the frontier, they were abandoned by the coolies who carried their baggage, and forced to halt. Dr. Campbell was consequently obliged to fall back and retire within the old boundary line, but was unable to carry off his gun. His own loss appears to have been very slight,—one sepoy killed and four wounded; but three outlying pickets have been overpowered and thirty native soldiers slain or taken prisoners. On the 2nd December, Dr. Campbell was still at Ghoke, Captain Murray with forty Sappers having, however, returned to Darjeeling for the protection of that station. It was expected that two companies of the 73rd N.I. would arrive at the foot of the hills from Julpigoree on the 4th, and on the 8th, two companies of her Majesty's 6th Royal regiment were to proceed by railway to Rajmahal, and thence push rapidly forward to the scene of disturbance. A party of three hundred Sikhs and Ghoorkas of the Bengal Military Police Battalion were also under orders for the same destination. There is no ground of apprehension, therefore, for the safety of the residents at Darjeeling, but Dr. Campbell's inconceivable presumption is not the less to be reprehended. Annexation and war are the employment of kings, and must not be familiarised into a pastime for every hot-headed Scotchman who happens to find time hang heavy on his hands.

There is also some commotion among the hill tribes on the frontiers of Tipperah and Chittagong. Having as yet received no punishment for the raids made by them into the plains some months ago, those rude barbarians have assumed arrogant airs, and threaten another incursion. A detachment of Sikhs has been at length despatched to convince them of their real insignificance, and to chastise their violence and effrontery.

The news from China, though important, is of a less exciting nature than what we have lately been accustomed to receive from that quarter. The Emperor had not yet returned to Peking, but Mr. Bruce had entered that city, and been formally presented to Prince Kung. The Treaty of Tien-tsin had been posted on the walls of the capital, and was read with astonishment by crowds of people. The allied forces commenced their retrograde march on the 9th November, and on the 17th were at Tien-tsin, with the exception of 1,500 men left at Ho-si-woo. A portion of the troops had even arrived at Hong Kong with General Napier, and Admiral Hope was daily expected. Mr. Bruce was to pass the winter at Tien-tsin, and in the spring will, probably, return to Peking, where preparations for his residence were being made by Mr. Consul Adkins, the only Englishman now remaining in that city. By way of reminding the Japanese that the Americans are not the only great nation in the world, it was proposed to send Admiral Jones with a squadron to that island.

It is with sincere pleasure that we announce the appointment of Major-general Sir Robert Napier, K.C.B., of the Bengal Engineers, to the seat in the Council of Calcutta rendered vacant by the resignation of Lieut.-general Sir James Outram, G.C.B. A better choice could not possibly have been made.

It is stated that Mr. Baring will take Lord de Grey's post of Under-Secretary of State for the War Department, and that Lord de Grey will succeed Mr. Baring at the India-office.

BENGAL.

THE HOPELESS PRIZE MONEY.

It is six months since the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury appointed a Commission to decide on the scale according to which the Indian prize money should be distributed. Only after the Times was deluged with letters, after all the leading journals brought their artillery to bear on the Treasury, and after Sir Minto Farquhar moved for a return of the correspondence on the subject, did the Commission condescend to inform the expectant army of the amounts which were awaiting distribution. The list which we recently published from the Parliamentary Return embraced the whole prize of every kind taken by every force, except that captured at Kirwee and Banda. It amounted to almost 60 lakhs of rupees. But satisfied with their extraordinary effort in disclosing the fact at the command of the House of Commons, the Commission here rested. Up to the date of the last intelligence not only had no warrant directing the Indian authorities to pay the amount appeared in the London Gazette, but there was no prospect of it. The Ministry were all out of town, public business was to a large extent suspended. The wounded officer who is uneasy under the debt he has contracted on the strength of his share of the spoil, and the brave soldier who cheerfully submitted to discipline, and surrendered the valuables he had captured with his own hand in the hope that all would share alike, are forgotten. If, on the most favourable calculation, the Royal Warrant be issued now, the Indian departments will occupy—for, as a rule, have they hitherto occupied—at least a year in making out correct lists of the claimants, in referring to commanding officers, and in discovering the heirs of captors long since dead. Were the Warrant to appear to-morrow the defrauded heroes who took Delhi, relieved and captured Lucknow, and fought their way through Central India, cannot expect payment till the beginning of 1862, or more than four years after their triumphs.

But what shall we say of the Banda and Kirwee prize? The Indian authorities did not show much reprehensible delay in the case of the other booty; the dilatoriness has been in England. Not so with the Kirwee and Banda treasure. The papers are still in India, and the State has quietly annexed the spoil for which its captors cry unheeded. When Sir G. Whitlock's force advanced on Kirwee, Naidin Rao and Madho Rao, the cousins of the Nana, fled. Our troops peaceably took possession of treasure to such an extent and in such shapes as one reads of in the story of Aladdin and his Lamp. Literal bricks of gold, massive bars of silver, jewels which flashed in the darkness, coins piled up in heaps, were found. The cash alone amounted to 43 lakhs, besides 9 taken in the district. These 52 lakhs were made over to the Government, and we believe were at once used at a time when every rupee was of value, and open loans in vain courted timorous capitalists. The money has been all spent, but a receipt was given for it to the prize agent promising interest at 5 per cent. The jewels and bullion have been valued at 30 lakhs, but we are assured by those who have seen them that half a million is nearer their price. How long are they to lie useless at Allahabad? Was it not enough for Government that they should confiscate £325,000 which the brothers had in the funds, and that they now hold their estates, which yield £80,000 a-year more? Whether or not the Kirwee force is entitled to this million sterling, let the Government say what they mean to do with it. Is it to be given to Sir G. Whitlock's column, is it to be reserved for the whole Indian army, or is it, as seems likely, to be quietly annexed by an Act for which the commercial world has a very significant name? We know that it is not pleasant to show a deficit increased by half a million, on which five per cent. interest is now accumulating. But it is just, it is politic, it must be done, and the sooner the better. The Indian Government cannot honestly blame the English Treasury for delay in distributing the £600,000 of the Delhi, Lucknow, and Central India armies, so long as they pertinaciously persist in fraudulently using half-a-million, and childishly burying another half, both of which are the property of the Indian army.—Friend of India.

THE GLIMMERING OF THE DAWN.

"'Tis always the darkest the hour before day" is an expression of which few have not felt the force. It may certainly be applied to portray with tolerable accuracy the position of Indian officers during the past twelve months. Their sky has been black with clouds, each one charged apparently with a deluge; not a ray of light has been visible anywhere; not even a solitary star has relieved by its dim lustre the deep gloom of the prospect. Every hour has added to a darkness the intensity of which seemed to communicate despair to many a heart, and to induce not a few to imagine that certain destruction was at hand. It was at such a crisis that, with information in our possession which indicated with more than the certainty of the barometer a favourable change, we endeavoured to point out that the situation was not so desperate, the future not so hopelessly blank, as many seemed to fear. We showed on the contrary that the same qualities which have always commanded respect amidst the mixed communities of mankind would still, under all circumstances, assert their predominance; that the storm, the threatening of which had caused so much terror, would have no other effect than a clearing of the atmosphere, a carrying off of noxious accumulations; that with its cessation the dawning of a brighter day would convince those whose hearts were in their profession that even a wider field for the display of all the best qualities of a soldier was opening before them.

It was only last week that in plainer language and with a more emphatic illustration than we had before employed we endeavoured to enforce this proposition. We pointed out that the fact that the Indian army had been a local and distinct army had always militated against the employment of its officers in Europe. We showed from the experience of the last sixty years that it was to the Indian military school that in the hour of her need England almost always had recourse, and we argued it was only the fact of their belonging to a separate service that had barred Indian officers from all chance of participating in the general race for honour and distinction. We did not hesitate to declare our conviction that amalgamation would level every distinction, and as it admitted Royal officers to a share of the staff appointments of this country, would leave it free to the Indian officer, if he so willed it, to follow the bent of his inclination in other lands. Some to whom our remarks were addressed regarded our anticipations as too sanguine. If it is at all times difficult to conquer prejudice, it is doubly so to convince a man who has persuaded himself he must be ruined, that he is really in a position in which it needs only his own exertions to increase his fortune. We can well believe, then, that our favourable anticipations regarding the effects of amalgamation have been received by some with a smile of incredulity, our dream as to the perfect equality of all officers when united in one service with absolute disbelief. The accounts received by the last mail from England furnish us, nevertheless, with one fact, which offers the strongest confirmation to all our assertions, and which shows most unmistakably, that in whatever service it may be evinced, whether British or Indian, real merit will be recognised and rewarded.

On the eve of amalgamation, and in order to assist the Home Government in carrying out its details, Lieutenant-colonel Norman has received an appointment, analogous to that of assistant military secretary at the Horse Guards. There is no occasion for us to allude to those qualifications, the possession of which have, throughout his career, been Colonel Norman's best credentials. But it is a fact to which we may make reference, that Colonel Norman entered the Indian army not possessing in its ranks or in the ranks of the sister service a single influential friend; that to great abilities guided by sound judgment, to a perseverance which nothing daunted, and to an energy which overcame all obstacles, Colonel Norman is indebted for the rise and progress of his fortunes. All the powerful friends who have helped him on in his career were men whom his character and abilities had gained. There has been, too, this peculiarity in his advancement, that, although it has been obtained at the expense of older officers, not one has felt himself aggrieved at being passed over by Colonel Norman. His rapid promotion has not even caused envy, whilst the confidence which has been reposed in him by all with whom he has come into contact, the modesty with which he has borne his honours, the desire which he has evinced to single out for employment those who had been unfortunate, have riveted the feeling of respect which a contemplation of his talents was calculated originally to induce.

This is the officer, belonging to the Indian army, and possessed of no interest but that which he had made for himself, whom the authorities at the Horse Guards have selected for an appointment of £1,000 a-year in England. Surely this fact ought to silence those who consider that amalgamation will be so onerous in its effects as to deprive Indian officers of their local advantages without holding out hopes of corresponding benefit at home! No one will be bold enough to assert that the best man has not been selected here. His Indian connection has certainly been no disadvantage to Colonel Norman. He has been taken simply as the man best fitted for the duties which were to be performed. The appointment has been guaranteed to him for three years, and those three years are to count as service. Does this arrangement evince any desire on the part of the English Government to restrict the privileges of Indian officers? Does this, the first overt act of the authorities since the union of the two armies was decreed, look as though any intention existed to place the old officers of the old Company's army altogether out of the line of staff appointments? Or is it, on the other hand, calculated to assure all who have their hearts in their profession, to hold out to them this certain result of devotion to duty and a determination to acquire knowledge? Is it not, in fact, the first glimmering of the dawn of a brighter day?

It is because we believe so, because we think that this is the first blow to the system of exclusion, because we are confident that it is the earnest of a detailed scheme of amalgamation in which all interests will be impartially considered, that we regard Colonel Norman's appointment with especial satisfaction. Good in itself, it is even better by reason of the principle on which it was made, and of the promise which it holds forth. It is possible that all may not regard it with the same bright anticipations. Those whose prejudices on this point are unconquerable will doubtless find some special reason for regarding this as an exceptional case. It will be urged, doubtless, that but for Lord Clyde's interest Colonel Norman would not have been appointed, and that except Colonel Norman no Indian officer would have been nominated to the post. Those who may be inclined to argue that would do well to remember that it was through his merits and abilities alone that Colonel Norman first attracted the notice of Sir Colin Campbell, that but for the possession of those merits he would have remained yet unnoticed. Lord Clyde has doubtless brought to the consideration of the Horse Guards the qualities which he had himself proved and tested for a number of years. And in this lies the real value of the case. An unfriended lieutenant of the Indian army has raised himself through his merits to a high position in the Horse Guards! May not others profit by this example? Probably no commander-in-chief ever evinced a stronger desire to advance real merit than Sir Hugh Rose. Officers may depend upon it that he will not be less backward than Sir Colin Campbell, if they will only show the same disposition to push forward as did Lieutenant Norman. —Friend of India.

THE LAST ANNEXATION AND ITS RESULTS.

Sometime ago we announced the determination of Government to punish the Rajah of Sikkim by annexing another portion of the territory on the banks of the Teesta, in consequence of his people making marauding inroads on British territory. On the 19th of November we published a correspondent's letter, giving ample details of the quarrel with this Bootia Rajah, and of the march of Dr. Campbell, superintendent of Darjeeling, with one hundred sebondies under the command of Capt. Murray, to take possession of the confiscated land. This appears to have been considered an easy matter; no preparations were made beyond the usual force, and the Superintendent marched into an ignorant, insolent, and defiant Rajah's territory to seize a slice of his lands, as if he were proceeding with a posse comitatus to take possession of the goods and chattels of a defendant in some court. With an incomprehensible blindness to the character of the people he, of all others, ought to know so well, he has placed himself at the mercy of an unscrupulous set of scoundrels, and risked the safety of the station of Darjeeling itself. The following letters from Darjeeling, received yesterday (Dec. 4) give us a clear understanding of the unfortunate predicament which this obstinate refusal to recognise the character of these crafty people has brought him into:—

"Darjeeling, Nov. 30:—We are rather in a mess here just now. Dr. Campbell proceeded on the 1st into the Sikkim Rajah's territory and annexed a portion of it. We now hear that one thousand men of the Rajah's troops are marching on Darjeeling in one direction, and another detachment of several hundreds are moving on us in another for the purpose of attacking the place. I wrote to the principal military authority here on the subject, and I send you a copy of his reply, dated 29th November. He says:—'All I can tell you is that communication with Campbell's camp and ourselves is decidedly cut off, and from all I can learn, I have every reason to believe he has been attacked, and, it is said, was fighting all yesterday and to-day, but no intelligence whatever of him, or of the fate of his party. I sent a party of thirty-five Europeans and thirty rangers to his aid this morning.' I suppose we shall require troops from Calcutta, for I do not believe we have more than thirty or forty European troops here at present, and I fancy all that can be spared from Julpigoree have been sent."

From another correspondent we have the following, dated 30th Nov.: "We have very bad news to tell you. Dr. Campbell's camp is surrounded by Bootias, and we hear all kinds of reports; some say he has been killed, and others that the Doctor and his whole force are prisoners. All communication between Darjeeling and his camp is stopped; we have not heard from him or any of his party for four days. Some Europeans under Major Maitland have gone to his relief to-day; we have now only very few troops in Darjeeling, and may be attacked by Bootias at any moment. They have all left their villages, and it is reported that all the Bootias of Bhootan have joined the Sikkimites. This is very unpleasant, and it appears strange that all the Darjeeling Bootias are leaving as fast as they can."

Another, writing on the 30th, says:—"You are aware that the Sikkim Rajah and his rascally Dewan have been behaving very badly of late. As a punishment our superintendent has, with the sanction of Government, decided on annexing a portion of their territory. There can be no doubt that this punishment is well deserved—but the policy of the annexation at the present time is very doubtful indeed. It will involve great expense and very much trouble to hold the place. The first instalment of this trouble has come in already. Dr. Campbell went in person with a small body of native sappers to annex the selected tract. At first he met with no opposition, but when he advanced well into the country the enemy began to show signs of resistance—and now it is reported that they have cut off his communication with the station. The two last daks despatched to him have returned, the runners bringing intelligence that the 'Doctor Sahib' has been taken prisoner, and that the bridge constructed across the little Rungeet by Captain Murray to facilitate the passage of our troops into Sikkim has been destroyed, and that the guard has been cut up. This story has not yet been authenticated, but I fear that it is too true that the superintendent has been entrapped by the Rajah, or rather by his wily Dewan. Later reports say that the superintendent is at present safely entrenched, and that the enemy, although mustering strong, have not succeeded in capturing the small gun that the sappers took with them. These reports have, as you may suppose, created a great excitement and alarm in our peaceful little station. The worst of it is, we do not know, and cannot know for some days, the real facts. Natives always exaggerate. Major Maitland, with a small detachment of forty Europeans, started for Sikkim this morning, but their progress is much impeded by want of baggage coolies. There is a general bolt among the coolies. The Jellapahar depot is badly provided with arms—only thirty soldiers left to protect Darjeeling."

Dr. Campbell was once before seized by the Dewan of the Rajah of Sikkim in the end of 1849, in company with Dr. Hooker, a graphic history of which Dr. Hooker has given to the world. Is it, we may ask, the same Dewan who is now again in power, who has been venturing on renewing his former insults in a bolder manner? If so, still less can the superintendent be excused the want of judgment he has displayed in not preparing for the intended movement with an ample force to repel any treacherous opposition which might be brought to bear upon him. We are convinced that the unfortunate result we have above described is the consequence of treachery and the silly acceptance by the superintendent of the information purposely given him, that no one would dare to oppose so great a chief as himself. It is impossible, we think, that Lord Canning could have refused to supply the superintendent with any force that he might have deemed necessary, and we cannot but think that as at Pekin, so at Sikkim, our diplomatists allow themselves to be deceived by the crafty and unscrupulous scoundrels with whom they are brought in contact. This Sikkim affair once more drags us into further annexations; we cannot submit to this insult from this petty Rajah and his foolhardy Dewan. This is the result of seizing on a small bit of territory by way of punishment for offences on our frontier. In all directions we have complaints of raids and kidnappings and murderings by the inhabitants of wild and independent tracts on the frontiers of British India. Some more safe and satisfactory mode of punishing the marauders must be found than annexing lands. This course is never-ending, and is a failure besides. The savage inhabitants are not under the control of their nominal chiefs, and the chiefs themselves are ignorant, and, as usual with ignorance, intolerably conceited. It must rest with our statesmen to find some more effective remedy than annexation. Forces must immediately be sent for the protection of Darjeeling. We have no doubt orders are already issued, and that all the men that can be spared from Julpigoree have been sent; but they will not be enough. Men must be sent from Calcutta up the Hill, at an enormous and unexpected expense, much more than all Sikkim is worth and more than the Empire can at present afford. The whole of this Sikkim country must now be annexed if we expect to save further petty wars with this wretched country, and we shall then be able to hail the Emperor of China from the western side of Pekin in a manner that may help to make him, for once, keep faith in this last treaty just ratified.—Englishman.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DARJEELING, Dec. 1.—A letter was received from Dr. Campbell yesterday evening; all his party are well. The Bootias attacked him at three in the morning of the 28th, and fought for an hour. The enemy had a gun and bows and arrows. Two of Campbell's men were wounded, and he has been obliged to entrench himself, and is now surrounded. At Darjeeling we are nightly expecting to be attacked. The Bootias are assembling all about the place in large numbers, all armed; no troops near, and only two hundred men can be procured from Julpigoree. Five companies of the Julpigoree regiment are at Berhampoor. Troops ought to be sent up immediately, or we shall be in a bad way. A spy reports that an immense number of Bootias had assembled and were going to stop our communication with the plains. These are men from Bootia; they give out publicly that they intend attacking Darjeeling." Another correspondent of the same date says:—"The latest intelligence is that a scout has brought a letter from Dr. Campbell's camp, announcing that the poor old doctor is safe. He and his party are busy entrenching themselves. They have, fortunately, a moderate supply of provisions with them; but they have need to be anxious on this score, as they are surrounded by the enemy who pepper them with poisoned arrows. Major Maitland's party had not reached Dr. Campbell, having been left in the lurch at Ghoak by the bolting of the baggage coolies. One of the Sikkim big wigs, a Soobah, has been captured and brought in to Darjeeling, and as the fellow has at least five hundred sturdy hill men ready to do his bidding, his capture and safe custody is a fortunate circumstance. He will, of course, be given to understand that he will be hanged at once if any of his retainers show fight, or attempt his rescue. Two years ago the Government took a fit into its head that a whole European regiment should come up here. Urgent orders came up to select a site for new cantonments, and this important duty was entrusted to a young officer of the Engineers. Arriving here at an unfavourable season for the proper inspection of the country, he fell into the mistake of selecting Mount Sanchal, one of the bleakest places in the whole of these hills, and, strange to say, Dr. Campbell, who ought to have known better, was the person who strongly recommended that site to his attention. When I tell you that it is much more exposed and dreary than that dismal Jella Pahar Depot, you can imagine what sort of a place it is. However, the Government, without stopping to inquire whether Sanchal was really suitable or not, ordered the immediate construction of temporary barracks upon it. The whole of these barracks were built in a desperate hurry, and, as a matter of course, were badly laid out and badly built. The prices paid for all the building materials and for labour were exorbitantly high. Nearly four lakhs of rupees were thus expended on a set of barracks that have not yet been used, and that are now so leaky, damp, and dismal as to be unfit (unless more money is spent in putting them to rights) for the proper shelter of European soldiery. An officer was lately sent up to examine and report on the site, and I hear he has condemned it, preferring a place nearer the plains. This place is blessed with a glorious climate and abounds with magnificent scenery. The soil is fertile; the vegetation luxuriant and endless in variety. We have medicinal springs that are unrivalled in the whole world for their health-restoring and invigorating properties; but we are weighed down, notwithstanding all these advantages, by the imbecility of the local administration. The whole place must soon rise into importance in consequence of the extensive tea cultivation, and all we want to enable us to go ahead, and what we soon must have, is, a shaking out of the old bones."—Englishman.

THE REFRACTORY THAKOORS of Meywar and Malwa have at last given in, and have begged to be pardoned.

A "UNION" of all the Sabbath-school teachers in Calcutta has been formed. Mr. M. Wylie is President.

MR. RITCHIE.—The Governor-General in Council presented Mr. Advocate-General Ritchie with a sum of Rs. 4,000, for his valuable aid and assistance to the late Mr. Wilson in arranging the details of the Income-tax. Mr. Ritchie, however, respectfully declined to accept any honorarium. It was painful to him now to receive a pecuniary reward for any assistance he was able to render the late Mr. Wilson in his great and devoted efforts for the welfare of India.

THE REPORT OF THE BENGAL MILITARY FUND shows that the receipts for 1859 exceeded the payments by Rs. 2,48,145. The capital increased by Rs. 2,67,876. The net surplus was Rs. 78,929. The total value of pensions at the end of the year was Rs. 84,97,380, being Rs. 2,37,837 more than the estimated value in the preceding year. The number of widows drawing full pension is 737, and of annuitants drawing one-third pension is 9. There was an increase of 116 subscribers, of whom the total number is 3,518.

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE AGRA VOLUNTEERS.—To the Editor of the Englishman.—Sir,—When the document from the War Office, dated 18th May, 1860, appointing many gentlemen of Her Majesty's Indian Civil and Military Services to the Most Honourable Orders of the Bath was published in this country, considerable disappointment and surprise were expressed at the omission of all names of gentlemen of the non-official class who had done service to the State during the mutinies. I apprehend that the Home Government considered that they had a claim on the services of their own paid servants, and that those of them who had distinguished themselves, were sufficiently rewarded by being gazetted in a body as K.C.B.'s and C.B.'s, but that those of the non-official class who had served the State, and on whom the Government had no claim, were deserving of some more marked and special distinction. This view of the case is confirmed by my having received from the Secretary of State for India the following communication:—"India Office, 11th June, 1860. Sir,—The excellent service performed by you during the mutinies and disturbances in India in 1857-58 has been brought to the notice of the Queen. As second in command of the Agra Volunteer Horse (which behaved admirably and were most useful) your courage and gallantry were conspicuous on a great many occasions; and I have been commanded to convey to you the gracious approbation of her Majesty of your conduct during that critical period.—I am, sir, your obedient servant, C. Wood. To P. Saunders, sen., Esq., late of the Agra Volunteer Horse." I prize this communication. First. Because it is a wholly unsolicited and a very high honour conferred upon me by my sovereign, the greatest and best of sovereigns. Second. Because it is a most honourable recognition of the services of the Agra Volunteers, the first volunteers in the field in India, and their services as a body have never been noticed by her Majesty's Viceroy. Third. Because it is a marked and honourable recognition of a class, the non-official class, which has been sedulously excluded from all honours and distinctions by the Government of India in India, and has hitherto lived under the cold shade of an official aristocracy which has tolerated rather than encouraged it. The notice of the Queen, however, and of her Majesty's Government in England will destroy such class distinctions, which serve only as a serious impediment to the onward progress and improvement of the country. I have no doubt other gentlemen of the non-official class have received similar communications, and if they do not give them publicity, they will, in my opinion, fail in their duty to themselves and to the class to which they belong.—Yours faithfully, P. SAUNDERS.—Cachar, Nov. 25, 1860."

SMALL CAUSE COURT.—In consequence of the probable return to England of Mr. Macpherson, Chief Judge of the Small Cause Court, the officiating appointment has been offered to Mr. Graham, of the Calcutta bar. Mr. Graham, we also hear, has declined to accept it, and it is not improbable that the appointment will be offered to Mr. Boulnois.

LOYALTY REWARDED.—The Governor-general has sanctioned the grant of two villages to one Umeer Sing, who saved the lives of seven ladies and two children in Agra. The Governor-general has also granted a jagheer, yielding Rs. 40,000 per annum, to the Rajah of Huldore, for his services to the Government. He raised a number of men and fought more than once with Ferozshah. His country was plundered and his own property was destroyed by the rebels.

PATNA, Nov. 28.—The Governor-general's barge, in tow of the Jubona, reached the Opium Ghat on Tuesday at noon, and most of the officials of the station were received on board. He subsequently visited the opium factory, and the process of making the drug into balls was exhibited and explained to him by Dr. Walter, in the absence of the agent, who was sick, and at sunset he landed and drove through the bazaar to the Commissioner's house at Bankipoor, the usual salute being fired from the Fort on his arrival at Patna. There was a dinner and evening party to half the station, and the other half are invited to-night. At noon to-day a darbar was held, and besides those of the station itself, many from Arrah, Tirhoot, and Gya were present, with a sufficient number from Dinapore to give a contrast to the black coats of the civilians and others. The following gentlemen were ranged in order down one side on the Viceroy's right hand:—Maharaja Bhoop Sing of Patna, with his son; the Maharaja of Doornraon and his son; the Maharaja of Bettiah and his brother; Maharaja Hetnarain Sing of Tekan; the young Maharaja of Huttooa; the Rajah of Deo Munger in Behar; Rajah Joymungul Sing, of Giddhore; Baboo Roghoomudun Sing, Bahadur; Shah Kubberooddin, the Fakir of Sasseram; Syud Azlun ul Huq, deputy magistrate and collector; the Moonsiff of Patna, and the Pundit. The nuzzerana of the Rajahs was 101 gold mohurs, and they received presents in return from the Government Toshakhanna—viz., to Maharajah Bhoop Singh a diamond ring, and the Viceroy on presenting it said, "Tell Maharajah Bhoop Singh that the urzi he sent to the Lieutenant-governor of Bengal has come before me, and its answer will be, that in consideration of the long period the title of Rajah has been in his family, it shall descend to his son, and two-thirds of the pension which he now receives shall be inherited by his children." The Doornraon Rajah, with others, received necklaces. To the Bettiah Rajah he said: "Tell the Maharajah of Bettiah I heard with great pleasure last night from the Commissioner the encouragement he gives to education." To the Huttooa Rajah: "Tell the Rajah of Huttooa I also heard with great pleasure the care he takes in the management of his estate, and that he also interests himself in education." To the Rajah of Deo:—"Tell the Rajah of Deo Munger that the difficulty which he represented to me last year at Sasseram has been settled; he is in full possession of the estates, and I hope will be gratified with them." The Rajah, in returning thanks, said he had a thousand things to represent to his lordship, but would not encroach on his time then. To Rajah Joymungul Sing, he said:—"Tell the Rajah that since I saw him last in Calcutta I am pleased to hear from Mr. Yule, the Commissioner at Bhagulpore, of his good services to the Civil Government, and his assistance to the administration in the matter of the Income-tax." Shah Kubberooddin presented a Persian work to the Viceroy, and received in return a large and finely bound volume of poems. The others had a gold-laced band affixed to their turbans, and the darbar ended as it began, with a royal salute. Lord Canning looked remarkably well, and his voice, somewhat hesitating in ordinary conversation, in his short speeches to the Rajahs, was clear and distinct; his enunciation very pure, and his words always well chosen. His look was dignified and befitting the Viceroy of the Queen. Mr. Young, in his capacity of Foreign Secretary, presented the Rajahs and Mr. Aitchison the smaller fry. To-morrow his lordship proceeds by trolly to see the Soane Bridge, and on Friday morning starts afresh from Dinapore for Shazepore and Benares.—Englishman.

JAUNPORE, Nov. 29.—Have you heard of the tragical occurrence that took place at Jaunpore on the 28th? A sepoy of the 47th N.I., who is supposed to have been fretting on account of his claims to promotion having been overlooked, took his loaded musket about 3 P.M. on the above date, and expressed his intention to go to the adjutant and get his name taken off, as he was determined to serve no longer. Some of the men prevented him from so doing, when he attempted to run off. Being still opposed by the men about him, he levelled his musket at a jemadar of the same regiment and shot him dead. The assembly was immediately sounded, and all the officers were on the spot in a few minutes, headed by Colonel Pott, who commands the regiment. This officer held a drum-head court martial, by which the murderer was sentenced to be hanged on the spot forthwith. The sentence was carried into execution instantly, so that within half-an-hour after having committed the crime, Debedeen Tewarry, the murderer, was hanging dead on a tree in the face of the whole regiment. His body was kept hanging till midnight, and then buried by mehters in the neighbourhood of the quarter-guard, to the great disgust of all his fellow Bramins in the corps. Thus ended this tragedy; and fortunate it was that there was an officer on the spot capable of taking on himself the responsibility of dealing with the criminal in so prompt and energetic a manner as was exhibited by Col. Pott on this occasion. It was reported that the 47th N. I. was to proceed with the Governor-general on his tour as a guard of honour. Perhaps the above event may cause some hesitation in his lordship's mind as to allowing himself to be accompanied by this regiment.—Englishman.

THE KISTEEWALLAHs are the Jews of Bengal. Usurers by profession, they generally form firms, with one partner in the city and others in their native villages. Their honest profession is to lend money for periods of two months and twelve days at enormous interest, the debtor paying a fee to the writer for the khut. At the end of that time if the debt is not paid the interest is added to the original sum, and thus the victim becomes a bondsman for years and generally ends in poverty and the jail. The Kisteewallahs who have no capital falsify debts, train witnesses to swear to the fact, and bring actions in the Small Cause Court against persons who never saw them before. The defendants cannot prove a negative, the clearest evidence based on perjury and forgery is against him and he is ruined. The judges of the court have now their eyes opened, and on detecting such cases award compensation to the defendant. It was a state of things precisely analogous to the case of the honest Kisteewallahs which at one time enslaved so many of the middle class in Rome and led to the plebeian secessions. Roman capitalists had large work-houses or jails as a regular part of their establishments, in which the poor soldier who had been forced to borrow money to feed his family when he was dragged from his fields to fight the battles of the State, spent his life as a bond slave.—Friend of India.

ENGLISH IMMIGRANTS.—A letter in the Hills relates what appears to be a true story of the sufferings of poor European strangers in this country. A man named Groome, a farrier in Australia, was invited by his brother, who was employed on the railway near Allahabad, to try his fortune in India. On arriving in Calcutta he got a letter from his brother telling him to go to Lahore where he would meet him. On the river his boat was lost near Patna, and he lost all his property, including a sum of money. From Patna he went to Agra on foot in the heat of May and June; thence he went to Umritsir, where he was found in a state of starvation. The Punjab Government have given him a free passage down to Calcutta by the Bullock Train, and he intends returning to Australia. The climate, the natives, and the strange languages of India make it a dreary place for a poor friendless new-comer. The presence of so many European loafers in the country often prevents real sufferers from getting relief.

HOWRAH has grown into a city, with a European community of 1,200, and a large floating population of sailors, artisans and Christian mechanics. Yet it has no hospital. A large building is now being erected, open to all classes and races, calculated to accommodate from eighty to one hundred European and fifty native patients. All that is wanting to complete it and make it ready for the reception of the sick is a sum of Rs. 6,000. For this the committee, of whom the Rev. Dr. Kay is president, and Dr. R. Bird, secretary, make an appeal to the public. A good hospital in the largest railway city in India has especial claims on all engineers and railway employes, as well as on the mercantile and shipping interests.

ON ST. ANDREW'S DAY some 100 Scotchmen of Calcutta sat down to dinner in the Town Hall. The Government, the Bar, and the Press were represented among the guests. It is not our province to record the proceedings of a convivial gathering such as this any more than those of a club. But the occasion was remarkable for the presence this year of Sir Bartle Frere, the President in Council, as it was last year for that of Mr. James Wilson. In acknowledging the toast of the Government, and afterwards of the guests, Sir Bartle Frere enlarged on the advantages which accrue from public men thus meeting their fellows, and of knowing as well as becoming known to them. St. Andrew's dinner in Calcutta is the only occasion resembling the Lord Mayor's dinner, at which some of the Ministry always speak, in England.

SIR ROBERT MONTGOMERY began his tour through the Punjab on the 16th November last at Mogul-ke-Serai. He expects to reach Lahore on the 19th Dec. In the course of a month he will have journeyed 1,000 miles, to remote places seldom visited. He travels with his secretary by rather a novel mode of conveyance. He uses a camel carriage, which enables him at trifling cost to get over forty miles a day, instead of the slow twelve or fourteen which is the utmost accomplished by the ordinary mode of tents and camps. The Deputy Commissioner accompanies him in the carriage through his district, and all important points are discussed and settled at once. Besides seeing the line of country and meeting the natives at particular points, he is able to read and dispose of papers as easily as if in office. The indent for the supply of each set of six camels at each stage costs only 5 rupees. The carriage is drawn at the rate of five and six miles an hour. The plan should be adopted by all governors, lieut.-governors, and commissioners when visiting their districts. It has only one drawback—for high officials it is undignified.

ANOTHER LUCKNOW SCANDAL.—The Oudh Gazette gives details of a trafficking of some members of the Oude Commission, and several of those connected with the prize agency, in Government paper during the rebellion, to inquire into which Government has deputed Mr. Schalch, of Chittagong. One Koorban Ali, sherishtadar to the prize agent, eloped from Lucknow with a wife of the ex-King of Oude and a fabulous amount of wealth. The fugitives were robbed at Bijour, and it was found that Rs. 25,000 in Government paper there stolen had belonged to Buffatee Khanum, who was advertising for them. Shah Mukhun Loll, one of the principal bankers of the city, was implicated in the affair, and it is on his confession and the revelations made during the trial of Koorban Ali that the present inquiry is based. Not only were some of the Oude officials in the habit of buying Government paper at ridiculously low figures in 1857-58, but notes which ought to have been accounted for as prize property were not forthcoming. In some cases officials bought the paper on forged endorsements. Two lakhs worth of these stray notes have mysteriously turned up in the Treasury. We believe some twelve or thirteen officials are implicated, of whom two are civilians, and the rest military officers.

BHOWANEE [RAE OF SHAHABAD has received a reward of Rs. 1,000, and a magnificent sword with a neat inscription, for his clever services in the intelligence department during the rebellion of Koer Sing.

THE DELHI MEMORIAL.—Active steps are at last to be taken for the erection of the "Delhi Memorial" to those who fell in the siege. A sum of Rs. 16,035 has been subscribed. A premium is offered by the Committee for the best design. Major Maissey, Umballa, will give full particulars as to the conditions to those who wish to compete.

ENCOURAGEMENT TO VOLUNTEERS.—The Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab placed at the disposal of the commanding officer of the Lahore Volunteers two appointments of sub-lieutenant in the police. Mr. G. Allsop, the winner of the first prize at the rifle-match, and another, were selected.

AMALGAMATION OF THE COURTS.—After a delay of more than a year, the Supreme Government have at last carried out the instructions of the Secretary of State with regard to the long contemplated amalgamation of the Sudder and Supreme Courts at the several Presidencies. Sir Charles Wood, more than a year ago, forwarded to Calcutta a despatch urging the passing of the Codes of Procedure and Criminal Law, as preliminary steps to the creation of one High Court at Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, in lieu of the Supreme and Sudder Courts at those places. A draft Bill was enclosed in this despatch, both of which have been published. From this it appears that it is proposed to abolish the present Courts, and to have in their place at each Presidency one High Court, presided over by a Chief Justice appointed by the Crown. The details have given general satisfaction, more especially that clause of the Bill which provides that the Judges may go on Circuit. Hitherto Europeans have strongly objected to the amalgamation of the Courts, because they would thereby be deprived of English law and be subjected to Mofussil judges, who, as a rule, are completely ignorant of even the rudimentary principles of law. The provision therefore that the Judges of the High Court may go on circuit to try both civil and criminal cases has removed this objection in the most satisfactory manner.

TIPPERAH.—The Hurkara contains a portion of a letter from Captain Magrath, superintendent of Hill tribes, Chittagong, about the state of Tipperah. He captured Modoo Chunder Thakoor, and from him learned the whereabouts of the other refractory Tipperah Thakoors. The names of the men who headed the savages that committed the atrocities in the Tipperah district are Lal Moora, son of Sobang, who is one of the most powerful chiefs amongst the Longshees, Tutang, Sobang's agent, Bannuca, Lal Puetang and his son Sung Boonja, Bandoola, and Ruttun Poa. The last named is anxious to come to terms. The difficulties in the way of an expedition against these marauders are great. The ground is impracticable and supplies are not easily procured.

THE INVALID ESTABLISHMENT.—The Mofussilite states that henceforth all the officers of the Invalid Establishment are to have the option of proceeding to Chunar and there doing duty, or of retirement on the pension of their rank. Government have determined sooner or later to break it up. Sir Hugh Rose has represented that most of the officers of the Invalid Establishment with whom he has come in contact are far more hale and hearty than many hundreds at present in actual service.

THE PENAL CODE.—A small committee, consisting of Messrs. C. B. Trevor and Montresor, and Baboo Hurrochunder Ghose, has been assembled in Calcutta to consider, clause by clause, the Bengali translation of the penal code.

THE SIMLA VOLUNTEERS.—The uniform of the Simla Volunteers has been ordered from England. It is described by a correspondent of the Delhi Gazette as a tunic, in colour a mixture of drab and khakee, with facings of blue velvet, and lace of its own colour, knickerbockers to match, with gaiters and tan leather shoes. The cap is to be according to the French style, with the letters S. V. "Simla Volunteers." The accoutrements are of tan Russian leather; no gold, no silver; ornaments of bronze.

Mr. J. D. SIM has been appointed Secretary to Government in the Revenue and Public Works Departments, in succession to Mr. Bourdillon.

PUNKAH PULLING.—The Hurkara gives the statistics of punkah pulling, as collected by the Civil Finance Commission. In Calcutta the coolies cost Rs. 24,000, and in the Mofussil of Lower Bengal Rs. 17,300 per annum, we presume. The recommendation that the office peons should pull the punkahs is a good one: it is done in Madras and Bombay. The expense of punkah coolies for barracks is ten times this, and it is to reduce it that machinery should be employed.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, Dec. 9).—The market on the whole has been rather dull, accounts from America by the last mail via Bombay bringing lower quotations for most produce. From Great Britain the accounts, with the exception of Oil Seed and Jute, in which the trade is said to be active at home, are not encouraging. Stocks here of almost all staples are very low, and the reports from the interior of the growing crop of Oil Seeds are very unfavorable, the crop having almost failed from want of rain in September and October. Little has been done in Raw Silk, the heavy shipments from China having checked operation in the market. In Corals, also, little has been done, and our market is still supplied with low qualities. Super.—The Benares kind has been principally engaged by the native Bombay shippers; very little has been done for the home market. Saltpetre has been very moderately engaged for Great Britain and America. Rice, Table sorts.—There has been a competition for the new crop, which has given rise to the price of 3 to 5 annas per maund. Radium has also slightly advanced. Hides have remained steady in demand and price. Jute has rather slackened in demand and operation.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, Dec. 8).—The accounts from the Upper Provinces received during the past fortnight are rather favourable. Business has progressed at all the marts, but not with any activity. There has been some inquiry in our market for 39 inches 6 to 7 lb. Grey Shirtings, at an advance of about 3 annas per piece. 7½ lb. and upwards are also inquired for at a slight improvement; 45 inches are also in request at 2 to 3 annas per piece higher; 50 and 54 inches have been in very limited inquiry. Grey Madapothams have been in fair request, and buyers have raised their offers about 2 to 3 annas per piece; but holders are showing some firmness for further advance. Grey Jacobets and Mulls have been in limited request at former prices. In Bleached Cottons a limited business continues to be done for local requirement at former prices. In Prints and Chints little has been done also for local requirement. Mule Twist.—There has been a speculative demand for Nos. 40 and 50, and some repurchases have been made by first hand holders from the bazaar. Metals continue in limited inquiry.

MALABAR COAST, Nov. 15.—Intimation has been received here of the probability of the services of another regiment being required for China, and for H.M.'s 66th regiment to be held in readiness for embarkation. This regiment is to be relieved at Cannanore by the 3rd batt. 60th rifles, from Wellington. A European general court-martial, of which Lieut.-col. G. Maxwell, H.M.'s 66th regt., is president, has been ordered to assemble at Cannanore for the trial of an officer of the 18th N.I. Captain G. B. Sherard, deputy judge-advocate-general Mysore division, will conduct the proceedings. Captain W. Serres, of the 51st N.I., is now at Cannanore, and proceeds by the Windor Castle early in January to Europe on medical certificate. The railway works at Beypore are progressing fast, and it is expected to be opened early next year. The collection of the Income-tax from outsiders has not commenced; deductions are punctually made from the Government servants, but the merchants and others have not been called upon yet. It is believed a few days will settle the question, as all the Talook tehsildars, sixteen in number, have been summoned to attend the Huzzoor's office at Calicut, and are there to take the oaths of secrecy. These tehsildars are to be appointed assessors in the districts. Weather cool and pleasant during mornings and evenings, but rather warm during the day.—Englishman.

THE NEW MADRAS CONSTABULARY lately distinguished themselves in the capture of a notorious gang of dacoits, who, after committing a daring robbery in Pondicherry, fled to British territory. The French Governor, M. D. W. Braye, with the permission of the Madras Government, presented the native inspector of police, who was instrumental in the capture, with a medal. The first result of the introduction of the new constabulary into Bengal should be the abolition of the special dacoity commission and establishment. Why has it not been abolished in the Punjab, where the district officers and police are sufficient to check dacoity?

GENERAL CULLEN.—The Eclectic mentions the departure of General Cullen from the Neilgherries, and gives some particulars connected with his career. He is spoken of as an eminent man of science. He published a pamphlet on aneroid and barometer levelling that attracted attention among engineers. While superintendent of the gun carriage manufactory at Seringapatam, he invented a new gun-carriage, and introduced several improvements. This is the man whom Sir Charles Trevelyan removed from his appointment at Travancore, where, as Resident, his whole influence was against progress and enlightenment.

RANGOON VOLUNTEERS.—The undress uniform of the Rangoon Volunteers is American drill tunic with red facings and black borders, and Sardinian cap of French grey with red and black also.

BOMBAY.

SIR MATTHEW SAUSSE AND THE CIVIL AUDITOR OF BOMBAY.

A very pretty quarrel has been going on at Bombay between the Judges in the Supreme Court and the Civil Auditor. It seems that the Civil Auditor has refused to pass the pay abstracts of the officers of the Court, unless he has first received a signed return of every one that has been absent from his duty for a single day throughout the entire month. This claim appears to be contrary to established usage. Hitherto the Judges of the Supreme Court have considered themselves to be independent of the Government in the matter. So long as the work was done, they believed themselves perfectly authorised to permit an officer to be absent for a day or two on account of sickness or urgent private affairs, without necessarily docking off his pay for the period of his temporary absence. Now, however, the Civil Auditor seems to have assumed extraordinary powers in the matter. He apparently denies the right of the Judges to be absent themselves for a single day, or to permit any of the Crown officers to be absent for a single day, without having a deduction made from their pay, though no delay or neglect of duty had taken place in consequence. Accordingly he has required that a signed return of attendance should be supplied him with the pay abstracts. Sir Matthew Sausse and his colleague have very properly refused to comply with this arbitrary demand. The matter has been referred to Sir Adam Bittlestone, and has, we believe, been decided in favour of the Supreme Court. But still the Civil Auditor persists in his extraordinary requisition; and appears to have been supported both by the Government of Bombay and the Supreme Government of India.

At this moment matters appear to have reached a climax. The Judges continue to refuse to send the returns, and the Civil Auditor refuses to pass the pay abstracts. Accordingly no pay whatever has been issued to the officers of the Supreme Court for the month of October, and all is distraction and desolation. A few days ago the officers of the Court and the clerks on the establishment represented to the Chief Justice the great inconveniences which they were suffering from want of pay. Accordingly it was determined to ignore the existence of the Civil Auditor, and to send the pay abstracts to the sub-treasurer direct. But the diversion failed. The sub-treasurer refused to pay without the Civil Auditor's authority, and we are led to infer that the Crown officers at Bombay are pining away in utter destitution from want of their daily bread. By the last accounts we learn that the Judges of the Supreme Court have commenced actions against the Bombay Government for refusing to pay up the salaries—a cheerful state of things for which we trust our Bombay contemporaries are truly thankful.

As far as the merits of the quarrel are concerned, our sympathies are entirely with Sir Matthew Sausse. The present system of audit in this country is anything but what it ought to be; a relic of the barbarous age when the Directors exacted so much that signing returns became a mere matter of form. Meantime the Civil Auditor has no other mode of showing his zeal but by manifesting a sharp appetite for petty deductions, and from all that we can learn of Mr. Lodwick, the Auditor at Bombay, he appears to have attained to such a startling proficiency in the art of making himself disagreeable as to ensure him a long and unenviable notoriety.

The great evil appears to be an utter want of responsibility in those directors where responsibility is especially required. As Sir Charles Trevelyan once observed, even the duties of the Governor of Madras are but little superior to those of a chief clerk in one of the Government offices at home. At present, according to the theory of the Bombay Government, the Judges of the Supreme Court are so fond of seeing the duties of the Court neglected, and so anxious to encourage malingering on the part of their servants, that they cannot be permitted to exercise the privilege of giving one of them leave of absence for a single day. We trust that the energetic assertion of his rights, which is at present being exercised by Sir Matthew Sausse, will lead to a wholesome and general reform.—Indian Statesman.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE PERSIAN GULF.—At the last meeting of the Bombay Asiatic Society a paper on the Persian Gulf was read. Among the objects of scientific interests in the Gulf are the Artesian springs on the Island of Bahrein and along ninety miles of the Arabian coast. The water of these springs is sweet and pleasant, though little or no rain falls in that locality. The water must come from lakes on the high sands. At another part of the Gulf an oily substance is found floating on the water bearing a strong resemblance to naphtha, in appearance and smell. The whole region is interesting to the naturalist.

RETURNS OF BIRTHS IN THE ISLAND OF BOMBAY FOR 1859.—Dr. R. Haines, in charge of the mortuary and birth returns, forwarded to the Secretary to the principal Inspector-general, Medical Department, with a letter dated the 14th Nov., the returns of births in the island of Bombay for the year commencing 1st February, 1859. Dr. Haines, in forwarding these returns, wrote as follows:—"During the year there have been registered a total of 6,398 births, viz., 3,483 males and 2,915 females. Of these 328 were still born; 190 males and 138 females. The total number of registered births is not only below the average of the preceding nine years, but less than the minimum recorded in any one year. Comparing these numbers with the gradual increase of deaths, and the presumable advance of the population, there can be little, if any, doubt that a large and increasing number of births escape registration. The male births are to the female in the ratio of 119.5 to 100. This disproportion of the sexes is a little less than the average, but still considerably greater than the maximum observed in any country in England, where it ranges from 116 to less than 100 males to 100 females, the average being 104.5. Should further observations, made under less exceptional conditions, prove the correctness of the Bombay returns, as far as regards the proportion of the sexes at birth, the fact will be of a very considerable interest. Looking at the different classes of the community, the proportion of males to 100 females during the last year has been—of Hindoos, 117.6; Mussulmans, 129; Parsees, 126; Jews and Christians, 107. Most of these numbers closely approach the average. The still-births were 5.1 per cent. of the whole, the average being 3.9. The proportion of males to 100 females in these, is as light as 137.7, which is far in excess of the average of 120.6. The illegitimate births were 113, viz., 63 males and 50 females, being 1.8 per cent. of the whole, which is near the average. The proportion of males to 100 females was 126."

GAS FOR BOMBAY.—Mr. Forjett has written a minute on the subject of lighting Bombay with gas. The scheme is without doubt a feasible one, and given to the public after it had received Mr. Forjett's careful examination. The data upon which it is drawn are open to discussion, but, as Mr. Forjett has given his calculations in round numbers, assisted by the manager of a gas company in Liverpool, we may for the present take them to be correct. He suggests that the aid of Government to the extent of Rs. 150,000 should be solicited, to obtain the necessary plant, but in the event of Government refusing its assistance, he thinks that the amount required could be borrowed upon the security of the gas apparatus, &c., at a reasonable rate of interest. Mr. Forjett says that it does not follow that because the project of lighting Calcutta with gas by means of a joint-stock company failed, the same result would follow here—that our native population is wealthy, and he is certain that they would be too glad to assist him. The light thrown by a gas lamp, to say the very least, is far superior to two argand lamps; in four hours, experiment has shown that an argand lamp consumes three quarters of a seer of oil, which at the present market rate would cost one anna and four and a-half pies. Now twice this number would be two annas and nine pies nearly, whereas four hours' consumption of gas would cost only two annas. Mr. Forjett holds out a hope that he would be able to obtain a reduction in the price of gas, so as to make it in time as cheap as cocoanut oil. The cost of the public lights for lighting Bombay with gas by a company will be over Rs. 80,000 per annum, supposing that 12,000 lamps are used, but he does not propose to have this done. He wishes to confine his present operations to the Fort only, for which about 300 public and 1,000 private lamps will be necessary. The plant would cost about Rs. 120,000. For a year the attendant expenses of the lighting would be about Rs. 56,000, and the proceeds, or rather the realisation, from private lights, &c., only would be Rs. 70,000, showing a balance in favour of the works of Rs. 14,000 annually, or thereabouts. The public lamps would therefore be lit at no expense whatever. Mr. Forjett points out the possibility of making some gigantic savings in the several departments of the municipality. He says that the work of scavenging and watering the island should be done departmentally, and pledges himself to show a saving of Rs. 75,000 on this head only. Mr. Hutchinson, we are informed, asked Mr. Forjett if he would be good enough to explain upon what basis he had arrived at the statement that a saving of Rs. 75,000 could be effected, and whether the assistance of the police would in any way be employed to bring about this saving? Mr. Forjett, in reply, said that the assistance of the police could not and would not be availed of; that he would show hereafter how the saving of at least Rs. 75,000 could be effected; that the public might arrive at any conclusion they pleased; but that he was determined to re-model all the establishments, if his colleagues would only give him their support and hearty co-operation.—Gazette.

THE AGITATION AGAINST THE INCOME-TAX.—On Wednesday, the 28th Nov., Mr. Forjett sent round policemen to almost all the houses in the island, inviting the inmates to meet him the following day at the Bombay Green, in the Fort. Accordingly, at about two o'clock yesterday afternoon, about a thousand people assembled on the Green, and Mr. Forjett, taking his position on the verandah of the office of a native merchant, addressed them in the Hindoostanee language on the necessity of paying the Income-tax. He pointed out to them the immense advantages they have hitherto enjoyed under the protection of the British Raj, without their being called upon to pay any direct taxes to the Government. He said that now there was a deficiency in the State Treasury, and the Government was therefore in want of money for the due maintenance of the order of the Indian Empire, and the protection of the lives and liberties of its subject. The law of the Income-tax was therefore passed to meet the exigency, and Mr. Forjett told them it would be the height of ingratitude for the people to oppose that law, and refuse to contribute to the necessities of the State, which had under its care their lives and liberties. He also dwelt upon the lightness of the tax, and the brief period during which it would be required. The pretext upon which the resistance was offered was the complexity of the forms, but that cause of complaint did not now exist, as the Government had issued new forms, which were simple and clear enough. Mr. Forjett made the crowd understand that the tax was passed into a law, and the law must be obeyed; their remonstrances and protests were quite puerile. It was an unreasonable course for them to have petitioned his Excellency the Governor, who had no power whatever to change the law, but whose duty was clearly to enforce the collection of the tax as ordered by the higher Government. Mr. Forjett quietly, but firmly, counselled the deluded men to render a loyal and ready obedience to the law, and to make their returns without any delay, as the time allowed to the people upon whom special notices had been served, would expire in two days. He assured them that they would not in the least benefit themselves by holding out any longer, and that any opposition would be met by the enforcement of the penal clauses of the Act. The crowd heard Mr. Forjett's address with great attention, but did not seem to be impressed with the wisdom of his advice, and frequently breathed out expressions of discontent and ridicule. On Mr. Forjett's leaving the place, they hailed him with a loud "hurrah," and then quietly dispersed.

CHINA.

Hong Kong, Nov. 29.—The London Mail to the 10th October arrived here on the 26th inst.

The intelligence from the North of China continues to be of great interest, as the Treaty has, with the Emperor's consent, been posted over the walls of Peking. The Russian Ambassador has established himself in that city. Preparations were being made for the reception of Mr. Bruce early in spring, and the whole of the allied army had left Peking, the greater part of it having reached Tien-tsin by the 17th inst.

In our last Overland issue we mentioned that the ratifications of the Treaty of Tien-tsin had been exchanged, and a convention entered into containing such highly-important new stipulations as the opening of Tien-tsin as a port of trade, and the removal of the interdict on emigration from China. The consent of the Emperor to the Treaty was received, and, having been posted all over the walls of Peking, was read by crowds of astonished natives, who could scarcely believe their own eyes on beholding such an instance of Imperial condescension. Our advices make no mention of the Convention of Peking having been published in a similar manner, and we trust that such an inadvisable step will not be insisted on, as it may very likely cause new difficulties; and the substantial results gained from the Chinese are too important to be imperilled for the sake of subjecting them to further barren humiliation.

Several ceremonial visits were then exchanged at the Imperial Palace between Prince Kung and the English and French Ambassadors, and on these occasions less of the "undisturbed sulkiness" was displayed. On the 7th instant the army was under orders to proceed to Tien-tsin, but its departure was delayed in order to give éclat to the introduction of Mr. Bruce to the Chinese officials. That gentleman arrived on the 8th; and on the same day he was introduced to Prince Kung by Lord Elgin—on which occasion polite remarks were made by all the chief parties.

On the 9th, Lord Elgin, Mr. Bruce, and their suite left Peking, and proceeded by the river to Tien-tsin. Mr. Adkins, of the consular service, was left in Peking, to make preparations for Mr. Bruce's residence there. He is the only English official left in the capital; and, after recent events, the courage he has thus displayed is worthy of admiration. Mr. Adkins was in one of the gunboats sunk at the mouth of the Peiho in 1859; so, for a non-combatant, he has certainly had more than his share of the danger.

Peking is described to us as distinguished from other Chinese cities by its size, the splendour of its walls, and the breadth and regularity of its streets. These latter are almost all unpaved. Though the houses are neatly carved in front, they are, on the whole, rather mean looking; and the streets are either badly paved, or not paved at all. The temples are described as magnificent, though some of them show signs of neglect.

Count Ignatieff, the Russian Ambassador, has already established himself in Peking, and intends to remain there throughout the winter, while the Hon. Mr. Bruce winters at Tien-tsin along with a portion of the army, and does not proceed to the capital until early in spring.

The allied army left Pekin about the 10th, and a portion of the movement onwards was partially effected in boats. On the 17th instant, which is our latest date, the whole of the army had reached Tien-tsin, with the exception of 1,500 men who were waiting at Ho-si-wu. Our latest date from the Taku Fort is the 19th instant, at which time a portion of the army was being rapidly sent off, and of those troops many have already arrived in Hong Kong. Major-General Sir Robert Napier, with a portion of his staff, arrived here on the 27th instant. The Chesapeake, Admiral Hope's flagship, is expected here shortly; and it is understood that Admiral Jones proceeds to Japan, with a squadron, in order to make a moral demonstration.

In the neighbourhood of Shanghai the rebels are again displaying some activity; and it was reported by the toutae of that place that 400 boat-fuls were on their way to attack it. They had beaten the Imperialist forces at Tsinghoo and at Sunkeong.

At Ningpo, on which the rebels are believed to be marching, the greatest terror prevailed.

At Amoy the dock company continues its labours with success; and at Swatow, or in its neighbourhood, some attempts have been made to kidnap coolies, one lorch full of them having been despatched to Macao.

At Canton an important concession has been obtained from the Governor-General, chiefly, we understand, through the exertions of Mr. Hart. Permission has been given to the Bo-peep, a foreign steamer, to run in some of the inland waters, and trade with Kum-chook, a village among the silk villages to the west of Canton, and also to Shek-loong, a village from whence sugar may be exported in large quantities, in the Toon-koon district. This is the beginning of what may be an immense carrying traffic.

Another matter of importance at Canton are the difficulties which are said to be arising in the way of the emigration of coolies to the West Indies. Mr. Austin has threatened to shut up his depôt unless some difference is made between him and the Spanish agents. A more serious difficulty is, that a number of peasants, who were coming down to Hong Kong to emigrate, were stopped on their way by the Mandarins.

At Fuhchau there has been a bloody and desperate conflict between the Mandarins and some Cantonese pirates. Full accounts of it will be found in our correspondent's letter, and also of the executions which followed. It appears that the foreign community in that port are much in need of protection from the British navy.

Hong Kong is again becoming enlivened by the presence of members of the expeditionary force. There has been a fire, of which full accounts will be found elsewhere, to inaugurate the commencement of the dry season. The Civil Service Abuse Commission has had some more meetings, dragging its weary length along.—Overland China Mail.

FUHCHAU, Nov. 23rd.—The entire community here, natives and foreign, has been thrown into a state of great excitement during the last few days, the cause and progress of which I shall try to give you as briefly as I can.

You are already aware that for some years past a feud has existed between Cantonese and Chin-chewite sailors and lorchamen. This broke out afresh during June of this current year, and in a more formidable form than it had previously assumed.

By a wily policy the warlike lorchas, numbering some 28, were enticed to leave this river. As soon as this was managed, the local authorities determined hereafter to confine all Canton lorchas and West coast boats to the anchorage of Quantow, about 10 or 12 miles below the Pagoda station. To carry out this resolution, a large body of native militia and marines was collected, chiefly from Quemoy and Amoy, several war-junks and armed pullaway boats were fitted up, and the entire force was put under the command of Commodore Woo, a brave and fierce fellow, dreaded by his own clan as a man of war, and hated by Cantonese as a savage villain.

The chief duty of this newly elected hero was to put down piracy in any form on the river or along the coast, and likewise to see that no Canton lorchas were admitted up the river, they being regarded as part and parcel with pirates.

Of course Canton lorchas could not brook this, and combining with West coast boats and all other pirates, they have had collected outside a formidable fleet to annoy, defy, and if possible defeat, this newly appointed navy in our Min River.

Commodore Woo has been on the watch, fully anticipating the move that this outside foe would make to bolt past his station and ascend the river in a collected body. They attempted this last Monday, the 19th, but found their match in the Commodore. Then sailed past his guard post eight, some say ten, Canton lorchas and tymoons; others hanging on outside in case this detachment succeeded. They were attacked by the mandarin force:—three were burnt, two ran up to take refuge at the Pagoda anchorage, and the rest made out to sea as fast as they could. The remainder of that day was occupied in pursuing and capturing the fugitive pirates who had escaped on shore. Next morning, the 20th, the Mandarin armed boats were in pursuit of the two boats that had escaped up the river. They came up with them about noon, lying in shore, at the Pagoda. There they were attacked; their crews dashed into the stream to swim ashore, and while floating on the water, some 40 or 50 were speared and shot; a fine sight to be seen for foreign seamen and residents! Early in the morning of the 21st it was evident, from the packed throngs on the great bridge, and the hubbub around, that something strange and novel and exciting had occurred. About nine o'clock some of the Mandarin war-boats had come up with two prizes, and 200 captured pirates. The latter they commenced to land, each man under the guard of at least four marines, bearing drawn swords, spears, matchlocks, or sporting gay flags. The captives were in a terrible plight, stripped and naked, hands tied with awful tightness behind their backs, and feet scarcely able to walk, while they were driven along with the most barbarous savageness. Eight or ten had been beheaded on their way up the river, and two or three just as they were shoved on shore, for showing fight and reluctance to move on. The heads of these unfortunates were slung on poles, and swung before the eyes of the remainder, as a token of what awaited them very shortly. When all had been landed, they were marched across the bridge to the northern end, and on the way, as if to gratify the public gaze, the heads of four were deliberately chopped off, and their corpses flung into the river below.

But we were surprised in seeing, when it was supposed all had crossed the bridge, a large band of captives returning post-haste. They were stowed away again on board these war-junks, bound and tied with double fury, several hands and tails tied together. No mercy was shown to any. A boy of 10 was pushed in with a naked sword over his head. An aged wretch failed to creep back to his boat, and was flung on board to expire as he best could. Almost all had their wrists so tightly tied that the flesh was eaten into: and the spectacle brought vividly to mind the tortures inflicted on our countrymen in the North, over whose cruel fate there is no one that does not mourn. These armed boats, with a cargo of 170 Canton pirates, shoved off to go back to Quantow, to have them decapitated there: the remaining 30 having been carried on to the North gate execution grounds.

Upon this announcement the thick crowds moved away, and the thronged streets and bridges were cleared. But that mandarin move was found after all to be a dodge. At nine o'clock the crowds had been thickening, and it began to be apprehended that the large Canton population here might rise and attempt the rescue of their countrymen, who were treated before their very eyes so mercilessly and brutally. The manoeuvre succeeded in thinning the streets, and at a signal the boats were moored back to their position as in the morning, the unfortunate victims were at once landed, and with the same guard they were hastened along a street of two miles in length at double quick time, to the parade ground outside the South gate.

Here some of the principal officials were seated at three o'clock, at a tribunal, which without trial or mercy was to hurry more than 150 of their fellows into eternity. The work was short; one after the other the whole lot was beheaded, and in half an hour the judges, troops, and staring mobs were dispersed. Among the captives there were two youths of ten and twelve; for one of them seven merchants advanced their guarantee, and he was saved. The other died unheeded and uncaring under the executioner's knife. The executioners, of whom there were several, vied to see who could do the largest amount of work: one succeeding in cutting off sixty-three heads, for which he would receive what he would consider a handsome douceur, as 500 cash is given for each caput. Commodore Woo, the hero of the day, went to the tribunal with a blue button, but returned to his fleet with a red one, honoured and applauded by all his co-mandarins.

THE STRAITS.

THE PRUSSIAN EXPEDITION.—The Prussian Squadron, consisting of the ships Giffon, Ancona, and Frauenlob, encountered a frightful typhoon in the China Sea, by which the last-named vessel was severely damaged. The Ancona then took the Frauenlob in tow, but was obliged, owing to the increasing gale, to slip the warps to save herself from going to the bottom, which fate befell the Frauenlob, as she went down with all hands. The other two vessels reached Kanagawa. Here it was found that the Japanese Government had come to the resolution of expelling all Europeans who were subjects of States which had not formed treaties with Japan. Count Eulenberg, the Prussian Envoy, immediately announced himself as the representative of all Germany, and is now negotiating a treaty with the Japanese Government.

DISTURBANCES IN CERAM.—On the 22nd Sept. fifty natives of Haria (Saparua), who were busy preparing a cacao plantation, were attacked by the inhabitants of the villages Waisamu and Kairatu (south coast of Ceram), in combination with some Alfuras, in consequence of which several of the Haria people were killed or wounded, while their prahu, which were drawn ashore, were plundered, and the temporary residence and work-sheds of Mr. Van der Beek, near Kairatu, and a large quantity of wood he had ready for shipment, were burnt. The native schoolmaster at Waisamu, with his wife and three inmates, were killed and their heads cut off. The insurgents then showed an intention of attacking the village of Kamarian, on which the population and the missionary stationed there took to flight. On receiving information of these occurrences the Assistant-resident of Saparua and Haruku, accompanied by the regents of Porto and Ulati, with a detachment consisting of forty-seven militia and fifteen soldiers, set out for the spot on the 23rd Sept., while on the following night a reinforcement of six officers and one hundred and twenty-five men was sent from Amboyna in H.N.M.'s steamship Vice Admiral Koopman to Kairatu. The Assistant-resident on his arrival at Kamarian found the village in great commotion as the inhabitants belonged to the Kakian confederacy. He caused some barricades to be hastily constructed, in case the Alfuras should make an attack on the place, and then proceeded to Kairatu. On his arrival there was no flag hoisted, and armed Alfuras showed themselves all along the shore. In answer to a message which the Assistant-resident sent on shore, desiring that preparations might be made for his debarkation, the population said that they did not choose that he should land there, and that he had better continue his voyage to Waisamu. The Orang Kaya of Kairatu also refused to come on board the Assistant-resident's boat. An attempt was then made to land, but such a heavy fire was kept up by the insurgents that it had to be abandoned. Although the fire was returned from the Assistant-resident's party, the prahus were obliged to put to sea, in consequence of the increasing S.E. wind. H.N.M.'s steam-ship Vice-Admiral Koopman was, however, in the vicinity, and anchored nearly opposite Kairatu, but she had scarcely come to an anchor when a fire of musketry was opened upon her from the shore, which was, however, speedily silenced by some rounds from her large guns. The troops immediately disembarked, and the steamer returned to Amboyna to bring further reinforcements. The population of Kairatu then set fire to their village, and assailed the troops with an incessant discharge of musketry from the jungle, which surrounded Kairatu on all sides. On the 28th September Lieutenant-colonel de Brabant marched to Hutusua, which village was found deserted; an entrenchment made with wood was encountered on the shore. Waisamu was next reached, without anything particular occurring on the march. The houses were generally found empty, while those articles which could not be removed were destroyed. Eight headless bodies, already showing symptoms of decay, were scattered about here and there. After this village had been laid in ashes, the troops returned to Hutusua, where a small fortification was erected for the accommodation of the troops while they waited until information was received of the whereabouts of the insurgents. From time to time the troops were annoyed by the Alfuras.

SHIPWRECK.—The English ship William Kirk was lately lost in Torres Strait. The captain, his wife, and the greater part of the crew reached Kupang, after a painful voyage of fourteen days in the open boats. A boat with four men in it was lost sight of, but it appears that they were picked up by the English frigate Herald, Captain Denham, which arrived at Sourabaya on the 20th November from Torres Strait.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Oct. 29.—Sirdar Mahomed Rustum Khan had advanced three hundred and sixty rupees to some copper dealers for the preparation of copper vases to the value of 1,000 rupees. The vases being ready, the copper dealers waited on the Sirdar with them, but he, the Sirdar, took out of them only as many as he had paid for. The copper dealers complained against this, and said that the vases were prepared to his particular order, but the Sirdar paid no attention to their complaints, and they were obliged to lay their case before the Ameer, but without getting any redress. News reached from Bookhara, that the King of that place had ordered boats to be prepared for a bridge at Hamoon, and that the Persian prince attending on him had accordingly gone to Jhur Joe with five hundred workmen for the purpose of preparing the boats, and that one hundred boats were under preparation. The Ameer appeared very thoughtful on hearing this news.—Oct. 30.—An urzee reached from Sirdar Mohamed Ausim Khan, at Koonduz-toolbooque, to the effect that the grain which was formerly in abundance at Koonduz has latterly been scarce, that the supplies from the Budukhshan side had stopped altogether, and that the troops were in great distress, and that, though he had settled the price of the grain at two and a-half seers for the rupee, still the cordialers were unwilling to sell. He (Azim Khan) was much inclined to interfere in the matter, but, for fear of the displeasure of the Ameer, had kept back, and would act only as directed.—Oct. 31.—The Ameer received an urzee from Sirdar Mohamed Afzul Khan, at Toorkistan. He informed the Ameer in it that the Hakims of Sheerghan and Undkhoe had waited on him with their presents, and after making their terms and promises, marched on with their men to Kherabad and Kafir Killa (a small town on the road between Undkhoe and Mamana), took that place and sent the Hakim of Kafir Killa to him (Afzul Khan). He further stated in the urzee that he was encamped at Sheerghan, and had a mind to send his troops with the Hakims of Undkhoe and Sheerghan to Mamana, but waited the approbation of the Ameer. On hearing the news the Ameer was very glad.

QUEEN'S TROOPS.

CERTIFICATES OF FURLOUGH.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Calcutta, Nov. 12.—In obedience to instructions from the Horse Guards, all officers returning to the United Kingdom will supply themselves with a certified copy of the G.O. under which they proceed home, and on arrival they will transmit the same to the adjt. gen., Horse Guards, when reporting their arrival.

Staff asst. surg. J. A. Scott will report himself to Staff surg. Bone for temp. du. with the depot of H.M.'s British troops at Dum Dum.

Asst. surg. R. W. Saunders, H.M.'s 23rd fus., will take med. ch. of invalids and other men of H.M.'s serv. procg. to England on board the Warrior Queen.

Nov. 9.—The C. in C. in India is pleased to make the foll. apps., until H.M.'s pleasure shall be known:—

thereto of a scurrilous and immoral nature, and grossly vilifying the said society.

Finding.—The Court is of opinion that the prisoner, Capt. and paymr. J. Urquhart, of H.M.'s 27th foot, is guilty of the charge preferred against him, with the exception of the word "scandalous," of which he is accordingly acquitted.

Sentence.—The Court sentences the prisoner, Capt. and paymr. J. Urquhart, H.M.'s 27th foot, to be publicly and severely reprimanded in such manner as H.E. the C. in C. may be pleased to direct.

Confirmed.

(Signed) HUGH ROSE, Gen., C. in C. in India.
Cawnpore, Nov. 28.

The gen. officer commanding the Sirhind div. is directed to reprimand Capt. Urquhart, H.M.'s 27th regt., publicly and severely, according to the sentence of the Court, after which Capt. Urquhart will be released from arrest, and return to his duty.

By order of H.E. the C. in C.

The Cultivation of Tea in the N.W. Provinces.

Camp Royah, Nov. 14.—The cultivation of tea has extended so widely in the N.W. Provinces, especially in the Dehra Dhoon, under the encouragement given by the notification in this department, No. 2,109 A., dated 26th September, 1855, and the indents on the superintendent of the Botanical Gardens for seeds and seedlings have become so numerous and so heavy, that it is necessary to place them under some regulation, in order that a fair distribution may be secured, and the extension of the cultivation may be promoted in the largest possible degree.

The following rules, supplementary to the notification above referred to, are published for general information:—

I. Every person and every company indenting on the superintendent of the Botanical Gardens, N.W. Provinces, for tea seeds and tea plants, shall specify the place or places where his or their plantations are situate; the entire area of such plantations fitted for the growth of tea, and the portion of the area which has been stocked with tea plants.

II. The partners or sharers of a tea company shall not be permitted to indent individually and separately for seeds or plants. No indent will be received except from one or other of the partners or sharers in behalf of the company collectively.

III. The quantity to be given gratis to each party indenting shall be restricted ordinarily to 100 mounds, and one lakh of seedlings. But it shall be in the discretion of the superintendent of the Botanical-gardens, N.W. Provinces, to increase the allotment, whenever the supply at his disposal may admit of it.

IV. It will be the duty of the superintendent of the Botanical-gardens, N.W. Provinces, to meet all indents for seeds and seedlings for the bona fide use of the applicant's plantation within the limitation above expressed, so far as it may be in his power to do so. But if the aggregate demand exceed the supply of seeds and seedlings available for distribution, a preference shall be given to those who may have been engaged in the cultivation of the tea plant for a period not exceeding five years.

V. The distribution of seeds and plants to the proprietors of well-stocked and well-established plantations, and of plantations which have been at work for five years or upwards, shall be discretionary with the superintendent of Botanical Gardens, due advertence being had to the aggregate demand, and the means at his disposal of meeting it.

VI. Parties disposing by sale or otherwise of tea seeds and tea plants, the produce of their own farms, and indenting nevertheless on the Government plantations for a supply, shall be required to pay for seeds at the rate of rupees twenty per mound, and for plants at the rate of rupees three per hundred. In such cases, it shall be further in the discretion of the superintendent, Botanical Gardens, to refuse compliance with the indent altogether.

Power of Attesting Recruits.

Camp Anoopshuhur, Nov. 6.—The following extract, No. 1,327, from the Proceedings of H.E. the Gov. gen. in Council in the Military Department, under date Sept. 29, is published for the information and guidance of officers of H.M.'s Indian military forces, who are in the Commission of the Peace:—From the Sec. to the Govt. of India, mil. dep., to the Adj. gen. of the Army.

No. 1,323, dated Fort William, Sept. 29.

SIR,—With reference to your letters,* and to the correspondence therewith submitted, having reference to the refusal of the Deputy-commissioner of Jubbulpore to attest European soldiers who desire to enlist or to renew their service, on the grounds that being a military officer it was not lawful for him to do so, I am desired to acquaint you for the information of H.E. the C. in C. that notwithstanding the provisions of the 51st section of the Annual Mutiny Act, 1860, it is lawful for any officer of H.M.'s Indian military forces to enlist and attest for those forces.

The power to do so is conferred by Section XLVIII. of Acts XX. and XXI. Vic. cap. LXVI. (Mutiny Act, East Indies, 1857), upon all justices of the peace or magistrates in British India, whether officers of the army or not. That Act remains in full force, and there is nothing in the 51st section of the Annual Mutiny Act of 1860 which repeals this particular provision of the Act of 1857. There can be no doubt, therefore, that in India officers of H.M.'s Indian military forces, being properly qualified as justices of the peace or magistrates, may lawfully enlist men for those forces.

With reference, however, to Section LI. of the Annual Mutiny Act, and to Section II. which declares all the provisions of the Act to apply to all commissioned officers other than officers of H.M.'s Indian military forces, it is not considered that officers of H.M.'s British army, even though they be similarly qualified as justices of the peace or magistrates, can lawfully enlist or attest men for either army. [Section XLVIII. Acts XX. and XXI. Vic. cap. LXVI. Indian Mutiny Act of 1857.]

XLVIII. It shall be lawful for any justice of the peace or magistrate, or person exercising the office of a magistrate within the territories under the government of the East India Company, or within any of H.M.'s dominions abroad, and for any person holding the office of British resident, or performing the duties of such office within the territories of any foreign State, to enlist and attest any persons desirous of enlisting, or any soldiers or others desirous of re-enlisting into the service of the said Company, and all such persons shall have the same powers in that behalf as by the Mutiny Act passed in the present year for H.M.'s forces are given to justices in the United Kingdom for the purposes of enlistment and attestation.

Ordered, That a copy of the above be transmitted for information to the Government North-Western Provinces, with an intimation that it has been determined that for the present no more men shall be enlisted or attested for H.M.'s Indian military forces.

LEAVE TO ARMY SCHOOLMISTRESSES.

Dec. 11.—No. 510.—The foll. extract of a mil. despatch from the Rt. Hon. the Sec. of State for India is published:—

Despatch dated 8th Nov., 1860, No. 175.

1. In consequence of a reference from the Govt. of Bombay, it has been ascertained that in the British service, trained army schoolmistresses are granted free passages fr. foreign stations, when recommended for sick leave by a Medical Board.

2. A similar privilege may be extended to trained schoolmistresses on duty in India, who may be declared by a Medical Board to be in such a state of ill health that a return to Europe is absolutely necessary for their recovery, but in all cases where it may be practicable, a change of residence in India should be tried, before charging the revenues with the expense involved in sending persons of this class to England, and others from this country to replace them.

BANJERMASSING.—The insurgents on the Melawi (Sintang, west coast of Borneo) appear not to be willing to accept the ultimatum of the resident, which required them to come under submission to the Government. There is therefore reports of an expedition being about to be sent there. Professor de Vriese was prevented by these occurrences from prosecuting his journey to the Kapuas. Some difficulties had also arisen in the Chinese districts, owing to the chief head of the Chinese (the Kapthay) having been detected in a plot to murder the Captain of Chinese at Montrado. The assassins were captured in an attempt to carry out their object. A great number of Chinese are said to be concerned in the conspiracy. The ring-leader has been sent to Pontianak.

HER MAJESTY'S SHIP CAMILLA.—From the accounts which we have received from various quarters, we fear that all hope of the safety of her Majesty's ship Camilla must be abandoned. The Camilla was a sailing vessel, and mounted sixteen guns. She was commanded by Commander George T. Colville, 1855, and sailed from Devonport for the East Indies on the 25th of August, 1856. Her complement was 130, including twenty marines; but it is probable that at the time of her loss it would not have been full, owing to casualties and invalidings. According to the official list we find the following were the commissioned officers belonging to her:—Commander G. T. Colville; Lieutenants Almeric, H. Fitzroy, Guy, C. B. Wither; Master William H. Moore; Surgeon Hugh Girvan; Paymaster Charles W. Roache (acting); Mate Brownlow A. A. Capel (acting); Assistant-Surgeon Edward M. Morgan. The Camilla is supposed to have foundered during a typhoon on the coast of Japan. The midshipmen, master's-assistants, and other junior officers are not included in the list which we have given. Mr. Briggs, one of the senior clerks at the Admiralty, and reader to the Board, has lost a son, who was doing duty as midshipman in the unlucky ship.—Army and Navy Gazette.

A SILLY HOAX.—A correspondent of the Madras Times says a lady in the Neigherries recently hoaxed a gentleman by writing to him anonymously that a telegram had arrived announcing the death of the Queen. The news created a sensation in the station till the deceit was discovered. An information against some person or persons unknown was laid before the magistrate, and on the letter being traced to the lady she was publicly reprimanded in the court.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR OF BOMBAY and suite arrived at Bombay on the 26th Nov. by H.M.'s steamer Punjab, from Vitoria.

THE SKETCH ESTIMATES.

THIS, then, is the end of all our dreams and legendary tales about the inexhaustible treasures of Hindostan! The awakening to the real facts of the case is in truth a sad disillusion. No more rupees upon the tree, no more Koh-i-noors to capture, no more pearls to fish up big as hen's eggs and without speck or flaw, no more caskets filled with jewels beyond price. Who shall show us the road to Sindbad's valley of diamonds? Who shall find us Aladdin's lamp? Who shall wear the ring of Solomon? Are the Genii all disobedient and hostile? Will not one appear to guide us to the hoards of wealth that lie hidden deep beneath the earth, or in the caverns of the sea? All silent? Yes, the dream is over, and we shall do well in sober sadness to address ourselves to the hard and unromantic work that lies before us.

The first truth we have to bring ourselves fully to comprehend is the startling admission that the expenditure for the ensuing year will exceed the income by more than sixteen per cent. And this after allowing for one million sterling to be derived from an untried and temporary impost, but without making any allowance for the million and a-half of prize money due to the heroes of Delhi, of Lucknow, and of Central India. Nor is there much hope of amendment in the future. Under the most favourable circumstances the deficiency for the year 1861-62 will certainly exceed four millions, and any unforeseen occurrence may make the chasm indefinitely greater and prolong its duration for any number of years. But taking matters as they stand, the prospect is most discouraging. The Governor-general himself tells us that there are charges which cannot possibly be reduced, and which are even certain to increase. The interest on the public debt alone exceeds four and three-quarter millions sterling, and on account of which four and a quarter millions must be paid during the year under notice. There is, besides, the guaranteed interest on railway capital, which for some years to come will go on increasing, and in addition to this heavy claims will be made upon Government, to the extent of eight millions, to complete the public works already commenced, and to the execution of which it is irrevocably pledged. We may observe, too, by the way, that if the Income-tax produce no more than one million, the Government will be entitled to expend only three-fourths of that amount upon ordinary subjects of expenditure, as it was expressly stated that twenty-five per cent. was to be set aside for works of local advantage. It is further admitted that it is essential to the efficiency of the administration that the civil service should be considerably developed, which cannot be done without an augmentation of the expenditure. The Income-tax, moreover, is limited to five years, so that before the expiration of that period a system must be devised which shall save the State at least twenty per cent., or one-fifth of its present annual expenditure.

The problem is a knotty one, nor does any practical solution suggest itself. Retrenchments, of course, will be the order of the day, but eight millions sterling is a monstrous gulf to fill up. The Governor-general, indeed, earnestly entreats all his subordinates to be as economical as possible in their establishments, the effect of which will be to repel from the public service all the better order of natives, whose places will be taken by men of no character, position, or influence. It is already a matter of complaint that the more intelligent and well-bred natives cannot be induced to lend their assistance to the Government, and still less will they be disposed to take service when the work is augmented, and the pay still further diminished. There is no use in mincing matters. We must sit down before the difficulty and master it, or the sooner we retire from India the better. The native army, doubtless, can still be very considerably reduced, and the police also are susceptible of reduction, but these together will not make up the deficit, far less leave a balance to profit. But what possible objection can the Government urge against disposing of the land in perpetuity? This measure has been urged upon them again and again by men of all shades of opinion on other points, but who all agree in regarding this as the only remedy for India's indebtedness. A large sum of money would almost immediately be realised towards paying off the public debt, and consequent reduction of the annual charges. The hesitation of the authorities is really unaccountable, for even as a matter of policy there is nothing so well calculated to secure the permanent fidelity of our native fellow-subjects. Very little wisdom, it has been said, will suffice for the government of the world; it is probably, therefore, the excess of sagacity that causes the mismanagement which is ruining India, and rendering its rulers a laughing-stock to foreign nations.

COUNTING UP THE COSTS.

A CENTURY of conquests has terminated in the peaceful possession of an immense and densely-populated empire. The triumphs of war, however, are not to be attained without great sacrifice of life and treasure. It is not to be told how many thousands of gallant spirits have been dismissed this life in building up the mighty fabric of our Indian possessions. But those who fall in the faithful discharge of their duty do not altogether die. They do not perish like the beasts of the field, and leave no trace behind them. They are not irretrievably lost to their country, for their good name survives, and the recollection of their heroic achievements excites future generations to a noble emulation, and kindles a generous desire to surpass their fame. The loss of human life is, therefore, by no means the greatest misfortune brought upon a country by warlike operations, whether prosperous or adverse. Individuals may be sorely afflicted, but the community does not suffer.

It is very different, however, with the fiscal results of war. The displacement of capital from the profitable pursuits of peaceful industry is an unmitigated evil. Not only are private families reduced to poverty and their descendants exposed to the temptations peculiar to narrow circumstances, but the action of the Government is impeded, and public prosperity alarmingly jeopardised. Nowhere does this truth manifest itself more clearly than in the history of our Indian relations. For a long time it was supposed that Hindostan was as the land of Ophir, a country abounding in the precious metals and the rarest gems, and that every addition of territory must be accompanied by a more than proportionate increase of revenue. That illusion has long since been dispelled. The gorgeous visions of Eastern magnificence have resolved themselves into the vapours of a sultry wilderness, and the fabled wealth of "Ormus and of Ind" proves as unsubstantial as the fairy money of our Christmas legends. The experience of a hundred years shows how much easier it is to conquer than to govern an empire. The "inexorable logic of facts" has placed at our absolute disposal the lives and properties of more than 150 millions of human beings, and an annual revenue of thirty millions sterling, and now we find ourselves brought to a standstill, because in our haste to absorb kingdoms, principalities, and chiefships, we omitted to count up the costs. Like the famous Dragon of Wantley, we have met with our "Moore of Moore-hall," in an empty treasury and an insufficient revenue. Our outgoings have so far exceeded our incomings that the greatest exertions are necessary to prevent the machinery of government from coming to a deadlock. One Governor-general after another was so incessantly engaged in warfare, that in enumerating the leading features of their administration they could often dwell at length on the provinces they had annexed, but never a word had they to spare to recount the moral or material improvements they had introduced, or to describe what they had done to maintain the solvency of the Indian Empire. As a matter of fact that empire has not been solvent for many a year. Financial statements have, indeed, annually appeared showing a small balance one way or the other, but generally favourable, and always full of hope. The best proof of their incorrectness was the constant necessity of negotiating fresh loans and of adding to the burdens of the already overweighed State. The fact was, there was no one connected with the Government who understood enough of financial matters either to check past expenditure or to form a correct budget for the future. One of the greatest obstacles to the success of the late Mr. Wilson's mission was this very circumstance. There were no data to guide him, and there was no one to compile such data. At last something is being done to secure at least proper economy in the distribution of public money. A new fiscal system has been inaugurated, and a practical Board of Audit established. The particulars were given in our last number, and it must be admitted that every care seems to have been taken both in the appointment of offices and the selection of officers "to ensure the strict appropriation of the moneys in the Civil and Military Departments, in accordance with the grants made and for the performance of the duties," which they were intended to subserve. It is certainly rather late in the day to commence a proper system of book-keeping, but we must hope that it is not too late, and that the time may yet come when a genuine balance shall appear to the credit of the Indian Government at the close of the financial year.

THE "GREAT TASMANIA."

THE results of the investigation instituted by the Indian Government into the causes of the terrible mortality that occurred on board the Great Tasmania have at length been laid before the public. The inquiry appears to have been conducted in an impartial and searching manner, with a sincere desire to ascertain the exact truthfulness of the evidence ascended before the Liverpool jury. It will be remembered that Dr. Fernandez, the surgeon in charge of the troops, deposed that the Committee of Survey had, in neglect of a solemn duty, passed provisions which were unfit for human food, and also that more invalids were embarked at Calcutta than he could possibly attend to. These statements are shown to have been untrue. Great care was taken to eliminate such men as were judged by Dr. Anderson, the Deputy-inspector-general of Hospitals at Barrackpore, to be in an unfit state of health to undertake a long voyage in a crowded ship. With regard to the medical stores it is proved that fifty-two gallons of freshly-extracted lime-juice, strengthened by the infusion of two gallons of rum, were supplied, together with a large quantity of chloride of zinc, manufactured at the Duckinore Chemical Works, and that in addition to this there were 1,250 gallons of vinegar on board, to which Dr. Fernandez made no allusion. Besides, as it was on the 21st September that he gave a receipt for his medicines, and the ship did not sail till the 9th November, he had ample time to satisfy himself both as to their quantity and quality, and he more than once assured Dr. Anderson that he had everything he wanted. It is admitted that the biscuit originally sent on board was condemned, but on this being discovered it was relanded, with the exception of some casks that had been stowed away in the hold, and which the captain promised to throw overboard as soon as he had worked down to them. The subsequent supply of biscuit was obtained from ships that had just arrived out from England, and was the best that could be obtained. Of the salted provisions the pork was acknowledged to be good to the end of the voyage, and the beef seems to have been all that could be desired when examined by the Committee of Survey in the presence of the captain and the surgeon. It is not unlikely that it may have deteriorated from the casks being opened, and likewise from being stowed away in the hold. Of vegetables and potted meats there was an unavoidable deficiency, because at the time they were not procurable in the Calcutta market. An abundant supply of tanks and water-casks—the latter lent by the Government two months before the ship sailed—was furnished, and if water fell short from leakage or other causes, the fault rests with Captain Gardyne. Nor is it true that the vessel was overcrowded, for she carried three hundred less than her regular complement of passengers. The truth is, Dr. Fernandez, in his anxiety to screen himself, was not sufficiently guarded in some of his assertions, and conceded his own laches by magnifying the shortcomings of others.

Captain Pond, too, appears to have been greatly to blame in affirming that it would have been useless to apply to the Government for a fresh supply of bedding, after making the discovery that the men had bartered for intoxicating liquors the greater part of their clothing and bed-covering. A representation of this kind was actually made by the officer in command of troops on board the Conflict, and the deficiency was promptly made good. He further stated to Brigadier Smith that the men and baggage were all on board, and failed to report that there was anything amiss. It also clearly appears that Lieut. Goschen was not justified in accusing the canteen sergeant at Chinsurah of having afforded facilities to the men for indulging to excess in liquor. It is certain that they did not even draw their regular daily allowance of two drams of rum, though it is equally indisputable that they were frequently intoxicated—but by means of liquor obtained from Chandernagore. The brigadier, indeed, is reprimanded for not having exercised a closer personal surveillance over the detachments that were at that time coming down country for embarkation, but as his duties required his presence at Fort William, it is not easy to see how he could have been in two places at the same time.

It results, then, that the men had mostly themselves to thank for the sufferings they endured. Their reckless and insubordinate conduct, both previous to their arrival in Calcutta and also during the voyage, rendered them peculiarly liable to disease, and in the same proportion intractable to ordinary medical treatment. Having sown the wind they reaped the whirlwind, and expiated by painful illnesses and in too many instances by death, their short-lived licence and joviality. If they sinned much, they suffered still more, and it is not against them that any generous man would say an unkind word. As for Dr. Fernandez, the case is very different, and if he has not already resigned the service he stands a very good chance of being compelled to do so.

BOOKS.

Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine. No. DXLIII. Wm. Blackwood and Sons.

In the January number of Blackwood there are two articles which would be read with great interest at all times, but which at the present moment are certain to command the attention of the most careless reader. The first in order is a sketch of the various embassies sent from this country to China, commencing, however, with our earliest relations with that empire. So late even as the beginning of the present century absurd notions were entertained in "the best informed circles" as to the wealth and power of the Brother of the Sun and Moon. Abject deference was shown on more than one occasion to the customs, prejudices, and impertinences of the Chinese, and the fear of being forbidden to trade caused our Government as well as our merchants to stoop to all sorts of weak and cowardly concessions. Had we space for such speculations it might be worth while to inquire into the causes that have produced such different results in our intercourse with India and with China. In either case it was the same Company of Merchants that opened up a trade and established the first factories, but the circumstances of the two countries were widely dissimilar. In India there were many rival and contending princes, each of whom hoped to advance his own interests by gaining to his side the support of the formidable foreigners. These antagonistic ambitions were carefully fostered by the intriguing traders, till at last they obtained for themselves a fair standing-point, whence they set forth on the most marvellous career of conquest that is recorded in the annals of the human race. China, however, was one and undivided, and under the rule of an apparently absolute monarch. The exclusive system of the Chinese was also favourable to their independence, while their arrogance imposed upon strangers ignorant of their language and institutions, and inspired fear rather than the merited contempt. "If the Great Mogul and his satraps had kept the East India Company's agents in Calcutta or Madras at the same distance that the Emperor of China and his mandarins did at Canton, the descendants of Akbar might still be seated on the throne of Delhi. Lord Canning, instead of now ruling supreme in India, might be now ascending the Ganges as ambassador-extraordinary to the Delhi Court, bearing an autograph letter from her Majesty, to be presented with due respect to the man who is now a wretched exile in Burmah."

The second article we would point out to our readers is an extremely lively and entertaining description of the early days of the Indian Civil Service. The lax morality of the "writers" and "apprentices," and even of the "senior merchants," is shown up with truthfulness tempered by charity, and even that semi-pagan, Job Charnock, who used to sacrifice a cock on his wife's grave, is not dealt with half so severely as he deserved. But the insight given into the manners and demeanour of the predecessors of the present governing classes of India is both amusing and instructive. In a subsequent article the author promises to "treat of the Indian Civil Service at its height, follow it in its decline, and anticipate its fall."

"Up to this point," he says, "the picture which we have drawn of the Company's Civil Service is not a very flattering one. We have seen them gambling, fighting, and taking bribes. But it must not be supposed that there was anything in this peculiar to the Indian service. They merely reflected the manners of their brethren at home. If they were violent, intemperate, and corrupt, so were English gentlemen and English public servants in the eighteenth century. Was it not a mark of high breeding to swear, to drink, to game, and to be ready to draw one's sword upon a friend? Why should there have been more forbearance, more moderation, at Surat or Calcutta, than at London or Bath? And was not many a faithful servant of his Majesty open to a bribe?"

No doubt there is much truth in all this, but it is quite possible that the follies of London, or Bath, may have been exaggerated at Surat, or Calcutta. Young, ardent, and adventurous spirits were there less shackled by public opinion, and less amenable to the refining process that was gradually, if slowly, going on in Europe. If society in England was not without blemish, we fear that in India it was disfigured with larger and more unseemly blot, and we are not certain that the same remark is inapplicable in the present day, though perhaps in a less degree. By the way, there are two or three curious typographical errors in this article, one of which is a libel upon the Biblical knowledge of the writer, and the other upon the humanity of his countrymen. At page 121 there is an allusion to the forty pieces of silver paid to Judas, whereas he got no more than thirty as the price of his infamy; and at page 117 we read that "nabobs" were served up between soup and curry, and their arrival announced by a flourish of trumpets. That nabobs have oftentimes been metaphorically roasted we freely admit, and also that they have occasionally been "served out" a little unfairly, but at the worst of times it is likely that "old Indians" would have preferred a dish of "kabobs" to the tenderest and most juicy "nabobs" that either side of the peninsula could have furnished. In more modern times some of the gentlemen connected with the Indian press may have been somewhat more anthropophagical, and might not have turned away in disgust from a skewer-full of roasted and gingered "natives."

The system adopted combines the most approved features of the Colleges, with the discipline of the School. Professors of eminence attend for all the higher branches of English Instruction, all Accomplishments, and Foreign Languages. A French Governess is resident. References to Clergymen and others. Situation and Residence unexceptionable.

Address ALPHA, Messrs. LEADER and COCK'S, 63, New Bond-street, London.

A LADY, residing in a Town Fifty Miles by Rail from London, who undertakes the Care and Education of Six Pupils, daughters of Residents in India, has VACANCIES at present. Reference to Friends of former Pupils is kindly permitted.

MILITARY AND NAVAL EDUCATION.—A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, resident at Brighton, RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS, between the ages of Twelve and Fifteen, who may be destined for the Military and Naval Professions. With a view to this ultimate object, the entire course of Study, from the outset, is regulated expressly in conformity with the requirements of the Examinations at Addiscombe, Sandhurst, Woolwich, and Portsmouth; and every care is taken to direct special attention to those subjects likely to prove professionally useful in the future career of the Naval or Military officer. The Pupils are examined periodically in Mathematics by Professor J. R. Younge, formerly of Belfast College, and Author of "A Course of Mathematics, Pure and Mixed, for the Use of Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations," &c.; and also in Classics and Modern Languages by Scholars of repute. Prospectuses may be had of Messrs. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street, London.

PRIVATE TUTOR.—Stanley St. Leonard's, near Stonehouse, Gloucestershire, a healthy village, about one mile from the Great Western and Midland Railways. The Rev. R. M. HUTCHINS, M.A., of Trinity College, Cambridge, who has been engaged in tuition for many years, RECEIVES into his house TEN YOUNG GENTLEMEN, who are treated as members of his family. A well-qualified native teacher of the French language, and skilful drawing, music, and drilling masters in regular attendance. Instruction also in the German language, by a native, if required. Terms according to age. Mr. H. has no parochial charge. The Officers of the Army in India, and others resident in that country, would find Mr. H.'s Establishment an eligible one for their sons. The most satisfactory references to the parents of present and former pupils, both in England and in India.

ISRAEL IN THE PAST, THE PRESENT, AND THE FUTURE: or, LECTURES ON THE RESTORATION OF THE JEWS.

Second Edition, in 8vo., price 10s. 6d.,
THE CHRONOLOGY OF CREATION; or, GEOLOGY AND SCRIPTURE RECONCILED.
 London: W. H. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

Preparing for publication, in One Volume Octavo,
 BY J. R. YOUNG,
 (Late Professor of Mathematics, Belfast College),
A COURSE OF MATHEMATICS,
 PURE AND MIXED,

More especially designed for the Use of Candidates for the MILITARY & CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

WITH A VARIETY OF PROBLEMS IN, AND PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS OF THE FOLLOWING SUBJECTS:

1. ALGEBRA, TRIGONOMETRY, AND MENSURATION.
2. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (CONIC SECTIONS), STATICS, DYNAMICS, AND HYDROSTATICS.
3. THE DIFFERENTIAL AND INTEGRAL CALCULUS with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c., &c.

The object of this work is to furnish Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations with such a practical knowledge of Pure and Mixed Mathematics as may prove most serviceable to them in the course of the ordeal to which they are about to be subjected. On such occasions a mere theoretical acquaintance with principles is by no means sufficient. It is also necessary that the young aspirant should have been trained by actual experiments, as it were, to the application of the abstract rules, the enunciation of which he has otherwise mastered only by an effort of memory. To assist him in this gathering the fruits of his intellectual industry, Mr. J. R. YOUNG has devised a multitude of problems, of greater or less difficulty, in Algebra, Trigonometry, Mensuration, Analytical Geometry (Conic Sections), Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, the Differential and Integral Calculus, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. The chief peculiarity of this work, however, is one that will recommend it to a very large class of students. The most difficult questions are rendered comparatively easy, by the practical simplifications that are introduced in their mode of solution. Instead of a pompous and puzzling display of technical phraseology, the utmost care has been taken to explain the most knotty points in a plain, unadorned manner, intelligible to every ordinary capacity. In this respect, Mr. YOUNG's "Course of Mathematics" will be found to possess a decided superiority over all preceding works on the same subject.

THE PERFECT SUBSTITUTE FOR SILVER.—The real NICKEL SILVER, introduced more than twenty-five years ago by WILLIAM S. BURTON, when PLATED by the patent process of Messrs. Elkington and Co., is beyond all comparison the very best article next to sterling silver that can be employed as such, either usefully or ornamentally, as by no possible test can it be distinguished from real silver.

MUMFORD'S CONCENTRATED

CORDIAL ESSENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER.

The Cordial Essence, which is now taken in preference to all other preparations of Ginger, not only from its agreeable flavour, but from the value and certainty of its effects, will be found most useful in all cases of indigestion, spasms, heartburn, diarrhoea, irritability of the bowels, and in most nervous affections. To invigilate suffering with impaired digestion from long residence in warm climates, and to those who are proceeding to India, this preparation cannot be too strongly recommended.

Prepared only by GEORGE MUMFORD, Chemist, 5, Bathurststreet, Hyde-park-gardens, and sold by all Chemists, in bottles at 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each; also in large stoppered bottles, for foreign use, at 21s.

NO ICE REQUIRED to produce common

Ice, Dessert Ices, to Ice Wines, &c., in SIMPSON'S NEW PATENT FREEZING VASE.—This Apparatus is, without exception, the most efficacious, simple, and portable ever produced. By using the Patented Freezing Powder, Dessert Ices and Common Ice can be frozen by the most inexperienced, in a few minutes, on the table, or in an invalid's apartment. Residents and travellers in hot climates will find it invaluable, as it produces that luxury—Ice!—at command, and only occupies the space of an ordinary hat-case.

Prices: one pint, Four Guineas; three pints, Five Guineas. Freezing Powder, 34s. per cwt. Freezing Pots, Ice Moulds &c., &c.

SODA-WATER, &amp;c.—Use the "Seltzogene"

(solely of one piece of glass), the only portable apparatus that has the patronage of the medical profession, who recommend it for making pure Soda-water and Aerated Beverages. Metallic impregnation is avoided, there is no leakage, and it is not affected by hot climates.

Prices: two pints, 23s.; three pints, 30s.; five pints, 42s. Powders (forty charges in box), 8s., 10s., and 16s. each. References and descriptive catalogues sent free.

GEO. SIMPSON'S Patent Depôt, 315c, Oxford-street, London.

PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ANTI-

RHEUMATIC CHAIN-BANDS FOR SELF-APPLI-CATION.—Unequalled and certain as are the effects of the Chain-Bands in all kinds of Rheumatic Pains, still more remarkable and speedy is the relief they afford in Neuralgia,

Tic Dolorous, Head and Toothache, &c. Even the most interperate cases of Paralysis, Epilepsy, Deafness, Gout, Sciatica, Lumbago, Indigestion, Nervous Debility, &c., disappear in a comparatively short time. Prospectuses, recording a vast number of private cures and extracts from numbers of scientific works, sent free. Chain-Bands, 6s., 10s., 16s., 22s., according to power.

J. L. PULVERMACHER and Co., 73, Oxford-street, adjoining

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—WINTER AIL-

MENTS.—There are diseases peculiar to each season;

but Winter usually much increases the sick list. Influenza, diphtheria, rheumatism, and many chest complaints frequently prevail at this time, and purifying the blood is the most certain and rational antidote to all of them. This can be accomplished most readily and effectually by a course of Holloway's estimable Pills, which act by directly expelling all impurities and healthily stimulating every organ. They wonderfully assist digestion, promote wholesome activity in the kidneys, liver, and lungs, and strengthen the nerves. These Pills may be taken with safety and benefit by all invalids, whatever the

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

JUDGED BY THE IMMENSE DEMAND,

this UNIVERSAL REMEDY now stands the first in public favour and confidence; this result has been acquired by the test of fifty years' experience. These Lozenges may be found on sale in every British Colony, and throughout

India and China. They have been highly esteemed wherever introduced. For COUGHS, ASTHMA, and all affections of the Throat and Chest, they are the most agreeable and efficacious remedy.

yard, London. Sold Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B. To prevent spurious imitations, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraven on the Government Stamp of each Box, without which none are genuine.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay mail of the 27th December brings little news concerning that Presidency, and not very much relating to any other. In Sikkim nothing more has been done, but reinforcements were expected under Lieutenant Gawler, of her Majesty's 73rd Regiment, who has been appointed to command the expedition against the native Rajah. Letters from Darjeeling teeming with false or exaggerated statements had been received in Calcutta, but by the latest accounts that station was perfectly secure against any movement of the enemy.

The chief topic of discussion, not only in the Indian papers, but also in the Legislative Council, was Sir Charles Wood's extraordinary grant of half a million sterling to the grandson of Tippoo Sultan. It is certainly an untimely expenditure of public money, and absorbs one-half of the entire amount expected to be realised from the Income-tax. On the 15th December the Chief Justice, Sir Barnes Peacock, brought the matter before the Council, and after a warm debate carried the following motion—his own casting vote turning the scale in his favour:—

"That the Government of India be requested to lay before this Council a copy of the account in which the stipends which have from time to time been paid to the descendants of Tippoo Sultan are debited, or such an abstract thereof as will show the total amounts paid and credited in each year from the year 1799 to the present time.

"Also, a copy of any resolution or order of Government by which the stipends now payable to such descendants were fixed, and of any correspondence between the Government of India and the late Hon. Court of Directors or the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, in consequence of which the same was passed.

"And also a copy of any despatch or despatches received during the present year from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, by which any sum of money has been ordered to be paid or secured to any of the descendants of the said Tippoo Sultan, and of any document or documents showing the grounds on which such order was made.

"And further, that the said Government of India be requested to inform this Council whether any sums of money so ordered to be paid to the descendants of Tippoo Sultan are included in the estimate for the year 1860-61.

The right of adoption by native princes has been officially recognised, and the Viceroy has expressed his conviction that "the safety of our rule is increased, not diminished, by the maintenance of native chiefs well affected to us." According to the Bombay Times this decision is worth more than an army of 50,000 Europeans!

Two expeditions have been ordered to operate against the barbarous tribes on the eastern frontier. One is intended to act against the Garrows, a wild tribe dwelling on, or near, the Cossyah Hills, and is placed under the command of Lieut. Morton; while the other, under Capt. Rabau, has been sent to punish the kidnapping propensities of the savage, and perhaps aboriginal, race inhabiting the Tipperah Hills. The Waghers are also being hunted down by detachments of infantry mounted on camels, but no great advantage appears yet to have been gained beyond harassing that troublesome, if insignificant enemy.

Mr. Sherman Scotland, we understand, is likely to be appointed to the vacant Puiane Judgeship at Madras. It is also stated that Sir Hope Grant, K.O.B., will succeed Sir Patrick Grant in the command of the Madras Army.

We have the pleasure to inform our readers that the "Register of the Indian Army and Civil Service for 1861" is now published, and may be had either at the office of this journal, or through any respectable bookseller. The present volume is a great improvement in every respect upon its predecessors, and especially in the Index.

THE BOMBAY MAIL.

The Massilia, with the heavy portion of the above mail, left Malta at 11 P.M. on the 15th, and may be expected at Southampton on the 24th inst.

The Northam brought the mail and 60 passengers to Suez, arriving there on the 10th inst. (correct day).

THE OUTWARD MAILS.

The Nemesis delivered the London mails of the 4th—10th of November—in Calcutta on the 14th of December.

The Singapore and Nubia left Madras for Calcutta on the 22nd and 26th of December respectively.

The former had on board the London mails of the 12th—18th of November (extra)—and the latter those of the 20th—26th of Nov.

MORE ANNEXATIONS.

The lust of dominion is no exception to the universal law, that every appetite grows by what it feeds on. Over and over again has it been solemnly proclaimed in India, that the British desire not to extend their empire beyond certain specified limits—the Indus, or the Himalayas, or whatever the “natural” boundary of the moment might be—yet time after time it appears inevitable that some further aggression be made to establish the security of our frontier. In olden times, of course, this seizure of fresh territory was frequently made out of mere wantonness and selfish ambition. But in this civilised age, when we have learnt to conceal all the grossness of our vices, and thus, if Burke may be trusted, to deprive them of half their evil, we never annex a new province except—like the Emperor Napoleon—on principle. The case of David and Bathsheba (Query, Ahab and Nathan?) has no parallel now in the history of the conduct of powerful States towards weak neighbours. The mighty emperor, with vast territories subject to his control, in which there are the most fertile of valleys, the wealthiest cities, the largest rivers, and the grandest hills, never covets the small but cherished heritage of his poor neighbour, though he finds himself impelled by an inexorable law of nature to appropriate to himself the single delight of the poor man's life. We, in India, pursue the same magnanimous policy. Instructed by the mutinies of 1857, we abhor the very name of annexation, and there is nothing more hateful to us than the notion of breaking faith with native princes. So much is this the case, that the excellent Secretary of State for India seems to have become so generous to fallen princes that he even forgets altogether the unfortunate people of this country. We are all ready to pay Income-tax, if it be necessary; but it is one thing to deprive ourselves of numerous comforts and pleasures in order to restore the revenues of the State, and quite another to place our money in the hands of Sir Charles Wood, that he may lavish half a million sterling on the degenerate descendants of the freebooting chief whom Wellesley destroyed at Seringapatam. But, happily, this is not yet our usual way of dealing with Indian princes. We indeed show them all respect, but it so happens that we seem to get as much out of them “on principle” as we used to get by force of arms. Thus we have just succeeded, apparently to the satisfaction of all parties concerned, in rounding off our Berar and Nagpore possessions with one or two slips of land that bring under our rule the whole cotton district of the Deccan, and give us another excellent “natural boundary” in the river Godavery. In order to preserve some sort of harmony between north and south, and thus prevent jealousy among the Bengalees, the Supreme Government has likewise declared itself to be compelled by destiny to annex the little State of Sikkim in the Himalayas.

Sikkim is a slip of mountainous country between Nepal and Bhootan. Its inhabitants are said to be mere savages, ignorant of all laws of social order, and acting systematically on those instincts of human nature which—in the Himalayas as in the Highlands of Scotland—convince starving mountaineers of the paramount necessity of plundering their richer and less ferocious neighbours. The people of Sikkim have pursued their raids into our territory, levying black mail wherever they came, and retreating before any regular force could overtake them, till at last, emboldened by impunity, they are reported to have taken to the practice of kidnapping the children of British subjects. This, of course, could not be borne, and Dr. Campbell, superintendent of Darjeeling, requested permission, which was readily granted by the Supreme Government, to annex Sikkim. The preparations made by the gallant doctor for subjugating the country were ostentatiously explained beforehand. Accompanied by one hundred men, he was to clear Sikkim of marauders, and establish order and English law (supported by military stations) throughout the new province. One is reminded of the Bon Gaultier ballad, which relates how—

“Phairshin swore a feud
Against the clan M'Tavish,
And marched into the land
To murder and to ravish.”

Not that we would suspect Dr. Campbell of the diabolical intentions of the celebrated Highland chieftain, but that the worthy doctor's escort seems to have been formed after the plan of Phairshin's conquering force, which consisted, as all our readers are aware, “of four-and-twenty men, and five-and-thirty pipers.” The result of this foolish expedition was exactly such as might have been anticipated. Dr. Campbell, after progressing some way into the country, found his communications with Darjeeling cut off, and himself and small party surrounded by an overwhelming force of savage enemies. It is almost inconceivable that, after the numerous warnings we have had of late years of the folly of relying too much on English prestige, and so leading our countrymen into positions in which they are forced to fight against fearful odds and to submit to the disgrace of being beaten, Dr. Campbell should have been guilty of the insane temerity of advancing with so small a party into the midst of savage tribes, who knew that he had come for the express purpose of annexing to the British empire their fatherland. So palpable a mistake might, we think, have been avoided by the veriest tyro in political or military knowledge. But it would seem impossible to overcome the headstrong confidence which men of the Harry Parkes and Dr. Campbell school have in their own ability to execute great designs with means which men of intelligence and great professional skill would regard as wholly insufficient for the purpose. Lord John Russell's willingness to take command of the Channel Fleet, or perform the most formidable surgical operation, without the slightest previous training, is modesty itself compared with the rashness of men who attempt to annex States with a force unequal even to the task of maintaining order in any tolerably populous and peaceful town. It is urged that, however deeply we may regret Dr. Campbell's expedition, we ought to avenge his defeat by seizing the whole of Sikkim. This is our old policy in China. First, make war with inadequate means, to avenge real or fancied injuries; then, when our efforts fall short of our wishes, begin a new campaign on a larger scale, and so go on till another Eastern empire is added to the dominions of the Queen of England. Probably it will be for the good of the people of Sikkim themselves, as it certainly will be for the interest of their neighbours, to establish a strong Government which will be able to keep them in hand, and make them pay some respect to law. But if this cannot be done without further expense to the State, our first duty, the law of self-defence, requires that we should energetically protest against any further extension of the empire. The greatness of a State is not measured by the number of square miles it contains, but by the wealth, contentedness, and energetic spirit of the inhabitants. We might easily annex, not Sikkim only, but even Thibet, and so obtain possession of the road into Western China, from which so much is vainly expected; but if we can only do this at the cost of a bankrupt treasury and a dissatisfied population, justice and common sense counsel us to stay where we are.—Bombay Gazette.

THE HILL TRIBES.

The following is from Captain J. R. Magrath, Superintendent Hill Tribes, to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal:—

“I have the honour to report, for the information of his honour the Lieutenant-Governor, that a party of Longshie savages, belonging to the tribe of Rutten Poea, came into my camp yesterday. The party consisted of Rutten Poea's Prime Minister, his chief interpreter, the head man of some other petty chief, whose name I did not hear correctly, and others. Rutten Poea's people brought me a large elephant's tusk as a present from their chief, and stated that they were empowered by him to make terms with me. I told the deputation that it was not our custom to make terms with petty chiefs through their agents; that if Rutten Poea was really anxious to obtain pardon for his misconduct towards the British Government, he should come in to me personally, accompanied by all the women and children carried off by him; that I would then believe his contrition sincere, and would consider whether he should be pardoned; that at all events I promised him and his followers free conduct to and from my camp. I endeavoured to impress the deputation with a dread of the British power, though at the same time I treated them personally with kindness. I sent them away happy, with presents of looking-glasses, empty bottles, tobacco, salt, spirits, &c. The elephant's tusk I returned, stating I could not receive Rutten Poea's “nuzzer,” except from his own hands. From what the savages said yesterday, it seems that a great epidemic has lately carried off a large number of them, and they have taken it into their heads that the epidemic was caused by my magical powers, as a punishment for their raid into the plains! Rutten Poea's son was amongst those who died. The consequence is, he and his people are much alarmed. When the savages arrived yesterday they stood afar off, and it was with some trouble they were induced to come near me, which they did at last trembling, and kept their eyes fixed on me in an alarmed manner. Kisten Chunder Thakoor also came in yesterday to surrender, and stated that he and his brothers would at once have given themselves up to be tried by any British Officer for their supposed share in the murder of British subjects, but for the great dread they have of being made over to the Tipperah Rajah, who, through fear of their attempting to deprive him of his country, is at enmity with them, and kept them in confinement, I think, he said, for eighteen years; that on their escaping from prison, and claiming the protection of our Government, they were made over to the Rajah, and that it was the dread of this being repeated which prevented them surrendering and taking their trial at once. Kisten Chunder Thakoor and Modoo Chunder Thakoor have both requested me to bring that to the notice of his Honour the Lieutenant-governor; and they pray that if they prove guiltless of the charge of urging on the savages to attack and murder British subjects, his honour will not make them over to their relentless relative, but either set them free, and permit them to reside in these hills, or order a British officer to inquire into their disputes and differences with the Tipperah Rajah, and let that officer decide their fate. I promised I would bring their petition to the notice of his honour, and said that I thought it probable that if they proved innocent of urging on the savages to make the raid they did last year, that the Lieutenant-governor would take favourable notice of their petition. As I thought that putting Kisten Chunder in confinement at once would alarm Rutten Poea, and prevent him coming to me, I asked Kisten Chunder whether he did not want some time to arrange his affairs. As I could not let him go at once I put him under a guard. He asked for twenty days, which I gave him, and I hope that about the same time Rutten Poea will come to me. As I hear that he and other chiefs intend to come together, accompanied by a large body of men, I applied to the Commissioner of Chittagong to send me another 100 of the police battalion, for with such raw soldiers as they are, 100 men could easily be overpowered. Several Longshie villages are visible from where I am at present located, and small parties of the savages are constantly hovering about my camp, watching my movements. The chief of a village about five miles in a direct line from this, fearing I may suddenly attack him, has deposited an elephant's tusk in one of the Kalindee Ramee's ryot's houses, and has taken care to let me know that it is intended as a present for me, but that he dare not venture to come here till Rutten Poea does. He has also got outposts planted along the only track leading to his village.

I have sent a spy to endeavour to discover if any Bengalee women or children are confined in the village, and to learn the best method of approaching and attacking the village, should it be necessary to do so. The forests are so very dense, and the paths such mere tracks, difficult even to trace, and where the traveller has frequently to go on all fours, that unless with good troops accustomed to jungle warfare, very little, I think, can be done without the aid of one of the savage tribes. If Government were to give me two hundred good soldiers, and arms and ammunition sufficient to arm a couple of hundred volunteers from the Poang and Kalindee Ranees' ryots, who should, while out with me, receive the pay of the police battalion, I believe more execution would be done in the Hills than with 5,000 men such as I have seen composing the different police battalions. The Kalindee Ranees' ryots about here are fine able men, well accustomed to hills and jungles, and ready and willing to attack savages if I arm and lead them. I would not have them supplied with arms permanently, as the Poang was, but only on certain expeditions on which I would accompany them. After our return from the expedition all arms and ammunition should be returned to me. Through the Commissioners of Chittagong I have already reported my having Modoo Chunder Thakoor a prisoner in my camp. Kisten Chunder Thakoor informed me that his other brother, Odooy Chunder, is an idiot. On Kisten Chunder's return I will send for Odooy Chunder, and if he proves to be an idiot I will let him return from whence he came and report to Government. I have not yet been able to discover the whereabouts of Porakit Shenapotee, but will no doubt soon get traces of him. In conclusion, I beg to remark that if an expedition is to take place this season, the sooner the force enters the hills the better, for the season is now very favourable; and as troops must necessarily move slowly in such dense forests, every day is of consequence."

MISCELLANEOUS.

DARJEELING, Dec. 3.—Everything seemed to be going on most favourably until the 27th ult., when Dr. Campbell, then encamped at Rinchinkoong, received intelligence from a reliable source, that large bodies of Sikkimites were gathering on the left bank of the Great Rungeet, with the intention of attacking his camp that very night. Fortunately, Captain Murray, whom he had previously detached across the Kullait to take possession of Pemionghai and Tassiding, had just rejoined him, after leaving a small post of a dozen men at one of the above places. Our small force, consisting entirely of Seebundy Sappers, perhaps not 70 or 80 in all, with Dr. Campbell, Captain Murray, Captain Beavan, and Sergeant Jones, immediately took post upon an adjacent knoll, and prepared for defence, entrenching themselves as they best could under the circumstances; and having placed pickets and sentries, and loaded the three-pounder with grape, awaited events. The night passed off all serene, but just as we were about to sound the reveille in the morning, and whilst it was yet dark, a terrible shouting and yelling was heard on all sides, accompanied by a discharge of muskets and bows and arrows. Not a man was visible, but Captain Murray kept pointing and firing the gun wherever the shouting seemed to indicate the presence of the greatest number. Shortly the morning broke, and the enemy retired further into the jungles, when it was found some three or four of our people had been wounded by arrows. During that day, the 28th, on receiving reports that the enemy were gathering here or there, Captain Murray dashed out and dispersed them with a volley. Nor had they the pluck to show themselves in the open space around our enclosure. As they were, however, in overwhelming numbers, it was deemed advisable to throw up a bit of a stockade, and to write to Darjeeling for a reinforcement of Europeans and natives, fifty of each. Meanwhile, on the eve of the 28th, we had received a report that our small post of men left to guard the Cane-bridge over the Rummam, upon the border, had been surprised and overpowered, the bridge cut away, some men killed, and all communication with our force cut off. Major Maitland, commanding the depot, lost not a moment, and by ten A.M. of the 29th was on the march with forty Europeans and twenty-five natives to see what was the matter, for Dr. Campbell's letter from camp had not then, I believe, reached the station. Major Maitland reached Goke that day, in our own territory, just a little south of the Rummam; and there a great part of his coolies bolted, and he was thus detained and prevented from pushing on as quickly as he wished. On the 30th, however, he was again on the move. During all this time our little force was hemmed in, fighting day and night against numbers that were daily increasing. Dr. Campbell seeing no relief at hand, not knowing whether his express had reached us, finding the ammunition nearly all expended, called a council of war on Friday, the 30th ultimo, when it was determined to retire upon Goke. This retreat, I do not know at what hour, it commenced on the 30th, they carried out at first with all regularity and steadiness, but by-and-by coming upon large trees felled across the path, and rough walls of stone raised to impede their progress, disorder appeared in the gallant little band; and at length at one difficult pass when the night had closed in upon them, and the dense forest around made it as dark as pitch, the enemy poured down upon them huge rocks and showers of arrows, causing irremediable confusion. Dr. Campbell was knocked off his horse by a large piece of rock, but was immediately rescued and carried on by the sappers; and in this way, harassed and followed by the enemy, they arrived at the Rummam river, and reached Goke on the morning of the 1st instant. As ill-luck would have it, Major Maitland, with his Europeans, had started by another route,—there are three over these mountains,—and so they missed each other. A messenger, however, was enabled to overtake and bring them back to Goke, where they are now all encamped, Europeans, sappers, and 73rd detachment. The sappers, I hear, lost from first to last about 15 killed, and I conclude that the gun had to be abandoned. Some of the men also threw away their muskets and ammunition, to enable them to keep up. It was feared at first, as Sergeant Jones was missing, that he had been killed, but he has since made his appearance, his arms and legs torn to pieces with thorns in making his way through the underwood. Some of the enemy, it now appears, are Thibetans from north of the snows, not inhabitants of Sikkim proper; it is therefore proved that the Rajah is backed by the Chinese—Thibetan—Government at Libassa, the country of the rascally Dewan, of whom I spoke in my last letter. They are fine, tall, powerful, muscular men, and are of the same race as those with whom the Nepalese had a fight some few years ago. Their mode of fighting is quite original; they advance with a board held up before the body as a shield, which they place upon the ground, rapidly fire their arrows and retire, seldom caring to show themselves in the open. One of their braves, however, evidently a leader of some note and prowess amongst themselves, resolved in one of their attacks to show them a good example, and advancing bravely at the head of his band with his board held before him, seemed determined to rush in and win. Sergeant Jones with his Enfield had his eye upon him and sent a ball which, piercing the board, went right through his body, killing him dead, and his followers soon made themselves scarce. Numbers of them were slain, as they were often seen dragging away the bodies of their fallen comrades, and if they are wise they will make their boards somewhat thicker in future, or taking a lesson from the French Emperor, plate them with iron—Dec. 5.—The only news to-day is that the troops have been withdrawn from Goke, and the station has fifty more European soldiers, and that they are stationed in the assembly-rooms, and our guns have been planted in the church compound. A meeting of the volunteers took place to-day, and they appointed Capt. Fitzgerald as their senior officer, and Mr. J. S. Barnes their Lieut., so we are on the look out for squalls. Part of the 73rd Regt. N.I. came in this morning, and about twenty men of the Bhangulpore Hill Rangers also; but we have so many women and children to look after, there is a regiment of them. For myself I do not think we shall be attacked; if so, we must either give up Julla Pahar depot or our pretty station: the last is most valuable, so many fine houses, shops, and such a large and well stocked bazaar, with a large treasury. I am happy to say a few of the sepoys that were supposed to have been killed are turning up, but we have lost many, also some of the superintendent's office people are still missing. Lord Canning ought to be made to pay all expenses of this unfortunate war, for allowing four Europeans and one hundred and thirty sepoys to annex about eight hundred square miles of an enemy's country. . . .

. . . . . A mountain-train battery of six pieces is in progress from Allahabad, also the head-quarters and one wing of the 8rd Sikh Infantry from Goruckpore. These, with the three companies 73rd Native Infantry, already sent, and 400 men of her Majesty's 6th Foot, which have been despatched from Barrackpore, and a detachment of artillery from Dum Dum, will be found sufficient for every purpose. As a reserve to this force, three companies of H.M.'s 19th Regiment have been ordered from Raneegunge, and three companies of the Mynpoorie Levy from Dinapore to Titlayah. To strengthen Julpigoree, two companies of the Mynpoorie Levy, and three troops of the Benares Horse, have been ordered to that station from Dinapore. Two companies of the 65th N.I. will be detached to Bhangulpore to relieve a wing of the Hill Rangers, which will be pushed on to Purneah to be ready for further duty if required. Lieutenant Colonel Gawler, of H.M.'s 73rd Foot, has been appointed to the command of the troops at Darjeeling, and has been directed to proceed to that place forthwith.

SEALKOTE, Dec. 11.—The assessment of the Income-tax, as far as the natives are concerned, is being carried on without exciting the minds of the people against our rule; no Tuhseeldar, no native agency is used in the business. Unlike the course adopted in Oude (where there appears a clique), every man and every tradesman is treated mildly and with extreme leniency; his own word is sufficient, and by it the assessment is decided of what each has to pay. The Tuhseeldar, or any other Omlah, is not allowed to have a hand in the matter. As a caution against oppression and extortion, the Lucknow case is a fearful lesson to the Punjab to allow no native official to have anything to do with the assessment. Everything in connection with the Income-tax is steadily going on satisfactorily, although it cannot, in the most distant manner, be styled Income-tax, as far as the natives are concerned, inasmuch as the mere word is taken, and conscience consulted of the native subjects. Under the circumstances of the case, we cannot expect anything near the mark of what was anticipated by the Supreme Council of Calcutta. The Punjab Government appear to act wisely in not keeping the minds of the vast population in fever-heat, by avoiding the breach of the secrecy of the Zenana, and exposure of books of business. However, the mode adopted in the Punjab is a wise one; each trade is assessed separately; for instance, the gold and silversmiths of the town of Lahore are to pay annually about Rs. 1,300. This is very light, and they cannot grumble. The ironsmiths separate. Each smith is assessed separately, according to his alleged means. The bankers will be assessed separately; the cloth merchants also on the same plan. The Deputy Commissioner of Goojranwalla, I learn, had assessed the town of Wuzerbad Rs. 15,000 annually; but the citizens, considering it oppressive, presented a petition to the Commissioner of the Lahore division, who, I hear, has reduced it to only 5,000 per annum. I think, for my part, Mr. Forsyth, the commissioner, has acted wisely. Grain is selling at Jummo at 32 seers per rupee, and at Sealkote at 22 per rupee. No grain is permitted to come into the British territory from that quarter, although the resources of the Punjab appear great in the production of the corn lands. The Jummoo chief cannot, after this, look to us for any assistance in case of emergency. It was at his earnest and repeated solicitation that Raja Jowahur Singh was sent out of the Punjab, who lays claim to the throne of Jummoo, and there is a large party of the Dogras and the hill people in Cashmere, who would hail the rule of Raja Jowahur with rejoicing; and had not the latter been removed from the Punjab, for two or three months in 1856, I would not have answered either for the life or the throne of Maharajah Runbeer Singh. He must therefore be cautious how he is influenced by the intriguing Dewans, who, to enrich themselves and to gain their own ends, give counsel which is sure to act prejudicially to the interest of the present ruler. Many about him outwardly praise the British, but secretly caution and influence the Prince, representing the English as a designing nation having sinister motives.—Delhi Gazette.

CAPT. PYM, of H.M.'s 75th, is now being tried at Allahabad for insubordinate conduct, which seems to have manifested itself in some sullenness of temper when ordered to attend sword drill on the 12th September last, Capt. Pym having complained in the hearing of Col. Radcliffe, commanding the regiment, that "the only morning the officers had to themselves had been taken from them." Afterwards on the parade the captain's resentment took the very undignified form of pretending ignorance of the sword drill, refusing to attend to the words of command, and to be put into position by the drill instructor. The discipline in this regiment is said to have been in a defective condition for some time past, owing to a want of cordiality among the officers, and the existence of an ill feeling towards their late commanding officer. This court-martial has not yet terminated its proceedings.

A FAIR ON THE INDUS.—A minute has been recorded by the Hon. the Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab, concerning the establishment of a fair on the Indus. Although the establishment of a fair on the Indus, with the object of facilitating British Indian trade with the countries of Central Asia, was strongly advocated by Sir Alexander Burnes in 1838, the subject does not appear to have attracted attention since annexation. Sir Henry Lawrence, however, after making personal inquiries at Ladakh, formed the conclusion that the roads leading to Cabul and Bokhara, through the Khyber, and other mountain passes on our north-western frontier, would be taken by all traders desirous of carrying British goods into Central Asia. He considered the difficulties of the route through Ladakh to Yarkund almost prohibitive of the extensive export of British goods in that direction. "The nearest point," he remarks, "from which English goods can be taken from the plains to Ladakh, is perhaps Noorpoor. To take the case of a trader who should attempt to carry Manchester long-cloth to Leh. As far as Ladakh he must carry his goods on hired coolies, to each of whom he will have to pay Rs. 14. Arrived at Ladakh, he will have to hire horses at Rs. 55 each to carry his goods on to Yarkund. Thus the cost of carriage for one horse load (or less than 4 maunds) will be Rs. 83. If to this be added the heavy duties which are taken on both the routes followed, whether the trader choose the road by Chumba and Tanskar, or by Lahoul and Singtee, the total charges amount to an absolute prohibition of the trade. Accordingly we find that no piece goods of English manufacture are carried beyond Ladakh. A few bales only, sufficient for local consumption, even penetrates as far as Leh."

BENARES, Dec. 8.—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-general held a public durbar this day for the reception of the principal native gentlemen of the Behar districts. The native gentlemen and the civil and military officers of Patna and the neighbourhood having assembled, the Viceroy and Governor-general entered the durbar under a royal salute. All the native gentlemen present were introduced to the Viceroy and Governor-general in the order of their precedence, and after presenting the customary offerings, received the usual khilluts. When bestowing the khilluts his Excellency briefly addressed some of the native gentlemen. To Rajah Bhoop Singh Bhahadur his Excellency stated that his memorial had been received and laid before the Governor-general, who had complied with its prayer so far as to direct that the title which had for so many years been recognised in the Raja's family should be continued to his son, and that two-thirds of the pension now enjoyed by the Raja should be assigned to his children. To the Maharajah of Bettiah the Gov.-gen. observed that he was glad to hear from the Commissioner of the interest taken by the Maharajah in the advancement of education among his tenants. To the Maharajah of Hutwa H.E. expressed the pleasure with which he had heard from the Commissioner of the attention successfully bestowed by the Maharajah on the management of his estates, and of his exertions in promoting education. To the Maharajah of Deemoongah the Gov.-gen. remarked that, on the last occasion of H.E. meeting him, the Maharajah had represented some difficulty which had arisen in carrying out the intention of Government to confer on him an estate as a reward for his services. His Excellency trusted that this difficulty had been overcome to the Maharajah's satisfaction. To Raja Jye, Mungul Sing Bahadur, the Governor-general observed that he had been gratified to learn from the Commissioner of Bhaugulpore that the Rajah, since his return from his interview with the Governor-general in Calcutta last year, had continued to manifest zeal in the service of Government, and his Excellency desired especially to express his acknowledgment of the assistance spontaneously rendered by the Rajah to the Commissioner in the introduction of the Income-tax. After the concluding ceremonies, his Excellency, the Viceroy, and Governor-general left the durbar under a royal salute, and the assembly broke up.—Mofussilite.

THE AWAH THAKOOR.—It was from the columns of the Friend of India that we first derived the information that the Awah Thakoor has been pardoned. He was sentenced to a fine of Rs. 10,000, and that fine has been remitted. Political agents now know at what rate their heads are valued, for when we come to deduct from this ten thousand rupees, the amount at which we may suppose the Government value the friendship of a faithful ally, one of the most powerful of the independent princes of Rajpootana, whose throne was very seriously endangered by the activity of the rebel Thakoor, and the amount of the expense Government were put to in the protracted military operations occasioned by the Thakoor's rebellion, we shall find that not more than ten rupees can be set aside as the rate at which the life of one of the best political agents we had in Rajpootana was valued. To find the value of an assistant we may divide by two, so that whilst political agents may consider their heads worth ten, assistants must be content to reckon the value of theirs at five rupees. We had no business, as we said at the time, to try the Awah Thakoor for rebellion at all. We might certainly have tried him for the murder of Captain Monck Mason, a British officer, the representative of the British Government at the Court of Jodhpore, who was slain, if not directly, certainly indirectly, by the Awah Thakoor; but he was a rebel against his own Sovereign, and by that Sovereign he ought, according to all known laws of policy, to have been tried. He will now return to his fortress—a fortress from before which a British force has already had to retire—emboldened by the culpable leniency with which he has been treated, to boast among the turbulent spirits with which he is surrounded, and among the subjects of a Sovereign not at any time very well affected towards the reigning power, that he defied successfully, first of all his own king, and then defied the forces of the paramount power of Hindostan; that the representatives of the British Government fell treacherously assassinated—not slain in open fight—in his territory—an act which, if he did not originate, he countenanced, by allowing the head of the murdered officer to be placed over the gate of his fortress—and all this with comparative impunity.—Delhi Gazette.

AGRA, Dec. 12.—The Lieut. Governor marches from hence to-morrow in progress to Cawnpore. The Sudder judges gave a splendid entertainment to him at the Taj gardens, one of the most successful affairs of the kind I ever witnessed. He has been travelling all through his districts, making diligent inquiries into the state of the country, with a view to organising some system of relief for the poorer classes during the present season of scarcity and famine that is impending over us. His idea is for Government to provide for all who can work by giving them employment in canals, roads, railways, &c. Earth-works are specially adapted for this purpose, because all can assist; even little children can carry baskets of earth and earn their day's wages. But the support of the infirm, the sick, the aged who cannot work, he thinks, and thinks very rightly, should be left to the support of private charity, and I hope some system of relief will be arranged on a large scale. The Commander-in-Chief is expected here next month. There is a report that the Governor-general has objected to his marching about with a large camp during these times of scarcity, but it seems to me that the Commander-in-Chief has as much right to move about in state and with his comforts about him as a lieutenant-governor or a chief commissioner. There is one thing to be said, the Chief is rather more used to roughing it than the others.

CAPTAIN RABAN.—His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal proposes to the Supreme Government to employ Captain Raban as commandant of the expedition that may be undertaken for the punishment of the perpetrators of last year's outrages, as he had served with Colonel Lister in his incursion into the Kookie Hills from Sylhet, and has experience of the sort of country to be passed through, and the sort of arrangements necessary for success and safety. Captain Raban will have under his command the whole of two police battalions and two hundred men of the 1st battalion, and has also been instructed that every care should be taken to provide for opening the way, and for stockading any posts where it may be thought proper to have provisions and a guard in the advance.

CAPT. COLBORNE, of H.M.'s 60th Rifles, is undergoing, or has recently undergone, the ordeal of a court-martial, for having offered an insult to the civil judge at the Neilgherries. Captain Colborne having had a suit decreed against him, consented, at the suggestion of the judge, to deposit certain property in court as security, he not being able at the time to satisfy the claim. Amongst the "property" sent was an old pair of trousers, some odd boots and shoes, and an old toothbrush. The judge not entering into the spirit of the captain's joke, looked upon this catalogue of valuables as a personal affront, and complained to the military authorities, hence the court-martial, the result of which has not as yet been made public.

HYDRABAD, Dec. 2.—The Court and the country have at length been gratified by an answer from the Government of India, acceding to all the requests of the Nizam's Government. The surplus revenue will be given to it, and deficits not charged against it. The management of the districts retained for payment of the Contingent will remain in the hands of the Resident for the time being, and not be consigned to the charge of the Nagpoor Commissioner. The benefaction is unmistakable, and whilst it is a matter of gratulation to all here, fears are entertained of its being converted into an evil which will make the condition of the country as distracted and miserable as it has ever been. It is said that his Highness the Nizam intends to appropriate the revenues of the restored districts to his private use. The immediate consequence of such a measure will be the destruction of his minister's credit. It was in reliance upon the surplus revenues of the assigned districts being brought home some day to the Nizam's Government that the sahookars have continued to this day to advance money uncovered by any known assets. This minister, if the Nizam alienate the revenues of the restored districts from his department, cannot possibly hold office. The Government must be placed in other hands, in those which will ignore the debts of the sahookars, withhold payment of the arrears of establishments, and only pay those who have power to extort payment. We have had an administration formed upon this system; another such will reproduce the disasters that had, previous to the ministry of Mookhtar-ool-moolk, existed in the State, and the English Government will see renewed the abhorrent cruelties of former days, the seizure of capitalists attended with bloodshed by the military to hold as hostages for the recovery of their arrears from Government, or to compel payment of a portion of it from themselves, and battles between factions raging in the city. We shall see the impoverished Government resuming its former practice of receiving advances of revenues from officers appointed to districts, and in its train the old habit of appointing a man, and dismissing him as suddenly on a higher bid being made for his office, without restoring to the first man the money advanced by him. We shall see, as we have before seen at Edlabad, two men appointed to the district and put into contention against each other by their charters. The forces of both parties being paid by the Government, and appointed by that convention expressly to fight against each other. This, extravagant as it may appear, is the fact, which no man here questions, and which can be proved. We shall see the troops of the Government stationed to maintain order in a district employed by its orders, as we have seen at Omraotee, to fight a battle with the incumbent to replace the deposed man, and so on; to fight either three battles in four months, or four battles in three months, I forget which, siding with both parties. I have seen the orders of the Government given on these occasions to the commanding officer of these troops. Will the English Government, calling itself the paramount power, permit such a system of anarchy, so affecting human life, to prevail when its interposition by advice may prevent it? If it be considered objectionable as being interference, let its motive not be forgotten; it is to serve the Nizam himself, and to prevent disasters. The Nizam's liberality and taste for expense are such that if to the twenty lacs of revenue or thereabouts now about to be restored to him, twenty lacs more were to be added to his privy purse, every fraction of it would be spent in gifts and gratuities.—Englishman.

THE 3RD BOMBAY LIGHT CAVALRY.—His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief has delivered the following address to the 3rd Bombay Light Cavalry:—Aurangabad, Dec. 19.—"You are well aware of the change which is about to take place in the organisation of your regiment. I am desirous it should be understood that this change to what is called the Sillidar system, is undertaken on account of State economy, and that her Majesty's Government while sanctioning it, were most anxious that the ancient name and credit of the regiment should be preserved. Thus, in the new organisation and numbering of regiments, although you are changed to Sillidars, you preserve the name of the 'Bombay Light Cavalry,' and stand at the right of the line according to the number of your regiment. The old Bombay Light Cavalry, therefore, stand as the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd regiments—cavalry of the Bombay army—their precedence and honour being thus secured to them as it ever has been. I am particular in explaining this, as I am most anxious that your old regimental feelings should remain undisturbed, and that while the details of your organisation are in some measure changed, you should maintain your old pride in the integrity of your regiment and its traditions, and that there should be no change in your regard for the service, and in that excellent regimental system of drill and care, of which I have seen the results to-day." The Commander-in-Chief having read the letter of the 18th October last, from the Rt. Hon. the Secretary of State for War, and an extract from the Gazette, by which the Victoria Cross is bestowed on Lieutenant and Adjutant A. T. Moore, 3rd Bombay Light Cavalry, addressed him as follows:—"Lieutenant Moore, having received the orders of her Majesty's Government to bestow the Victoria Cross on you, I need hardly give expression to the great satisfaction I experience in the duty falling to me of bestowing this great honour upon you, in the presence of the Aurungabad brigade. I cannot but think that the distinction of receiving this Cross in the presence of the men you have led, and before the gallant regiment which witnessed the action for which the distinction has been awarded you, is second only to the gratification of receiving it from the hand of Her Most Gracious Majesty. I congratulate you very heartily on this well-deserved reward, and venture to remark that your having so bravely won it, and your being publicly decorated in this Exports (Calcutta, Dec. 18).—A fair business has been doing since our last report, chiefly in Sugar, Rice, Salt-petre, and Lard, and rates have increased with the demand. Little inquiry is made for other exports.

Imports (Calcutta, Dec. 18).—Few large transactions are reported, but generally more activity prevails. Acting under the influence of an advance in the English market, and a cessation of shipments, holders are firm at previous rates. Metals have improved slightly in value.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Nov. 1.—It is said that the Ameer has written to Sirdar Mohamed Afzul Khan to act as prudence dictated, and if he had confidence in the sincerity of the Hakims of Undkhoe and Sheerghan, to place his troops under them, but advised him to be very careful how he put any trust in these Hakims, for if they were insincere and inclined to mischief, they would have a very good opportunity to destroy his, Afzul Khan's, troops when placed under them. It is also reported, that a letter has been addressed by the Ameer to Sirdar Mohamed Azim Khan, stating, that at Cabool many things were heard from the King of Bokhara, and advising (Mohamed Azim Khan) not to give the people any cause of dissatisfaction, as the times were very hard. It is given out by the merchants at Cabool that an ambassador from the King of Persia had waited on the King of Bokhara for the purpose of cultivating a friendly relation between the two Kings—but nothing has been heard on the subject in the Ameer's durbar.—Nov. 2.—Sirdar Mohamed Auzim Khan's urzee was this day received from Koonduz, in which he informed the Ameer that the sons of Meer Moorad Beg had sent him a vakeel with a request that if he would give them shelter in his country they would go and live in Koonduz. In reply to this he, Mohamed Auzim, had written that he had no objection to their proposal, and that he would treat them as friends. Accordingly, the sons of Meer Moorad, with about one hundred and twenty sowars, and with all their property and family, had arrived in Koonduz, and taken up their abode at Khanabad. On their arrival a khillut of honour had been granted to them by Mohamed Auzim Khan.—Nov. 3.—Moolla Sirdar, in charge of the Shah Shaheed Gate Masjid, was caught coining bad silver. He was in the habit of selling his base coin through an agent in the neighbourhood. This time he had sent some of the bad rupees to Kohistan to buy some canvass, &c. There the coin was suspected, and on examination it was found out that the rupees were not from the Cabul mint, but were made of bad silver. The man with the coins was apprehended by the chief in Kohistan, and sent to the Ameer for his trial. On the Ameer inquiring into the case the man stated the fact that Moolla Sirdar was the original coiner of those rupees, and had been at it for a long time. The house and property of the Moolla were ordered to be confiscated, and he, with much disgrace, was to-day brought before the Ameer, who ordered him to be sent to prison.—Nov. 4.—The Moustoufee was ordered to present a list of the Ghilzi sowars, and to inform them to be ready to leave for Toorkistan. Mirza Mohamed Hoo-sain Khan was desired by the Moustoufee to inspect the sowars, and to report how many were absent from their duty. As there were only a few in Cabul the Ghilzi Khans bribed the Mirza not to let the Ameer know of the matter, promising that all the sowars should be present in two or three days.—Nov. 5.—A Quazulbash chief having died in the Chawan Shere Mohulla, the son of Khan Sheereen Khan attended the funeral. After his return, as he was sitting in his dewan khana (receiving room), the son of Urz Baigee, being drunk, went to him and began to abuse him. Khan Sheereen Khan's son, knowing that Khalukdad Khan, the son of Urz Baigee, was not in his proper senses, thought it advisable to quit the place. As he was leaving the room Khalukdad Khan took his rifle and fired at him. Luckily the shot missed Khan Sheereen Khan's son, but his younger brother, who was sitting by him, was wounded in the leg. The sepoy of Khan Sheereen Khan's son were going to kill Khalukdad Khan, but he forbade them, saying that as he was out of his senses it would not be right to kill such a man. A full report of the matter was submitted to the Ameer, who ordered Khalukdad Khan to be put in the jail till further orders.—Nov. 6.—Sirdar Shere Allee Khan, as ordered by the Ameer, directed Oosta Kussool Nujjar Bashee (a carpenter mistree), to go to Jullalabad and to build a fine house there according to a plan given him, suitable for the Ameer's residence. Twenty-five carpenters and a number of masons were ordered to accompany the mistree, and a letter was sent to the Hakim of Jullalabad, to supply the mistree with all the materials he required for the building. News was this day received from Bokhara that the King of Oorgunge had sent four thousand of his Elmanee sowars to Murree Shahjehan, to annoy the Quajar troops stationed there. The Elmanee sowars were every day carrying some thirty or forty men of the Quajars off as prisoners or slaves, and the Persians were so much afraid that not a sweeper or a camel-man could go out of their camp.—Nov. 7.—Sirdar Shere Allee Khan being unable to carry on the mint, and the shroffs of Cabool having complained to the Ameer, the charge of the Mint was this day again given to Sirdar Peer Mohamed Surwar Khan. The elder son of Sirdar Mohamed Auzim Khan wrote from Koorum, to the effect that on account of Sirdar Mohamed Allee having been appointed to realise the revenue of Koorum Soolaman Khail, the people of those places had nearly deserted, and not a single rupee has been realised. As he had not done anything, he hoped that Sirdar Mohamed Allee, with his troops, would be recalled. He also promised in his urzee that he would collect the revenue of the country as soon as possible, and send it to the Ameer. The Ameer having taken the matter into consideration, ordered a letter to be written to Sirdar Mohamed Allee, directing him to leave Koorum for Ghuznee.—Nov. 8.—It is ascertained by an urzee from Sirdar Mohamed Auzim Khan, from Koonduz, that the Ambassador of the King of Kokan had arrived at Koonduz, and, having been stopped there for two days, had gone to Sirdar Mohamed Ufzul Khan. He had been asked about the Russian affair, on which he said he did not know anything that was going on there: it was all written in the letter which he had for Ufzul Khan. Intelligence was this day received from Bokhara, to the effect that the Ambassador of the King of Kokan had brought a letter from his master for the King of Bokhara, in which he stated that as he had been threatened by the Russians, he was under the necessity of asking aid from his friends. He begged of the King of Bokhara either to assist him against such a powerful enemy or to give him protection in Bokhara. The King of Bokhara had granted a valuable khillut to the Ambassador, and dismissed him with a reply to Kokan.—Nov. 9.—Sirdar Mohamed Ameer Khan wrote to the Ameer that the troops which had been despatched by Sirdar Sooltan Ahmed Jan of Heerat to Anar Durrah, en route to Kandahar, had been recalled, and that there was no more fear of any attack on Khandahar. It was rumoured at Heerat that the troops were going to march on Mamana and Murve Shah Jehan. The Ameer, having heard this, stated that he was very glad to hear that no one was coming to trouble his people in Kandahar, and ordered his camp to march to Jullalabad.—Nov. 10.—Sirdar Ahmed Khan, who with a battalion and three hundred sowars had gone to Toorkistan, returned this day to Cabool and went to pay his respects to the Ameer. The cause of his coming back to Cabool is attributed to his sickness. He has left his battalion and sowars with Mohamed Ufzul Khan, and had come alone with some sowars to Cabool.—Nov. 11.—Last night about eight, a sowar arrived from Toorkistan with a letter from Sirdar Mohamed Ufzul Khan. The following were the contents of the letter:—"Sirdar Sooltan Ahmed Jan, the ruler of Heerat, had sent his son, Sirdar Shere Ahmed Jan, with eight thousand sowars, ten guns, and four thousand Hazara Char Eemagh people, to go and punish Ubdoolah Khan Jumshadee. At first Shere Ahmed tried his best to bring Ubdoolah Khan to his senses, but when he saw that he was determined to fight, he (Shere Ahmed) ordered an attack. As they were firing from both sides, and Sheer Ahmed was leading the troops in person, a bullet from the enemy's rifle went through the mouth of Shere Ahmed, on which he breathed his last there and then. His body was immediately removed and taken care of by the Heeratees and sent to Heerat." As soon as the Ameer heard this melancholy news he began crying, and almost every one sympathised with his grief. All the Khans and Chiefs of Cabool waited on the Ameer to read the Fatiha (a prayer) for Shere Ahmed, who was a grandson of the Ameer. Letters have this day been received by merchants in Cabool from Bokhara, by which it is ascertained that the King of Bokhara is dead. The merchants generally receive their letters from Bokhara in eleven days, and so this news may be relied upon.—Nov. 12.—The following account of the death of the King of Bokhara was this day received by the Ameer in an Urzee from Sirdar Mohamed Ufzul Khan from Turkistan. On Thursday, the 2nd Rubbee-oos-sanee (18th October, 1860), about twelve at night, the King of Bokhara breathed his last. On Thursday it was kept a secret, and a letter was sent to the Heir Apparent, who was somewhere out, to make hasteto Bokhara. On Friday, the 3rd, the King's mother sent for the Mohtesib of the city (an officer who keeps the accounts), and ordered him to have it proclaimed in the city that the King of Bokhara had died, and that his son, Moozuffer Bahadoor Sooltan, was to succeed him. She further desired him to have the Khootba, or oration, to be read in the mosques in the name of Moozuffer Bahadoor. The usual preparations for the funeral having been made, the body of the King was removed from the palace and buried close to the tomb of his father Heidur Badshah. After the ceremony was over, the mother of the King, fearing any disturbance might take place, ordered a body of two thousand troops to be removed and encamped under the palace. All the chiefs of the city attended to read the Fataha (a prayer) and inquired of the mother of the King when the Heir Apparent was expected. On this she said that he would be at Bokhara in an hour or two. Moozuffer Bahadoor Sooltan, accompanied with about four thousand sowars, arrived in Bokhara on the 4th of Rubbee-oos-sanee (20th October), and went direct to his grandmother. After he had mourned for the irreparable loss of his father, he obtained permission from his grandmother to succeed to his father's throne. The Quazees, Molvees, and chiefs of the city were summoned, and having taken their advice, Moozuffer Bahadoor sat down on his father's throne. The prayers were read by the Quazees and Molvees for his long life and prosperity, musical instruments were played, and blessings were offered by the chiefs. Public letters were written to the different Hakims, informing them of all the accounts, and assuring them that they would be regarded and treated by Moozuffer Bahadoor as well as by the late King.—Nov. 13.—Letters were this day received by the Cabool merchants from Bokhara containing the following particulars about the death of the King. In Rubbee-ool-uwul (September), the King had been taken so dangerously ill that his wife (the sister of Sekundur Beg, Hakim of Shahursubz) had written to her brother Sekundur Beg, to the effect that the King of Bokhara had died, and that he was to lose no time in taking possession of as many places as he could. Sekundur Beg, with other Khans, rebelled, and gave out that the King of Bokhara was dead. Meer Urkutoolla, a chief in the vicinity of Summerkund, commenced plundering. The Hakim of Summerkund having been thus annoyed, wrote to the King of Bokhara, who was getting better by this time, that the people of Khatai Kubchank had given it out that the King was dead, and thus they were committing mischief all over the countries. No sooner did the King of Bokhara hear of this, than he ordered a letter to be written to the Hakim of Summerkund, requesting him to keep off the Kheitai Kubchank people as much as possible, and assuring him that he would soon leave Bokhara for Kurshee. The Hakim of Summerkund was greatly rejoiced to learn the welcome news that the King of Bokhara was doing well. After he, the Hakim of Summerkund, had received this letter from the King, the Khatai people again went to the Hakim, and told him that unless he obeyed them there would be no peace in the country. By this time the King of Bookhara had arrived at Kurshree, and had informed the Hakim that he would be soon at Summerkund. The Hakim told the Khatai Kubchah chiefs in reply that he would settle all the matters next day. The Hakim ordered all sorts of good eatables to be cooked, and invited all the Khatai chiefs and their followers to a feast. To play a trick and to catch the chiefs into the trap, the Hakim ordered two hundred of his strongest sepoys to be well armed, and to keep themselves hidden in his house. The Khatai chiefs, twenty-one in number, with about fifteen hundred of their followers, waited on the Hakim, who received them very warmly, and presented to them a good zeafat (feast). After they had done eating, the Hakim desired the chiefs to send their followers away to see the city, and then he would consult with them about the matter; accordingly the chiefs dismissed all their servants, and sat down with the Hakim in a private room. The tea was ordered to be brought and served out. While they were taking their tea the Hakim made a signal to his sepoys, who with great activity came and pinioned the ringleaders. The Hakim sent the chiefs to prison, and ordered a proclamation to be made in the city to the effect that the King of Bookhara was doing well, and was expected there shortly, and that all the Khatai chiefs had been taken prisoners. The moment this proclamation was made known in the city, the citizens began to fly; of the Khatai sepoys, a number were put to the sword, and many of them taken prisoners. The King of Bookhara having been informed of the above particulars, made haste to Summerkund, and on his arrival at the place ordered all the Khatai chiefs to be beheaded. Meer Urkut-oolla, with his family, was sent to Bookhara as prisoner. Having stayed three days in Summerkund the king proceeded to Shahursubz, where he caught and put to the sword Sekundur Beg, his brother-in-law, and his followers. The King also beheaded his own wife, who had been the chief cause of all these disturbances. Having thus suppressed the rebellion, and having seen order restored in the country, the King went to see his son, to whom he made the following speech:—"I have punished all the ringleaders, and turned out all the enemies from the country. When I am dead and gone, you should see that the rules and regulations of the State are carried on with the same power as they are during my time." The King of Bookhara returned to his capital, took fever, and four days after his arrival, departed this life.—Nov. 14.—The sons of Mohamed Shah Khan Ghilzie having asked their step-mother, an Ahmed Zai woman, to divide their father's wealth and property, which were kept buried by her in the Kashmum Fort, and having received a negative reply, took about one hundred sepoys, and went to-day to her house to kill her, and to take all her property. The woman being informed of this, sent notice to the Ameer, and to her brother. Her brother, with two hundred sepoys, made haste to the place. They were just going to fight when the Ameer's men arrived, and told the both parties to retire, saying that all Mohamed Shah's wealth and property were the Ameer's, who would do with it as he liked.—Nov. 15.—Sirdar Ismael Khan, the son of Sirdar Mohamed Ameen Khan, attended the durbar to ask the Ameer's leave to go to his father to Kandahar. The Ameer conferred upon him a valuable khillut, consisting of a pair of Cashmere shawls, a sword, cloak, and a piece of cloth, and ordered Mirza Mohamed Hosain Khan to accompany him and his family as far as Dai-pooree. This day being Friday, the Ameer, with his sons, and Sirdars Sooltan Mohamed Khan, Peer Mohamed Khan, Syd Mohamed Khan, and Mohamed Oosman Khan, went to Sirdar Gholam Mohamed Khan's house, and took their breakfast there. About evening the Ameer went to Shah Baugh, and after sunset returned to the palace.—Nov. 17.—Mirza Uskur Khan was ordered to write a letter to the son of Uzeez Khan Ghilzaie, to send two hundred of his sepoys to the Fort of Kashmund, and himself to keep a good watch on the Fort, until the arrival of the Ameer at Jellalabad.—Nov. 18.—An Urzee was this day received from Sirdar Mohamed Ufzul Khan from Shiburghan, to the effect that he was on the eve of leaving for Khanabad, situated near Mamana, when he was taken ill with fever, of which he has been suffering for the last seven days. On the perusal of the Urzee tears came into the Ameer's eyes, and he began to pray for Sirdar Ufzul Khan's recovery.—Nov. 19.—The Kohistanee people having quarrelled amongst themselves about paying the revenue, waited on the Ameer and begged of him to order that districts of Gool Bahar and Jumal Agha might be surveyed. The Moostoufee was accordingly ordered to send his men to survey the above-named places, and to settle the revenue accordingly.—Nov. 20.—The Ameer was very glad to learn from the Urzee of Sirdar Mohamed Ufzul Khan, received to-day, that on the ninth day he had got better, and that the fever had left him altogether. He also informed the Ameer that as soon as he was a little stronger he would march to Khanabad, and see the affairs of Mamana settled. Sirdar Shere Allee Khan informed the Ameer that the people of Sirdar Peer Mohamed Khan were cheating in the mint, and begged of the Ameer to make over the charge of the mint to him. The Ameer complied with his request, and desired Peer Mohamed Khan to give the charge of the mint to Shere Allee Khan.—Nov. 21.—A khillut was in this day's durbar granted to Sirdar Mohamed Ishak Khan, son of Sirdar Mohamed Auzim Khan, and the districts of Khoost and Koorum, &c., were given to him. Mirza Ubdoolrahsem Khan, the revenue collector of those places, was directed to obey Mohamed Ishak. The territories to Kuttah Awaz and Zoormut were made over to Mohamed Surwur Khan, and Mahomed Ukrum Khan, now in charge of those places, was desired to serve under him. Mohamed Ishak, with one hundred sowars, left Cabool for Koorum.—Nov. 22.—Five Loohoogury men were carrying some goods which they had purchased at the Cabool market; when they reached the Sung boundary they were attacked by ten thieves, who deprived them of all they had and killed one of them. The Mooseewar people, being informed of this, followed the thieves and overtook them at some distance from Sung. The thieves stood and made an attack on the Mooseewares, but as they were fifty, they immediately took them prisoners. Two of the thieves made their escape. They were this day brought before the Ameer, who ordered the thieves to be imprisoned and the Mooseewar people to be rewarded.—Nov. 23.—Sirdar Sooltan Mahomed Khan with his sons attended the durbar, and asked the Ameer's leave to go to Lughman. The Ameer embraced him, and read the prayer for his safe arrival at Lughman. He told him that he would also leave Cabool for Jullalabad shortly. Sirdars Peer Mohamed, and Syed Mahomed, accompanied Sooltan Mahomed as far as Seeyah Sung.—Nov. 26.—Shah Ghasee Sherdil Khan was this day directed by the Ameer to inform all the Sirdars and Khans of Cabool, who are to accompany the Ameer to Jullalabad, to get themselves ready, as he would leave Cabool on Friday morning. On this Sirdar Shere Allee Khan stated that he had some of his private accounts to be settled, which would take a month, and if the Ameer would be so kind as to grant him one month's leave, he would be much obliged. The Ameer complied with his request, desiring him not to make any more delay after the leave had expired.—Nov. 27.—The durbar was held as usual. All the Sirdars and Khans having attended, paid their respects. The Ameer bestowed upon Sirdar Wullee Mohamed Khan his son, a grand khillut and the hakamee (rulership) of Cabool during his absence from the capital. Turning towards Sirdar Syud Mohamed and Peer Mohamed, the Ameer asked them if they would go with him to Jullalabad? "They were quite ready to do so," was the reply of the Sirdars.—Nov. 28.—No public durbar to-day. Every one busy in making purchases to take to Jullalabad. Saddles and horses brought a good price in the market on this occasion.—Delhi Gazette,

NAVAL.

PASSAGE MONEY TO OFFICERS, I.N.

Bombay Castle, Dec. 12.—No. 192.—The foll. mily. gen. orders are made applicable to the Indian navy:—

No. 444, dated July 16, 1860.—The passage money specified in Articles 185 and 186, Section XLIV. Jameson's Code, will, in future, only be paid to officers ordered to proc. to England by the Cape route, on m.c.

Other officers entitled to free passage to England will be provided therewith by the overland route on application to the brigd. maj., Queen's troops, or to the asst. qrmr. gen., Bombay.

No. 452, dated July 20, 1860.—The G.O. No. 444, dated 16th inst., refers equally to officers of H.M.'s British and Indian armies. Those prog. by the overland route, who may be entitled to free passage, according to existing regs., will be provided with a passage instead of receiving passage money, as heretofore.

Applications by officers of the British army should be made to the brig. maj., H.M.'s British forces, and those by officers of the Indian army to the asst. qrmr. gen. at the presy.

The former applications, if endorsed by the brig. maj. as correct, will be forwarded by him to the asst. qrmr. gen. at the presy. for compliance; and it will be the duty of the latter officer to apply to the Admiralty agent in Bombay, for passage in the P. and O. Compy.'s vessels at the contract rates, to the extent of eight first-class passages in each overland steamer, if requisite.

Applications for first-class passages beyond that number in any one steamer should be made by the asst. qrmr. gen. direct to the P. and O. company's agent in Bombay, on the ordinary terms.

Dated Nov. 9.—No. 643.—The following G. O. by the Govt. of India, dated Fort William, Oct. 28, 1860 (No. 1,051), is republished:—

"The following paragraphs of a military letter from the Rt. Hon. the Sec. of State for India, No. 357 of the 14th ult., are published for general information:—

"I have lately expressed to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty a wish that the Admiralty agents at the respective presidencies should receive instructions to provide the officers of H.M.'s Indian forces returning to this country with contract passages when required to do so by competent authority. Their lordships have been pleased to comply with this request, and have instructed the senior officer of H.M.'s ships and vessels of the East India station accordingly."

The number of passages at the contract rate, which can be ordered by any one packet, is at present limited to eight, for officers of the army and navy combined.

Superint.'s Office, Bombay, Dec. 17.—Mr. L. J. L. Freyre, captain's clerk on board the Semiramis, is to be transf. to the Ajdaha, to fill a vacancy.

Mr. Midshipman Wilson, of the Clive, brought in by the Zenobia, from Singapore, to be discharged to the former vessel.

Bombay Castle, Dec. 18.—No. 193.—Actg. Lieut. F. Warden, I.N., is permitted to proceed to Calcutta, prep. to furl. to Eur. on m.c.

No. 195.—The following temp. arrangements and appts. are confirmed:—

By Commodore G. G. Wellesley, C. in C. of the I.N.

Actg. Lieut. W. H. Ogilvy, supernu. on board the Semiramis, to reside on shore at the sanatorium m.c., from Nov. 28, 1860.

Aden Squadron Orders.—Lieut. E. Peavor, comdg. the Lady Canning, to reside on shore, on m.c., from Nov. 9.

Lieut. S. Child, of the Punjab, to the command of the Lady Canning, from Nov. 9.

Dec. 19.—No. 196.—Returned to duty on 13th inst.: Mr. J. A. Keys, purser I.N., and dep. conservator of forests.

No. 197.—The following mil. G.O. is made applicable to the Indian navy:—

No. 156.—The Right Hon. the Gov. in Council is pleased to republish the foll. G.O. by the Government of India, dated Feb. 14, No. 160:—

Superint.'s Office, Bombay, Dec. 18.—Actg. Lieut. F. Dawkins, of the Semiramis, is permitted to reside on shore, out of the sanatorium, m.c.

Mr. Midshipman Dawes, of the Semiramis, is to be transferred to the Goolanar, for passage, to join the Euphrates.

Mr. Greig, midshipman of the Semiramis, is to be discharged to the Ajdaha for study.

Dec. 20.—Mr. S. T. S. Lecky, having passed the required exam. on 8th inst. at Kurrachee, was appt. actg. 1st class 2nd master, and attached to H.M.'s tender Indus, from 10th inst.

Mr. R. H. Carr, 3rd class engr. supernu. attached to the Ajdaha, is to be transf. to the dredging vessel.

The following appts. are to take place:—

Lieut. Sedley fr. the Clive to com. of the Victoria, Commander Drought, fr. the shore, to the com. of the Clive.

Dec. 22.—The underment. midshipmen of the vessels stated opposite to their names are to be transf. to the Hugh Rose:—

Mr. F. W. Fry, Mr. S. Smith, Punjab.

Mr. G. E. Moultrie, Clive.

Mr. C. J. Whiting is appt. clerk in charge of the Hugh Rose, in add. to his du. as actg. chief clerk in the civil branch.

Dec. 24.—Mr. W. Brown, having passed the required exam. is appt. actg. 1st class 2nd mast., and attached to the Victoria for passage, to join the Indus flotilla.

Dec. 26.—Asst. surg. Alleyne, having reported himself for du. in the I.N., was directed to join the Clive on 24th inst.

Musketry Instruction.

Poona, Dec. 10.—The C. in C. observes, that in opposition to H.M.'s regulations, the musketry instruction of some regiments is not sufficiently carried on; under one pretext or another, many days are lost to the musketry instructor by the brigade and regimental arrangements at a few stations.

It is to be understood from henceforth that what is called the brigade holiday in this Presidency is not to interfere with the musketry instruction.

Officers commanding divisions and brigades are requested to pay particular attention to the effective carrying out of H.M.'s regulations in respect of musketry in the fullest sense, and to see that companies when in the hands of the instructors are not diverted to division or brigade field days, except on extraordinary occasions.

When the season of practice comes to an end, a list of regiments will be published showing their respective proficiency in the use of the rifle. H.E. is compelled to remark that at present most of the regiments in this command are much below the average, as shown by the returns of the last six months. He trusts this will be corrected by the attention of commanding officers and the assiduity of the men during the current practice season.

Bombardier and acting laboratory man J. Robinson, attached to the Ordnance dept., is remanded to the regt. of artillery in the rank he held previous to his transfer to that dept., and will join the company of artillery at Sholapore, pending the orders of the commandant as to his disposal.

GREAT SOUTHERN OF INDIA RAILWAY.—From a report of the state of the works on the 30th of September last, by Mr. Carr, the company's engineer-in-chief, it appears that there is still considerable difficulty in getting a sufficient supply of labour on the line, but the progress of the works had been steady and satisfactory, so much so as to draw from the Government consulting engineer a most favourable report, upon which the Governor in Council passed the following minute:—"The Government have to express their satisfaction at the progress made in the works of the Great Southern of India Railway, which Captain Johnston considers to be most satisfactory and highly creditable to the engineer department." One-half of the brickwork had been completed, five eighths of the earthwork, twelve miles of fencing. Eight miles of permanent way were laid, and 50,000 cubic yards of ballast were in place. Great care has been taken to keep down the cost as much as possible, and no exceptional local circumstances have been allowed to interfere with the uniform tariff of wages adopted. The iron girders sent out to be used in those situations where brick or stone were inapplicable were being fixed on the piers previously prepared for them. Four locomotive engines had been safely landed, and one was ready to commence running with permanent way materials and ballast. It is proposed to open the first section for traffic in May next, and the whole line from Negapatam to Trichinopoly in September. The staff was reported to be all in good health.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

INDIAN PRIZE MONEY.

THE order has at last gone forth for the distribution of the Delhi and Lucknow prize money. It cannot be said that "the authorities" have displayed any undue precipitation in arriving at this decision. Three years and a-half will have elapsed after the achievement of the feats of arms, the substantial fruits of which are now about to be realised, before any one of the gallant men who took part in them will obtain his share of the spoils, so hardly won and so long withheld. However, it is some satisfaction that even tardy justice will be done to the armies engaged in the recovery of those two great cities. It is only to be regretted that the capture of Kirwee is not yet to be rewarded in a similar manner. A most valuable booty was there obtained, so valuable, indeed, as to tempt the Government to an act of positive dishonesty. As to the amount realised by the sale of the bars of silver, jewels, &c., &c., there is no question of its ultimate distribution, though a strange difference of opinion exists as to what parties are entitled to it. One would suppose that one principle is applicable to all such cases. If the Delhi force is to have the Delhi money, and the Lucknow force the Lucknow money, General Whitlock's column is clearly entitled to the Kirwee money. But it is now suggested that as there was little or no fighting on the occasion, these spoils should be frittered away among the entire forces engaged in the operations against the mutineers. The justice of such a plea cannot for a moment be admitted, nor do we imagine that the army generally would approve of such a precedent. Indeed, the conduct of the Government from first to last in the matter of prize money has not been such as to induce any soldiery hereafter to desist from helping themselves to whatever falls in their way, instead of contributing it to a common fund. But there is another point connected with the Kirwee plunder that is especially deserving of reprobation. Government paper, to the value of nearly one million sterling, came into the possession of the victorious army, but is withheld from them on the ground that, being the property of two minors, it was held in trust by a Government agent. Does the Government, then, purpose to restore it to those minors on attaining their majority? For this there might be some justification, and at any rate it would clear the Government of the imputation of being actuated by base motives. But it is generally believed that no such intention exists, and that this enormous sum will simply be declared forfeited to the State, and the public debt reduced to that extent. It will give us unfeigned pleasure to learn that we have been misinformed on this head.

REORGANISATION OF THE INDIAN ARMY.

THE Royal Warrant has been signed constituting the new staff corps for India, and by the last Bombay mail orders were despatched to the Supreme Government for the reorganisation of the Indian army. Until the publication of these documents it will, of course, be impossible to give the full details of this very important measure; but, in the mean time, the following information will prove interesting to many of our readers, and, so far as it goes, may be perfectly relied upon. The artillery belonging to the three Presidencies will continue, as at present, separate from one another, and from the royal artillery. No new appointments to them, however, will be made, but they will be suffered to die out—gradually becoming less and less efficient, until the last man will have the melancholy satisfaction of gazing upon the guns he can no longer work. Any artillery officer desirous of volunteering for general service will be permitted to gratify his professional ardour, though without any other advantage to himself. The engineers will be treated in precisely the same manner as the artillery. The European cavalry and infantry of the Bengal Presidency will each be incorporated into four regiments, three of which will be for general, and one for local service—notwithstanding the assertion that a local force was sure to be ill-disciplined and to become demoralised from the feeling of recklessness produced by a life-long exile. The present officers will be placed on general lists, and be allowed to choose for themselves whether they shall be appointed to the local or the general service corps. Should any officer express a wish to be attached to the regiment representing the one to which he now belongs, that wish will be acceded to. The general service corps, whether horse or foot, will be organised in every respect like line regiments, and will be numbered as such, but promotion will go by seniority alone—it being, therefore, impossible for officers of regiments where promotion goes also by purchase to exchange into these. The Bengal general service corps will retain their designation of Bengal Fusiliers, and also their colours inscribed with the names of the exploits they have performed in Indian warfare. The arrangements for the two other Presidencies will be similar to those for Bengal.

All the officers of the native army will be formed into a General Staff Corps, from which will be selected six officers for every foot regiment, and four for every cavalry regiment—exclusive of the medical officer—the irregular system being adopted in both branches of the service. The list of general officers of the Indian army will not be affected by these changes, but the number of regimental colonels will be necessarily somewhat reduced.

A VOICE FROM RAVENSWOOD.

ANOTHER appeal to the charity of Anglo-Indians, or, rather, to the sagacious philanthropy of all Englishmen, is now being made under the auspices of the present excellent Bishop of Calcutta. So numerous have been, and still are, the "crying wants" of India, that people have become callous, and are apt to turn a deaf ear to every fresh call upon their benevolence. At one time the great "crying want" was a Bishop of the North-Western Provinces, but under the active superintendence of the present Metropolitan that need is at least not urgent. It is now some twelve months since we had occasion to notice in terms of approbation Dr. Cotton's first Charge to the clergy of his diocese, and it is admitted on all sides that his lordship has never once fallen short of the sanguine expectations then formed of his episcopate. The multifarious duties of his exalted position have invariably been discharged with an enlightened zeal that has carefully avoided any unnecessary offence to the feelings of others, and with a high moral courage that has never flinched from doing what was right. His lordship's latest movement is on behalf of the unfortunate children of Eurasians and comparatively poor Europeans. There can be no doubt, to use the bishop's own words, "that the conduct and character of the Christians settled among the natives must have the most direct influence on their estimate of Christianity and Western civilization. If a generation calling itself Christian, and descended wholly or partly from European parents, grow up in ignorance and evil habits, the effect on the Heathen and Mahomedan population will be most disastrous." This is a postulate which no man in his senses would venture to gainsay; but then the question presents itself—How is this evil to be prevented? No one who has ever resided in India for ever so short a period can have failed to remark the ignorance and dissolute habits of the generality of the Keranee class, and if the parents are deficient in information and morality it is obvious that their children will be still more so. The course to be pursued is sufficiently intelligible. The rising generation must be separated from those whose evil example is likely to act unfavourably on their plastic dispositions. In the case of Europeans this separation recommends itself likewise on physical grounds. It is affirmed, on tolerably good evidence, that in the plains the pure European race cannot be propagated beyond the third generation, and it is an indisputable fact that the offspring deteriorate even in the second. In the Hills, however, it is not so. There may be seen fine strapping lads and comely damsels, such as would gladden the heart of an English mother in the healthiest parts of Devonshire, or in those northern counties whence spring the stalwart heroes who are alike the terror of the foe and the delight of nurserymaids in our London Parks. But how shall a clerk with a salary of £120 to £240 a year, and a large family to bring up, send his children to the distant Hills, when the journey alone will cost him half of a month's pay? And how much less will he be able to pay three to four pounds a month for the maintenance of each child after its arrival in those health-giving mountains? It is an utter impossibility, and so fully is this impossibility recognised by parents, that they resign themselves to it without a struggle, and flatter themselves with having done their duty by their little ones when they have furnished them with sufficient food and clothing. The result is told in the letter of a Divisional Commissioner to the Bishop's Chaplain. Boys and girls grow up "among native servants, in most cases picking up a very imperfect acquaintance with the English language, but too well instructed in things which it would be better if they never knew." Another Commissioner is still more emphatic.

"As the seat of Government," he says, "Allahabad has drawn to itself the miscellaneous homeless Christian population, whom the rebellion rendered dependent on the Government or on charity. Among these are widows and orphans of mixed blood, who, in many cases, speak Hindustani only: a large and much neglected class. There are persons so ignorant of the first principles of Christianity (though nominally Christians) as to be utterly unable to teach their children. There are no schools for them. No one has time to do more than relieve their temporal wants, and the consequence is that many lapse into Mahomedanism, or lead lives which shock the professors of any religious belief. We are utterly helpless as dealing with this evil. Many cases have come under my notice in consequence of applications for pensions, where husbands and fathers were killed during the mutiny, in which whole families of children, unable to speak a word of English, and utterly uninstructed, growing up in the city among Mahomedans and idolaters, are learning all that is bad. The probable future of the girls especially is painful to contemplate."

These premises being established, the good bishop at once applied himself to find a remedy for such a spreading and monstrous disease in the Indian social system. At the outset, however, he was met by the inability of the class in question to help themselves, except to a very limited extent. Some few, indeed, could pay as much as fifteen rupees a month for the entire maintenance and education of a boy, but the majority could not exceed ten, or even six rupees per mensem. Nothing remained, then, but to implore the co-operation of those who are entrusted with a larger share of worldly goods. Accordingly, on the 23rd of July, 1859, the day set apart for a general Thanksgiving for the suppression of the mutinies, the considerable sum of £3,500—including a munificent donation of £1,000 from the Viceroy—was contributed by men of all ranks "for the foundation of a public school at some station in the Himalayas, as a thank-offering to Almighty God and permanent memorial of the great deliverance then commemorated." It is now proposed to complement this fund by private donations, and hereafter by a Government grant-in-aid, until the means are procured for the erection of the necessary school-buildings, with a chapel for the use of the scholars within the school precincts. It is further suggested that there should be two classes of payment, and as soon as possible a girls' department,—the whole under the care of a clergyman of the Church of England. Local day-schools will also, hereafter, be opened at large stations for the education of the children of the humbler class of Christian residents, and a beginning has already been made in two cities in the Punjab. It is needless to offer any additional comments on behalf of a work of such self-evident utility, or rather of such imperative necessity. The season may not be the most opportune for making an appeal to public benevolence, when such heart-rending destitution cries for immediate aid at our very doors; but, after all, it is but a slight sacrifice that any one is called upon to make. Who grudges ten shillings for a pit-ticket at the Opera? How few deny themselves the luxury of a stall-seat? But the price of either for only one night would be a valuable contribution to the "Indian Public Schools Fund." Some perhaps will give more, some much less, but all can spare something from their store, and even the widow's mite was blessed to the donor.

Donations and subscriptions forwarded to the proprietors of this journal will be duly acknowledged, and remitted without delay to the Bishop and Archdeacon of Calcutta.

GOVERNING BY THE PEN.

It has been said of Philip II. of Spain that he governed by the pen far more than by the sceptre or the sword. His military power was truly formidable, and such as in ordinary circumstances would have instilled both respect into foreign States and awe into his own oppressed subjects. Not less potent in its way was the prestige of hereditary sovereignty, supported, as it was, by the authority of the Church. But these mighty bulwarks were sapped and undermined by Philip's jealous and officious interference with every department of the Government. There was nothing, in his eyes, too great for his capacity—nothing too small for his suspicion. Though it was physically impossible for him to superintend the execution of every ordinance of the State, or the carrying out of every decree that issued from his secretariat, there was no reason, he imagined, why these ordinances and decrees should not proceed direct and solely from himself. His secretaries, it is true, copied them, but he never dreamed of consulting any one as to their tone and purport—unless it were his father confessor. Thus he ruled all things by the pen, and the consequence was precisely what might have been predicated by any man of average abilities and common sense. The absence of all moral responsibility reduced the governors of provinces, the nobles, and, indeed, all men placed in authority, to mere machines, that acted according to the motive power brought to bear upon them, without any thought or care as to the wisdom or propriety of their actions. That whole provinces should revolt under such a sway was no more surprising than that gigantic enterprises should miserably fail and fall far short of the conception of their originator. Nor did the evil terminate with his own reign. The general demoralisation had become not only widely spread, but also deeply rooted, so that when Philip himself passed away from the life he had misunderstood and misapplied, there was no one capable of vigorous thought, or prompt, energetic action. And so the Spanish empire fell as a rotten pear, and was smashed into a shapeless mass of corruption.

The lesson is not without its application at the present day. There is an empire even now wholly governed by the pen, and whose ministers have little beyond the gorgeous trappings and semblance of rank. What is there too vast, or too minute, for the genius of a Secretary of State for India?—for it is against the system, and not against any particular individual, that we direct these remarks. A Nasmyth's hammer can crack a filbert, or wield the destructive force of "many waters." The trunk of the elephant can pick up a pin, or pull up a tree; but no one man has the capacity to rule 150 millions of people, varying among themselves in language, origin, creed, and customs, and at the same time attending to every whim and fancy of every individual. Sir Charles Trevelyan complained, and with good reason, that the Governor of Madras was nothing more than a head clerk in a Government office. That is exactly his position, but not thus will India ever be governed with advantage to its teeming population, or with honour to the paramount power. Crushed beneath a "monumental load" of details, the ablest statesman must inevitably fail to have time, or elasticity of mind, for the elaboration of a large, liberal, and practical policy. At present his attention is distracted by the most insignificant inquiries from his "head clerks" at Calcutta, Madras, or Bombay, and the sun that is intended to give light and life to a world is cut up into little stars to suit the love-sick fancies of a Juliet. It is almost inconceivable to what extent this microscopic surveillance of trifles has already been developed. One instance out of many occurs to us, but not a whit more striking than hundreds of similar cases. Twelve months ago we read in the Madras papers that a European officer of the native army, having lately invalided, had turned his attention to the cultivation of coffee and agricultural pursuits in the Neilgherries. For this purpose he proposed to purchase a tract of land belonging to Government, but suggested that the rate of redemption of the assessment should be reduced from twenty to ten years' purchase. It also appears that the collector of the district, through whom the negotiation was primarily conducted, made a proposal that the purchase-money should be paid in two instalments, at an interval of five years. Prima facie the local Government were fully justified in declining to have anything to do with such an arrangement, but whether they were right or wrong the entire responsibility should have rested exclusively upon their shoulders. If the Government of Madras cannot be entrusted with the settlement of such a question as this, of what earthly use are they supposed to be? If their business is merely to conduct such insignificant negotiations conditionally, the work might be done at very much less cost, and quite as efficiently as at present. Their provisional answer in this case was a negative; whereupon the officer in question seems to have relinquished his project, and to have come home. This, however, is a matter of very little consequence to any one save himself, but it concerns the public interests that all this bargaining and higgling should have been brought in regular course—that is, after the lapse of several months, and after the return of the officer to England—to the notice of the Secretary of State for India. Sir Charles Wood is acknowledged, even by his opponents, to be a conscientious, hard-working, self-reliant man, and is therefore likely to have bestowed some time and thought upon the question whether or not Major So-and-so should be allowed to purchase a piece of waste land on the mountains at such or such a price?—Major So-and-so being probably engaged at that hour in sauntering down the fashionable street of some provincial town in England, in happy forgetfulness of all his Eastern speculations. The result of Sir Charles Wood's lucubrations and inquiries was the confirmation of the decision arrived at some months previously by the Governor of Madras, who, moreover, had since then been recalled. No wonder it is the Secretary to the local Government, who, in fact, governs each Presidency. Imagine the hopeless disgust and bewilderment of any man possessed of self-respect and real ability on receiving a despatch from his mighty chief at home, telling him that his predecessor was quite right not to take five rupees where he could get ten. This would be ridiculous enough, but how much more absurd would it have been had Sir Charles Wood quashed Sir Charles Trevelyan's judgment, and sent out orders that Major So-and-so was to have the land on his own terms. The Governor in Council would then have desired the Commissioner to intimate to the Collector to inform the Major that his suggestion had been approved of; whereupon the Collector would ask the Commissioner to request the Governor in Council to make known to the Secretary of State for India in Council that Major So-and-so had abandoned his coffee scheme and left the country. Clearly it is no proper part of the business of a Secretary of State to interfere in such paltry matters. There is enough, and far more than enough, of public business to occupy every moment of the day, without descending to the particulars of private transactions with the local Governments. Let the practice of Philip II. and the fate of Spain be a warning to all rulers who would make their subordinates a mere body of copying clerks, without forethought, judgment, or public responsibility.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO PARENTS GOING ABROAD.—A LADY residing on the coast of North Devon is desirous of meeting with ONE or TWO CHILDREN to educate with her own, aged 4½ and 7 years. The house is large, and in a sheltered situation, close to a private beach. An efficient resident governess, all the luxuries of a farm house, combined with a gentleman's establishment, and a mother's care, are among the advantages offered. The highest references will be given and required.

Address W. G. T., Hands' Library, Clapham Common.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—A LADY (the Daughter of a Clergyman) residing at Notting-hill, being entrusted with the care of Two Little Girls, the children of an Officer in the Indian Army, is anxious to meet with ONE or TWO more as companions in study. The greatest attention would be paid to their comfort and happiness, as well as to impart a useful and solid education.

For terms, &amp;c., apply to M. E., care of Mr. Spalding, bookseller, Notting-hill. The highest references can be given.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—A MARRIED OFFICER, who has been obliged to leave the Service on account of ill-health, wishes to RECEIVE TWO PUPILS to live with him and his wife. His entire time would be given up to them, and every care taken of their comfort and education. The highest references can be given.

Address H. J., care of C. Skirrow, Esq., 1, Bedford-row, Bloomsbury.

PRIVATE TUITION.—Stanley St. Leonard's, near Stonehouse, Gloucestershire, a healthy village, about one mile from the Great Western and Midland Railways. The Rev. R. M. HUTCHINS, M.A., of Trinity College, Cambridge, who has been engaged in tuition for many years, RECEIVES into his house TEN YOUNG GENTLEMEN, who are treated as members of his family. A well-qualified native teacher of the French language, and skilful drawing, music, and drilling masters in regular attendance. Instruction also in the German language, by a native, if required. Terms according to age. Mr. H. has no parochial charge. The Officers of the Army in India, and others resident in that country, would find Mr. H.'s Establishment an eligible one for their sons. The most satisfactory references to the parents of present and former pupils, both in England and in India.

ADDISCOMBE DIRECT APPOINTMENTS, and WOOLWICH.

The Rev. C. J. HUGHES, M.A., who has Prepared nearly TWO HUNDRED PUPILS for the above, occasionally has VACANCIES.

HORSE GUARDS, October 12, 1860.

His Royal Highness the General Commanding-in-Chief has been pleased to sanction the publication of "A Manual of Military Law," by Colonel Pison, Assistant Adjutant-General to the Forces, which he considers will be a most useful addition to the books required by regulation to be in the possession of the Officers of the Army. It contains much instructive matter.

PREFACE.

The Mutiny Act and Articles of War having undergone considerable amendment in the present Session of Parliament, it has appeared to the authors a fitting opportunity to lay before the military profession a concise treatise on the laws under which they serve.

In so doing they have not confined their attention to Courts-martial, but have endeavoured to provide the soldier of every rank and every service with the means of ascertaining his privileges as well as his duties and liabilities.

The Acts relating to the Militia have all been enumerated, but their bulk renders it impossible to give them at length in a work like the present. The Government having pledged themselves to consolidate the Militia laws next Session, perhaps there may then be some hope of presenting them to the reader in a comprehensive form. The Militia Bill of the present session, as it introduces some new and important provisions, is given at length in the Appendix.

A full abstract of the Laws affecting Volunteers and Yeomanry Corps occupies a separate chapter, and the Act whereby they are enabled to acquire lands for practice grounds (which at the time these words are written is yet before Parliament), will likewise be added.

A shorter and more popular notice of these Acts might have been more agreeable to the majority of readers, but in the hope of making this book useful as a book of reference, not only to Volunteers, but to magistrates and other civil dignitaries, it has been deemed more advantageous to ensure accuracy by quoting the words of the enactments, than by curtailment to risk the omission of important matter. Any reader disinclined to peruse the Acts at length, may find any subject on which he desires to inform himself by reference to the Index.

The question of Tolls on the Metropolitan Bridges having lately excited some controversy, a notice of the exemption clauses in the several Acts will be found in the Appendix, where also the late General Order relative to retired pay to Adjutants of Volunteers has been subjoined.

The authors feel that they owe some apology for publishing a law book in the present novel form; but after much consideration and many friendly suggestions, they have preferred to compress matter which would well have filled a more bulky volume, into this handy and inexpensive shape, in order to bring it within the reach of every one.

Before concluding this preface, the authors are bound to record their obligations to that very useful and elaborate work, "Hough's Military Precedents," without the assistance of which their labour would have been much extended. They have also to acknowledge the assistance of "Simmons on Courts-martial;" "D'Aguilar on Courts-martial;" and H. B. Thompson's "Military Forces of Great Britain."

A COURSE OF MATHEMATICS,

PURE AND MIXED,

More especially designed for the Use of Candidates for the MILITARY &amp; CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

WITH A VARIETY OF PROBLEMS IN, AND PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS OF THE FOLLOWING SUBJECTS:

1. ALGEBRA, TRIGONOMETRY, AND MENSURATION.
2. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (CONIC SECTIONS), STATICS, DYNAMICS, AND HYDROSTATICS.
3. THE DIFFERENTIAL AND INTEGRAL CALCULUS with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c., &c.

The object of this work is to furnish Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations with such a practical knowledge of Pure and Mixed Mathematics as may prove most serviceable to them in the course of the ordeal to which they are about to be subjected. On such occasions a mere theoretical acquaintance with principles is by no means sufficient. It is also necessary that the young aspirant should have been trained by actual experiments, as it were, to the application of the abstract rules, the enunciation of which he has otherwise mastered only by an effort of memory. To assist him in thus gathering the fruits of his intellectual industry, Mr. J. R. YOUNG has devised a multitude of problems of greater or less difficulty, in Algebra, Trigonometry, Mensuration, Analytical Geometry (Conic Sections), Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, the Differential and Integral Calculus, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. The chief peculiarity of this work, however, is one that will recommend it to a very large class of students. The most difficult questions are rendered comparatively easy, by the practical simplifications that are introduced in their mode of solution. Instead of a pompous and puzzling display of technical phraseology, the utmost care has been taken to explain the most knotty points in a plain, unaffected manner, intelligible to every ordinary capacity. In this respect, Mr. YOUNG'S "Course of Mathematics" will be found to possess a decided superiority over all preceding works on the same subject.

ROYAL INSURANCE BUILDINGS, LIVERPOOL.

CHAIRMAN OF THE LONDON BOARD.

SAMUEL BAKER, Esq.

CHAIRMAN IN LIVERPOOL.

CHARLES TURNER, Esq.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY

Is one of the largest Fire Offices in the Kingdom.

At the Annual Meeting held in August, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the large accessions of business made annually through a long series of years, which obviously increase the difficulty of further advances, yet the Fire Premiums of the year 1859 rise above those of the preceding year by a larger sum than has been obtained by the increase of any single year since the formation of the Company, excepting the year 1853—disclosing an advance of 50 per cent. in three years.

The following figures exhibit the progress of the whole Fire Branch, running over the last ten years:—

	Total Premium received.	Inc. of the year above each preceding one.
1850	£44,027 10 0	49,557 19 8
1852	76,925 4 2	24,251 18 3
1854	128,459 11 4	15,895 7 0
1856	151,733 9 6	21,672 17 7
1858	196,149 2 6	21,098 17 10
1859	228,314 7 8	32,166 4 9

LIFE BUSINESS.

The Directors desire to call the especial attention of the Proprietors to the statements of the LIFE BRANCH of the establishment.

The Actuary's Report on this subject is accompanied by an Appendix containing the fullest particulars of the investigations made, and is illustrated by TWO COLOURED DIAGRAMS, which make plain to the unprofessional eye the mortality experienced by the "ROYAL," as indicated by curved lines, which contrast most favourably with the former averages of mortality, also displayed on the diagrams.

It is expected that these elucidations will attract a deep and profitable attention to the subject of Life Assurance in the minds of tens of thousands who have hitherto given no heed to its principles and advantages.

The BONUS apportioned to the assured, with participation, amounts to £2 per cent. per annum, to be added to the original sum assured of every Participating Policy effected previously to the 1st of January, 1858, for each entire year that it had been in existence since the last appropriation of BONUS thereon, and is ONE OF THE LARGEST BONUSES EVER DECLARED.

COMMANS'S CELEBRATED ARECA-

NUT TOOTH-PASTE is used by her Majesty and the Royal Family.—Has been examined, approved, is used and recommended, by many of our first physicians and dentists as the best preparation known for cleaning and preserving the teeth. Testimonials have been received, unsolicited, from many of the nobility and gentry. The following is amongst the many in testimony of its high value.

"Liverpool, August, 1859.

"I have much pleasure in offering my testimony to the value of your Areca-nut Tooth Paste, and have no hesitation in saying that it is the most efficacious and agreeable Dentifrice ever produced. I have recommended its use to my patients for some years.

"W. J. NEWMAN,

"Surgeon-Dentist to the Liverpool Infirmary for Children." Prepared only by COMMANS, Chemist, Bath, in pots, 2s. each; to be procured of all Chemists, through the Wholesale Agents, Barclay, Edwards, London; Oldham and Co., Dublin; Duncan and Flockhart, Edinburgh.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, SET in the new

CHEMICALLY PREPARED INDIA-RUBBER, forming a beautifully fitting plate to the gums, or over stumps, without producing the slightest pain, and on this plan it is impossible to detect them as artificial when the workmanship is of superior order. Mr. BRADSHAW can, with the greatest confidence, undertake any case, no matter how difficult, with certain success, being a thoroughly practical workman, supplying for many years the first dentists of the day with their most particular work in Artificial Teeth. Doing all his own work himself, he is enabled to supply his patients at an exceedingly moderate price. Single Tooth, from 3s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.; a Complete Upper or Lower Set, from £2 to £5. Mr. Bradshaw, Dentist, 20, Great Portland-street, Oxford-circus.

DELICACY OF THE LUNGS.

MR. JEFFREY'S RESPIRATORS.

SUFFERERS from Disorders in the Organs of Respiration are warned of the fact, unquestionably true, that without the aid of RESPIRATORS, rightly employed, it is not possible that justice can be done to their cases; and that the only real Respirators being those for which this name was introduced by the original inventor, Mr. JEFFREY, it is in the last degree imprudent to place any reliance on spurious articles assuming the name.

Wholesale Agency for "MR. JEFFREY'S RESPIRATOR," Mr. WILLIAM TWEDDIE, 337, Strand, London, W.C.

MUMFORD'S CONCENTRATED

VEGETABLE ESSENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER.

The Cordial Essence, which is now taken in preference to all other preparations of Ginger, not only from its agreeable flavour, but from the value and certainty of its effects, will be found most useful in all cases of indigestion, spasms, heartburn, diarrhoea, irritability of the bowels, and in most nervous affections. To invalids suffering with impaired digestion from long residence in warm climates, and to those who are proceeding to India, this preparation cannot be too strongly recommended.

Prepared only by GEORGE MUMFORD, Chemist, 5, Bathurst-street, Hyde-park-gardens, and sold by all Chemists, in bottles at 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each; also in large stoppered bottles, for foreign use, at 21s.

TO LATE RESIDENTS IN INDIA.—

TRUE MADRAS CURRY and MULLIGATAWNEY PASTE and CHUTNIES.—Messrs. BARRIE and Co., Vepery, Madras, to enable their old correspondents returning from India to continue the use of the celebrated Condiments, have made arrangements to forward regular supplies of the above, packed in glass jars for family use, at 1s. 9d. and upwards, which may be had of CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Purveyors to Her Majesty, 21, Soho-square; FORNUM, MASON, & Co., Piccadilly; and of the Principal Sauce Vendors throughout the Kingdom. Each bottle is labelled, and BARRIE and Co., Madras, stamped on the glass.

BLAIR'S GOUT &amp; RHEUMATIC PILLS.

Price 1s. 1d. and 2s. 9d. per box.

This preparation is one of the benefits which the science of modern chemistry has conferred upon mankind; for during the first twenty years of the present century to speak of a cure for the gout was considered a romance; but now the efficacy and safety of this medicine is so fully demonstrated by unsolicited testimonials from persons in every rank of life, that public opinion proclaims this as one of the most important discoveries of the present age. These Pills require no restraint of diet or confinement during their use, and are certain to prevent the disease attacking any vital part.

Sold by all medicine vendors. Observe "Thomas Prout, 229, Strand, London," on the Government stamp.

DINNEFORD'S PURE FLUID MAGNE-

SIA has been, during twenty-five years, emphatically sanctioned by the Medical Profession, and universally accepted by the Public, as the Best Remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion, and as a Mild Aperient for delicate constitutions, more especially for Ladies and Children. Combined with the Acidulated Lemon Syrup, it forms an agreeable Effervescent Draught, in which its Aperient qualities are much increased. During Hot Seasons, and above all, in Hot Climates, the regular use of this simple and elegant remedy has been found highly beneficial.

Manufactured with the utmost attention to strength and purity by DINNEFORD & Co., 172, New Bond-street, London; and sold by all respectable Chemists throughout the Empire.

NO ICE REQUIRED to produce common

Ice, Dessert Ices, to Ice Wines, &c., in SIMPSON'S NEW PATENT FREEZING VASE.—This Apparatus is, without exception, the most efficacious, simple, and portable ever produced. By using the Patented Freezing Powder, Dessert Ices and Common Ice can be frozen by the most inexperienced, in a few minutes, on the table, or in an invalid's apartment. Residents and travellers in hot climates will find it invaluable, as it produces that luxury—Ice!—at command, and only occupies the space of an ordinary hat-case.

Prices: one pint, Four Guineas; three pints, Five Guineas. Freezing Powder, 34s. per cwt. Freezing Pots, Ice Moulds &c., &c.

SODA-WATER, &amp;c.—Use the "Seltzogene"

(solely of one piece of glass), the only portable apparatus that has the patronage of the medical profession, who recommend it for making pure Soda-water and Aromatic Beverages. Metallic impregnation is avoided, there is no leakage, and it is not affected by hot climates.

Prices: two pints, 23s.; three pints, 30s.; five pints, 42s. Powders (forty charges in box), 8s., 10s., and 16s. each. References and descriptive catalogues sent free.

GEO. SIMPSON'S Patent Depot, 315c, Oxford-street, London.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

—FEMALE DISORDERS.—How many females allow functional irregularities to continue without regarding the ultimate disturbance of health which they will inevitably induce! The first approach to disordered action should be met by the employment of appropriate remedies, of which none are superior to Holloway's Pills and Ointment. Whilst taking them no restrictions need be placed over the patient; they contain nothing which can possibly prove injurious to the system; they act by purifying the blood and regulating every organ and function throughout the entire system. The Pills should be taken according to the accompanying directions, and the Ointment rubbed on the abdomen and on the back twice every day for not less than ten minutes.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

JUDGED BY THE IMMENSE DEMAND,

this UNIVERSAL REMEDY now stands the first in public favour and confidence; this result has been acquired by the test of fifty years' experience. These Lozenges may be found on sale in every British Colony, and throughout India and China. They have been highly esteemed wherever introduced. For COUGHS, ASTHMA, and all affections of the Throat and Chest, they are the most agreeable and efficacious remedy.

Prepared and Sold in Boxes and Tins of various sizes, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Church-yard, London. Sold Retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the world.

N.B. To prevent spurious imitations, please to observe that the words "KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each Box, without which none are genuine.

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.:—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

POSTAGE.

Via Southampton (pre-payment compulsory), letters under
1/2 oz. 6d. | 3 oz. 2s. 0d. | 4 oz. 4s. 0d.

Books under 1 lb. 6d.; under 1 lb. 1s.; and for every additional 1 lb. an additional 1s.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE news received by the Calcutta Mail of the 22nd December has been anticipated by way of Bombay. Sir Charles Wood's donation to the Mysore family has raised a storm of indignation, which must be felt as a relief to the usual monotony of life in Calcutta. The local papers are, of course, unsparing in their abuse of the "unscrupulous placeman" who has so heavily mulcted India in order to gratify "a horse-dealing prince, who possesses the secret of 'chaunting' purblind politicians as well as the 'screws,' which are the ordinary staple of untitled confreres." But not only journalists have taken this question, and in strong language denounced the seeming extravagance of the Secretary of State for India. The entire community of Calcutta, natives as well as Europeans, have joined in the outcry, and agreed to a formal protest against such an arbitrary and wasteful expenditure of public money. A great and really influential public meeting was held in the Town Hall, the Sheriff in the chair, at which many vehement speeches were delivered, and the following resolutions unanimously carried:—

1. Resolved that the arbitrary control now exercised by the Secretary of State for India over the means and the expenditure of this country, without reference to the Government which should be directly responsible for them, is highly dangerous to the stability and well-being of this Empire, and that it is expedient that a petition should be addressed to Parliament, praying for the establishment of some effectual check upon such exercise of his power.

2. Resolved that in the opinion of this meeting the tax-payers of India have a right to full accounts of the national expenditure; that the Government of India should have control of the proceeds of the taxation it imposes; and that the changed position of the Empire demands a Legislative Council composed of non-official as well as official members.

A petition to the British Parliament, which will be found elsewhere, was then read to the meeting and accepted with great applause, and in less than twenty-four hours 885 signatures were affixed to it by Europeans and natives of the highest rank and intelligence.

A somewhat stormy debate on the same subject took place even in the Legislative Council, when the Government party were defeated by a majority of five votes to four. The Executive, however, refused to submit the papers relative to the Mysore grant, as the correspondence with the Secretary of State had not yet terminated.

Nothing further has been heard from Darjeeling, except that reinforcements were hastening to the spot. The station is not in the slightest danger, and we may expect in a very few days to hear of the retrieval of the disgrace brought upon the British name by Dr. Campbell's folly and presumption.

From China we learn that a force of 2,500 English, with a French contingent, under the command of General Staveley, are to winter at Tien-tain, and that the remainder of the troops have returned to Hong Kong. Lord Elgin and Sir Hope Grant were at Shanghai and on the point of starting for Japan, while the French Plenipotentiary and the American Minister had gone to Canton. Sir Robert Napier had returned to India, and is reported to have arrived at Madras, where he will succeed to the command on the expiration of Sir Patrick Grant's tenure of office.

The new Puisne Judge of Madras is Mr. Colley Harman Scotland, of the Oxford Circuit, and not Mr. Sherman Scotland, as was erroneously printed in our last issue.

As many Anglo-Indians have still the fixed idea that Russia is the enemy, as well as the rival, of England in the East, we may commend to their perusal an extremely interesting work on the inner life of the Russians, from the pen of Mr. Sutherland Edwards, a gentleman intimately acquainted with the subject of which he treats. It is entitled, "The Russians at Home," and is published by Messrs. Wm. H. Allen and Co.

BENGAL.

THE FAMINE.

When last we wrote on this subject there was every prospect that the famine in the North West would be confined to the three districts of Agra, Meerut, and Rohilkund. It has not yet spread beyond these places to any great extent, but the continued want of rain throughout the whole Doab has not merely lessened the khureef or autumn crop, which would cause but temporary misery, but there is now a fear lest the next rubbee or spring crop be a partial failure, a result which would make the famine in 1861 far more terrible than in 1860. Since the 26th August, only three and a half inches of rain have fallen in the North West. The western portions of Rohilkund were visited by only casual showers from the influence of the Himalayan rains. The North-Western portions of the Agra divisions, part of the Muttra and the whole of the Meerut divisions, were not relieved by a drop of the rain which fell so seasonably at Allahabad, and finally ceased on the 2nd October. Whole villages in these places have been deserted, and the people have emigrated in numbers to Malwa and the more favoured Eastern districts. Grain has been pushed up by the merchants in immense quantities during the past two months. The railway platforms were crowded with sacks of wheat, and the Trunk Road with hackeries carrying it westward. But though this had a decided effect on the upper markets, there are multitudes who have no money to buy grain, and the Government Works cannot reach all. To add to the gloominess of the prospect, the Mahajuns have refused to make the usual advances for seed, and this, combined with the want of rain and the extensive tracts of country rendered waste by emigration, will make the spring crop very scanty. Many of the plough bullocks have died for want of food.

Lord Canning and Mr. Edmonstone will see not a little of the misery with their own eyes. Government has sanctioned an expenditure of £60,000 to be spent in Meerut alone, for the employment of the starving poor on the roads. The suggestions contained in Colonel Baird Smith's paper will now be found most useful. Now would be the time to cut those additional "distribution channels" from the Ganges Canal, the want of which, it is asserted, prevents its usefulness. But the best mode in which to employ the money granted will be in the purchase of seed, and in inducing the peasantry not to forsake their fields. Every acre now sown will mitigate the scarcity next year. From the expenditure on public works, and the remissions of the land-tax, the loss to the revenue may be only a million sterling this year, but it will be more than twice that in 1861-62, should the spring crop fail. And yet with all this, in addition to a deficit of eight and a half millions, we are told there will be no necessity for a loan.—Friend of India.

QUEEN VICTORIA ASCENDS THE THRONE OF INDIA.

In the Royal proclamation of 1st November, 1858, her Majesty declared that she assumed the Government of the territories heretofore administered in trust by the East India Company. These territories did not include what have always been recognised as the "independent" native States. The East India Company did not administer the country of the Nizam, for instance. Her Majesty also announced to the native princes that she would scrupulously maintain all treaties made with them by the Company, and would protect the natives in all rights connected with their ancestral lands, subject to the equitable demands of the State. These treaties did not include the right of adoption in the case of the failure of natural heirs. The opinions and the action of the Company regarding this right had been most unsettled and contradictory. Statesmen so accomplished as Lord Dalhousie and Sir Henry Lawrence held diametrically opposite views as to our duty in this respect. There was a still greater uncertainty as to our rights, distinctions having been drawn between independent and dependent States, legal doubts having been raised as to the usages of various states and races, and their force on the paramount authority. Still more inconsistent had been the policy of successive governors-general. Lord Auckland held that we ought "to persevere in the one clear and direct course of abandoning no just and honourable accession of territory or revenue." Sir Henry Lawrence held that while the Suzerain is only the arbitrator of all contested adoptions he cannot refuse confirmation to one or other claimant, nor confiscate the State, however small. Sir George Clerk declared that the Hindoo law, which is so comprehensive regarding the rights of private property, does not provide distinctly for chiefships, and added—"it is the inconsistency, caprice, and mutability of our opinions regarding all great principles that is the bane of our supremacy in India." Finally, Lord Canning agreed in the truth of this so far as the right of adoption is concerned. Hindoo law, Mussulman supremacy, and the proclamation of the Sovereign of England have thus alike left that to be settled by vague tradition and usage which is of the most vital interest to every native chief in India.

We publish as a Supplement a historic document which goes one step farther than the Royal Proclamation. In that Queen Victoria merely took the place of her trustee, the Company; in the Secretary of State's despatch of 26th July last, she virtually ascends the throne of India, assumes towards all feudatories the position, as paramount power, of the now extinct sovereignty of Delhi. As an act of grace she extends to every Hindoo chief "the assurance that the paramount power desires to see his government perpetuated, and that on a failure of natural heirs his adoption of a successor according to Hindoo law and to the customs of his race will be recognised." She similarly gives the pledge to every Mahomedan chief that she will uphold any succession to him which may be legitimate according to Mahomedan law. With her own hand she writes upon the statute book a law which Menu never penned, which no power in India has ever expressly allowed, which has been left to the variable, uncertain, and vague decision of tradition. And this after a rebellion more extensive and an outburst of fury more bloody, on the part of the natives of India, than have ever before stained the pages of its history. As her Majesty in her Proclamation signalled her assumption of the Government of the territories of the East India Company by an act of unconditional mercy to the rebels against her authority, so in this her assumption of sovereignty as the paramount power in the Peninsula, she bestows upon each of its native princes the boon which they have never before enjoyed and which they most eagerly crave. By the Proclamation of November, 1858, she became merely Queen of the Company's territories in Hindostan, by the despatch of July, 1860, she declares herself Empress of all India.

Of Lord Canning's share in this mighty change we have before had occasion to express hearty approval. His despatch goes beyond the addresses and promises which he made to the various chiefs whom he rewarded in the durbars of last season. What he then conferred on a few chiefs individually as a reward for their loyalty to the British he has recommended her Majesty to bestow on all chiefs without exception. In these words he shows that he recognises in at least one respect the fact that a revolution has swept over India.

"The last vestiges of the Royal House of Delhi, from which, for our own convenience, we had long been content to accept a vicarious authority, have been swept away. The last pretender to the representation of the Peishwa had disappeared. The Crown of England stands forth the unquestioned ruler and paramount power in all India, and is for the first time brought face to face with its feudatories. There is a reality in the Suzerainty of the Sovereign of England which has never existed before, and which is not only felt but eagerly acknowledged by the chiefs. A great convulsion has been followed by such a manifestation of our strength as India had never seen, and if this in its turn be followed by an act of general and substantial grace to the native chiefs, over and above the special rewards which have already been given to those whose services deserve them, the measure will be reasonable and appreciated."

Thus the title deeds of every de facto chief in India to the palatinate which he holds will consist, not of sunnuds from robber ancestors or tyrant emperors of Delhi, not of the consent of tradition and usage, but of the written assurance of the Queen of England and Empress of India granted through her Viceroy. This assurance, while it confirms the present power of each chief, obliterates all previous titles. Henceforth fealty to the British Sovereign, loyalty to England, constitutes the tenure on which every chief holds his authority and estates, from the Nizam of Hyderabad and the Maharajahs of Gwalior and Indore down to the petty chiefs of Bundelcund, whose retainers consist of a dozen sepoys and their land of a few hundred acres.

This journal has been identified with the policy of annexation thus brought to a legitimate close. Warned by such wars as those in Sikkim and on the frontier, we still believe the lesson of history to be that there is no alternative between the annexation and the Christianisation of the whole peninsula. Taught by the frightful anarchy which riots in the Nizam's territory, we must condemn that part of Lord Canning's despatch which recommends that confiscation should be the penalty not of heinous oppression and anarchy such as extinguished Oude, but only a breach of loyalty; not, that is, of a violation of the law of God who sets princes to do justice, but only of a breach of the law of man. Fearing its evils, we protest against the recommendation which the Secretary of State justly condemns—to extend the right of adoption to mere Jagheerdars whose lands were conferred by the Government of the day for only a limited number of generations. But, these things apart, we heartily congratulate the princes and chiefs of India on this manifestation of the grace of our common Queen. Subjects like ourselves, they are now honoured and hold their lands on the same secure tenure as the Dukes and Earls of England. They are an integral part of the British nobility, and their estates are fused with the rest of the empire. Let them be warned to enter upon that course of reform and to adopt that spirit of civilisation which distinguish the government of their Suzerain. Centuries may elapse but the law is as certain as that which guides the destiny they believe in, that they or their successors must either adopt Christianity or be obliterated. The Sovereign of half the globe now confers kingdoms on them and their descendants on the sole condition of fidelity to herself. The Sovereign of the Universe will sooner or later annul the grants, unless they learn to be faithful to Him.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A NATIVE ON TAXATION.—At the last meeting of the British Indian Association, Baboo Joykissen Mookerjee showed that there was no need for an Income-tax. If the military expenditure were reduced and the marine, commissariat and public works departments reformed, with the revised tariff, the stamp duties, the sale of khas mehals, enam tenures and waste lands, and the property lapsed to Government, there would be no deficit. But besides there are the paper currency and license tax. If all these were not enough the salt tax might advantageously be increased. Altogether there would be 2 millions from the reduction of military expenditure, 2 millions from the license tax, 1 million from the stamps, and 1 million from miscellaneous sources, making a total sum sufficient to cover the deficit. A most elaborate scheme this for taxing the poor, that the rich may go free. This is quite the native idea of taxation. The Baboo is a very wealthy and intelligent zemindar.

THE CANTONMENT OF ASNEE, on the Punjab frontier, has been abandoned for a new cantonment at Rajanpore.

THE FOLLOWING PETITION to the British Parliament has been sent home from Calcutta:—
 “To the Honourable the Commons of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled,—
 This petition of the undersigned inhabitants and taxpayers of Calcutta,—Humbly sheweth,—That the financial embarrassments of India since the mutinies have necessitated successive loans, have compelled the stoppage of public works, the imposition of heavy duties and other burdens upon commerce, and so far endangered the credit of the Indian empire as to induce your honourable House to send out a special financial minister to avert the threatened bankruptcy of the State. That the able financier empowered by your honourable House found it necessary to impose upon all India, for the first time in her history, a direct taxation extending, as an income-tax, to incomes so low as twenty pounds per annum, and that in addition he proposed a licence-tax, which will reach to the lowest artisan throughout a very poor population. That with every means devised by the financial minister and the Government, the estimated deficit of the current year is above six millions sterling, including the estimated results of the new taxation; and that the Government of India is calling for further reductions of expenditure, which reductions appear, for the present, impracticable. That it has come to the knowledge of your petitioners that the Secretary of State for India in the face of the embarrassed financial position of this empire has, without due ground, paid or ordered to be paid from the Treasury of India to the family of certain Mysore princes, about half a million sterling, for which payment your petitioners believe there are no just grounds, either moral or political; and that such payment or order has been made by the Secretary of State for India against the protest of this Government, against the recorded decision of the late Governor-general of India, the Marquis of Dalhousie in Council, against the representations of the Financial Minister appointed by the Crown, the late Right Honourable James Wilson, and of the Viceroy and Governor-general of India, the Earl Canning; and without any reference to your honourable House. That the Government of India have refused to your petitioners any information respecting this unauthorised abstraction of more than one-half of the estimated amount to be paid by them as their Income-tax for the current year; declaring the act to be that of the Secretary of State, whom they further declare to be responsible only to your honourable House; and upon whose arbitrary disposal of the public money of India it thus appears to your petitioners that there exists no practical check whatsoever. And your petitioners further believe and submit that the sums charged to this Government for the military expenditure in England is greatly in excess of what is needed for this country, and of what is justly chargeable upon its funds. That whilst by the exertions of the Military Finance Commission the military expenditure in India has been retrenched to the extent of more than two millions, as yet, in the estimates of the current year, the expenditure in England for the same year shows an increase of above a million sterling. That this expenditure is beyond the control either of your petitioners who are taxed to pay it, or of this Government; and that no separate estimates, accounts, or other documents are furnished which could enable your petitioners to show the fact well known to them, that the estimates for the military expenditure of England are lightened at the cost of the estimates for India; and that such irresponsible expenditure of taxes raised in India for Indian purposes, by the Secretary of State for India in England, without due account either to your honourable House or to this Government, is unconstitutional and oppressive. And your petitioners further believe and submit that the payment by India of more than 20,000 troops, ostensibly Indian reserves, but in fact doing duty as English garrisons, and returned as such in the latest reports on the defences of England, is also unconstitutional and unjust; that a large proportion of those troops are really a portion of the standing army of Great Britain, which standing army is by that means maintained in England at a larger number than is voted by your honourable House, and although actually a part of the standing army of England their pay is, in part, not included in the annual vote passed for that purpose by your honourable House; and that there is nothing to prevent the unauthorised increase of the number of such troops at the expense of your petitioners; all of which your petitioners submit to be unconstitutional and oppressive. And your petitioners humbly pray that your honourable House will order that all papers, correspondence, and documents relative to the gift or payment of any sum or sums of money to the family and descendants of the Mysore princes be laid upon the table of your honourable House, and published for the information of your petitioners. And further, that your honourable House will devise and impose such a reconstruction and reform of the Government of India as shall remove your petitioners from the irresponsible action of the Secretary of State for India, and shall bring them within the same privileges of British constitutional law, which gives to the taxpayers of Great Britain and her Colonies the right to a full account of the expenditure for which they are called upon to provide; and for such improvement in the law as shall enable members of the Council of India as at present constituted to be eligible for election to your Honourable House; and for such restrictions upon the Secretary of State as shall compel a reference to this Government in all cases involving the expenditure of the means of this country, and a further reference to your Honourable House before any such expenditure shall be made by the Secretary of State against the consent of this Government; and for such an extension of the Legislative Council of India as shall admit of the appointment of non-official members thereto; these reforms being in the firm belief of your petitioners necessary to the safety and prosperity of the Indian Empire. And your petitioners will ever pray.”

TORTURE.—A recent trial in the Bengal Sudder Court, reported in the Hurkaru, shows how lightly the crime of torture may be punished and how common it is in India. In the month of June the Naib Darogah of Selimabad was deputed by the joint magistrate of Burdwan to inquire into a case of receiving stolen property. He first reported the case not proved, but on further investigation he sent in two witnesses to prove the charge against Hurridoss and Raimoni, a native man and woman. These persons were found guilty and were imprisoned. On the 9th of August the magistrate, while on a visit to the jail, observed a dark mark on Raimoni's shoulder, which led him to make inquiry. From her statements and those of Hurridoss it appeared that they had both been tortured by the Naib Darogah and the police. They had been hung up by their arms, swung backwards and forwards and beaten with nettles. The woman's right collar-bone was broken by this usage. On being sent to Burdwan she was admitted to the hospital, but made no complaint to the doctor there or to the magistrate of Burdwan during her trial. She was about fifty years old, and her husband was upwards of sixty. The Darogah and four of the police have been sentenced—two to ten years' imprisonment, two to seven years and one to five years. This is of course a sadder sentence. Mr. Buckland, the sessions judge who tried the case, sentenced them to fourteen years.

THE COMMISSIONER OF ASSAM.—His Excellency the Governor-general is pleased to appoint Captain Henry Hopkinson, 70th Regiment N.I., to be commissioner of Assam and Governor-general's agent on the North-Eastern Frontier, vice Colonel Francis Jenkins, who is relieved of civil employ. Colonel Jenkins has passed through a service of more than fifty years, and during twenty-six of these he has held the post of commissioner of Assam and Governor-general's agent on the North-Eastern Frontier. He has discharged the duties of this post with advantage to the country and with great credit to himself.

He has received on several occasions the approval of six successive Governors-general. But his Excellency is of opinion that Col. Jenkins's service has exceeded the term after which it is desirable, in the interests of the State, that an officer's employment on active civil or political duties in India should cease. Also his Excellency considers that, though Colonel Jenkins's case does not come within the letter of the rule which limits the period of the service of civil servants, and which prescribes that, after thirty-five years' service no civil servant shall be permitted to retain an office which he has held for five years or upwards, yet that this rule cannot be fairly applied to those who are exclusively of the civil service—unless its spirit be extended to cases such as that of Colonel Jenkins. For these reasons Colonel Jenkins is relieved of civil employ. The Governor-general desires that it be recorded that Colonel Jenkins quits his post with all honour, and that he carries with him the acknowledgment by the Government of India of the services which he has rendered to it.

CAPTAIN HOPKINSON.—We (Friend of India) have perused all the papers in the case of Captain Hopkinson, of whose unseemly collision with a Moulmein mob we gave a fair account. They do not lead us to alter one word we wrote, though, in justice to Captain Hopkinson, we confess they show his position, in the face of a large crowd and without any guard, to have been more difficult than we had supposed. He is now removed to Assam, where he will succeed Colonel Jenkins, whose administration has been very successful, and be in charge of the interests of a large number of European capitalists and tea-planters. We have, therefore, pleasure in publishing the other side of the case, as given in the following extract from a letter of Government:—“The Governor-general in Council does not, in consequence of this offence, serious as it is, forget the excellent service you have rendered for many years in the Burmese Provinces, especially in your present office. His Excellency has recently offered to transfer you to the Commissionership of Assam without loss of salary, and it was left to you to elect whether or not that transfer should be made. After what has occurred, it is advisable that the arrangement in contemplation should be at once carried out. You will understand, therefore, that the option given to you has been withdrawn, and that you will now be appointed Commissioner of Assam.” The tax is now being quietly collected. Of 6,000 notices issued in Moulmein alone only 490 had not been returned up to 30th November.

POLICE TAX IN CALCUTTA.—The Gazette contains a paper on the postings and transfers of native civil judges and another on the operation of the Police Chowkedars' Act (XX. of 1850.) The number of houses on which the tax is levied in Bengal is 202,016; the number of houses exempted is 44,284; the yearly collections are estimated at Rs. 3,20,178; the actual collections during the past year amounted to Rs. 2,60,240. The amount expended on conservancy was only Rs. 30,522, leaving the large balance for the salaries of policemen and chowkedars. The average of 2 annas per mensem from each house reduces the productive powers of the tax, but the Lieutenant-Governor does not think the present a proper time to raise the rate.

CORN IN EGYPT.—The districts around Delhi are suffering severely from the famine, but the Punjab is a perfect granary. In the face of a deficit of the land-tax in the north-west, it is fortunate that the salt revenue in this year so wonderfully prosperous. Up to the 15th November 45 lakhs of rupees were realised against 25 the previous year. This includes the whole line up to the Sutlej. The increase is vastly beyond the ratio of the enhanced duty. A correspondent, who of all men in the north-west has the best opportunities of knowing, says the “canals are working splendidly, showering food and fortune all around, and saving lakhs to Government. The Ganges Canal failed at first owing to its having only a kutch bund, but it is now full and doing wonders.”

COLONEL D. POTT, 47th N.I., has been removed, says the Englishman, from the command of his regiment, for having had a sepoy who shot a jemadar through the heart, tried by a drum-head court-martial, and hanged on the spot half an hour after the cowardly deed was perpetrated. If the colonel had really committed an error of judgment on the occasion (which we doubt), we think the utmost punishment the authorities could have inflicted upon him was to reprimand him. His removal from the corps cannot but weaken the authority of his successor in the estimation of his men, and, as a natural consequence, prove subversive of the discipline of the regiment.

JESSORE, Dec. 17.—With the exception of the few biggahs of neezabad, which the ryots think proper to allow the unfortunate blues to cultivate, everything connected with indigo is at a dead stand-still, and the state of our cultivation is little better; in short, everything connected with agriculture seems to be drifting to perdition as fast as it can. Our Lieutenant-governor is blamed by the planting interest for the general ruin that now stares us all in the face; a few uninterested parties do Mr. Grant the justice to think that he acted most conscientiously throughout all the indigo rows, and of these few, although far from being uninterested, your humble servant forms one. Nearly all agree that he committed errors of judgment, but his greatest error and the only one which, though I may forgive I can never defend, he made was, when he issued private instructions to the executive in the Mofussil, checking every effort on their part to keep their districts in order, preventing the fair administration of the law between planter and ryot, and rendering null and void the operation of Act XI. of 1860, which is the only act I know of, which provided anything like fair protection for the planters. I am convinced that Mr. Grant was not aware of the mischief he was doing when he issued these ill-advised orders; their result is now patent to all. I therefore think Mr. Grant and the Government of which he is so high a member is no less in duty bound to rectify these errors, than the planters have a right to expect reparation for the past and protection for the future, and the subject is one which demands their most prompt and serious attention. Crops on the ground.—Mustard and linseed look well, and the Dasee Indigo seed-crop, though small, owing to the small quantity of ground sown, never looked better. The price of the latter must rule under that of last year's. Date sugar.—Goor is now ready in large quantities, and sells a trifle under last year's rates.—Englishman.

DARJEELING.—As some anxiety has been felt regarding the ladies and children at Darjeeling, we have much pleasure in publishing the following extract of a letter from the Lady Superiress of the convent there, dated 16th Dec.—“For a few nights I sent the children, with the nuns who had care of them, to a villa in the station, close to the Cutcherry, and overlooking the convent. The rest of the nuns remained with me in the convent, and never left it. None went to Jellapahar. Doctor Campbell seems to have us uppermost in his thoughts; he has written or called on us almost every day since his return from Sikkim. Owing to his kindness we have a guard of five men protecting the convent at night; Colonel Bishop and Captain Murray are also extremely kind to us.”

THE SANTHALS.—We learn from one of the Church Missionary Society's “Occasional Papers,” that the Indian Government, now that the Court of Directors is no longer in the way, has renewed their offer of a grant to the Society for the education of the Santals, on the original terms—the entire management of the schools, with the appointment and supervision of masters, being vested in the Society's agents. The schools now contain upwards of 500 scholars, under the charge of fourteen masters, seventeen Santals also being in training as future teachers.

MR. BLECHYNDEN'S COTTON PLANTATION.—At the last meeting of the Agricultural Society of India, a letter was read from Mr. C. F. Blechynden describing the successful results of his cotton plantation at Chownarun near Burhee on the Grand Trunk Road. He has 1½ beegah, containing 10,000 plants raised from New Orleans' seed, under cultivation. He began sowing on 26th June, and on 16th October gathered the first pod. The average produce is 30 bolls a plant. For two beegahs he pays 1 rupee per annum. The soil is high land, clay with much sand and quartz stones; the field is new and was not manured. If the usual quantity of rain had fallen the cotton would have been better. The cost of preparing the land and clearing jungle was Rs. 6-8 a beegah. Off the same ground and growing between the cotton ridges he had eighty-five maunds of Indian corn which sells at one rupee a maund, and twenty maunds of cucumber. Country cotton sells at four annas a seer, after the seeds are taken out. The natives are so pleased with the success of the experiment that next season they will take seed. The cotton committee reported on Mr. Blechynden's produce as “beautiful coloured, long stapled, valuable cotton of strong fibre, superior to middling Orleans; if properly ginned would fetch about a quarter of a pound more in Liverpool.” This is the most successful experiment in cotton growing in Bengal.

SALE OF LAND.—The Indigo Planters' Association have again urged the Bengal Government to declare its intentions on the subject of the sale of the fee simple of the land at twenty years' purchase. They ask that grants of waste land be not liable to any restrictions and limitations except in the Soonderbunds, where it is necessary on sanitary grounds to ensure their speedy clearance; but even there self-interest would be found sufficient for the purpose. The Bengal Government lays the blame of delay upon that great obstruction—the Government of India, who have the question “under consideration.”

PURNEAH, Dec. 15.—A small force of Sikhs and Ghoorkas of the military police, three hundred strong, under Captain Baker, passed up the Darjeeling road through Purneah on the 12th. They left left Calcutta on the 8th, and are apparently marching five-and-twenty miles a-day at least. The Darjeeling residents are anxiously awaiting reinforcements, although no danger to the station itself is apprehended. It is quite possible that Captain Baker may meet with opposition before reaching Darjeeling. The two hundred Europeans are expected daily. Elephants are being collected in large numbers for their use. The Sikhs had only carts, which must delay them considerably. Several Nepaulese coolies passing down South, state that the enemy have Chinese armed with matchlocks with them.

CAPTAIN R. MACLAGAN, Principal of the Thomson Civil Engineering College at Roorkee, is to be appointed Chief Engineer in the Punjab. His successor will be Captain E. G. S. Williams, Principal of the Civil Engineering College at the presidency.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, Dec. 22).—Prices of almost all descriptions of produce continue still high, consequent on very moderate supplies; they are beyond the marks of slippers, and the native holders are showing little or no disposition to give way. Indigo, which had been in fair competition lately, has been in less limitation since receipt of the last home advices. Raw Silk and Corahs have been almost without inquiry, although holders are willing to submit to a further concession in price. Sugar, the Benares kind, is only available, and is being freely purchased by the Nacodas for Bombay and the Gulf; very little has been done, as is still doing, for the English markets. Saltpetre has continued in very moderate engagement for Europe and America. Rice, Table sorts of the new crop, have been in great competition for the home markets. Linseed, although somewhat slackened in demand, has this week firmly maintained in value, owing to light stocks and short supplies. Rapeseed is bare of stock, and in great demand by the local crushers. Hides have been firm in demand and price. Jute has been in fair demand, without any material change in value.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, Dec. 22).—A very limited business has been done, and almost confined to local requirement. Grey Shirtings, 39 inches, of 5 to 7 lbs. weight, have fallen 1 to 2 annas, and 45, 50, and 54 inches 2 to 3 annas per piece. Grey Madapollams, which had risen in value as noticed in our last, have again gone down about 1 anna per piece. Grey Jaconets have been in very limited sale, but without any fall in price, holders being unwilling to force sale. White Jaconets.—Very little doing, at about former value. Grey Mulls are quite neglected; White, of favourite make, 45 inches wide, are saleable at about former prices; other descriptions are dull of sale. Mule Twist without inquiry, and all counts are lower in value about 1 pie per morah, and still tending downward. Chintees are out of season. Woollens, also, a most out of season for the Upper Provinces. Copper Sheathings and Tile have been in little local demand, and stocks of both have been rather reduced; Australian is heavy in stock; for other descriptions there is no inquiry. Iron has been very little inquired for; Swedish and English Flat, Square, and Bolt are light in stocks; Pig No. 1 is in good demand. Steel.—Swedish has slightly improved in value; all other metals have been almost neglected.

THE FACT AND THE AMOUNT OF THE MYSORE GRATUITY.

To-day it is important that we should collect and reiterate all the facts known as to the gratuity filched from the Indian purse and benevolently bestowed by Sir Charles Wood on the pauper family of Mysore. To avoid every appearance of betraying the information, Sir Bartle Frere throughout the debates merely assumed the correctness of the statement we first published on the 27th September, and ascribed it to information given by Gholam Mahommed himself. Less cautious, Mr. Beadon dispensed with all delicacy in speaking of the gratuity on the ground of its notoriety, mentioned a "last" despatch from home relating to the Mysore family, which presupposes previous papers on the subject, and spoke of a letter which Gholam Mahommed brought out with him from H.M.'s Government, or rather from Sir Charles Wood. There is the fact confessed by a member of the Supreme Government. We may add to this what Mr. Beadon could not tell the public, that Gholam Mahommed, whose stipend had been raised only a few years before, tried to obtain from Lord Canning a further increase and the payment of his relatives' debts, but failed. Disappointed in India he then brought influences to bear on Sir Charles Wood in England, which enabled him to return with the letter which Mr. Beadon speaks of, and to flaunt it with an insolent chuckle in the face of the Governor-general in Council, whose refusal he had thus overruled. Unfortunately for himself, but fortunately for India, he called on his neighbours and friends to rejoice with him on his good fortune and easy triumph over Lord Canning. On the 11th July the Hindoo Patriot congratulated "the family of which he is the esteemed head" on the "footing of independence and opulence" on which they were now placed, and entered into the following details:—

"The pensions which the grandsons of the late Tippoo Sultan have been drawing at Rs. 600 a head are commuted into a donation of Rs. 1,50,000 each, invested in Government Four per Cents., and a stipend of Rs. 400 besides, making up a monthly income to each of Rs. 1,000 per month. The stipends of the great grandsons whose fathers have died, have similarly been raised to Rs. 300 a month by the grant of donations of Rs. 60,000 each, likewise invested in Four per Cents. The grandsons will receive 15,000, and the great grandsons 5,000, each for the payment of their debts. The nephews of the Sultan will have a grant of 15,000 for the payment of their debts, and as regards any increase to their stipend, the matter rests with the Governor-general. Should any of these princes remove elsewhere, they will receive 15,000 each for buying houses, and the houses they occupy here will be sold to Government."

This paragraph attracted our attention, and after a mild protest against such liberality to a family of whose members nothing more can be said than that they are the descendants of Tippoo, we set ourselves to the task of inquiry into its truth, and wrote to England on the subject. The information that reached us agreed with the results of the very simple sum of arithmetic which, with the above figures and the treaty quoted by Sir B. Peacock, any of our readers can calculate for themselves. We believe we are correct in stating in round numbers—for absolute accuracy can be obtained only from the despatches to and from the Government of India when they are published at home,—that when Sir Charles Wood's orders are carried out a sum of 44 lakhs of rupees or £440,000 must at once be invested and permanently alienated in Government paper to secure for ever the increased pensions; and further, that a sum of 8 lakhs of rupees or £80,000, will be paid, partly to wipe out the debts of the lazy swarms whom in November 1851 the Government in vain encouraged "to engage in useful pursuits and blend with the general population," and partly to purchase houses for the pauper princelings. This makes a total, as we stated, of 52 lakhs of rupees, or £520,000.

Sir Bartle Frere has not contradicted these facts. Mr. Beadon has confessed to them. The Treaty, known as the Partition Treaty of Mysore of 1799, puts the gratuity on its proper legal footing as an enormous alms. It will be found in the return to an order of the House of Lords for copies of the Treaties between the E. I. Company and the Native Powers in Asia, printed in a Blue Book on the 24th June, 1853. In referring to it Sir Barnes Peacock omitted that significant part of the 6th article, which declares:

"In the event of any hostile attempt, on the part of the said family or of any member of it, against the authority of the contracting parties, or against the peace of their respective dominions or the territories of the Rajah of Mysore, then the said English East India Company Behander shall be at liberty to limit or suspend entirely the payment of the whole, or any part of the stipend hereinbefore stipulated to be applied to the maintenance and support of the said families."

Not only was the stipend to cease with the life of the last member of the immediate families of Hyder Ali and Tippoo Sultan, who is Gholam Mahommed alone, but it ought to have ceased on the 10th July, 1806, when two companies of the 69th Madras N.I., incited by Tippoo's sons, rose in mutiny and massacred 113 Europeans of the garrison of Vellore. Instead of this, these sons—who were guilty of a crime which the last of a legitimate line of mighty emperors is now expiating in a wooden hut in Rangoon, and which, but for his years and a mistaken promise, he would have wiped out on the gallows—were presented with a palace in the suburbs of Calcutta, and had their pensions recently increased. One died so rich that he strove to obliterate the remembrance of the blood of Vellore by a legacy of £30,000 to a Calcutta charity. The other, the only survivor, Gholam Mahommed, is notoriously wealthy, and traffics in houses, horses, and buggies with as much success as any Jew in the Minorities.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SIR ROBERT NAPIER, K.C.B. — By H.M.'s steamer Berenice, which arrived at Madras from China, on the 22nd Dec., Sir Robert Napier, K.C.B., reached our Presidency. "It is understood," says the Athenæum, "that he has come hither from China, where he held command of the second division of the British force employed in that quarter, with a view to making himself acquainted with the Madras army, before becoming its chief, in succession to H.E. Sir Patrick Grant, who returns to England early next year. Sir Robert Napier is an officer of H.M.'s Bengal Engineers, who entered the late Hon. Company's Service in 1826, and who has displayed much ability throughout his military career up to the present time, which affords fair promise of his acquitting himself well in the high station to which report says he will soon be called."

A LIBERAL SUNNIYASI.—The Acting Collector of North Arcot on the 26th October informed Government that the Mahant, who is trustee of the great Pagoda Tirupati, had placed at the disposal of the Collector the sum of Rs. 5,000 for the general improvement and drainage of that large and populous town. Mr. Robinson also stated that other natives had subscribed Rs. 200, and that some were executing minor works at their own cost. In consequence of the liberality of the Mahant, Tirupati, "from being one of the filthiest, most closely packed, and worst drained native towns" Mr. Robinson "ever walked through, and, consequently, a very seed-bed of cholera and disease, bids fair to become a tidy, well-ventilated, and healthy place." Out of the Rs. 5,000 given by the Mahant, and with his approval, Mr. Robinson has retained Rs. 1,000 for the purpose of building a school, for which a numerous signed petition was some time ago presented.

BANK OF MADRAS.—Six shares of one thousand rupees each of the Bank of Madras were sold by public auction, and realised seven thousand two hundred and forty rupees, or an average nearly of twelve hundred and seven rupees each, being upwards of twenty per cent. premium. The lowest amount realised was, Rupees eleven hundred and sixty, and the highest twelve hundred and thirty-five.

THE MADRAS PIER.—The last twelve rows of piles of the Madras pier, about a hundred and twenty feet in length, have been condemned, and are being removed. Captain Rawlins, assistant to the Chief Engineer, who superintends the progress of the work on behalf of the Madras Government, fortunately discovered in time that they were from four to six feet shorter in the earth than the stipulated length, namely, fifteen feet. The work has come to a stand-still in consequence of the loss at sea of a further section of the piles.

PEPPER MONOPOLY IN TRAVANCORE.—The Rajah of Travancore has issued a proclamation, which appears in to-day's Gazette, declaring the abolition of the pepper monopoly from 31st Dec. Growers will be allowed to sell or export pepper like any other produce. A duty of Rs. 15 per candy of 500 lbs. will be charged on all pepper exported, whether by land or sea. Pepper brought to the Sircar within a year from 13th November last will be paid for at the usual Sircar price.

MR. W. A. SERLE.—The Athenæum announces the death of Mr. W. A. Serle, Registrar of the Supreme Court of Madras, a well-known member of society in this presidency during many years past. His remains were interred last evening in the cemetery of St. George's Cathedral. He had been afflicted with serious illness for several weeks prior to the sad event, which was consequently not unexpected, but will not the less be lamented by his numerous friends. Mr. Serle was a Capt. in the Madras Volunteer Guards, and ever took a lively interest in that valuable corps.

NABOB OF THE CARNATIC.—The case of the late Nabob of the Carnatic's debts came before the Supreme Court on the 2nd November. Sir A. Bittlestone delivered his judgment on the 19th November. He carefully weighed every item of the claims preferred by Damoodra Doss, &c., allowing such sums as were actually paid into the treasury of the Nabob as distinct from the other departments, and rejecting all others. The entire claim was Rs. 5,52,001 principal and interest; the sum allowed was Rs. 91,955 and interest. It was elicited by the evidence that Prince Azeem Jah received Rs. 70,000 a month, and about three lacs a year as the Punjum Hissa, and that he allowed the Nabob pocket-money at the rate of Rs. 200 a month at first, and afterwards Rs. 400.

to reply to the charges already made, that it may adjudicate on these before making further inquiry. Some dissatisfaction has been felt in regard to the land, which, at Kowloon, has been added to the colony, as it is understood the naval and military authorities have claimed more of it than they are entitled to.—Overland China Mail.

CEYLON.

COLOMBO, Dec. 29.—During the fortnight the additions to our export of coffee have not been large. One vessel has taken to Mauritius 629 cwt. of Native, one for London has sailed with 4,000 cwt. Plantation and 581 Native; while one has gone to Falmouth for orders with 3,256 Plantation and 2,432 Native. The three vessels took—of Plantation, 8,166 cwt.; Native, 3,042 cwt.; total, 11,808 cwt. Our exports of Plantation are still slightly in advance of those to the corresponding period of last season, but there is a falling off nearly equal to one-half in Native.

On Monday, the 31st, the Session of the Legislative Council will be closed, and it is probable enough that an early meeting in 1861 may be summoned with reference to the reception of the railway ordinances at home, and to receive and consider the report of the select committee appointed to inquire into the feasibility of carrying on the work under the direct control of Government. All that the Colonial Legislature can do to sever the connection of the colony with the railway company has been done, and we cannot anticipate any opposition on the part of the shareholders to the very fair terms we have conceded. It is very generally understood that the select committee will report in favour of going on with the railway as a Government work. The Governor in his remarks during the protracted sitting of last evening seemed to anticipate some such decision, by his reference to the probable necessity of opening up the Lower Badulla Road, so as to throw the Ouwah Coffee on the line, instead of commencing a work of such magnitude as the road from Badulla to Ratnapoora must be. A vote of £7,000, and a reduced one of £3,000 for this road were both refused, on the two grounds of want of available funds and the position of the railway question. In coming to the adverse decision, however, the Governor, and the members of Council generally, admitted to their full extent the claims of the loyal natives of Saffragam, as well as of the planters of Happotella, to favourable consideration. So that if the railway project is dropped there can be little doubt the Badulla and Ratnapoora road will be pushed forward. In the more probable event of the decision being in favour of a railway, the lower Badulla road and its tributaries are sure to receive attention. The bridge so much wanted by the planters of Medamahaneura, over the Gal mal Oya, and some other works, were also postponed for a more favourable conjunction of revenue and expenditure.

Out of council, the crop, (now fast closing in many of the lower and medium districts) the weather, (excessively rainy in the interior) and the sanitary state of the colony, have chiefly engaged attention. On this last subject we regret we cannot report favourably. Cholera continues to hang about Colombo and Kandy, while fever and dysentery claim their victims as well. The past fortnight has been especially fatal to European life. Our obituary includes the names of Colonel Cochrane, an old officer of the Ceylon Rifles, who died at Trincomalee; Mr. J. W. Little, of the civil service, who died from wasting dyspepsia at Colombo; Mr. Jevons, a planter, who died on his way to Colombo from Ratnapoora, from severe remittent fever; Mr. MacEwen of the Oriental Bank at Kandy, who sunk under an attack of dysentery; Capt. Brigstock of the Walshaken, who was carried off at Colombo by an attack of cholera, and Mr. Fiddes.

Some exhibitions of ecclesiastical assumption on the part of the episcopal clergy have formed subjects of discussion, and the Legislative Council have been doing their best to perpetuate this state of things, by voting £500 for the travelling allowances of a Bishop, instead of telling the Secretary of State what is the truth, that of all other things the colony is least in want of a Bishop. Our experience of episcopal rule and its effects has been quite sufficient to lead even good Episcopalians to this conclusion.—Ceylon Overland Observer.

THE STRAITS.

NETHERLANDS INDIA.—The Governor-general left Batavia on the 6th December on a voyage to the Moluccas. The accounts from Banjer-massing do not show much progress made in the suppression of the rebellion. There had been no engagement with the enemy of any importance. No further news had been received from Ceram. Mr. Diepenhort, Assistant Resident of Priaman, died about the middle of Nov., from the effects of the bite of a mad dog. Lieut. J. Kok, stationed at Sibogha, on the West Coast of Sumatra, while engaged in the guard-room, about half-past nine on the evening of the 3rd November, writing his evening report, was shot by a native fusilier, and immediately expired. The cause of this deed is ascribed to Lieut. Kok's having inflicted a very slight punishment upon the man for some breach of duty. The murderer at once gave himself up. The Dutch barque Antonia Geertruida arrived at Batavia on the 4th of December, having on board the captain and crew, 26 in all, of the English ship Herculean, Captain James Bell. The Herculean was bound from Whampoa to Liverpool with a cargo of tea, and on the 29th Nov. struck on a reef to the N.N.E. of Pulo Leat, and soon afterwards sunk. The Dutch bark Louis, from Newcastle (England) to Singapore, with a cargo of coals, on the 1st Nov. struck on the reef Malang Hui, to the east of Lepar island, and on the 3rd went down. Before leaving Lepar the captain sold the wreck and some provisions which were saved to the chief of that island for 700f. The captain and crew arrived at Muntok (Banka) on the 16th. The ship Denok Biantang Bareley, from Bali Ampanan to Samarang, with a cargo of rice, struck on the reefs near Pulo Ra-as on the night of the 16th November, and became a wreck.—Singapore Free Press.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Nov. 29.—Sirdar Wullee Mohamed Khan, the new Governor of Cabool, held the durbur for awhile. The Kotwal and Khans of the city being present, bowed to the Sirdar. They were ordered to carry on the affairs with the same care and honesty as before the Ameer, and then dismissed with the due compliments.—Nov. 30.—This day being Friday, all the troops were ready, the infantry and cavalry were drawn up on both sides of the road, from the palace. The Ameer Sahib on an elephant, accompanied by Sirdar Syud Mohamed Khan, Peer Mohamed Khan, Mohamed Oosman Khan, Shere Allee Khan, Wullee Mohamed Khan, and Gholam Mohamed Khan, left Cabool for Jullalabad under the usual salute from six guns. While the Ameer was thus marching out of the city the procession presented a very fine view. Sirdar Shere Allee Khan accompanied the Ameer as far as Seyah Sung, and thence took leave, and returned to his house about two o'clock. The Ameer stayed at Seyah Sung for three days.

Dec. 3.—This day the Ameer's camp marched from Seyah Sung, and arrived at Pootkhak. Here the Ameer embraced Sirdar Wullee Mohamed Khan, and told him to go to Cabool and see after the affairs of the State. He, the Ameer, instructed him to be always kind to the people, and to see justice done.—Dec. 4.—The Ameer's camp changed ground and arrived at Khoord Cabool. The mullicks of the above-named place waited on the Ameer and presented twelve sheep, a quantity of rice, ghee, &c. &c., as nuzur, which was ordered to be made over to the Nazir. Two sheep and some rice and ghee were desired to be sent to Sirdar Syud Mohamed Khan, and Peer Mohamed Khan.—Delhi Gazette.

REPAIR OF RIFLES.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Simla, Dec. 1, 1860.—With the concurrence of gov't., the C. in C. is pleased to publish the following circular memo. from the Horseguards, dated April 6, 1858, and to direct that its provisions be made applicable to her Majesty's Indian forces:—

"It being found, notwithstanding the orders given on the subject, that it is impossible to prevent the stock of the rifles of the pattern 1853, fitted with solid bands, from being injured in the act of returning ramrods, the Secretary of State for War, on the representation of the General C. in C., has been pleased to approve (instead of resorting to the costly expedient of re-stocking) of the necessary repair being, when practicable, effected by cutting away the chipped part of the stock, and by inserting a new spring, half an inch longer than the original one.

"The Secretary of State for War has further consented to the cost of such modified repair, which need not exceed 1s. for each rifle, being borne by the public; but the General C. in C. desires that every charge of this nature shall be supported by a certificate from the captain, or officer commanding the company, that the injury was, in each case, the consequence of the unavoidable wear and tear of service, and was not caused by carelessness on the part of the troops.

"The present order will not apply to the rifled muskets of later issue, fitted with screw bands."

Capt. H. Grant, late 74th N.I., do. du. officer with Kemaon batt., is, at his own request, permitted to resign that appt.; and is directed to proc. and do gen. duty at Allahabad.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Hd. Qrs., Camp Benares, Nov. 16.—The C. in C. requests that officers will abstain from making application for leave of absence on private affairs, except in cases of a most urgent nature, until the termination of the season for drill and rifle practice.

WINTER CLOTHING.

Hd. Qrs., Camp Cawnpore, Nov. 26.—H.E. the C. in C. having observed that the winter clothing taken into wear on the 1st November is frequently much too warm in the day-time, directs officers comdg. divisions, districts, and brigades to authorise comdg. officers of corps to adopt, whenever necessary, in conjunction with their medical officers, lighter clothing suitable to the state of the weather. Cloth trousers, however, are always to be worn on duties mounting at or after sunset.

Retirement of Col. F. Jenkins.

H.E. the Gov. gen. is pleased to appoint Capt. H. Hopkinson, 70th regt. N.I., to be commissioner of Assam and Gov. gen.'s agent on the N.E. frontier, v. Col. F. Jenkins, who is relieved of civil employ.

Col. Jenkins has passed through a service of more than fifty years, and during twenty-six of these he has held the post of Commissioner of Assam and Gov. gen.'s agent on the N.E. frontier. He has discharged the duties of this post with advantage to the country and with great credit to himself. He has received on several occasions the approval of six successive Govs. gen.

But H.E. is of opinion that Col. Jenkins's service has exceeded the term after which it is desirable, in the interests of the State, that an officer's employment on active civil or political duties in India should cease.

Also H.E. considers that, though Col. Jenkins's case does not come within the letter of the rule which limits the period of the service of civil servants, and which prescribes that, after thirty-five years' service, no civil servant shall be permitted to retain an office which he has held for five years or upwards, yet that this rule cannot be fairly applied to those who are exclusively of the Civil Service, unless its spirit be extended to cases such as that of Col. Jenkins.

For these reasons Col. Jenkins is relieved of civil employ.

The Gov. gen. desires that it be recorded that Col. Jenkins quits his post with all honour, and that he carries with him the acknowledgment by the Government of India of the services which he has rendered to it.

Durbar.

Foreign Dept., Patna, Nov. 28.—H.E. the Viceroy and Gov. Gen. held a public durbar this day for the reception of the principal native gentlemen of the Behar districts.

The native gentlemen and the civil and military officers of Patna and the neighbourhood having assembled, the Viceroy and Gov. gen. entered the durbar under a royal salute.

All the native gentlemen present were introduced to the Viceroy and Gov. gen. in the order of their precedence, and after presenting the customary offerings received the usual khilluts.

When bestowing the khilluts, H.E. briefly addressed some of the native gentlemen:—

To Rajah Bhoop Sung Bahadoor H.E. stated that his memorial had been received and laid before the Gov. gen., who had complied with its prayer, so far as to direct that the title which had for so many years been recognised in the Rajah's family should be continued to his son, and that two-thirds of the pension now enjoyed by the Rajah should be assigned to his children.

To the Maharajah of Bettiah the Gov. gen. observed that he was glad to hear from the Commissioner of the interest taken by the Maharajah in the advancement of education among his tenants.

To the Maharajah of Hutwa H.E. expressed the pleasure with which he had heard from the Commissioner of the attention so successfully bestowed by the Maharajah on the management of the estates, and of his exertions in promoting education.

To the Maharajah of Deomoonah the Gov. gen. remarked that, on the last occasion of H.E. meeting him, the Maharajah had represented some difficulty which had arisen in carrying out the intention of Government, to confer on him an estate as a reward for his services. H.E. trusted that this difficulty had been overcome to the Maharajah's satisfaction.

To Rajah Jye Mungul Sing Bahadoor the Gov. gen. observed that he had been gratified to learn from the Commissioner of Bhaugulpore, that the Rajah, since his return from his interview with the Gov. gen. in Calcutta last year, had continued to manifest zeal in the service of Government, and H.E. desired especially to express his acknowledgments of the assistance spontaneously rendered by the Rajah to the Commissioner in the introduction of the income-tax.

After the concluding ceremonies H.E. the Viceroy and Gov. gen. left the durbur under a royal salute, and the assembly broke up.

Court Martial.

LIEUT. A. CHRYSTIE, 18th M.N.I.

At a European General Court Martial held at Cannanore on Tuesday, the 4th day of Dec., 1860, Alexander Chrystie, lieut. in H.M.'s regt. of Madras Native Infantry, was arraigned on the following charges, viz.:—

First.—For having at Cannanore, on the morning of the 28th of Sept., 1860, failed to appear at the place of parade appointed by his commanding officer.

Second.—For having at the same place, on the evening of the same date and year, failed to appear at the place of parade appointed by his commanding officer.

Third.—For conduct unbecoming an officer, and to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, in having, at the same place on the evening of the same day and year, been in a state of intoxication and incapacitated for the performance of any duty.

Additional charge.—For having neglected to obey the orders of his commanding officer, Col. Andrew Munro McCally, conveyed to him in a letter from the adjt. of his regt., dated 1st of October, 1860, permitting him while in arrest to take exercise morning and evening between the hours of five and seven, and forbidding him "to appear at any private dwelling or quarters," by having at Cannanore, on or about the 22nd of October, 1860, when in arrest, entered the house occupied by Lieut. Alexander Milner, of the 18th regt. of Native Infantry, and absented himself from his own quarters after seven o'clock ante-meridian.

Finding.—The Court on the evidence before it, and what he has stated in defence, is of opinion that the prisoner, Lieut. A. Chrystie, of H.M.'s 18th regt. M.N.I., is Guilty of the first charge.

Guilty of the second charge.

Guilty of the third charge.

Guilty of the additional charge.

Sentence.—The Court sentences the prisoner, Lt. A. Chrystie, of H.M.'s 18th regt. M.N.I. to be reprimanded in such manner as H.E. the C. in C. may be pleased to direct, and, further, to loss of regimental rank by having his name placed at the bottom of the list of lieutenants in H.M.'s 18th regt. of N.I.

Cannanore, Dec. 5, 1860.

Approved and confirmed.

Head Quarters, Madras, Dec. 12, 1860.

Lieut. Chrystie:—The Court have awarded reprimand as part of their sentence.

I am well aware that such an award can have no efficacy whatever unless you regard the degrading vice which has involved you in these proceedings in its true light. But I trust that your expression of contrition is sincere, and that this warning may serve to arrest you in a course which, if pursued, must terminate in the total loss of position and character.

(Signed) PATRICK GRANT, Lieut. gen., C. in C.

Head Qrs., Madras, Dec. 12, 1860.

Lieut. A. Chrystie's name is to be transposed in the list of lieuts. of the 18th N.I., and will stand in future next below Lieut. J. Hudleston.

Lieut. Chrystie is to be released from arrest, and directed to return to his duty.

Official Despatches.—Right of Adoption.

Foreign Dept., Camp Benares, Dec. 10.—The following despatches upon the subject of adoptions, as affecting succession in the native States and principalities of India, are published by order of H.E. the Governor General.

A. R. YOUNG,

Officiating Sec. to the Govt. of India, with the Gov. Gen.

Simla, April 30, 1860.

To the Right Hon. Sir C. Wood, Bart., M.P., H.M.'s
Sec. of State for India.

SIR,—In accordance with the intention expressed in my Despatch No. 16, of the 6th of December last, I desire to bring to the notice of H.M.'s Government the general subject of adoption, as affecting the succession to the native States and principalities of India.

2. I have in the course of my recent march through Upper India been forcibly struck by the want of some clear and well-understood rule of practice in our dealings with the princes and chiefs upon this subject.

It is not that the measures taken, under the orders of the late Court of Directors, in dealing with doubtful or lapsed successions, have not in many instances been liberal, and even generous; and certainly there is not, at the present moment, any disposition on the part of native States to doubt the general good will towards them of the paramount power. But there appears to be a haze of doubt and mistrust in the mind of each chief as to the policy which the Government will apply to his own State in the event of his leaving no natural heir to his throne, and each seems to feel, not without reason, that in such case the ultimate fate of his country is uncertain.

8. It is to this alone that I can attribute the extraordinary satisfaction with which my assurance to Sindiah, that the Government would see with pleasure his adoption of a successor if lineal heirs should fail him, and that it was the desire of the paramount power that his house should be perpetuated and flourish, was accepted by those attached to his court;—to the extent that at Gwalior the news was received with rejoicing very like that which would have marked the birth of an heir; for there is not a State in India which has had stronger or more practical proof of the wish of the British Government that its integrity should be maintained than Gwalior; from the time when in 1826 and 1827, the then Maharajah was in his last illness perseveringly pressed by Lord Amherst to adopt an heir, and was assured that nothing could be further from the wish and intention of the Government than to exercise then or thereafter any intervention in the internal administration of his country, or to pretend to control the succession to his State, down to 1843, when the present Maharajah, then a child, was placed upon his throne, and confirmed in the possession of it by Lord Ellenborough in person.

4. To the same cause I ascribe the manifest pleasure of the Maharajah of Rewah when a like assurance was given to him. He said to me that his family had been in Rewah for eleven hundred years, and that my words had dispelled an ill wind that had long been blowing upon him. A son had lately been born to him; but if any prince might reasonably expect his adoption of a successor to be respected without a special promise to that effect, it would be one who is bound to us by treaty, and who can show an unusually long and uninterrupted descent from an ancient Rajpoot stock, which for centuries has steadily held its own against all intrusion, whether by Mahomedans, Mahrattas, or Pindaries, as is the case with the Maharajah of Rewah.

5. I could adduce other instances, such as those of the Maharajah of Cashmere, the Maharajah of Putteala, and the chiefs of the Cis-Sutledge country, in which the value attached to the announcement, and the eagerness to have it solemnly recorded, were strongly marked.

6. I believe that the chief cause of this feeling is the vagueness that has prevailed in our policy respecting adoption. That policy has not only been incoherent, but even when an adoption has been admitted, there has often been long discussion in India and references to the Home Government, before a final decision has been taken, thereby giving rise to doubts of our real desire to admit it.

7. But it is not only through what has passed between the Government of India and native courts that our hesitation and uncertainty have been made manifest to the latter. Within the last ten or twelve years, the discussion between the Government of India and the Home Government, and the keen conflict of opinions between individuals of experience and of the highest authority in India and in England, upon this question of adoption, have been laid bare to all who have chosen to examine them. Since 1849, the official correspondence on not less than sixteen or seventeen cases of doubtful succession and of adoption have been printed by orders of Parliament. In these papers there is every variety of opinion as to the claims of native States on the one hand, and as to the duty, rights, and policy of the British Government on the other.

And it must not be supposed, that because these documents are published in Blue Books and in English, they are beyond the knowledge of native courts. They are, on the contrary, sought for and studied by those whose dearest prospects they so closely affect. It is not many months since I was informed by the Governor-general's agent in Central India, that a native court had received from England the Parliamentary papers on Dhar before they had reached my own hands.

8. A brief examination of the papers named in the margin* will show how irreconcilably at variance with each other are the views which the highest authorities have taken of a subject which lies at the very root of the future existence of native States.

9. There is disagreement even on the first fundamental point of all—our own duty.

In one place it is urged that we are bound not to neglect rightful opportunities of acquiring territory or revenue by refusing to permit adoption in independent States where there has been a total failure of all heirs; and that we should take these opportunities of consolidating our territories, and of getting rid of petty intervening principalities.†

In another place, and by another authority, it is contended that the absorption of small independent principalities, which happen to be surrounded by our own territories, will not always augment our power, but will be a source of weakness to ourselves without being a benefit to the people.‡

10. Neither is there agreement on the subject of our own rights. On this head there arise, as might be expected, many complications from differences of origin, of race, and of traditions amongst the various native States. Some are designated "independent," as having maintained their existence under successive paramount dynasties, and having suffered comparatively little interference in their internal affairs from any. Such are the Rajpootana States, some of the Bundelcund States, and others. Some are called "dependent," as having been created or re-established by the Moguls, or the Peishwa, or ourselves, and as having been invested in some instances with authority short of sovereign authority. Such were Sattara, Jhansi, Jalaoun. Then there are disputed points arising out of race and usages:—Whether in a Rajpoot State the widow of a rajah may adopt a son without having received her husband's permission? To what extent in a Rajpoot State the voice of the principal officers of the State is necessary to the recognition of the succession? Whether in a Bundela State the chief may adopt a stranger to the exclusion of collaterals? Whether in Hindoo States generally the senior widow of a chief is allowed to adopt unreservedly, or is limited to a choice within certain degrees of affinity? These are points of nicety which probably it would be impossible to rule absolutely and with satisfaction to all. But, putting aside for the present all small complications, there remain broad and important questions of right on our part upon which the very highest of our officers are at issue.

11. In one paper it is maintained to be beyond doubt that a prince's adoption of any individual does not constitute the latter heir to the principality, or to sovereign rights, until the adoption has received the sanction of the sovereign power; and that this sanction may be withheld even from independent States.§

Elsewhere it is confidently laid down that Hindoo Sovereign Princes, in failure of heirs male of the body, have a right to adopt, to the exclusion of collateral heirs,|| and that the British Government is bound to acknowledge the adoption, provided that it be regular and not in violation of Hindoo law; and further, that even in the case of a fief or dependency a legal adoption cannot be barred by the Government or lord paramount.¶

12. It is impossible that the minds of native rulers and of their people should not be disquieted so long as such a question as this, bearing as it does upon every class of State, independent and dependent, is allowed to remain in doubt. For the doubt has been only partially resolved by the decision of the Court of Directors.* The Court were "fully satisfied that by the general law and custom of India a dependent principality, like that of Sattara, cannot pass to an adopted heir without the consent of the paramount power." But this decision extends only to dependent principalities, and not even to these unreservedly, for all dependent principalities are not like that of Sattara, which was created or reconstituted by the British Government upon conditions framed by that Government, and of which that Government might, perhaps, be assumed to be the rightful interpreter.

In another place the Court of Directors draw a marked distinction between the case of Sattara, a State of recent origin and of our own creation, and that of Kerowlee, an old Rajpoot State,† which has existed from a time long anterior to our rule in India. But there is no admission that even in such a case as that of Kerowlee we are bound to recognise an adoption. It is rather implied that the question is one of expediency, and that even in that case there might have been grounds for taking the opportunity to substitute our own Government for that of a native ruler.

13. Another point upon which strong difference of opinion will be found in the papers referred to, and which has a most important bearing upon the claims of many native States, is the meaning of the words "heirs and successors," in the several treaties and grants in which we find them used.

The instances in which the Government of India has bound itself by engagements or concessions to a chief and his "heirs and successors," or "to his heirs for ever," without explanation of what is to constitute the right of succession or inheritance, are very numerous. The question arises whether the expression is to be interpreted according to our own sense, which would limit it to heirs and successors by blood, or to be extended to heirs and successors by adoption, when the adoption has taken place in accordance with Hindoo law, and with the custom of the other party to the engagement.

14. This question has never, so far as I know, received an authoritative answer. Perhaps the decision of the Court of Directors on the case of Sattara may be regarded as having determined it against the admission of an adopted heir and successor where a dependent chiefship is concerned; but this is not clear, for other considerations were mixed up in that case.

It is a question which is sure to recur. There are several of the Hill States, the possession of which was confirmed to their respective chiefs by special grants after the Goorkha War of 1814, and in dealing with which a decision upon it may any day be called for, owing to the terms in which the grants are couched.

15. Whilst there has been so much doubt as to the duty and rights of our Government in India, there has not been less as to its policy.

16. Probably that view of our policy which would prescribe the retention in our hands of the power to disallow adoption, and thereby to secure to ourselves an accession of territory, could not be expressed in terms more moderate or less calculated to alarm native States than those used by Lord Auckland, when, in reference to the Colaba succession, he declared "that we ought to persevere in the one clear and direct course of abandoning no just and honourable accession of territory or revenue, while all existing claims of right are at the same time scrupulously respected."

But this declaration contains nothing reassuring or clear to those who will be most affected by it. It has been shown that the opinions of the very highest authorities in India and in England—of those, in fact, with whom alone the decision of such matters rested—have differed widely as to what accessions of territory would be just, and as to what claims of right do exist and do deserve our respect.

17. Nor does it appear possible to lay down these points with certainty by any declaration, however detailed and elaborate.

We profess, indeed, to be guided by the Hindoo law, and by the practice of those who have preceded us as rulers in India. But as to what that practice has been we are not agreed amongst ourselves. If, indeed, we never referred to it but for the purpose of avoiding carefully all new encroachments upon the liberties of native States, and with the determination that our authority in questions of successions should be exercised with at least as much forbearance as was shown by the Mahomedans and the Mahrattas, a little uncertainty would be immaterial. We could easily make sure of erring only on the right side. But it has been appealed to in support of a pretension to withhold our assent to adoption even in the case of independent States, thereby making the State a lapee to the British Government; and yet we have not shown, so far as I can find, a single instance in which adoption by a sovereign prince has been invalidated by a refusal of assent from the paramount power.

* See Despatch from the Court of Directors to the Government of India, Jan. 21, 1849.

† See Despatch from the Court of Directors to the Government of India on Kerowlee, Jan. 26, 1853.

18. I venture to think that no such instance can be adduced, and that the practice which has prevailed is truly described by Sir Henry Lawrence,* where he says, "The confirmation of the suzerain is necessary in all cases; he is the arbitrator of all contested adoptions; he can set aside one or other for informality, irregularity, or for misconduct; but it does not appear by the rules or practices of any of the sovereignties, or by our own practice with the Istumardars of Ajmere, that the paramount State can refuse confirmation to one or other claimant, and confiscate the State, however small."

I am aware that Sir Henry Lawrence, who when this was written was the agent of the Gov. gen. in Rajpootana, speaks only of that part of India. But although the strong brotherhood of the Rajpoot States, their geographical position, and other circumstances, caused their relations with the Emperors of Delhi to remain more clearly defined and less subject to capricious change than those of other feudatory States, I believe that there is no example of any Hindoo State, whether in Rajpootana or elsewhere, lapsing to the paramount power by reason of that power withholding its assent to an adoption.

19. It has been argued that the right to grant sanction implies the right to withhold it.† This, however sound logically, is neither sound nor safe practically. The histories of feudal governments furnish abundant examples of long established privileges habitually renewed as acts of grace from the paramount powers, but which those powers have never thought of refusing for purposes of their own, or upon their own judgment alone.

20. Then as regards our other rule of guidance—the Hindoo law.‡ It has been said by one who is well competent to speak on the subject that "it is hunting after a shadow to search for laws of inheritance to chiefships in India, so fixed as the Government desires to obtain."

"The Hindoo law, which is so comprehensive regarding rights to private property, does not provide distinctly for chiefships. It is not fair, therefore, to desire a claimant to support his pretensions by adducing fixed laws." And in the same letter it is observed in reference to certain views of the right of succession amongst the hill chiefs, that "it is the inconsistency, caprice, and mutability of our opinions regarding all great principles that is the bane of our supremacy in India." I fear that as regards the matter now under consideration this is too true.

21. And now I would beg her Majesty's Government to consider whether the time has not come when we may, with advantage to all, adopt and announce some rule in regard to succession in native States, more distinct than that which we have been seeking to derive from the sources above mentioned, not by setting aside the Hindoo law wherever that avails, and not by diminishing in the least degree the consideration which the feudatory States have experienced at the hands of former ruling dynasties; but on the contrary, by increasing this consideration, and at the same time making our future practice plain and certain.

22. A time so opportune for the step can never occur again. The last vestiges of the royal house of Delhi, from which for our own convenience we had long been content to accept a vicarious authority, have been swept away. The last pretender to the representation of the Peishwa has disappeared. The Crown of England stands forth the unquestioned ruler and paramount power in all India, and is for the first time brought face to face with its feudatories. There is a reality in the suzerainty of the Sovereign of England which has never existed before, and which is not only felt, but eagerly acknowledged by the chiefs. A great convulsion has been followed by such a manifestation of our strength as India had never seen, and if this in its turn be followed by an act of general and substantial grace to the native chiefs over and above the special rewards which have already been given to those whose services deserve them, the measure will be seasonable and appreciated.

23. Such an act of grace, and in my humble opinion of sound policy, would be an assurance to every chief above the rank of jaghirdar who now governs his own territory, no matter how small it may be, or where it may be situated, or whence his authority over it may in the first instance have been derived, that the paramount power desires to see his government perpetuated, and that on failure of natural heirs, his adoption of a successor according to Hindoo law, (if he be a Hindoo), and to the customs of his race will be recognised, and that nothing shall disturb the engagement thus made to him so long as his house is loyal to the Crown, and faithful to the conditions of the treaties or grants which record its obligations to the British Government.

24. The effect to be expected from this measure may be shortly described.

25. To the old principalities of Rajpootana it would be of no direct importance. These adoptions have been hitherto generally respected by all ruling powers, and if any class of chiefs feel secure that we shall not question their claims to adopt successors, it is probably the princes of Rajpootana.

To the great houses of Sindiah, Holkar, Rewah, Puttalia, and to other smaller ones, to whom the promise has already been made, it would be no new concession.

But to all other chiefs, to the Gaekwar, and others in Western India—to those in Central India, in Bundelkund, and in the Hill States, it would be a most welcome assurance.

26. It would re-assure them upon a matter on which they are especially sensitive—the continuance of the representation and dignity of their families.

It would remove a distinction already adverted to, which has been drawn between independent and dependent States, founded (though I venture to think not quite correctly founded) upon Lord Metcalfe's minute of October 28, 1837, and would do away with the difference of treatment between the independent chief and the chief of a State like Jalaoun or Jhansie, who though he and his fathers may have exercised for more than a century the full functions of Government, is not considered entitled to adopt a successor because the Peishwa had recognized his ancestor only as a subadar.

It would show at once and for ever, that we are not lying in wait for opportunities of absorbing territory, and that we do deliberately desire to keep alive a feudal aristocracy where one still exists. It would establish this more conclusively, and bring it home to many more minds than the promises and declarations recently made in durbar to the powerful chiefs to whom we are under special obligations.

27. I have proposed that the assurance should be given to every chief who now governs his own territory, and who holds a position higher than that of a jaghirdar.

This will mark a line which will be generally clear and intelligible, and it will accord with the one main distinction drawn by Lord Metcalfe between chiefs who are, and chiefs who are not, entitled to adopt.

Nevertheless I think that some exceptions in favor of jaghirdars should be made; a jaghir is usually an assignment of land or revenue, in consideration of services, and not hereditary, or hereditary only for a generation or two. But as Lord Metcalfe observes, there are in Bundelkund, chiefs whom it is difficult to place in either of the classes which he describes; and it is clear that he alludes to some who are there called jageerdars. In their case the word means much more than in other parts of India.* Their territories and the administration thereof have been granted to them and to their successors in perpetuity, and so long as certain obligations are observed; and the concession of the privileges of adoption to the most influential amongst them, would have beneficial effect, not only in that disjointed province, which, whatever may be our desire, and however stringently we might enforce lapses, we could not hope to consolidate under our administration for many generations to come, but throughout India. In these last mentioned cases † it would be expedient to require a nuzurana whenever adoption took effect. From a fourth to a third of a year's revenue would I think be a fitting amount.

28. The case of the Mahomedan chiefs remains to be considered. Adoption, in the full sense in which it is exercised by the Hindoo chiefs, they cannot claim. But adoption of one collateral in preference to another of closer affinity ‡ has been allowed to them where lineal heirs have failed; and it seems that it is also in accordance with Mahomedan law and usage that the Sovereign should select from among his sons the one whom he may desire to succeed him. The King of Delhi exercised this right shortly before his rebellion. To the Mahomedan chiefs, then, the assurance to be given would be that the paramount power desires to see their Governments perpetuated, and that any succession to them which may be legitimate according to Mahomedan law will be upheld.

29. I recommend that in every case, Mahomedan or Hindoo, the assurance should be conveyed to each chief individually,* and not by a general notification addressed to all. This would be necessary in order to avoid future claims from petty jageerdars or others whom it is not intended to include in the measure.

30. The proposed measure will not debar the Government of India from stepping in to set right such serious abuses in a native Government as may threaten any part of the country with anarchy or disturbance, nor from assuming temporary charge of a native State when there shall be sufficient reason to do so. This has long been our practice. We have repeatedly exercised the power with the assent and sometimes at the desire of the chief authority in the State, and it is one which used with good judgment and moderation, it is desirable we should retain. It will, indeed, when once the proposed assurance shall have been given, be more easy than heretofore to exercise it without provoking jealousy of any designs upon the independence of the State.

31. Neither will the assurance, if worded as proposed, diminish our right to visit a State with the heaviest penalties, even to confiscation, in the event of disloyalty or flagrant breach of engagements. Upon this point I beg to refer to the following passages in papers by Sir George Clerk:—

"We should look for escheats not from such a source as the doubtful meaning of the stipulation of an agreement, but from the incorrigible misconduct of allies when thrown back,† as they should be, on the responsibilities of the sovereign rights relinquished to them, rendering punishment in such cases signal and salutary, by abstaining from half measures, such as largely pensioning or managing for the delinquent, or substituting his child, wife, or minister;" and again, "The proper punishment for the paramount State to inflict for gross mismanagement and oppression, such as prevails to a considerable extent in these hills,‡ would be sequestration of the chief-taincies, but this would not be fair until we had revived their interest in their ancestral territories, by manifesting the same respect for their rights founded on a possession of many centuries, as is entertained by the people in general. Could we inspire them with confidence in our general disinterestedness, our severity when called for, would be rightly and beneficially understood; and, for the most part, that confidence would correct the motives to neglectful or tyrannical conduct requiring punishment."

I consider these views to be sound, not only in the cases to which they refer, but in those of native States generally, and I would apply them generally, with this single limitation—that the penalty of sequestration or confiscation should be used only when the misconduct or oppression is such as to be not only heinous in itself, but of a nature to constitute indisputably a breach of loyalty or of recorded engagement to the paramount power.

32. It is certain that objections to the proposed measure will be taken on the ground that it will cut off future opportunities of accession of territory, and that it is our duty not to forego these. I regard this not as an objection, but as a recommendation; and I cannot take that view of our duty.

33. Notwithstanding the greater purity and enlightenment of our administration, its higher tone, and its surer promise of future benefit to the people, as compared with any native Government, I still think that we have before us a higher and more pressing duty than that of extending our rule; and that our first care should be to strengthen that rule within its present limits, and to secure for our general supremacy the contented acquiescence and respect of all who are subjected to it.

Our supremacy will never be heartily accepted and respected so long as we leave ourselves open to the doubts which are now felt, and which our uncertain policy has justified, as to our ultimate intentions towards native States.

We shall not become stronger so long as we continue adding to our territory without adding to our European force; and the additions to that force which we already require are probably as large as England can conveniently furnish, and they will certainly cost as much as India can conveniently pay.

As to civil government, our English officers are too few for the work which they have on their hands, and our financial means are not yet equal to the demands upon us. Accession of territory will not make it easier to discharge our already existing duties in the administration of justice, the prosecution of public works, and in many other ways.

34. The safety of our rule is increased, not diminished, by the maintenance of native chiefs well affected to us. Setting aside the well-known services rendered by Sindiah, and subsequently by the Maharajahs of Rewah, Chirkaree, and others over the wide tract of Central India, where our authority is most broken in upon by native States, I venture to say that there is no man who remembers the condition of Upper India in 1857 and 1858, who is not thankful that in the centre of the large and compact British province of Rohilcund there remained the solitary State of Rampore still administered by its Mahomedan prince; and that on the borders of the Punjab, and of the districts above Delhi, the Chief of Puttiala and his kinsmen still retained their hereditary authority unimpaired.

In the time of which I speak, these patches of native government served as breakwaters to the storm which would otherwise have swept over us in one great wave. And in quiet times they have their uses. Restless men who will accept no profession but arms, crafty intriguers bred up in native Courts, and others who would chafe at our stricter and more formal rule, live there contentedly. And should the day come when India shall be threatened by an external enemy, or when the interests of England elsewhere may require that her Eastern empire shall incur more than ordinary risk, one of our best mainstays will be found in these native States. But to make them so we must treat their chiefs and influential families with consideration and generosity, teaching them that in spite of all suspicions to the contrary, their independence is safe, that we are not waiting for plausible opportunities to convert their country into British territory, and convincing them that they have nothing to gain by helping to displace us in favour of any new rulers from within or from without.

35. It was long ago said by Sir John Malcolm that if we made all India into zillahs, it was not in the nature of things that our empire should last fifty years; but that if we could keep up a number of native States without political power, but as royal instruments, we should exist in India as long as our naval superiority in Europe was maintained. Of the substantial truth of this opinion I have no doubt, and recent events have made it more deserving of our attention than ever.—I have, &c., CANNING.

No. 46.

Kurnaul, May 10, 1860.

To the Right Hon. Sir CHARLES WOOD, Bart., H.M.'s Sec. of State for India.

SIR,—In my Despatch, No. 42 of the 26th ultimo, respecting the chiefship of Bughat, I referred to another despatch on the subject of the Hill States generally as having been addressed to you. I regret that I was not able to send the last mentioned despatch by the same mail with that which referred to it. I now repair the omission.

2. I beg to call your attention to the memorandum upon the Hill States, which Mr. Barnes, the commissioner of the Cis-Sutledge division, has drawn up. It describes concisely, but very clearly, the position in which the hill chiefs stand towards the British Government, and it presents (I venture to think) very strong reasons for adopting the course which I have pressed upon you in a despatch of the 30th ultimo, of declaring to the hill chiefs as to others, that failing lineal heirs or heirs of their own blood, their adoption of successors to their chiefships will be recognised.

3. The Commissioner has suggested this and another alternative course, by either of which confidence might be given to the chiefs, and consistency and greater liberality secured in our treatment of cases of succession and lapse. The alternative is, that investigation should be made of the pedigree of each chief's family for 150 years back, and that all descendants of the ancestor of that date should be admitted as eligible to the succession: also that the former grants from the British Government, mostly of the date of 1815, should be recalled, and that they should be renewed in this more liberal spirit.

4. I am of opinion that the concession of adoption is by far the preferable measure. It avoids tedious investigations, some of which might prove of uncertain result, and the purpose of which might not be understood; and it is more thoroughly in accordance with the traditions and feelings of Rajpoot families. Whichever course be chosen, I would not recall the grants of 1815. This process is not necessary, and is better omitted, even though the object be to make the terms of the grants more favorable to the holders of them.

5. A perusal of the papers relating to Omaid Sing's case may perhaps suggest two objections to giving to the hill chiefs a more lasting tenure of their States—the mismanagement and oppression which, according to Sir George Clerk's testimony in 1842, then prevailed in the hills, and the value to the British Government of retaining to itself the lapse of lands suited to tea plantations and other purposes of improvement.

6. Upon the first head I would observe, that in Sir George Clerk's view, the greater respect which it is proposed to show to the old rights of the chiefs will leave us quite as well able as we are now to punish and correct mismanagement and oppression by temporary sequestration; and that the instances of oppression are not so frequent or serious as they used to be. This may be due in part to a closer watch kept upon the chiefs of late years; but I believe that it is mainly to be attributed to the fact that the people are able to migrate, without restraint, from the territory of one hill chief to that of another, each of whom is glad enough to receive upon his lands refugees from his neighbour's state, and none daring to resent their reception, as would have been done before our rule became paramount in these hills. Each chief therefore for his own interest, refrains from oppression.

7. In some of the States the value of the ground for tea culture is indisputable, but, until other roads than the one great Thibet road are carried through the hills, the lands suitable for European settlers will continue to be very limited; and although it might be a convenience to us that some of these lands should fall into our hands, it is certain that the direct government of at least one half of the Hill States would be a dead weight and a loss to us. The British Government cannot wisely desire to have cast upon it the responsibility of administering, by its own officers, States so far remote in the mountains, and so little productive or politically important as Bussahir, Komharsein, Mangut, Bhagut, and others; and if we pursue the course of annexing those which lie conveniently, as we have done in the case of Bughat, and of allowing collateral succession in those which it does not suit us to take, as we have done in the case of Komharsein, we must not be surprised if our policy fails to be understood or respected.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

CANNING.

No. 59.

India-office, London, July 26, 1860.

MY LORD.—Para. 1. In several recent communications, your Excellency has informed me that during your viceregal progress through Central and Upper India, you availed yourself of every opportunity that presented itself to you for a formal declaration, in durbars, that the British Government desired to perpetuate, in undiminished power and prosperity, the houses of those native princes and chiefs, who, throughout the recent period of trouble and disaster, had been true to their allegiance to the paramount State. To the Maharajah Sindiah and Holkar, to the Maharajah of Rewah, to the Maharajah of Cashmere, to the Great Chiefs of the Cis-Sutlej States, and to others of less note, you publicly conveyed the gratifying assurance that, in the event of failure of direct heirs, the British Government would recognise, as chiefs of their several houses, the heirs adopted by them in accordance with the law and with the usages of their respective families.

2. These measures have already received the approbation of her Majesty's Government. But gratifying as they were to the princes and chiefs, who were thus assured of the continuance of their houses, it was not improbable that they would be regarded by the native community at large as special acts of grace, in consideration of good service rendered to the paramount State, and that some feelings of doubt and disquietude might be excited in the minds of those to whom the same assurances had not been conveyed. Your Excellency, therefore, lost no time in placing upon record and laying before her Majesty's Government the sentiments which you entertain with respect to the propriety of a more general measure of recognition, calculated to give renewed confidence to all the princes and chiefs of India whose minds had been unsettled by some recent decisions of the British Government.

3. These sentiments I have now before me in your Excellency's letters, No. 43a of the 30th of April, and No. 46 of the 10th of May, and I have the gratification to inform you that I am commanded to communicate to you her Majesty's approval of the principles which they enforce, and the recommendation which they contain.

4. Observing that such an opportunity as the present can never occur again for the final settlement of a question which has long excited continual conflicts of opinion and some inconsistencies of practice disturbing to the native mind, your Excellency now proposes to give to "every chief above the rank of Jagheedar, who now governs his own territory, no matter how small it may be, or where it may be situated, or whence his authority over it may in the first instance have been derived, assurance that the paramount power desires to see his government perpetuated, and that, on failure of natural heirs, his adoption of a successor according to Hindoo law (if he be a Hindoo) and to the customs of his race, will be recognised, and that nothing shall disturb the engagement thus made to him, so long as his house is loyal to the Crown, and faithful to the conditions of the treaties or grants which record its obligations to the British government."

5. To the Mahomedan chiefs, the assurance to be given would, according to your recommendation, be, that the paramount power desires their government to be perpetuated, and that any succession to them which may be legitimate according to Mahomedan law will be upheld.

6. Presuming that, in this latter case, the recommendations of your Excellency relate only to instances in which there is a failure of direct heirs and do not contemplate any departure from the policy of recognising the claims of primogeniture, her Majesty's Government approve the views thus expressed. They concur also in opinion with your Excellency, that no general notification of the intentions of your Government should be issued, but that, in each case, the assurance should be conveyed to the individual chiefs, in whose favour you purpose to guarantee the privilege in question. You will carefully register the names of these chiefs, and forward me a roll of them as soon as it can be prepared.

7. With respect to the case of Jagheedars and others of similar character, of whose position your Excellency writes in the 27th paragraph of your letter, I am disposed to think that, except in very special cases, no assurance should be given. The distinction between territorial right of ancient date and independent tenure, and lands held by favour of the Government of the day, as rewards for good service, and generally granted only for a limited number of generations, is broad and intelligible. You will reserve to the paramount State the right of dealing with such cases as they arise, and that your recommendations will be framed in a liberal spirit, is the wish, as it is the conviction, of her Majesty's Government.

In the sentiments expressed in the concluding paragraphs of your Excellency's letter of April 30, I entirely concur.* It is not by the extension of our empire that its permanence is to be secured, but by the character of British rule in the territories already committed to our care, and by practically demonstrating that we are as willing to respect the rights of others as we are capable of maintaining our own.—I have the honour to be, my lord, your lordship's most obedient, humble servant,

CHARLES WOOD.

* Paragraphs 32 to 35.

SINDIA AND THE GOVERNOR GENERAL.—The North-West journals have for some time contained contradictory and incorrect statements as to the probability of an exchange of British territory with Sindia similar to that effected with the Nizam of Hyderabad. At the present stage of the negotiations it would be premature for us to enter into details. But this much we may state with confidence that all Sindia's possessions south of the Vindhya Range and the Punj Mahals in Baroda, one hundred and three miles south west from Gwalior, will be taken in exchange for lands near Jhansi between the Betwa and the Pahooj. We are glad that the policy of Government is more and more to concentrate and aggregate British territory. In the case of almost all the great native states our provinces are frequently intermixed with them in such a way as to lead to endless disputes, references to political agents and native Dewans, conflicts between the opposing British and native authorities, and extensive customs lines which are far from effectual in preventing smuggling. This confusion of authority and intermixing of territory has had much to do with the inability of both the Bombay authorities and the Guicowar to put down the revolt of the Waghers, who have defied all efforts to capture or punish them for nearly two years. Such a consolidation of territory is not less a relief to political agents than to the Foreign Office in Calcutta. The details of the exchange with Sindia Lord Canning will settle on the spot. It will pave the way for that great Lieutenant-governorship of Berar and Central India, which we have so often urged, and which would be carried out at once but for the disinclination of the Nizam, to allow the new cession of Berar to be administered by any other officer than Colonel Davidson, the resident at his court. The new province should, ten years hence, prove the wealthiest in India next to Bengal. When the railway running the entire length from Bombay to Nagpore, with the Godavery improved and opened up to free navigation on the other side, the Proconsulate of Berar and Central India should supply all the cotton-mills of Lancashire, and force the slave states of America to seek for other markets.—Friend of India.

THE MYSORE PRINCES.

"FOLLOW my leader" is not a safe game in journalism. Assuming that the Indian papers, to say nothing of the Legislative Council of Calcutta, would be correctly informed as to the precise nature of the dotation bestowed by Sir Charles Wood upon the descendants of Tippoo Sultan, we expressed some surprise, in our last Summary, at the inopportune alienation of a sum equal to one-half of the estimated produce of the Income-tax. At the time we were not unmindful of the fact that Tippoo's sons were largely accessory to the mutiny at Vellore in 1806, in consequence of which it was deemed advisable to remove them from the Madras Presidency to Calcutta, and to reduce the enormous pension previously paid to them. It had also been currently stated that, on being remonstrated with for the extravagance of such a grant, Sir Charles had replied, "he could not afford another Delhi." We know not how far this may be true, and it is quite possible that the report may have no better foundation than had the "Sylphide scandal." But under the impression that this very irrelevant remark had really been made, it was natural to feel some apprehension as to the extent to which this purchase of peace might be carried. The Mysore family, with the exception of Prince Ghulam Mahomed, consists of Tippoo's descendants in the third and fourth generation, and is totally destitute of even local influence. Occasionally we hear of a ball being given to the fashionable society of Calcutta, but beyond that their name is never heard, and the agitation said to prevail among the native community proves how completely the Mysore dynasty has passed away from the memory of men, even Mahomedans. But it now appears that the Secretary of State, instead of lavishing the treasures of India upon a portly Mussulman adventurer, has really made a good bargain with him. A correspondent of the leading journal has placed this in a very clear light. The provision which has excited so much indignation in India has been made, he says,—

"Not out of the general revenues of that country, but out of the revenues of territory originally reserved for the express purpose of providing a suitable maintenance for the families of Hyder Ali Khan and Tippoo Sooltan. This is placed beyond all controversy by the following extracts from Lord Wellesley's memorandum explanatory of the Partition Treaty of Mysore, and two schedules annexed to the treaty:—

"First—The principle of partition between the Nizam and Company assumed in the first and second articles is that each party should retain in direct sovereignty an equal share of unencumbered territorial revenue, deduction being made from both sides of the amounts of pensions for jaghires of which each party was to bear the charge."

"Second—
"DISTRICTS ENUMERATED IN SCHEDULE A.
Canteria pagodas ... .. 777,000
Deduct provision for the families of Hyder Ali Khan and Tippoo Sooltan two lacs of star pagodas—canteria pagodas 240,000
Remains for the Company ... .. 537,000
"DISTRICTS ENUMERATED IN SCHEDULE B.
Canteria pagodas ... .. 607,332
Deduct personal Jaghire to Kummerodeen Bahadur, Rs. 210,000, or canteria pagodas ... .. 70,000
Remains for the Nizam ... .. 537,332"

"Two lacs of star pagodas are equal to seven lacs of rupees, and the corresponding capital at 5 per cent. is 1 crore and 40 lacs. Deducting from that amount the sum of 52 lacs, which it is said will be required for the new arrangement, it can hardly be considered an improvident bargain for India, which retains the territory, with all the accumulations of surplus revenue since the year 1800 above what has been expended on the families, and is done with them for ever."

Such being the case, we have no hesitation in acknowledging the error into which we were so easily led, and in admitting that for once we have shown ourselves to be no wiser than our neighbours.

THE RIGHT OF ADOPTION.

A NEW political principle has been enunciated by the Viceroy of India, in an elaborate Minute published in this day's issue, which is likely to exercise, for weal or for woe, the most important influence on the future destinies of our Indian empire. Under existing circumstances no other policy is, indeed, possible; and there are some grounds for believing that it would at all times have been the soundest and most just. Lord Dalhousie, it may be said, regarded it as his mission to fulfil the melancholy forebodings of the one-eyed ruler of the Punjab, and to work out the prediction that the entire map of the peninsula would one day be "red." He was a daring and large-souled statesman; and had he been an emperor, instead of the viceregent of a corporation, he would have built up a power capable of enduring for centuries. His views were far-seeing and comprehensive, his moral courage of the highest order, and his sense of political right and wrong sufficiently Machiavellian to release him from conventional prejudices. His object was to weld together the disjointed and oftentimes heterogeneous States which were situated between the Himalayas and the Southern sea, and between the Afghan mountains and the Bay of Bengal. It was an aim worthy of a great ambition, and by no means impracticable had he been properly seconded either by his own subordinates, or by the almost irresponsible citizens whose princely delegate he happened to be. Unfortunately, Lord Dalhousie had no power to select his own instruments. Many of his officers were opposed to his schemes, not a few were too indolent to depart from the ordinary routine, while others had crotchets of their own to which they postponed the most urgent questions of State policy. Where he enjoyed the opportunity of making his own selection, as in the Punjab, the result vindicated his judgment, and a complete success rewarded his sagacity. But in that instance he had the further advantage of being able to enforce his designs by an imposing display of military power, and the flower of the European army in India overawed and controlled the warlike race that under Runjeet Singh and the Khalsa had so long been a terror to their neighbours. With the same means at his disposal he would doubtless have achieved the same result in Oude, and possibly in the Nizam's dominions, had not failing health betrayed his masculine ambition. The pacification of those two provinces, even if undertaken at the same time, would have been a far easier task than that which had so signally been accomplished in the Punjab. Greatly inferior means would have sufficed, but for neither of these purposes had Lord Dalhousie any means at all. He proposed to complete the mighty pyramid, the broad basis of which had been laid by the daring genius of Clive and the unscrupulous sagacity of Warren Hastings; but his Honourable Masters, while they applauded his designs, would furnish him neither with bricks, nor with materials to make bricks. Perchance it was not altogether their fault, nor have we any desire to rake up old grievances. It is enough that his lordship was not supplied with the means indispensable to the attainment of his end; and thus instead of a united and well-nigh indivisible empire, he left to his successor a vast territory with a disaffected army, an excited population, and princes offended and alarmed, but not yet rendered powerless to work mischief. The tiger was couchant in his cage, his eyes were closed, and his talons drawn back; but the cage was insecure, the keepers were faithless or off their guard, the monster slept not, nor was his ferocity or strength diminished. So, one day he rose in his wrath, and the stoutest hearts for a moment quailed with terror. True, he has been overpowered, and men now babble about his gentleness and docility, and appreciation of kind treatment.

This last experiment, too, is about to be made. One of Lord Dalhousie's most potent means of aggrandisement was the denial to native princes of the right of adoption. Theoretically, at least to European minds, nothing can be more absurd and untenable than the doctrine that any prince, potentate or chieftain, should have the privilege of adopting no matter whom to succeed to his title and to rule over his people. The adopted heir might be a child, or the offspring of the most base-born menial about the palace, or he might be forced by intrigue, by fear, or by maudlin imbecility, upon the dying ruler. Such was the custom and usage of the Hindoos, though the Mahomedans contented themselves with selecting any member of a collateral branch in preference to all others. The practice, too, however contrary to our own notions, was found to answer well in many respects, and especially in averting a struggle for the vacant throne. But a vacant throne was an object of the deepest interest to the late Governor-general. It implied accession of territory, the rounding off of angularities, the adjustment of frontiers, the consolidation of the empire. His policy, we are constrained to admit, was not strictly just, but it was bold, perhaps wise, certainly imperial and Napoleonic, and might have been successful could he have had 10,000 more European soldiers, and the use of his mental faculties for yet a few years.

A new system is now inaugurated. Astraea has returned to the earth, and the golden age is about to revive. The right of adoption is recognised in all chiefs above the rank of mere Jagheerdars, and even those will in certain cases be permitted to exercise the much coveted privilege. We frankly confess that we augur well of this measure. Not only gratitude, which is a particularly evanescent sentiment, but self-interest will now array on the side of the British Government every native prince from the Punjab to Travancore. There is no question as to which is the Paramount Power—whò the Suzerain of Hindostan. Both Hindoo and Mahomedan are willing to own allegiance to the Sovereign of Great Britain, provided they be assured of their independence in matters of internal administration. If intolerable oppression, indeed, be exercised, the British Government still reserves to itself the right of interference, and this is the only weak point in the new system. It were far better to leave to the people of each State to settle with their chief, or at least the Supreme Government should only intervene when called upon to do so by the subjects of the tyrant. Let there be no more Residents as a nucleus of intrigue, and an excuse for both prince and minister. All that is wanted is an officer, somewhat similar to a consul in other parts of the world, to take care that no injustice be offered to British subjects, whether natives of our Indian territories or Europeans. Above all, let there be no more Contingents, no more training of soldiers to act against ourselves when opportunity may offer, in short, no more half measures. If ever we have a legitimate cause of complaint, let ample satisfaction be exacted, but that is very different from annexation. Our future policy is clearly to place ourselves at the head of a confederation, undertaking the common defence against all foreign enemies, devising and encouraging every kind of internal improvement, especially means of irrigation and transport, massing our troops so as to command all the chief strategic points throughout the Empire, reducing the civil expenditure to the very utmost consistent with efficiency, and acting in a frank, cordial, and respectful manner as towards the subjects of the same gracious Sovereign, and component members of the greatest and most glorious empire yet recorded in the annals of mankind. The present Secretary of State for India, and the present Viceroy of that mighty dependency are equally entitled to the highest praise for having laboured to effect such a happy consummation, and we sincerely trust that they may live to see the harvest of the good seed they have scattered with such wise liberality.

THE FRONTIER RAIDS.—From the Waghers in Ootkamundel on the western coast to the Kookes in the Tipperah hills almost directly opposite on the East, our frontier is surrounded by a ring-fence of half-suppressed or active hostilities. We cannot catch the Waghers. The only result of our last invasion of the Mahsood Wuzerees was an admirable survey of their country. In obedience to orders, Dr. Campbell, Superintendent of Darjeeling, took possession of a part of the Rajah of Sikkim's territory, with only 100 natives and three Europeans. Acting as he did under orders he does not deserve blame for this. But he does deserve, and with him Capt. Murray who commanded the natives, the severest reprehension for sending out pickets of men so far from the camp that no help could reach them when attacked. The folly of this is seen from the fact, that within the camp which was stockaded only one man was killed and four wounded. The distant pickets, at three different points, after fighting splendidly were cut down, and twenty-nine men were killed. Upwards of four hundred men of H.M.'s 6th were sent off from Barrackpore on Saturday and Monday by rail to Rajmahal, whence they would reach Darjeeling by a three days' march. Of Sikhs and Ghoorkas belonging to the Bengal police, two hundred and ninety went up on Saturday. Two companies of the 73rd from Julpigoree were at once sent up. Sikkim will be re-occupied by this strong force. Still going eastwards, Lieutenant Morton is entering the Garrow Hills, last penetrated by Lieutenant Agnew in 1852. And finally Captain Magrath heads an expedition against the tribes of the Tipperah hills who have not yet been punished for plundering our territories and kidnapping our subjects. The only result of this incursion is likely to be a survey of the country, for which purpose a Revenue Surveyor accompanies the force. Capt. Magrath's opinion of Sir F. Halliday's police is that of the public generally. He would rather head 200 of our own peasantry well armed than 5,000 of the most useless and most expensive heroes of the Bengal Police Battalions. Thus it is that war and annexation are forced upon us.—Friend of India.

CANALS OF IRRIGATION.—The various canals in the Doab of the North-West Provinces have been of much use in mitigating the famine in their immediate vicinity. The revenue of the Ganges canal is estimated at four times what it was last year. In 1859-60 the Eastern Jumna Canal yielded Rs. 2,80,000, while the expenditure was only Rs. 80,000. This is a net profit of two lakhs on a capital of twelve lakhs, or 17½ per cent. This year the results will be more favourable.

"BE NOT FORGETFUL TO ENTERTAIN STRANGERS."

THE STRANGERS' HOME

FOR ASIATICS, AFRICANS, AND SOUTH SEA ISLANDERS, WEST INDIA DOCK-ROAD, LIMEHOUSE, E.

PRESIDENT—LORD HENRY CHOLMONDELEY.

VICE-PRESIDENT—SIR T. FOWELL BUXTON, BARONET.

The STRANGERS' HOME is the only Institution in the United Kingdom expressly set apart for Africans and Asiatics—where crews of Lascars and gentlemen's servants can be sent to be taken care of, transferred, or provided with employment, and where Lascars and Asiatic servants, with every information regarding them, can, on application, be obtained.

The Home can accommodate 250 inmates, and has special arrangements for natives of the tropics. The number in the Home fluctuates. The daily average number in the Home since it was opened has been about forty. The highest number as yet has been 132; but the sudden arrival of several crews may fill the Home in a day.

The freehold site, building, furniture, and first outlay on the establishment of the Home cost £14,700—£6,000 of which the Directors were obliged to borrow; of this sum, £8,800 remains as a debt, which they are most anxious to liquidate.

The Institution was intended to be self-supporting, and would be so with an average of seventy-five inmates daily; but an Annual Fund is required to maintain it in efficient working order while the number is, as at present, through commercial circumstances, below that average. Funds are therefore urgently required for this purpose, as well as for covering the interest upon the debt.

THINGS AS THEY WERE.

I. Previous to the establishment of the "Strangers' Home" in June, 1857, the natives of India, Africa, China, and the Isles of the Pacific, could not find admission into any respectable place on arrival in England, but were inveigled by Asiatic and European crimps into the low lodging-houses in the east of London. The results were dreadful:—twenty or thirty were often found in one small house, where they were plundered of their wages and savings, stripped of their clothes, and often turned out in the streets to beg, and to die unvisited and uncared for.

II. The statements given in the London City Mission Magazine, in November, 1858, and May, 1860, regarding the opium-smoking dens and low lodging-houses—the only former place of resort for Asiatics who came to England—exhibit the vices and evils to which they were exposed.

III. Before the "Home" was opened, few Asiatics escaped being plundered in the low lodging-houses of their property, and were seldom seen in the streets except in rags and a fearful state of destitution.

IV. Before the establishment of the "Home," hundreds of Asiatics habitually obtained a living by begging in the streets of London, numbers were found in workhouses and prisons, and police proceedings against them were frequent.

V. In 1854, 55, 56, upwards of one hundred Asiatics died in the Port of London; many were found dead in their miserable lodgings, and some in the streets; forty inquests were held; and 1,631 sick Lascars were admitted into the Dreadnought Hospital alone.

VI. The neighbourhood of the docks was formerly polluted by these foreigners and their English companions, involving the parishes around in riot and expense.

VII. Formerly the Asiatic and African stranger was unsought for and unheeded; they never heard or saw anything of Christianity, and left England greater heathens than they came, impressed with the feeling that Christianity was a mere name.

VIII. Educated and influential natives from the East, visiting England, formerly, could not fail to observe the neglected and miserable condition of their poor countrymen, by which they estimated our Christianity.

THINGS AS THEY ARE.

I. Since the opening of the "Home," in June, 1857, 1,259 Asiatics, Africans, and South Sea Islanders have gladly availed themselves of its benefits—a large proportion, not maintained by their employers, having paid for their board and lodging. Every Lascar and other Asiatic now coming to the Port of London knows where to go, and cordially resorts to the "Home." Numbers find their way from Liverpool, and other out-ports, to the "Home," as their refuge whilst in England, where they stay until shipped, through the Shipping-office at the "Home."

II. Through the efforts of the "Home," every opium smoking-room, and a number of the most disreputable lodging-houses in various parts of London, have been closed, and every Asiatic crimp induced to return to his native country.

III. The inmates of the "Home" have, since it was opened, deposited in the Superintendent's office £1,807 in cash, besides silver and gold articles to nearly the same amount, which has been returned to them on leaving; and have purchased upwards of £700 worth of clothing from the stores in the "Home."

IV. Through the efforts of the officers of the "Home," 257 Asiatic beggars have been removed from the streets; besides one hundred who have been shipped from workhouses and prisons at good wages. Last year not more than five Asiatics were inmates of workhouses, and those only for a few days, and police cases were very rare.

V. In 1857, 58, 59, cases of sickness did not exceed 150, and only thirteen deaths occurred amongst the Asiatics in the Port of London, and not one CORONER'S INQUEST.

VI. The Rector of Limehouse, in referring to the Home, says, "Its positive benefits have tended to raise the moral character of the neighbourhood." Similar testimony is given by parish officers, and others residing in the east of London.

VII. Since the Home was opened the Scripture Reader in Hindostanee and other Eastern languages has visited 123 ships with Lascar crews. He has spoken to 2,571 Asiatics on board ship, to 8,641 on shore; he has paid 461 visits to the sick, 147 to those in jail, and 57 to those in workhouses; he has read the Scriptures on 3,100 occasions, sold and given away 814 portions of Scripture, and 4,367 tracts in 36 different languages; and every Asiatic who now visits London is found out, spoken to, and aid (if needed) afforded.

VIII. There are now many influential native gentlemen visitors in London from the East, who take a deep interest in the Home, and aid it by their contributions. The Council for India acknowledge its utility, and support it most liberally; whilst the Church Missionary, London Missionary, Wesleyan Missionary, Baptist Missionary, and Moravian Societies, all feel it is a sphere for missionary action, and accordingly contribute to its support. The Directors have received numerous testimonies expressive of the gratitude of those who have been inmates of the Home, for the kind treatment and aid they have met with, extracts from which would occupy too large a space for this paper.

Need the Directors dwell upon motives for giving Contributions, after the eight simple facts given above?

"Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."—Matthew xxv. 40.

The Reports of the Operations carried on during 1857–58–59, as well as the Report of the Scripture Reader in Hindostanee for 1859, may be had on application at the Home.

Donations and Subscriptions will be thankfully received by Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, TRITTON, and Co., 54, Lombard-street; Messrs. COURTIS and Co., 59, Strand; Messrs. SKELEY and Co., Fleet-street; NISBET, BERNERS-street; HATCHARDS, Piccadilly; SKELEY, Hanover-street; DALTON, Cockspur-street; or by Lieut.-col R. MARSH HUGHES, to whom Post-office Orders may be made payable at the Strangers' Home, West India Dock-road, Limehouse, E.

In India: by Messrs. GRINDLAY and Co., at Calcutta; Messrs. ARBUTHNOT and Co., at Madras; and by the BANK OF BOMBAY, at Bombay.

A COURSE OF MATHEMATICS, PURE AND MIXED.

More especially designed for the Use of Candidates for the MILITARY & CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

WITH A VARIETY OF PROBLEMS IN, AND PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS OF THE FOLLOWING SUBJECTS:

1. ALGEBRA, TRIGONOMETRY, AND MENSURATION.
2. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (CONIC SECTIONS), STATICS, DYNAMICS, AND HYDROSTATICS.
3. THE DIFFERENTIAL AND INTEGRAL CALCULUS with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. &c.

The object of this work is to furnish Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations with such a practical knowledge of Pure and Mixed Mathematics as may prove most serviceable to them in the course of the ordeal to which they are about to be subjected. On such occasions a mere theoretical acquaintance with principles is by no means sufficient. It is also necessary that the young aspirant should have been trained by actual experiments, as it were, to the application of the abstract rules, the enunciation of which he has otherwise mastered only by an effort of memory. To assist him in thus gathering the fruits of his intellectual industry, Mr. J. R. YOUNG has devised a multitude of problems, of greater or less difficulty, in Algebra, Trigonometry, Mensuration, Analytical Geometry (Conic Sections), Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, the Differential and Integral Calculus, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. The chief peculiarity of this work, however, is one that will recommend it to a very large class of students. The most difficult questions are rendered comparatively easy, by the practical simplifications that are introduced in their mode of solution. Instead of a pompous and puzzling display of technical phraseology, the utmost care has been taken to explain the most knotty points in a plain, unaffected manner, intelligible to every ordinary capacity. In this respect, Mr. YOUNG's "Course of Mathematics" will be found to possess a decided superiority over all preceding works on the same subject.

GALVANISED IRON PAILS in various shapes, adapted specially for shipment. Also, MOREWOOD and ROGERS' GALVANISED TINNED IRON TILES. These Tiles are cheaper per superficial foot than any others, and from the great facility of fixing, convenience of carriage abroad, and saving in freight, form the cheapest roofing of the kind in the market. Gutters, Ridge Caps, and all Fittings readily supplied. Wire for Fence and Telegraph purposes. Address all Orders to DOWGATE DOCK, LONDON, E.C.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

—Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Scurvy.—This class of complaints not only afflicts the individual, but is too frequently transmitted to the offspring, entailing on the innocent victims unmerited misery. How important under such serious consequences it becomes thoroughly to eradicate stumorous taints from the blood and glands must be as evident as it is incumbent on all sufferers. Holloway's Ointment and Pills uproot all such latent corruptions. The Ointment, applied over the affected parts, passes to the glands and blood circulating round about, and completely cleanses both. This soothing Ointment possesses the power of ejecting the seeds of all virulent eruptions and ulcerous distempers from the system. Holloway's Pills should generally be taken while the Ointment is being used.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

29, LOMBARD-STREET, LONDON; AND ROYAL INSURANCE BUILDINGS, LIVERPOOL.

CHAIRMAN OF THE LONDON BOARD.

SAMUEL BAKER, Esq.

CHAIRMAN IN LIVERPOOL.

CHARLESTURNER, Esq.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY

Is one of the largest Fire Offices in the Kingdom.

At the Annual Meeting held in August, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the large accessions of business made annually through a long series of years, which obviously increase the difficulty of further advances, yet the Fire Premiums of the year 1859 rise above those of the preceding year by a larger sum than has been obtained by the increase of any single year since the formation of the Company, excepting the year 1853—disclosing an advance of 50 per cent. in three years.

The following figures exhibit the progress of the whole Fire Branch, running over the last ten years:—

	Total Premium received.	Inc. of the year above each preceding one.
1850 .....	£44,027 10 0	49,557 19 8
1851 .....	76,925 4 2	24,251 18 3
1852 .....	124,459 11 4	15,895 7 0
1853 .....	151,733 9 6	21,672 17 7
1854 .....	196,148 2 0	21,098 17 10
1859 .....	228,314 7 3	32,166 4 9

LIFE BUSINESS.

The Directors desire to call the especial attention of the Proprietors to the statements of the LIFE BRANCH of the establishment.

The Actuary's Report on this subject is accompanied by an Appendix containing the fullest particulars of the investigations made, and is illustrated by TWO COLOURED DIAGRAMS, which make plain to the unprofessional eye the mortality experienced by the "ROYAL," as indicated by curved lines, which contrast most favourably with the former averages of mortality, also displayed on the diagrams.

It is expected that these elucidations will attract a deep and profitable attention to the subject of Life Assurance in the minds of tens of thousands who have hitherto given no heed to its principles and advantages.

The BONUS apportioned to the assured, with participation, amounts to £2 per cent. per annum, to be added to the original sum assured of every Participating Policy effected previously to the 1st of January, 1858, for each entire year that it had been in existence since the last appropriation of BONUS thereon, and is ONE OF THE LARGEST BONUSES EVER DECLARED.

PERCY M. DOVE, Manager and Actuary.

JOHN B. JOHNSTON, Secretary to the London Board.

THE PERFECT SUBSTITUTE FOR SILVER.—The real NICKEL SILVER, introduced more than twenty-five years ago by WILLIAM S. BURTON, when PLATED by the patent process of Messrs. Elkington and Co., is beyond all comparison the very best article next to sterling silver that can be employed as such, either usefully or ornamentally, as by no possible test can it be distinguished from real silver.

A small useful Plate Chest, containing a set, guaranteed of first quality for finish and durability, as follows:—

MAILS TO INDIA.

Mails to India and China, via Marseilles, are despatched from London as follows, viz.:—Those for Bombay packets, on the evenings of the 3rd and 18th of each month; and those for Calcutta packets (including mails for Ceylon, Madras, and China), on the evenings of the 10th and 26th of each month. When any of these dates falls on a Sunday, the mails are made up on the following evening.

Letters and Newspapers can be forwarded to any part of India via Bombay and Marseilles, and in most cases will reach their destination some days sooner than if despatched by the following Calcutta mail. The Bombay mails via Southampton, however, are no longer available for the transmission of Letters or Newspapers to the Madras Presidency.

Mails for the Mediterranean and all parts of India, except the Bombay Presidency, are despatched via Southampton on the mornings of the 4th and 20th, or, when either of these dates falls on Sunday, upon the previous evening.

Mails for the Mediterranean, the Presidency of Bombay, and Upper or North-West Provinces of Bengal, are despatched via Southampton, on the 12th and 27th of the month, except when these dates fall on Sunday, in which case they are forwarded on the previous evening.

POSTAGE.

The Mails for China are despatched at the same rate of postage as those to India; but must be pre-paid.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE actual news received by the Bombay Mail of the 12th of January may be very briefly disposed of. The famine in the North-west Provinces and in Cutch is a sad reality, notwithstanding the praiseworthy efforts of the Government to provide labour and food for all who are able and willing to work. Private benevolence, too, has taken care of the most necessitous, and at Delhi, in addition to donations to the extent of 5,000 rupees, monthly subscriptions amounting to 2,000 rupees have been obtained, almost entirely from the European residents, for the relief of the destitute.

In Sikkim nothing has yet been done to efface the disgrace of Dr. Campbell's hurried retreat from the annexed territory, and some little time is likely to elapse before effectual measures can be taken for that purpose. The expedition against the Kookies has also been countermanded for the present, but, if rumour speak the truth, that barbarous tribe have no intention of standing merely on the defensive. According to a newspaper correspondent they are pouring down from their hills and advancing to attack Captain Macgrath's little army, which will, doubtless, give them reason to repent of their insolent audacity.

The recent arrangement with the Mysore family—which will be found fully explained in our editorial department—continues to furnish the Indian press with matter for virulent philippics against the Secretary of State. It is to be regretted that the local Government has not condescended to put forth a semi-official explanation of the true character of this transaction, and it is difficult to attribute this reticence to any higher motive than the jealousy entertained by the Viceroy with respect to the direct intervention of Sir Charles Wood in the affairs of native princes and pensioners. The refusal to produce the documents called for by the majority of the Legislative Council may, indeed, be justified by the fact of the correspondence being not yet complete between the Secretary of State and the Governor-general, but a short notice inserted in any one of the Calcutta papers would have sufficed to dispel the misapprehension which appears to be universal throughout all classes of the community.

The Income-tax, generally, is being collected without giving the offence that was anticipated. At Bombay the executive officials are spoken of as somewhat exceeding their duty, and this is the chief danger to be apprehended. Orientals seem to have a natural affinity for extortion and oppression, even where there is no personal advantage to be gained. Surcharges will therefore be tolerably frequent for a time, and partiality and injustice will have their way until a few instances of exemplary punishment shall convince the native officials that they must confine themselves strictly to the letter and spirit of their instructions.

From a very satisfactory report on the incidence of the Trade-tax in Oude, which has been submitted to Government by the Chief Commissioner, it appears that the aggregate sum of Rs. 843,714 has been paid by 442,952 individuals, forming an average of Rs. 1-14-5 per head. The highest payment was made by a Mahajan, who was assessed in the considerable sum of Rs. 750, representing an income of Rs. 25,000 per annum. The aggregate amount of the revenue derived from this source represents an average annual income of nearly 64½ rupees, but this estimate is not strictly correct, for 250,055 of the tax-payers paid only one rupee each. It is evident, therefore, that the remaining 192,897 individuals contributed Rs. 5,93,659 to the total amount—their quota representing an aggregate income of Rs. 1,97,88,633, and an average income of rather more than 102½ rupees per annum. Much curious statistical information is conveyed in this Report, to which we shall have occasion to refer in a future issue.

An equally elaborate and not less interesting Minute has been penned by the Viceroy himself on the subject of the late Libel Case tried in Lucknow. It is a most careful and comprehensive review of the entire evidence adduced on both sides, and is couched in that peculiarly clear and felicitous manner which characterises his Excellency's state papers. Nothing can be more impartial than Lord Canning's distribution of praise and censure with regard to the conduct of all parties concerned in these unfortunate trials. It is clearly impossible within the limits of a hasty summary to do justice to his lordship's summing up, touching as it does on so many and such delicate points, affecting the character and demeanour of European, as well as Native officials. We shall therefore refrain for the present from analysing this singularly able document. That Ramdial was the object of a conspiracy is sufficiently patent, but it is equally undeniable that in Lucknow "there was an absence of due precaution against abuse of authority by the subordinate agents employed to levy the tax." Unjore Tewarree, it is said, has been released from confinement by order of Government, in acknowledgment of his distinguished services to the beleaguered garrison of Lucknow, but Lord Canning has doubtless added, in the words of Othello to Michael Cassio, "Never more be officer of mine."

An extraordinarily stupid and unpardonable blunder crept into our last Summary. We permitted ourselves to speak of Sir Robert Napier as the future Commander-in-Chief of the Madras army, whereas Sir Robert has been appointed to the Calcutta Council as successor to Sir James Outram. It is Sir Hope Grant who is to succeed to Sir Patrick Grant.

Earl de Grey and Ripon entered upon the duties of his office, as Under Secretary of State for India, last week. His lordship has appointed W. H. Benthall, Esq., one of the junior clerks, to be his private secretary.

So much interest attaches to the progress made towards the distribution of Indian prize money, that we feel any information on the subject must be of interest to our readers. We understand that Royal Warrants authorising the distribution of the property captured at Delhi and Lucknow have been transmitted to India. The sum to be set apart for the officers exercising the chief command is one-twentieth of the whole. With regard to the first capture, this amount is to be divided amongst the four General Officers who successively commanded the Delhi force, according to the number of days during which they respectively held such command.

The operations entitling officers and men to share in the Delhi prize commence with the action at Ghazee-oodeen-Nuggur on May 30, 1857, and end with the occupation of Jhujjur, in October, 1857.

The Lucknow prize money is to be divided among the troops employed in the operations leading to the capture of that city, commencing with the affair at Chinbut, in June, 1857, and ending with the final expulsion of the rebels by the C. in C. on March 21, 1858.

The principal regulations in the distribution of the prize in both cases is a novel one. It is based upon a calculation of the daily rate of pay of officers and men. The soldier's daily pay is taken as the unit. For his 1s. a day he is to have one share. On the same principle the officers have so many more shares, as their pay exceeds his. For instance, a captain, whose pay is 12s. will have 12 shares, a lieutenant 6½, and so on.

The prize money will, in the first instance, be payable in India, where only claims can be investigated and inquiries answered.

WHERE IS THEIR GOD?

The stranger who for the first time visits the interior of Hindostan is struck by nothing so much as by the architectural ruins which cover its plains. Thebes is excelled in extent by Old Delhi; Baalbec, Palmyra, and Petra are mere blocks compared with Beejapore, Jaunpore, and Ajunta. The Alhambra pales in magnificence before the arches which surround the Kootub and the still enchanted palaces of Akbar at Futehpore Sikri. Bayard Taylor, who has travelled all the world over, and James Ferguson, who has studied and described almost every world-renowned piece of architecture, declare it is in India, and in the piles raised by Hindoo and Mussulman, that we must look for the finest art out of Greece. And all the triumphs of architecture in India save two, are devoted to religion. The poetry of death hovers over the Taj; the poetry of love and glory still haunts the ruins of the Windsor of the great Akbar. But all else which excite our admiration—caves, pillars, shrines, and temples, are dedicated to the service of the gods of the idolaters and the false prophet. They, and the rudest tribes of earth with them, have ever sought to devote the best of their genius and the richest of their treasures to their deities. Like the old Romans, they may themselves dwell in huts of turf, but they place their divinities in palaces of marble. Like King David, if they dwell in houses of cedar, they are uneasy till they have removed their god from a habitation of curtains.

Partly from indifference to their faith, partly from the Protestant horror of a sensual symbolism, partly from the Northern shrinking from demonstrative display of the feelings excited by a religion whose glory is that it is of the heart, and partly from the rapid growth and variable character of the limits of the empire, the English in India frequently put their God out of sight. In almost every station there is the gorgeous pagoda or the stately mosque—but where is the Christian church? There, in that old barrack, or in that quondam warehouse, or in that erection so unsightly that we might be pardoned if we supposed it to be the dwelling of an evil spirit. Or it has no existence—there is no church, no clergyman, no Sunday, no holyday. Children are born; old men die; the sick pine away for want of sympathy; but only at very distant intervals does the chaplain pay a hasty visit to collect his fees, and then he gathers his little flock in a private house. It is a significant fact that for upwards of eleven years we had ruled Derajat, and it had been garrisoned by 10,000 Europeans, and yet its Khans believed the English had no God at all. On visiting Sealkote to attend the Governor-general's durbar last March, for the first time they saw a Christian church, and with all the interest of novelty asked if there was a padre, how worship was conducted, and so on? We have seen most of the churches of Northern India, some just raised from the ashes of 1857, others still roofless and defiled by the heathen, but we cannot point to more than two which are what they ought to be. And how many stations there are destitute of them altogether, while the influx of European regiments without chaplains has increased the population of each so that not a few of the existing churches are useless. We talk of converting the heathen, but our seeming godlessness is a strange commentary on and obstacle to our efforts. Like the Athenian, the Asiatic is essentially a religious or superstitious being, and suspects because he cannot account for our irreligiosity. On the lofty platform of superiority to us in this respect at least, the inheritor of creeds which have come down from a remote antiquity and are enshrined in a stupendous literature, the worshipper in fanes on which the wealth of generations of devotees has been lavished, and in erecting which the genius of architects who built the Taj has been exhausted, he looks down on our book-religion and living contradiction to it with calm contempt.

While we do not advocate an attempt to vie with Asiatics in raising structures which are matchless, we do urge upon the local Governments the duty of erecting, or helping to erect, a church in every civil and military station, distinguished by simplicity and good taste if not by splendour and ornament. Here is no question of religious neutrality or offence to native prejudices. Yearly the civil as well as military residents of each station must increase. A careful attention on the part of those who draw up the local budgets of public works will provide every station with a church and will enlarge the present buildings where necessary, without unduly burdening the exhausted finances. This is all we ask. What can be done by tact and by pecuniary management may be seen in the plan adopted by Sir R. Montgomery in the Punjab. Three small churches are wanted for fifteen stations, which, at an average expense of Rs. 4,000 each, will amount to Rs. 60,000. This is the cost of just one of those European barracks so expensively built and sometimes so thoughtlessly abandoned. The Government supplies the building, private effort gives the ornament and appurtenances. The expenditure of this sum is spread over three years, so that the expense becomes inappreciable, while by borrowing from the local funds meanwhile the churches will be erected at once. Let Mr. Grant, Mr. Edmonstone, Mr. Wingfield, Colonel Phayre, and the Governors of Madras and Bombay do the same, and a reproach will be wiped out which has too long stood against us. Lord Canning has shown that he is willing to sanction any moderate expenditure for this purpose. Charity begins at home, while it is its characteristic that, once begun, it proportionally diffuses itself abroad.—Friend of India.

CENTRAL ASIA AND ITS POLITICS.

During the last few weeks two events have occurred in Central Asia of sufficient importance to affect the relation of the States of Bokhara, Khiva, Kotan and Cabul to each other, to weaken the power of Persia, and to promote the designs of Russia. The King of Bokhara is dead, and the Turcomans have obtained a decisive victory over the Persian army. The king of Bokhara was an old man and a cruel bigot. On more than one occasion he has been on the point of going to war with Dost Mahomed, but has been checked only by the knowledge of the alliance of Cabul with the British, and by the superior military strength of the Affghan army. As a counterpoise to this he has long been intriguing with Russian agents, has allowed them to make accurate surveys of the Oxus and to build a Serai in his capital nominally for their traders. Now that he has been succeeded by his son, Russia may be checked for a time. She is anxious to obtain an influence over Bokhara, not so much in itself as that from it she may harass Persia. The occupation of Khiva would be far better suited to advance her objects than the possession of Bokhara, which is separated from India by mountain ranges almost impassable. The death of the king, then, is a gain to humanity, while it is not detrimental to the interests of Russia.

But it is different with the Turcomans. They are in character and military prowess the genuine descendants of the warriors at whose head Timour conquered India. Though still nomadic in all their tastes, they have recently settled down to agriculture, and from their proximity to Persia have become partially civilised. The Persians have asserted a right of sovereignty over them which they have never allowed. To overawe them the Shah has always maintained a strong military force in the provinces south of the Caspian Sea which Russia is resolutely striving to annex. The Caucasus is hers, the Caspian Sea is hers; these provinces will follow. As early as 1819 Russia propounded the policy of attacking Persia through the Turcomans, who were then independent. They sent Jean Mouratov, an Armenian merchant of Derbend, as an envoy into Turcomania, to seek an alliance with them. The Khan of the tribes was delighted, but Russia having, by the threat of such an alliance, obtained her immediate demands from the Shah, basely betrayed the Turcoman envoys. Years after the Russians again made advances to the Turcomans, who were panting for revenge on Persia. Again the tribes were anxious for the alliance, and from that day there has been an understanding between them and Russia. Last spring the Persians sent an army against the Turcomans on the pretence that they were the subjects of the Shah. The force was commanded by Shazada Hamza, the Shah's uncle. They met at Merve on the 27th of August, and the Turcomans were defeated. As the Persians were the authors of the accounts of the slaughter which have been going the round of the journals, the statements cannot be relied on. But we have since learned that there has been a turn in affairs. In a second battle the Turcomans defeated the Persians, slaying and capturing a great number, and taking nearly all their guns. The Shah's uncle escaped with only 1,000 men, and found an asylum in Herat. It will require a better army than Persia possesses to conquer Turcomania. Throughout the campaign the sympathy, if not the material assistance, of Russia has been with the Turcomans. Russia threatened to withdraw her minister from the Shah's Court, a diplomatist of the highest ability, and with twenty-two years' experience of the Persians, unless the Shah consented to forego his claim to sovereignty over the Turcomans. The English Government, too, protested, and told the Shah—in the words of Lord Palmerston—that "the expedition proposed was beyond the range at which he could usefully establish a permanent occupation." The result has proved the wisdom of the advice. The Persian army has suffered a defeat far more damaging to its prestige in the East than that inflicted by Sir James Outram, and, through the victory of the Turcomans, Russian influence has been increased.

It should never be forgotten that though our rivalry with Russia in Central Asia may not be military, it ought to be both political and commercial. Her design is not to invade India, but it is, as expressed in all her official documents and in State papers by the most distinguished of her Eastern diplomatists, "to destroy in Asia the power of the Sultan, already shaken in Europe; to annihilate our commerce in Central Asia; to force us to diminish our revenues and largely to augment our expenditure in India, where our finances are even now embarrassed; to disturb the whole system of government in that country during peace; to threaten it with invasion in war; and to oppose to our maritime and commercial superiority her power to shake our empire in the East." Her first step towards this is to weaken Persia, which she is doing most effectually by her control of the Caspian Sea, by her annexation of the Caucasus, by her military command of the provinces south of the Caspian, by her assistance to the Turcomans, and by her intrigues in Bokhara, and especially in Khiva. A small drama is now being played in Central Asia, which the rapidly-approaching death of the old Ameer of Cabul will develop into a great tragedy. If our north-west frontier is secure, we are ready for any issue. What we most want is to direct our attention to the trade of Central Asia by the establishment of fairs on the Indus.—Friend of India.

FAMINE IN THE NORTH-WEST.

Famine appears to be doing its work effectually in the ill-fated districts to the west of Delhi. It is no longer a calamity impending, but is now a terrible reality; the dreaded contingency has in fact come, and in lieu of devising means for averting the evils that may be anticipated, the necessity has now become absolute for bringing into operation such measures as may be possible for mitigating the effects of that visitation, under which a whole region is actually being made desolate. Starvation counts its victims by droves and the accounts that have been received give a most melancholy picture of the sufferings of the wretched people, though we are told that the particulars that have reached us, sad as they are, give but a poor idea of the fearful reality; but when we know that death strikes down by scores emaciated beings who can no longer sustain life, we scarcely require any of those sickening details that may still be in the back ground to impress us with an idea of the full extent of the calamity which is now ravaging so wide a range of our territories. With a full knowledge of those instincts, strong even in humanity, that prompts to self-preservation, we can easily picture the minor details of the still able-bodied flying from that scene of famine and death to escape the fate of the stricken ones around them, and leaving to chance or Providence the aged or the helpless who cannot follow in their footsteps.

We know all that we require to know to carry conviction to our minds, that the need for aid is most pressing and urgent, and that the demand for succour is far greater than the means for relief; we know that the springs of private charity, however abundantly they might flow, would speedily be exhausted, if from them alone were to be drawn all the aids that are called for in this sad emergency; Government must contribute largely to the relief that would be utterly inadequate from any other source, and pressing as its own burdens may be, it must sacrifice greatly to remove the burdens that now press upon others. A remission of the revenue that should be furnished by the suffering districts will naturally be a consequence of the visitation, and though it will do much for the relief of the few, it will bear with it but scant help to the hundreds who are perishing. The emergency is one that demands, not the cancelling of the obligations of a limited number, but the feeding and saving of a whole famishing people. All that Government can do in the matter, we believe, is being done, and we have only to hope that its course of action may be well and judiciously directed.

The still able-bodied are said to be flying by hundreds from the localities, wherein to remain would be to perish, and the local Government is drawing largely upon its resources to give employment to the sufferers who have come into the neighbourhood of our cities to seek a market for their services and the means of sustenance; such public works and improvements as could at once be pushed on with the aid of the unskilled labour thus thrown upon our hands have been set in motion, and large sums have been set apart for the military and railway clearances that would under any circumstances eventually have to be effected in Delhi, though they would otherwise probably have been deferred to an indefinite future, and be dependent for execution upon the length of time to which the present financial pressure might extend. We believe, too, that it is intended to carry out other works of imperial importance, in the shape of roads, intended to form feeders to the great line of railway which will eventually connect Calcutta with Lahore.

Useful these works will undoubtedly be, for the financial results of the great undertaking that will secure railway communication between the inland provinces and the sea must mainly depend upon the means for rendering that system of communication accessible to the producing outlying districts; and were it not for the vast amount of human misery that it occasions, we might almost be grateful for a visitation that renders immediately compulsory the execution of works which the apathy characteristic of India, or the monetary difficulties that have so long beset its Government, would leave for ever in abeyance. As a measure of relief, then, this will be one attended with the best results to Government and to the country; it is an investment of capital that will yet be productive of a satisfactory return, in the way of national development, while its present effect is to lessen the sufferings of a starving people, and bring the help most needed by a famishing host.

It must not be forgotten that one result of the crowding in of these unfortunates to seek employment wherever it can be found is to lessen the cost of labour, and to render works carried out through their agency less expensive than they would otherwise prove. It may be a rather worldly-minded view to take, but still it is a consideration that may well be alluded to, that in return for a present sacrifice, some important results will have been attained at the minimum of cost, and it may be a matter of doubt whether the agency through which these results are being effected might not with advantage be more extensively applied to even more important objects than those which have been selected, under the pressure of circumstances, to afford that relief too urgently needed to be deferred.

The cause of the present calamity is said to have been the want of rain. In that almost sterile region to the west of Delhi, the consequences of a prolonged drought are somewhat similar to those which affect the Egyptian provinces when the Nile fails in its expected overflow—a failure of crops and wide-spread desolation. Artificial means have not yet extended far enough to render the cultivators less dependent upon natural causes for that moisture without which the plough will scarcely furrow up the ground, or the soil yield its harvests; the crying want of those ill-fated districts is that net work of irrigation channels which would render their farms more productive, make the people less the victims of chance, and do much to mitigate the severity of any calamity arising from causes similar to the present, even if they would not render such another visitation impossible.

These would be works of such importance that we would urge them especially now, when we see around us the melancholy evidence of what those unfortunate people are subject to while deprived of those resources which human invention could amply supply; and we think that the money which must be granted for the relief that cannot be withheld would be well applied in carrying out any irrigation scheme that might at once be found possible, by the aid of the abundant labour for which famine compels us to find employment. We should be devoting the services of a suffering people to the removal of those causes to which their sufferings are to be attributed, and to no object should we more heartily devote ourselves than to that which would lessen or prevent future calamities of the kind.

It may well be a subject of regret that in this vast empire the means have not yet been sufficient for those great undertakings which would contribute so much to our national wealth and to the prosperity of the people, and that the pressure upon the imperial treasury is likely to be so lasting and so severe as to render it improbable that the many great schemes lately submitted to the Home Government as works of such importance, that any delay in their execution must be received as a national calamity, will be earnestly taken in hand for years to come. Whatever the wants of the country may be, it seems certain that many magnificent schemes of improvement must remain in abeyance, that main canals must be comparatively useless for want of the minor distributing channels, that road works must be left unfinished, and even railways drag slowly on; but while the famine at our doors now urges us into activity, let the money that must be spent be wisely applied, so that if we can do but little for national development, we may at least do all that is possible to mitigate human suffering and lessen the effect of future calamities.—Lahore Chronicle.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE LLAMAS.—From Darjeeling we hear that the Llamas on the northern side of the Runjeet have expressed their unwillingness to join in the opposition to the British Government, and have begged for protection from the oppression of the Sikimites.

TRADES TAX IN OUDE.—A report from the Chief Commissioner of Oude on the working of the trades tax in all districts of the province, "with the exception of Lucknow," is accepted by Lord Canning as quite satisfactory. The tax has been levied on four hundred and forty thousand persons, who have been assessed, on the average, at the rate of nearly two rupees a head. The produce of the tax is £84,370; and the Chief Commissioner says this sum has been collected without oppression on the part of the Government, or murmuring on the part of the people.

THE KOOKIES.—The Governor-general has decided that no military expedition can be made against the Kookies this season, and has directed that Captain Macgrath shall manage matters according to his own judgment with the small force which Chittagong can supply—a few elephants and the police battalion; with these he is to ascertain whereabouts are the guilty tribe. In the mean time, we hear that the guilty tribe do not intend waiting for Captain Macgrath, but are moving upon him in great force.

MILITARY "GUP."—The Commander-in-Chief's camp is still at Ramnuggur. It is stated that a jemadar of the 66th Goorkhas was accidentally shot through the head on the 13th Dec., through awkwardness of his own in firing his piece at a wild pig. Colonel Swinley is to be appointed as permanent commandant, in the room of Brigadier Fordyce, proceeding home on sick leave. Lieut. Smyth, of the Bengal Engineers, at Lucknow, is ordered to be tried by general court-martial, at his own request.

SUTTEE IN OUDIPORE.—Two cases of suttee lately occurred in the town of Oudipore, and the Maharana was said to have concurred in them. The agent, in consequence, refused to pay him the usual visit, and remonstrated. The Ranees has acknowledged his error, and promised to discontinue the inhuman practice in future.

MAHARAJA SCINDIA, it is stated, has released forty political prisoners on the joyful occasion of the birth of a son, and has expressed a wish to Government that the allowance of two lacs of rupees, at present paid to the Baiza Bae for Jagheers at Muttra, be given to Chumuna Bae, his son's nurse.

DINAPOOR, Dec. 24.—About two companies of the 73rd N.I., coming from Berhampore, passed through this district on the 18th. They consist of a motley set of the old Sepoy and a mongrel set of Bhootas and Lepchas, exhibiting a variety in complexions, make, and height. Their first hard march proved of what little use they are likely to be in future, for they have left forty-eight of their men here in hospital, complaining chiefly of pain in the shoulder from carrying their muskets. I am told the new men have been but very ineffectively drilled. A detachment of H.M.'s 6th foot encamped here on the 22nd, and marched away early this morning. They behaved well while at the station. The numerous troops ordered for Darjeeling, contrasted with the petty war with the Sikkimites, almost excite a smile. But State reasons may possibly justify the expediency of the measure. The local authorities were pressed hard for assistance, but were not found wanting in the requisite zeal and diligence, making extraordinary efforts in procuring carts and provisions.—Englishman.

THE PUNJAB, Dec. 12.—Again are we called on to meet the demands for grain from Hindostan, and again has the market, which has been pretty steady at from nineteen to twenty seers per rupee for the last month, risen to sixteen. Is the Punjab always to be the nurse of the N. W. Provinces? Money is becoming scarce every day. A sale of bills is to take place on the 17th Dec., and I will venture to say that the complacent young gentleman who wields the monetary destinies of the Punjab, flatters himself he has cleverly baited his hook with a premium of Rs. 2-8. I will venture to prophecy that his bait will not take, and that he does not receive a rupee for his bills at our station at least. He might have had five lacs in August for the asking, but he would not take them.

POLITICAL ECONOMY IN INDIA.—The attention of the Governor-general has been called to certain statements in the Mofussil newspapers, that some officers had interfered with the Bunnyas in the sale of their grain, that at Dehra and at Landour the authorities had commanded the Bunnyas, under pain of a severe penalty, not to export their grain; the result of which was a small reduction in the price. The Governor-general remarks that he has no doubt the Lieutenant-governor North West Provinces has instructed all officers of the illegality of such proceedings, as well as of the extreme impolicy of them.

THE RAJAH OF MONGHYR has agreed to act as an assessor for the Income-tax, and, moreover, has offered to do the work without salary. The Lieut.-governor has conveyed to the Rajah his especial thanks for the public spirit evinced by him in accepting the office, and in declining to receive any salary.

JUBBULPOOR.—A letter from Jubbulpore says that the approach of his Excellency, the Viceroy, has caused the prices of grain of every kind to rise to an awful extent—and that, what with Holkar and his tribe and other minor native chiefs, there will be some twenty-five thousand men in camp. What will be the noise and the dust may be easily conjectured. Sheep, fowls, &c., are in immense demand, and where a sufficiency will come from is already a puzzle. The Governor-general alone will require forty sheep and two hundred fowls per diem for the wants of his people during his stay, which will extend over nine days. No rain had fallen up to the 24th December, and none was expected, as the clouds had cleared away.

MUSKETRY INSTRUCTORS.—His Excellency the Governor-general has been pleased to direct that the officer employed as chief inspector of musketry shall hold the relative position of a deputy adjutant-general, or deputy quartermaster-general, with the official rank of major, if below that rank in the army; and that officers employed as district inspectors of musketry shall hold the relative position of an assistant adjutant-general, or assistant quartermaster-general, and shall, if under the rank of captain, take rank and precedence as the junior captains in the district in which they are serving.

SIMLA, Dec. 12.—Our respected clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Cahusac, has left us, his tour of duty having been completed; but his successor, the Rev. Mr. Robinson, has not yet arrived. Last Sunday, therefore, we had no clergyman to perform Divine service. It is not well that a place containing, even though it is not the "season," still nearly two hundred Christian inhabitants, should be left for now nearly a fortnight without a clergyman. The price of food has happily been lowered lately, though it is but a temporary change for the better, owing to the fact that the surrounding hill chieftains require their subjects to pay the half-yearly revenue, and which they have declared they are unable to do, unless permitted to take the produce of the fields to a market where they can find buyers for their grain or flour. These chieftains had, on the cry of "famine" being raised, forbidden their ryots to bring supplies of wheat, attah, Indian corn, rice, or oil into the Simla or adjacent markets, naturally fearing that they might suffer from scarcity in their own little territories. This cry regarding "famine" is daily growing louder, and with greater reason with respect to the future, whatever truth there may or may not be as to the scantiness of the past season's crops, for not a drop of rain has fallen for months past. The clouds have frequently gathered, and even descended low, looking black and heavy with moisture, and as frequently have they dispersed, leaving a bright warm sun to further scorch the arid earth. Water is procured with difficulty even in the Hills, but the complaints of the drought at Umballah are truly deplorable. The grass has so withered up that there is scarcely any fodder for the horses and cattle, and worse than all, several of the wells have become quite dry, and the remainder contain but little water. The atmosphere of dust raised in fearful clouds by high winds, a friend writes, is truly terrific; objects a hundred yards distant are scarce visible. The cry is ever, "rain, rain," and yet none comes.—Englishman.

LAHORE, Dec. 24.—Information has just reached this, that the Rajah Jowahir Sing breathed his last at Umballa on the 15th, at 8 p.m. He was, as is well known, the eldest surviving son of Rajah Dyan Singh, the Prime Minister of Runjeet Singh, and laid claim to the throne of Cashmere. As he leaves no issue, the guddee of Jummoo is left to Maharajah Rumber Sing undisputed. The surviving brother of Rajah Jowahir Sing is the only son now left of the sons of Dyan Sing—by name Rajah Motee Sing, who gave up (during Golaub Singh's lifetime) all pretensions to the throne of Cashmere. So Rumber Sing, the present ruler, need not fear his rule being now disturbed by any members of his uncle's family. Whether the annual stipend of a lac of rupees, which was stipulated to be paid to Jowahir Sing by the ruler of Cashmere, will now be continued to his family is questionable, but I presume it will, for he has left a lot of followers, and a mother and some step-mothers, I believe.—Delhi Gazette.

TROOPS ON MARCH.—A detachment from England of European troops marched from Mirzapore on the 28th Dec., under command of Captain Wilkinson, H.M.'s 80th Foot, with Lieutenant Ewing, Ensigns Norris, Swinburne and Westropp, of the 80th; 12 sergeants, 11 corporals, 232 privates, 3 women and 2 children, for Saugor, and Lieutenant R. Thomson, with 7 sergeants, 6 corporals, and 120 privates of H.M.'s 97th, to Nagode, Assistant Surgeon Lackersteen in medical charge. Brigadier Burney left Benares on the 28th, on return from the Presidency, to his command at Fyzabad in Oude. Clouds gathering and rain hoped for.

DELHI, Dec. 12.—There have been clouds hanging about for the last three days, but they have, as usual, cleared off without affording rain. The usual Christmas rain may therefore be denied us; and as the want of it will be proportionately felt, we may look for an increase in the price of grain, already too high for poor people. I lately travelled down the Trunk-road towards Allahabad, and was struck with the contrast presented by the fields of green corn below Allypurr, evidencing amply the blessings of artificial irrigation. The roads were crowded with country carts laden with grain for the North-West Provinces and Punjab, and the line of railway was crammed at every station with piles of grain in bags, for which there was not sufficient carriage to convey it onwards. The roads, especially the Grand Trunk-road, between Allypurr and Cawnpore are very bad; that portion between Jellalabad and Cawnpore was very graphically described to me by the coachman as full of houzes—meaning deep tanks, of course, and as the horses could not go beyond a walk without danger of a capsizing, the remark was highly applicable. Considering the large outlay expended annually for the repair of public roads, it is to be hoped that the Lieutenant-governor N. W. P. may find the inconvenience of travelling over the line I write of, and his honour may then perhaps ask why such irregularities exist.—Dec. 26.—The Commander-in-Chief is not now expected to arrive here before the beginning or middle of February, and then his Excellency's visit will be what is called a "flying" one, the camp remaining below Delhi, as I am given to understand. The clouds have all gone, and not even some Christmas rain been vouchsafed us; the consequences will be fatal to the usual spring crops. The benevolent people of Delhi (Europeans, of course,) have been getting up a subscription for the purpose of relieving the starving poor. Already some Rs. 2,000 monthly has been subscribed, besides donations. The object in view is to put a stop to the system of street-begging, which is fast becoming a profitable speculation.—Englishman.

A CONTRAST.—It is impossible to compare the two positions respectively at this time of the Secretary of State for India and the Governor-general of the country without marking how utterly disproportioned are the powers of each to the responsibilities each is called upon to discharge. The one, a mere placeman, whose greatest errors of office can but result in pecuniary loss to a distant empire, the other a man who cannot make an error in deportment without compromising the best interests of the empire. But while the one may with impunity will away millions of public revenue and whole kingdoms of territory, the other may not order a present to a faithful native without drawing numberless criticisms, not non-official only, upon perhaps the most politic and the best considered of gifts. The one can but view his office as a temporary lodging that is to be occupied until better places are opened unto him. The other is brought face to face with two hundred millions of human beings who look to him as the arbiter of their mundane destinies; yet the one can by a line of cool clerkism cast these millions into the lowest depths of misery, while the other cannot proceed a single step in the most beneficent line of conduct without hazarding a rebuke, or what is worse still, the neutralisation of all the effects of his deeds. The Secretary of State for India, whom the India Act of 1858 has created its autocrat, has scarcely a power unopposed by him of influencing its highest destinies, and scarcely a motive to use that power with disinterestedness and zeal, while the worst Governor-general cannot help feeling a personal interest in the welfare of those he is placed over, or acting—India House restraints notwithstanding—beneficially for the country. A readjustment of powers and responsibilities that will secure some proportion between the one and the other in the hands of these functionaries is a patent necessity, and the meeting of Thursday last had that for one of its principal objects.—Hindoo Patriot, Dec. 26.

LUCKNOW, Dec. 29.—A general meeting was held on Thursday, the 27th, at the Chutter Munzil, Lucknow, for the purpose of organising on a large scale an Agri-Horticultural Society for Oudh. The meeting was very well attended—most of the influential residents of the station, both covenanted and uncovenanted, being present, together with several Rajas and Talookdars of Oudh, who, it is hoped, will be the means of diffusing throughout this province the agricultural knowledge of civilised nations, so that the resources of Oudh may be thoroughly and systematically sounded.

DARJEELING, Dec. 26.—As yet the detachments of H.M.'s 6th Regiment have not made their appearance. I hear they require more coolies. Surely Government will now open their ever closed eyes to our cart road; it ought to have been done by this. Why not employ a few of the European soldiers, and give each of them forty or fifty coolies to look after, and the road will be soon finished. Some of Rattray's Sikhs here have been laid up through the intense cold, but now they are all right. The latest news from Sikkim (through natives) is, the Dewan swears if we enter Sikkim he will hang our prisoners. Very likely the villain will keep his word. They are yet alive. Now that coolies are so scarce it is strange that Dr. Campbell does not try and get some of the Chota Nagpore men here; they would be just the men to accompany troops in the hills. I should like to see the report of the new road called the Ganges and Darjeeling road, what it has cost for the last six years, and how much of the same is fit for traffic. A friend near here states he cannot see any improvement on this line, and I believe he says it has cost already six lacs; perhaps he is modest, for I heard it has cost eighteen lacs; who is right I will not say. The European guard that were in the Assembly Rooms are ordered to join the Julla Pahar depot this evening. If an army is sent up, even 4,000 men, will not Government give us an European postmaster, or even a native that can manage better than our present ass? I see Government has had their eyes opened, as they are sending troops to us through Malwa and Dinajpore. Our Municipal Commissioners proceed to-morrow to the cart road to look at what Captain Fitzgerald has done. I hear the prisoners that set fire to Lieut. Borthwick's quarters and robbed him have been found guilty.—Bengal Hurkaru.

SUTTEE IN OUDH.—Our readers have seen from time to time during the past year reports of cases of suttee occurring in various parts of Oudh. It may not be uninteresting to give an abstract of some reports that have been made to Government on the subject. It would be an interesting inquiry to consider what motives have been at work to restore a practice so abhorrent to all human susceptibilities, and so strictly forbidden by the laws of their rulers, more especially since lately they have had in Oudh such manifest proof of our power. It must be borne in mind that in order to a successful suttee great publicity is necessary; a great many persons must take part in it, and of course a great many must be privy to it. Indeed, so truly is this concurrence of the masses necessary to the celebration of a suttee, that the non-consent of but a small number in the community has in several instances prevented this crime altogether, and been the means of bringing the intended suttee to the knowledge of the authorities, by whom it has been stopped. No doubt this restoration of the superstitious practice, even forbidden by the late kings of Oudh, has its origin in some religious revival, prompted most likely by the fanaticism of their priests, and the severe losses and troubles of the mutinies. But we notice it here only to show that, from some cause or other, our power is as little dreaded when an opportunity occurs to revert to their own customs as one of mercy and leniency is misunderstood. The number of cases in the whole province which has been brought to notice and undergone trial are as follows:—In the Lucknow division, two cases; Kyrabad ditto, 1 case; Baiswarra ditto, 1 ditto; Baraitch ditto, 1 ditto. The case in the Baiswarra division is still under trial; in the other divisions the persons connected with the crime have been tried and sentenced. These sentences are very severe, but not more so than so inhuman a practice deserves, and the example in the province requires. The principal leaders in every case have been sentenced to transportation for life, and the others concerned to periods of imprisonment, with hard labour, varying from two to fourteen years. In some cases the villages have been fined an amount equal to the whole jumma, and in one case the village has been confiscated. In a case in the Baraitch division, in which a great many appear as defendants, two are transported for life, and nine are to pay a fine of sixty rupees each, or in default to suffer imprisonment for six months, with labour. In all cases the proprietor of the property on which the suttee took place has been held responsible, whether the proprietary consisted of a village community or of a single landowner. This, though it may seem hard at first, is the only effectual way to meet the evil. It will now be the duty and interest of every landowner to prevent, which of course he can easily do, the perpetration of this crime, either by his own influence, or by giving prompt information to the Government. In connection with these cases the talookdars and landowners of Oudh have been reminded once more of the terms on which they hold their lands, viz., that of rendering good service to Government, in the maintenance of order and the observance of the laws, and they have been told that such cases as suttee, by indirect violation of the law, will render them liable to lose their possessions. In a general sense this is a right condition of tenure, and should not be lost sight of, but the too frequent repetition of the warning, and the brandishing in every case of this threat, may have the effect of unsettling the minds of the proprietors, and shaking the value of their titles to land. The Chief Commissioner has most judiciously determined, by dealing severely with these cases, and reading a plain lesson to the landholders of Oudh, to put a stop to these practices, and we do not expect again to hear of their repetition. Some officers who took a more lenient view of the matter have been censured, and their sentences of punishment enhanced. The police have been blamed, and, in some cases, justly so for these suttees; but it is fair to say that they have been the means of preventing a far greater number than those which have succeeded. In three cases it is shown that the native police officers behaved very badly, either taking no steps to prevent the suttee, or joining in the celebration. These men, young lads, quite unfit for their posts, the appointment of Colonel Bruce for good service during the mutiny, have been dismissed from the service, and sentenced to imprisonment. We cannot expect all at once to eradicate the superstition of the people, but an administration which is so prompt to reward, and, at the same time, powerful to punish, will in time command respect and obedience.—Oudh Gazette.

AGRA, Jan. 3.—H.M.'s 52nd Light Infantry, consisting of twenty-five officers, fifty-two sergeants, twenty buglers, eight hundred and seventy-six rank and file, under the command of Major J. S. Bouchier, marched into the cantonments this morning, and encamped in rear of the Sudder Bazaar. The regiment will resume its march on Saturday morning, in progress to Jhansie, to relieve the 89th Regiment. The detachment of men from the late 5th European Regiment arrived this morning, and have joined the headquarters of the regiment.

COLONEL W. P. MACDONALD.—Much speculation exists at present in military circles as to the officer who is likely to succeed Colonel Macqueen as Judge Advocate General of the army. The favourite, however, is Colonel W. P. Macdonald, now presidency paymaster. If this appointment takes place, as is confidently expected, in the space of six months two officers will have been removed from being the heads of their respective departments to exercise control over other distinct offices of which they might fairly be supposed to know little or nothing. It will be, however, pretty generally remembered, that in consequence of the department of the Judge Advocate General being in a state similar to that usually applied to Denmark, Colonel Macdonald was on three occasions specially appointed to conduct trials in Goomsur, Kimedy, and Canara, for which he received the special thanks of Government, and as a reward for which service he was subsequently offered the appointment of Judge Advocate General of the army, could he have qualified under the staff rules then existing, which prescribed that no corps should have more than two captains on the staff, until every corps had that number so employed; and the department was thus deprived of an efficient head. The charge, therefore, of ignorance of the duties of the appointment to which it is expected he will be soon nominated falls in his case to the ground, and he will be free from the unenviable notoriety which attaches to every man who is ignorant of his duties; in fact, to every square man who allows himself to be forced into a round hole.—Athenæum.

MR. MCVICAR, says the Madras Times, is likely to obtain the secretaryship of the Madras Bank. He came to India a short time ago, in the hope of being appointed secretary of the Bank of Bengal, and in the race for the office he was a very excellent second. Now that a vacancy has occurred in Madras, he has sent down his testimonials, which are of the very highest description, and many, if not all, the directors consider him the "right man" for the place.

MR. C. B. SAUNDERS.—The Governor-general has been pleased to appoint Mr. C. B. Saunders to be Judicial Commissioner, Mysore.

SHIPWRECK.—Intelligence has been received of the loss of the Marie Aline, of Nantes, Captain Boutellier, about forty miles south of Vizagapatam, on the 11th December. She was bound to Cocanada from Colombo, and encountered very heavy weather, which prevented observations being taken for several days. In making land the captain, believing that the ship was farther to the eastward than was really the case, neglected, it seems, the ordinary precautions of taking soundings or looking out for discoloured water, and about one in the morning the vessel found herself within a few yards of the breakers. A heavy squall blowing at the time enabled Captain Boutellier to steer clear of this danger, but, in turning round to get off, the ship struck on a sunken rock, and was soon a complete wreck. The Marie Aline was barque-rigged, and of 272 tons burthen. The hull, stores, &c., were put up to sale on the 18th, and realised Rs. 3,000.—Madras Times.

KAMPTEE.—A detachment of Madras troops and H. M.'s 91st foot have been ordered to Kamptee to put down the rebels which are yet to be found there.

PERSIAN PARSEES.—A native correspondent writes:—"We have been informed that about one hundred Persian Zoroastrians, including men, women, and children, have just come to Bombay in a bungalow, in a most miserable and wretched condition. The reason of their emigration from the land of their ancestors, is the religious persecution of the most merciless character, by the inhuman and bestial fanatics of Yezd. It is said that certain ruthless and ruffianly vagabonds published false reports to the effect that the Shah Nasirud-deen was dead. This false news incited the cupidity of the people of evil propensity; who, in anticipation of a revolution customary in Persia on such an occasion, lost no time in barbarously plundering, killing, and wounding the Zoroastrians and other people."

SIR GEORGE CLERK.—His Excellency the Governor will probably leave the Presidency for Surat, by steamer, soon after the departure of the next overland mail. The intention of Sir George Clerk seems to be to make himself personally acquainted with all the native princes and chiefs subordinate to, or in alliance with, the Government of Bombay. We have already recorded his progress through the southern Mahratta country, and he now proposes, we understand, to visit the Guicowar, the management of the relations with whose court has, as our readers are aware, been again submitted to the control of the local government. Sir George Clerk will travel by rail from Surat; the formal opening of the line having been postponed till his Excellency's arrival, though it is already finished, and trains run the whole distance. [The Governor's departure for Surat, in the Victoria, I. N., is fixed for to-morrow. Sir George Clerk will remain in Surat about four days, and then proceed by rail to Broach and Baroda.]—Bombay Gazette, Jan. 8.

THE GOVERNOR'S BALL.—Of five hundred invitations for the ball of Wednesday the 9th of January, four hundred and sixty were known to have been accepted, and the festivities of the evening were consequently anticipated with more than ordinary impatience. Sir George Clerk himself received the guests (who began to arrive rapidly soon after ten o'clock) at the head of the grand staircase. By eleven o'clock the assembly rooms were full, and bands of happy dancers were threading their way through the mazes of the quadrille, or whirling in the giddy waltz to the music of the band. As on all such occasions in India, there were a hundred or two unhappy gentlemen unable to find partners, but the ball must have been felt to be a success even by the most disappointed. The grounds were tastefully lighted, and fountains illuminated with very pretty effect. The reception rooms being decorated in pure white and gold lighted up very brilliantly, and Parell House probably never before appeared to so good effect. The spacious front verandah was extemporised into a drawing-room, almost al fresco, and tastefully adorned with the most graceful plants the horticultural gardens could furnish. At one o'clock the guests repaired to supper, the arrangements of which were in keeping with the occasion, and sustained well the character of Sir George Clerk's hospitality. Dancing was resumed after supper, and continued to a late hour of the morning.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS.—The movements of the following regiments have been countermanded—12th Regiment N.I. from Nusseerabad to Surat; 16th Regiment N.I. from Surat to Rajkote; and 17th Regiment N.I. from Rajkote to Nusseerabad. The 2nd Troop of Horse Artillery is to be removed from Kurrachee to Kirkee, as soon as it has completed its annual practice at Hyderabad. This troop will be conveyed from Kurrachee to Bombay in native boats. H.M.'s 28th Regiment is to be transferred to the Bengal Presidency, and H.M.'s 33rd Regiment will be moved further up-country. H.M.'s 4th will probably be sent to Deesa, to relieve H.M.'s 33rd. H.M.'s 44th Regiment has been ordered to the Bombay Presidency to relieve H.M.'s 83rd Regiment, which is to go home, having completed its tour of services in India. H.M.'s 64th Regiment will probably be sent to New Zealand on its way home, to do duty at Auckland, till the disturbances in that part of the globe have been settled. The head quarters of the army are to be permanently located at Poona from the 1st Jan.

DEATH OF MR. COXON.—We have to announce with feelings of the deepest regret, the death of Mr. M. A. Coxon, late Judge and Session Judge of Dharwar. He had been ailing for some weeks past, but it was hoped by his friends that a change to the sea-coast would renovate his health for a time; although his ultimate recovery was almost hopeless. The melancholy event occurred at Banda (on the road to Vingorla), on the evening of the 16th Dec., in the encampment of Captain Schneider, the political agent at Sawunt Waree, who is now on his tour through the districts. The funeral obsequies were performed by the Rev. Mr. Charmillot, who left this for Banda on hearing, by telegram, of Mr. Coxon's severe illness, but reached too late to see him alive.

BARODA.—A letter from Baroda informs us that the railway was opened on the 1st January to the camp at that station, to the great satisfaction of both Europeans and natives. Several hundreds of travellers from Surat and Broach availed themselves of the first train to visit Baroda. A detachment of the 4th (King's Own) Regiment, from Surat, passed through the station on the 3rd instant, on their way to Deesa. There are now no European troops at Baroda.

HOMEWARD BOUND.—Brevet-Major G. L. Carmichael, H.M.'s 95th Regiment, Lieutenant E. H. O'Dowd and Cornet E. Goldsmith, 7th Dragoons; Ensign G. A. Sweny, 4th Foot; one hundred and thirty men, twelve women, and sixteen children, of H.M.'s various regiments, have proceeded by the ship Cospatrick, to London.

THE DISPUTE BETWEEN MR. LODWICK AND THE JUDGES OF HER MAJESTY'S SUPREME COURT.—The dispute between Mr. Lodwick and the Judges of her Majesty's Supreme Court, has resulted in the former having had to tender an apology to the latter. Our contemporary of the

Gazette, to whom we are indebted for this information, says:—"Mr. Lodwick, it is true, has apologised, but only for a breach of discipline, he still holding to the justice of the principle on which he acted, and being backed by the Supreme Government. It appears that the civil auditor refused, when requested by the Bombay Government to do so, to suspend action on orders he had received from the Government of India to make deductions from the next pay-abstract of the Supreme Court. He also called on the chief translator to submit to this deduction, without sending his instructions through the Bombay Government, and for this conduct, which was not in accordance with precedent, an apology has been required of him. But, as we have said, Lord Canning supports Mr. Lodwick on the principle of the deductions, and the Bombay Government has now suspended the orders of the Government of India, pending further reference."

RAILWAY EXTENSION.—On Wednesday last, Jan. 9th, the first engine ran along the new piece of railway from Shawpore to the Thul Ghaut, under the auspices of his excellency Sir George Clerk. The excursion was made with the usual expedition and regard to business which characterise the present Governor of this Presidency. A special train, conveying only his Excellency and staff, the chief executive officers of the company, and the contractor, Mr. Jamsetjee Dorabjee, started from Boree Bunder at half-past 2 o'clock, and, after a sharp run to Shawpore, proceeded at a steady pace along the new line, stopping for the examination of the principal works. These consist of very deep cuttings in basaltic rock, lofty embankments, and four high and massive viaducts, of which two are 110 and 120 feet in height. In fact, the stupendous character of the works, and the grandeur and beauty of the mountain scenery, render this portion of the railway quite unrivalled, except by the Thul and Bhore Ghaut inclines. The return journey from Kusara to Wassind, twenty-six miles, was done within an hour. Running as the line does along the course of the notorious Thul Ghaut road, a striking contrast is presented between the ancient and modern travelling systems, such as will probably be met with in no other country in the world, and we imagine it must have been a source of considerable gratification to Sir George Clerk to witness this further evidence of the rapid march which civilisation has made in our Presidency since his Excellency relinquished the reins of Government in the year 1848, and to find himself in contact with a native contractor of such skill and enterprise as Jamsetjee Dorabjee, who has completed this extensive portion of the railway, as well as nearly the whole of the Concan division. We are informed that the train has also made a successful trip from Egutpoora, at the top of the Thul Ghaut, to Nassick, and that the line to that town is likely to be publicly opened in ten days or a fortnight hence. This will add fifty-five and a-half miles to the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, making a total of thirty-three and three-quarters miles already opened to the public. While upon this subject, we cannot forbear to notice the wonderful progress which is being effected upon the Bhore Ghaut incline during the present season, under the management of Messrs. Adamson and Clowser. There are now forty thousand men employed upon that incline alone, and work of the estimated value of nearly five lacs of rupees was executed in the course of last month. At this rate, the early completion of so grand an undertaking may be looked upon as a certainty. The advantage to commerce and the community of effecting this railway passage across the Ghaut is inestimable.

THE BOMBAY TROOPS.—We (Bombay Times) recently expressed our surprise at the rumour that had reached us of the Indian medal being denied to the troops engaged in suppressing mutiny and rebellion in Western India. From what we have now heard, we fear that this extraordinary decision has actually been passed. The medal is limited to the operations in Bengal and in Central India. Upon what principle operations in other quarters are deemed unworthy of this medal we are at a loss to conjecture, and should be glad if any one could inform us. At Kolapore, where the native regiment rose on its officers, the most desperate hand-to-hand conflict ensued, for which one officer was selected for the Victoria Cross. So critical was the state of affairs there and in the Southern Mahratta country generally, that for the first time in our history troops were landed on the coast during the height of the monsoon, at the imminent peril of all concerned. They were marched upon Belgaum and Kolapore through torrents of water above and below the ghats, and after their arrival, such was the disturbed state of the country and the necessity of instant readiness for service, night and day, that many of them never took their clothes off for weeks together. The outbreaks at Kolapore, Sholapore, Nargoond, and several other places were mere volcanoes showing the existence, but not the extent, of the subterranean fire. The Sawunt rebels kept large bodies employed in the Belgaum, and Canara, and Waree districts (not to speak of more than a thousand Portuguese troops), from March to November, 1858, when General Jacob's mission to Goa released them from their labours by leading to the surrender of the chiefs. Be it remembered that some three hundred inches of rain fell on those ghats which were the strongholds of these rebels, and the exposure and suffering of our troops may be imagined. It is generally understood that but for the energy and vigour shown in forestalling as well as crushing rebellion, all that part of India would have been in arms against us. In 1844 and 1845 Kolapore and Sawunt Waree alone called for ten thousand men to restore order, and they were employed from September to May in effecting it; but in 1857-58 the danger was far greater, because far more extensive and deep rooted. The officers who commanded at Kolapore, Nurgood, and Copal were rewarded by the Order of the Bath, or by brevet rank. Are the soldiery, to whom they are indebted for their honours and Western India for its safety, to be slighted by this unjust refusal of the medal they have so richly earned? Will no one inquire of Sir Charles Wood the reasons for this extraordinary refusal?

FORTIFICATIONS OF BOMBAY.—The good people of Bombay, after a period of deep anxiety about the state of the city and harbour defences, have been indulging in mutual felicitations of late, on account of the energy displayed by the Government in pushing on the new fortifications. No doubt much credit is due to the local authorities for their activity and vigilance. It was only the incessant prayers and remonstrances of Lord Elphinstone which at last prevailed over the reluctance and indifference of Indian Secretaries of State, so far as to obtain power for constructing such works as, in the opinion of the local Government, would at least give the shipping in our harbour security in time of war against the attacks of wandering cruisers. But there are now some unpleasant rumours that, when these new works are completed, we shall be no better off than we were before. A crescent battery of forty-one guns is in course of erection on Oyster Rock, but it has been found that there is no place within two miles of the Rock where a similar battery can be built, and that, consequently, no cross-fire can be established. Now, it is a well-known and, indeed, self-evident fact, that land batteries, which are intended to cover the approaches to a harbour, but from which no effectual cross-fire can be maintained, are just as useful as the defences of a town would be, if constructed in other respects on the principles of Vauban's system of fortification, but consisting merely of bastions without ravelins. It is a misfortune that our hopes should be thus nipped in the bud, and that all the measures so vigorously prosecuted for making the harbour defences stronger than they are at present should result so badly. But worse than this frustration of the efforts of Government is the fact, if fact it be, that the discovery of this fatal flaw in the new plan of fortifications was not made till within the last month or two, because the surveys of the harbour now in use are so imperfect that the engineer officers were for a long time completely misled. It is said that the latest published chart is of the date of 1828; and these inaccurate charts our officers are compelled to take as guides, while there is not a foreign nation with ships that visit Bombay which has not exact and accurate descriptions of the harbour.—Gazette.

MAHABULESHWAR, Jan. 5.—The weather is everything we could wish. The market is well supplied with everything that is wanted, both good and cheap, the best mutton costing only from six pice to two annas a pound; excellent beef 21lbs. per rupee, first sort bread ten loaves per rupee, brown bread twenty-two ditto; and there are plenty of vegetables in every variety. A large cheeta, between seven and eight feet long, has been shot at General Barr's bungalow here, by the Mallee, who generally manages to kill three or four of these animals every year, for which he obtains the reward, which is something handsome (Rs. 12 each, I believe), from the superintendent. Another large cheeta has also been shot by a Mallee, on the Sattara road. We have just got word from Sattara that the Rev. W. Wood is very ill from the effects of a severe beating he received from some villagers about five miles from that station, whether he had gone, in company with another missionary, to preach. They were attacked by the villagers with stones, and had to fly for their lives. This is the first time I ever heard of missionaries being so treated in these parts. The detachment of the 10th Regiment N.I., at Mahabuleshwar were relieved to-day by a detachment of the police corps from Sattara.—Bombay Times.

PROGRESS OF BOMBAY.—The valuation of houses, grounds, &c. in the town and island of Bombay, was in 1859 estimated at Rs. 54,13,465, and the amount of assessment thereon at the rate of five per cent. was Rs. 2,70,673. The valuation of houses, &c. in 1860 was estimated at Rs. 61,19,210, the assessment on which at the same rate is Rs. 3,05,960, thus showing an increase of Rs. 35,000 and upwards.

THE INCOME TAX, MADRAS AND BOMBAY.—From a report of the Madras commissioners of Income-tax we learn that up to the 13th of December the collections on account of the tax amounted to Rs. 21,817-5-6, the amount of assessments up to the same date being Rs. 102,521-14-0. This estimate includes about four months and a half of the first half year, so that the proceeds of the half year would be about Rs. 1,30,000, and of the year Rs. 2,60,000, or not so much as three lacs of rupees. The tax in the city of Bombay alone will, it is calculated, produce very nearly twenty lacs a year, the total yield for the year from the whole Presidency being estimated at twenty-five lacs. No doubt the immense wealth of Bombay ought to bring in as much as this; but we hope that no attempt will be made to increase the revenue by hasty and general surcharges on the returns of the taxpayers. The Madras commissioners state that only sixteen surcharges had been made, up to the 1st December, on upwards of six thousand returns, and the fairness of the increase in the cases in which it was made is shown by the fact that but one of the sixteen was appealed against. There are very different rumours in Bombay of the extent to which the Assessors propose to carry the system of surcharges; but we have full confidence in the judgment and love of justice of Mr. Bellasis and the other commissioners, and are sure that they will not run the risk of creating wide-spread disaffection for the sake of exacting a few rupees more than they can obtain by gentle means. If the Income-tax be worked cautiously at first, and the commissioners throughout the country be careful to follow exactly the counsels laid down by Lord Canning for their guidance, not only will the present unpopularity of the tax subside, but it has every chance of superseding all other taxes and becoming the chief means of support to the Indian Government. But if the tax be levied with "raw haste" and violence, we may despair of ever with its aid satisfactorily recruiting the State Treasury.—Bombay Gazette.

The Penal Code.

Camp Futehpore Seekree, Dec. 5.—The Penal Code was passed by the Legislative Council, and received the assent of the Governor-general in Council on the 9th Oct. last.

The English version of the Code has been already published in the Calcutta Government Gazette, and an approved edition of it, as finally settled, will be in the hands of all officers before the end of the year. It is desirable that before it come into force on the 1st of May, all young officers should make themselves acquainted with the provisions of the law which they will be required to administer from and after that date. On the other hand, it is obviously useless to require from them evidence of familiarity with a system of law which will be very shortly abrogated.

The Hon. the Lieut. governor has therefore resolved and hereby notifies for the information of all concerned, that all officers acquainted with the English language, who are required by existing orders to appear before the Committees of Examination in April, 1861, will be expected to possess a competent knowledge of the provisions of the Penal Code, and that in the judicial criminal branch of the examination, the said Code will be the principal subject of examination.

No translation of the Code in Oordoo having yet been completed, and there being no probability that such a translation will be in the hands of native officers entrusted with magisterial powers before March or April next, it will be obviously impossible for such of them as are unacquainted with the English language to acquire a knowledge of its provisions enabling them to pass any examination in it.

The Lieut. governor has therefore resolved further, that these officers shall be permitted to attend the April examination in respect of revenue subjects only, and that those who succeed in passing according to the required standard in that branch, shall appear before the Committee of Examination in October, 1861, with a view to their examination in the Penal Code.

In republishing for general information the following Resolution from the Government of India in the Financial Department, No. 126, dated 12th instant, the Hon. the Lieut. governor earnestly begs the careful attention of all officers serving under the Government of the N.W. Provinces to the remarks and admonitions which it contains regarding the necessity of reductions of expenditure.

Each officer will particularly bear in mind that this is not to be regarded as an ordinary instruction, or as a mere indication of the wishes of the Government of India, but as a positive and absolute injunction.

The strictest economy in every branch, and in every detail of every branch of the administration, must be enforced.

Not a rupee must be expended, the expenditure of which is not absolutely essential to the furtherance of the public service.

The Lieut. governor is confident that every officer who is charged with the regulation of departmental expenditure will not only acknowledge the necessity, under present circumstances, of reducing all charges which are not indispensable to the efficiency of his department, but will also see that it is a duty incumbent upon him to second and assist within his sphere, however small it may be, the earnest endeavours now making by the Government of India to retrieve the finances of the State.

[Government of India's Financial Resolution, No. 126, dated Nov. 19, 1860, published in the Appendix to the Calcutta Gazette, dated Nov. 24, pp. 86 to 87.]

By order,

G. E. W. COUPER, Sec. to Govt., N.W.P.

Assessors of Income-tax, N.W. Provinces.

Revenue Dep., Camp Bhurtpore, Nov. 29, 1860.—The Superintendent general of Irrigation, the Superintendent of the Roorkee Workshops, all executive engineers, whether in the department of public works, or in the irrigation department, and all other officers of the department entrusted with the payment of salaries or wages without audit, are hereby appointed to be special assessors, under Section XXXI. of Act XXXII. of 1860.

Stamp Duties.

Oct. 26.—Under the authority given by Section XVIII. Act No. XXXVI. of 1860, the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to make the following rules, to be in force from the promulgation thereof in all districts in India not annexed to any presidency, or not subject to the general regulations of any presidency:

I. Subject to the exceptions mentioned in the two following rules, there shall be charged upon petitions of plaint on suits and appeals instituted in any civil court, or in the court of any revenue officer vested with judicial powers and acting in a judicial capacity the following scale of stamp duty in lieu of that prescribed in Article 6 Schedule B of the said Act, that is to say:—

	Rs. As.
If the amount or value of the property claimed shall not exceed Rs. 8	0 4
Above Rs. 8 and not exceeding Rs. 12	0 8
" Rs. 12 " " " Rs. 16	1 0
" Rs. 16 " " " Rs. 32	2 0

And thereafter as in Schedule B of the said Act.
II. Petitions of plaint in suits and appeals instituted in the court of any revenue officers as aforesaid for the recovery of arrears of rent, or of money received by any agent employed in the management of lands or collection of rents shall be written on paper bearing a stamp of one-fourth the value prescribed for petitions of plaint on suits instituted in a civil court. Provided that no such petition of plaint shall be written on paper bearing a stamp of less value than eight annas, if the amount or value of the property claimed shall exceed eight rupees, or on paper bearing a stamp of less value than four annas if the amount or value of the property claimed shall not exceed eight rupees.

III. Petitions of plaint in suits and appeals instituted in the court of any revenue officer as aforesaid for any matter or thing of nature described in Section XXIII. Act No. X. of 1859 (except the recovery of arrears of rent), shall be written on paper bearing a stamp of eight annas.

Nothing in these rules is to be held to apply to petitions or applications not being petitions of plaint in suits or appeals to civil or revenue courts or offices. Such petitions or applications are provided for under Article 5 Schedule B of Act No. XXXVI. of 1860.

BOMBAY LIGHT CAVALRY.—DISTRIBUTION OF OFFICERS.

Poona, Dec. 28.—Referring to G.O. No. 674, dated 4th inst., the C. in C. is pleased to intimate that although the organization of the three regiments of L.C. has been changed for reasons of State economy, H.E. is confident they will continue to set an example of discipline and good conduct, such as that they have displayed since they were raised, more than forty years ago. They retain their places at the right of the Bombay cavalry line, and they retain the title under which they have participated and won honour in many campaigns, at Guznee, in Afghanistan, at Mooltan in the Punjab, and Rajpootana, in Scinde, and in Persia.

H.M.'s Gov., while sanctioning the change which has been recently ordered, were most anxious that the character and traditions of these excellent and distinguished regiments should not be forgotten in the arrangement of the scheme for the reorganization of the native cavalry of this army.

The following distribution of officers of the three regiments of light cavalry will have effect from Jan. 1, 1861, and the newly posted officers will proceed to join the regiments to which they are respectively nominated after the receipt of this order, excepting those appointed to the 2nd regiment of Goozerat Horse, who will receive orders hereafter:—

Lieut. S. W. O. Stevens, 3rd L.C.

Lieut. A. P. Currie, 3rd L.C., adjt.

The C. in C. will be happy to meet the convenience of officers with respect to any change of regt. which may be mutually arranged, provided that applications are received within 3 months from the 1st prox., and that the number of officers in each corps is not exceeded, and no supersession or difficulties as respects rank are occasioned thereby.

Officers posted to Silladar regts. of cav. must consider themselves as on staff employ, and will hereafter be subject to all rules relating to staff appts.

Officers appointed acting 2nd in command must be prepared to vacate on their seniors returning from duty on furlough, the juniors being the first to move, or as may be ordered, according to circumstances.

Orders will subsequently be issued for the disposal of the veterinary surgeons, riding masters, and European non-commissioned staff of the three regiments of regular cavalry.

Medical officers will continue as at present until further arrangements shall be decided on.

Until the 5th, 7th, 11th, 13th, and 14th regts. of Silladar cav. are reported to be thoroughly organized under their new officers by Capt. Westropp, Maj. Whitehill, Maj. Merewether, c.b., and Col. Malcolm, c.b., the new commanding officers of those corps will respectively comply with the orders and instructions of the above-named officers in every particular.

Poona, Dec. 29.—The undermentioned officer be antedated to July 20, 1858.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

TUESDAY, February 5, 1861.

ORGANISATION OF THE INDIAN STAFF CORPS.

We understand that her Majesty's warrant authorising the formation of a staff corps for Indian service will very shortly be promulgated in this country. In the mean time, for the satisfaction of our readers, who are naturally anxious as to its operation, we may state some of its leading provisions. A staff corps, then, is to be formed at each Presidency, to be respectively denominated the Bengal, Madras, and Bombay staff corps. Officers at present holding staff appointments, and in future officers of any corps in India, under the rank of regimental field officer, who have served three years with a regiment—two of which shall have been passed in India—will be eligible to enter this corps, but will not be permanently transferred to it until pronounced properly qualified. Ensigns when permanently transferred will have the rank of lieutenant; other officers will take with them the rank they held in their regiments. Promotion is to be governed by length of service:—

Officers after twelve years' service, of which four in the staff corps, to become captains; officers after twenty years' service, of which six in the staff corps, to become majors; officers after twenty-six years' service, of which eight in the staff corps, to become lieutenant-colonels.

Five years' service in staff corps as lieutenant colonel will entitle officers to brevet rank as colonel. Officers now holding staff appointments in India, or joining the staff corps on its formation, to count their previous service towards promotion, to the following extent:—

One step of rank to be given to every officer whose period of service would qualify him for it according to the above rules. An interval of two years to intervene between each succeeding step.

Officers of the corps will be eligible for brevet rank in common with the rest of the army. Those holding military appointments will take military commands according to army rank, but officers holding only civil appointments will not be entitled to assume such commands. Exchanges will be allowed between staff corps officers under the substantive rank of field officer, and regimental officers of the same rank. Officers of the staff corps exchanging into a regiment will go in as juniors of their regimental rank. Pay will be fixed according to the following scale:—

	per mensem.					per diem.
Gen. officers ...	1,295	5	0	...		1	5	0
Major ...	640	14	0	...			16	0
Lieutenant ...	225	12	0	...			6	6

Every officer on active employment will also receive, in addition to the above pay, such a sum as will make his total pay and allowances up to the sum assigned as the consolidated pay of the office which he may hold. Eventually, a certain proportion of the senior officers of the staff corps will receive colonel's allowance.

Officers will be allowed to retire on the present Indian rates of pension, namely:—

	Per annum.
After 20 years' service in India ...	191	12	0

provided not less than half the required period of service shall have been performed in the staff corps. Officers of the Indian forces joining, will receive pensions under Indian rules. Staff corps officers in England unable to return to India, and officers removed from the effective list, who may not be entitled to retire on the above scale of pensions, will be placed on a half-pay list, provided they have served three years in India in the staff corps, on the same rate of half-pay and on the same conditions as officers of a similar rank in the line.

COTTONPOLIS IN ALARM.

WHAT has Mr. Buckle to say on the subject of the panic by which Manchester is now so greatly agitated? What has become of his grand theory of "material laws?" Was it not the drift and purport of his bulky volume to illustrate and develop the doctrine that the grandeur and decadence of nations, communities, and individuals, alike depend upon material causes, eternal, omnipotent, and universal? Astounded by the audacity of his assertions, and bewildered by the variety of his illustrations, that large class of individuals who fancy that they think because they dimly reflect the thoughts of others, were almost disposed to imitate the fool and say in their hearts, "There is no God." Or if they dared not to adopt that extreme dogma of the materialists, they at least regarded the Deity and the laws of Providence from the Epicurean point of view, and refused to believe that the affairs of earth could be a care to the dwellers in heaven. The only law they were prepared to recognise was that of demand and supply. This alone regulated all things. This was the motive power of success; this, the sole cause of failure. And yet the experience of history was all opposed to this cheerless and depressing theory. Was it the law of supply and demand, or any other material law, that converted England from being simply a producing to being a manufacturing country? Was it not rather moral than material causes that depopulated the once flourishing cities of Flanders, and drove their skilful and industrious artisans into exile? To persecutions in the name of religion England is indebted for her woollen manufactures, which the Flemings, fleeing from the Duke of Alva, introduced into her eastern counties. To a similar cause she owed her silk manufactures, and in many other instances, the violation of moral laws by the rulers of foreign States has largely contributed to her power and opulence. It is by moral laws, again, that one great source of her wealth and of the individual prosperity of her people is now so seriously threatened. Never was there a greater demand for the raw material that pours such fabulous riches into the lap of the Lancashire mill-owners, and furnishes employment and food to four millions of industrious workmen. Never was there more imminent danger of the supply being wholly inadequate, and this not from any material cause, such as excessive drought or excessive moisture, but solely and entirely from social and political—that is, from moral causes. Carelessly and securely riding at a single anchor, the Lancashire manufacturers suddenly beheld a storm-cloud rushing up from the westward, and then discover that, though other anchors are on board, they are not yet rove, and, therefore, cannot be turned to immediate account. In their shame and terror they ascribe the fault to any one but themselves, and seek to make the Government responsible for their own shortcomings and selfish shortsightedness. And what is it they now propose to do? Of themselves, literally nothing. They inveigh against the enormous expenditure of the Indian administration; they charge the civil servants of that Government with carelessness and incompetency; they inveigh against the suspension of public works; and then wind up with a vote of thanks to the chairman. A most lame and impotent conclusion, but strictly in keeping with all the antecedents of this presumptuous and egotistical class. They insist upon the application to India of the same principles that are recognised and prevail in this country; and then, having laid down this as an undeniable postulate, they coolly require of the Indian Government to make roads, canals, and railways, in order that Manchester may not be deprived of the staple material of her industry. No doubt there is abundance of cotton in India—enough, and more than enough, to render Great Britain entirely independent of the Slave States of North America. Equally undoubted is the fact that, with very little additional labour—in other words, at a slightly-enhanced price to the producer—this cotton would prove as excellent in quality as it is ample in quantity. One thing alone is wanting—the means of safe and speedy transit. But this clearly is a difficulty which private enterprise can overcome, and which, moreover, belongs only to private enterprise to deal with. Who would have raised a louder outcry than the Manchester men had our own Government presumed to construct a railway to Manchester from either Liverpool or London? We should have been told, with all the fury of demagogic declamation, that such a proceeding was impolitic and unjust, a wrongful appropriation of public moneys, and an iniquitous supercession of private enterprise. Now, what is radically true in England, say they, cannot be radically untrue in India; and in the same breath they declare that it is the duty of the Indian Government to enable them to obtain raw cotton at a price that will enrich them in a few years—to bestow upon them, in short, "the means of potentiality beyond the dreams of avarice." This, we humbly submit, is not by any means the duty, or province, of any Government. All that the Government can be called upon to do is to ensure to every individual perfect security of life and property, and equality before the law. All interference beyond this is unbecoming to a free people, and positively injurious to the national character and to individual enterprise. If Manchester requires the cotton of Berar, it is for Manchester to make the necessary arrangements for that purpose; but the Lancashire millowners have no title whatever to demand that the revenues of India shall be devoted to the increase of their profits, or the relief of their embarrassments.

THE MYSORE PRINCES.

CALCUTTA is in a ferment of agitation against the Home Government of India for having ordered a settlement of the claims and future position of the families of Hyder Ali Khan and Tippoo Sooltan, on a basis which evidently is not consistent with the views entertained of those claims by the leading authorities of the Presidency. Sir Barnes Peacock, who has taken the lead in the opposition to those orders, and who called for the papers in the Legislative Council, with the avowed intention of refusing his assent to any future tax Bills, if he should not be satisfied of the expediency of making the outlay, pledged his reputation as a lawyer to the opinion that none of the members of this family, except the one remaining son of Tippoo Sooltan, the Prince Gholam Mahomed, who was recently here in England, had ever any legal or moral right to receive any stipend or provision of maintenance from the British Government; and also to the further opinion that the claim of this one was forfeited by the participation, not of himself, but of one of his brothers in the mutiny and massacre of Vellore. He moved for papers to enable him to prove this, and then, being refused, the people of Calcutta, who were smarting under the inquisition and other odious measures for enforcing the Income-tax, recently imposed, took up the question, and what is called a monster meeting has been held, in which, for the first time, men of all creeds and professions concurred in passing resolutions protesting against the lavish expenditure of the resources of India, by order of a minister of the Crown, and asking in effect for self-government in matters of finance; and so the matter rested when the last mail left.

Now it is a curious thing that in the midst of all this local agitation there has been no attempt made to explain to the people of Calcutta, either officially or through the local press, the grounds or character of the measures ordered from England for the benefit of this family. When the reflex of this agitation was spread by the Times in this country, there appeared immediately, in the shape of letters to that diurnal, and of articles and communications to other journals, full, and, we have no doubt, accurate, explanations of the entire measure, even to the detail of its financial effect, present and prospective. Why should not this have been submitted, in some form or other, to the public of Calcutta? Had it been so, we have no doubt that the explanation would have much mitigated, if it did not satisfy and put an end to, the agitation. We apprehend that there is but one interpretation to be put upon this silence, and that is, that the members of the Supreme Government and high public officers were themselves opposed to the measures ordered, and were in their secret hearts not at all sorry to see their own views so generally supported. It may not be generous to attribute such motives to those high authorities; but there are two circumstances connected with the case which will go far to justify the imputation. These are:—First,—It was known that the Government of Lord Dalhousie had given a careful consideration to the case, and, as Sir Barnes Peacock was a member of that Government, his declared opinions were looked upon as the deliberate judgment of that Government. Secondly,—Whatever has now been done, was done by the home authorities in contravention of that judgment, and was settled by them in direct concert and communication with the Prince Gholam Mahomed in England; and it is but natural to suppose that the Viceroy was very jealous of such a passing by of his authority in a matter which concerned a family of native princes and political stipendiaries.

Without inquiring further into the reasons for it, we may regret the effect of thus leaving the community of Calcutta in complete ignorance of the real merits of the case, which has been taken up as the peg upon which to hang their opposition to Mr. James Wilson's Income-tax. The demand for an explanation of expenditure before asking for new taxes, once commenced, will not be satisfied even by the clear demonstration of the propriety of this particular measure, which we expect will be laid before Parliament at the very commencement of the Session. The extent of the European force, and consequent increase of military charges, will next be taken up: the lavish expenditure upon works of a professedly productive character, but which have not produced, and will never produce, a fair return of revenue: the £800,000 thrown into the Red Sea in the shape of telegraph wires that never conveyed a public message; all these, and many similar sources of expenditure, will be taken up as evidences of wanton waste, proving the necessity of submitting the issues of public money to the control, in some way, of the taxpayers, so that they may not be subjected arbitrarily to imposts to meet such waste. This is a question for Parliament to deal with in the coming Session. In the mean time, we should not be dealing rightly with our readers if we did not endeavour to lay before them such an explanation of the particular case which is the subject of present agitation as can be offered, in anticipation of the full exposition that will be made by presentation of all the papers to Parliament.

If a reference be made to the Treaty of Seringapatam, concluded between the East India Company and the Nizam for the partition of the territory acquired by the fall of that fortress, and by the death of Tippoo Sooltan in its storming, it will be seen that the East India Company obtained, beyond its equal share, territory yielding 240,000 canteria pagodas, or seven lakhs of rupees, upon the condition of providing a suitable maintenance for the whole of the families of Hyder Ali Khan, and of Tippoo Sooltan. By the terms of one article of that treaty, the East India Company engaged to spend not less than that amount, but with reservations explained in another article, which provided that the Company were to benefit by lapses, forfeitures, or re-arrangements, showing that the condition was limited to what might be considered a "suitable maintenance" for all the members of these families.

This obligation was at first satisfied by removing the families to Vellore, and there providing for their maintenance and expenses on a liberal scale, but without assigning specific stipends, except to the elder sons, who were grown up men. While the families were thus at Vellore, the mutiny of Madras sepoys occurred, who brought out one of the sons, Moizooddeen, and placed him nominally at their head; but upon subsequent investigation, no previous concert or instigation of the mutiny was proved against him, nor was any other member of the family in any way concerned. But consequently upon this event the whole of both families were brought round to Calcutta, and located by Lord Minto at Rusapugla, a suburb of that city, where they were required to live under the surveillance of a Government officer, styled the Superintendent of the Mysore family.

Lord Minto recorded on this occasion a minute laying down the footing on which he proposed to deal with the family, and assigning stipends for sons and daughters and other members of the family, which they were to receive when of proper age, and capable of managing their households for themselves; and in this minute his lordship distinctly declares that he does not consider the claims of the family to receive liberal provisions for their maintenance to be affected or diminished by the occurrences at Vellore. Every stipend was to be only a life grant, and on decease of the incumbent the Government was to make or refuse a new distribution, according to its own judgment of what was suitable.

Since 1807, when these arrangements were made, the Government of India has acquitted itself of the obligation to provide suitable maintenance for the whole of these families, by granting stipends of various amount. After 1841 the stipends were treated as other political pensions, and upon each lapse some saving has generally been made in the renewals; but all this while the expenditure upon these families was entered in a special head of account, in which the seven lakhs of Rupees acquired by the Treaty of Seringapatam were annually credited, and the stipends and other disbursements debited per contra, the balance being carried on from year to year, until it reached an amount considerably exceeding half a million, and is so shown under the head, "Appropriated Deposit Account of the Mysore Family," in the printed accounts for the year 1854-55, as laid before Parliament. In that year the Prince Gholam Mahomed came first to England, and the result of his visit was to obtain the establishment of a new principle for the grant of stipends, viz., that all of equal degree in descent from a reigning sovereign should receive the same amount. His own stipend was then increased to Rs. 3,000 per mensem, or £3,600 per annum, he being the only surviving son of Tippoo Sooltan, and the acknowledged head of the family. The stipends of grandsons and great grandsons were fixed respectively at Rs. 600 and Rs. 200 per mensem, or £720 and £240 per annum.

Upon the return of the Prince to India, Lord Dalhousie took into his consideration the circumstances and claims of this family, and together with his Council came to the conclusion that the junior members of it had no treaty rights at all, and that the Government, therefore, might deal with the stipends at pleasure. He accordingly proposed to declare by resolution the intention to give no stipends or other provision of any kind for maintenance after the fourth generation, that is to say, beyond the great grandsons, who, as above stated, were to receive £240 each per annum. This is the decision rested upon by Sir B. Peacock in his speech in the Legislative Council. As a member of Lord Dalhousie's Government he had concurred in that decision. If that be just and tenable, then is the opposition to the present orders of the Home Government well founded; but that it is not, will be manifest from a brief statement of the grounds on which it rested, and which have been stated to be the following:—

First, that members of these Mysore families could claim nothing as matter of right under the Treaty of Seringapatam, because they were not themselves parties to it. This is a special pleader's argument, which we wonder to hear was ever advanced. As well might it be argued that British subjects had no right to participate in the compensation obtained for them by the Treaty of Paris, because they were not themselves parties to that treaty.

Secondly, That if the existence of a legal or moral claim be conceded, it could be urged only on behalf of members of the family living at the time of the treaty, not of members of the family born afterwards. This is what Sir B. Peacock meant when he declared that Prince Gholam Mahomed was the only member of the family who ever had any right. The argument is based on the interpretation of the words, "the whole of the families of the late Hyder Ali Khan and of the late Tippoo Sooltan." Lord Dalhousie and Sir B. Peacock construed these words strictly as meaning the whole of the existing members of those families only. But it is evidently a forced construction of the word families to limit it to living members, and such a construction is opposed to the consecutive practice of the Government, which has invariably renewed stipends to descendants, in full until 1841, and subsequently with some reduction of amount. The public of England will, assuredly, not consider a grant to a family as not carrying with it rights of inheritance so long as any legitimate members of that family are in existence. The Court of Directors took this broader view of the construction of the article in question, and disapproved of Lord Dalhousie's resolution to grant no stipends after the fourth generation.

But there was a third ground taken up by Lord Dalhousie's Government, and which also is referred to in Sir B. Peacock's speech, and that is, that admitting rights to have existed under the Treaty of Seringapatam, they were forfeited by the participation of Moizooddeen in the Vellore mutiny and massacre, there being an express stipulation in the treaty declaring this penalty for any hostile attempt against the East India Company. There is no doubt that if this ground had been taken at the time of the occurrence, it might, perhaps, have been maintained. But Lord Minto's minute and the arrangements of 1807 expressly abandoned and condoned it; nor was it ever revived or urged at all against the family until 1854. It would, therefore, be ungenerous and discreditable to press it now against the family, and to ground upon it any adverse proceedings.

As the result, therefore, of the measures adopted in 1856, there was a large and increasing number of grandsons and great-grandsons, all heads of families, subsisting on stipends, and living in a separate community in the Calcutta suburb. The evil of a perpetuation of a separate privileged community of this description had long been seen, and the desire was often expressed of finding a remedy for it. On one occasion, as far back as 1837, the late General Canfield, then Superintendent of the Mysore family, proposed to devote a portion of the accumulated Mysore Fund to setting up members of the family in separate independence, as a means of prospectively breaking up this separate community, and cutting off their prospective claim to stipends. The proposition was not adopted, but the Court of Directors declared themselves favourable to its principle. Lord Dalhousie's proposition for cutting the Gordian knot, by stopping wholly the grant of stipends at the fourth generation was, as we have stated, disappointed. The evil, therefore, remained. How was it to be remedied? Could the Government of India be called upon to frame a scheme for the purpose, when its view of the claims of the family was so different from that entertained in England? Clearly the question was one proper to be taken up by the authorities, who were not satisfied with the scheme of the local Government, and the second visit of the Prince Ghulam Mahomed to England afforded fortunately the means of settling the question in concert with the head of the family, whose full assent to any scheme for cutting off their prospective claims was evidently a necessary condition. There can be no doubt, therefore, that Sir C. Wood was justified in taking up the question here instead of remitting it back to India.

The scheme finally determined upon by Sir Charles Wood and his Council appears to have been the following:—

To give to the existing heads of families a capitalised sum representing half their stipends, as the permanent provision for their families, in extinction of all claim to the continuance of any part of the existing stipends on the incumbent's decease. Increasing the stipends of grandsons by this means from Rs. 600 per mensem to Rs. 1,000, one-half of this was given in the shape of 4 per cent. stock, yielding interest of the amount, and the stipends of great grandsons who are now heads of families being increased to Rs. 300 per mensem; Rs. 200 per mensem was similarly capitalised for their descendants. Besides this, a sum of Rs. 15,000 was ordered to be given to pay off the debts contracted during the period of insufficient income before the arrangements of 1856, and the Government was ordered to purchase at a fair price the residences of any members of the family who might claim to remove from Rusapugla.

The exact financial effect of these arrangements will not be known till the papers are laid before Parliament; but as there are twenty grandsons, and about fifteen great grandsons to participate in the benefit, the capitalisation and other payments will approach half a million. But this will be no issue from the Treasury, that it should be complained of as an unwarranted application of the receipts of the Income-tax. The main item will be a creation of Four per Cent. Stock, not by any means equalling in amount the sum that stood in 1854-5 in account under the head of deposit, being the accumulation of the surplus of the seven lakhs of annual receipt over the annual payment in stipends and other expenses.

By the arrangements ordered, therefore, prospectively, when existing stipends lapse, the total annual charge against that treaty receipt will be the interest on the stock created, which will be less than £20,000, or two lakhs of rupees per annum. The present annual payment in stipends exceeds £50,000, or five lakhs, and if the system of granting stipends were to continue indefinitely to future generations, it would be out of the question to hope for the means of ever much reducing this aggregate, consistently with the fulfilment of the obligation to provide a suitable maintenance to the whole of the two families.

RED SEA AND INDIAN TELEGRAPH.—The report of the Red Sea and Indian Telegraph has appeared. The directors enter into a detail of the operations now in progress between Suakin and Aden, and other portions of the line, together with the consequent negotiations with Messrs. Newall, by which the company agreed to pay Messrs. Newall a sum of £65,000 in full of all demands. The directors further state that they laid the whole facts before the Commissioners of the Treasury, who, in reply, left to the Board "the exercise of their own judgment." On the usual application being made by the directors relative to the payment of the dividend, a communication was received from the Treasury, stating that, having obtained the opinions of the law advisers of the Crown on the matters at issue, "they are not prepared to authorise the issue of money for a dividend," intimating, however, that they intend to submit a Bill to Parliament on the opening of the session to give effect to the understanding with which the Act was passed. In conclusion, the directors—the whole of the capital of £800,000 having been paid up—recommend the conversion of the shares of the company into a consolidated stock.

DEFAMATION OF CHARACTER.—The Telegraph and Courier is informed that notice has been given to Lieutenant Gayer, 2nd European Light Infantry, the secretary to the late Belgium race stewards, of an action having been instituted against him by Dr. Robert Millar, for defamation of character—a defamation leading, on the official showing of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, to Dr. Millar's continued deprivation of employment, and to the risk of the loss of his commission. The damages have been laid at 20,000 Rs. Lieutenant Gayer, who is aide-de-camp to Major-general Farrell, has only just reached Mhow. It will be a long and irksome journey back again to Bombay.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

INDIA OFFICE, VICTORIA-STREET, WESTMINSTER,

THE SECRETARY OF STATE for INDIA
in COUNCIL GIVES NOTICE, that he will be prepared to RECEIVE on FRIDAY, the 8th February, at or before One o'clock, TENDERS for a LOAN of £3,000,000, on security of Stock to be created under the provisions of an Act of the last Session of Parliament, and to bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly at the Bank of England, on the 5th January and the 5th July in each year.

The Stock not to be redeemable until 5th July, 1860, but to be redeemable at par on or after that day, upon one year's previous notice having been given in the London Gazette by the Secretary of State for India in Council.

The Books of the Stock will be kept at the Bank of England, where all Assignments and Transfers will be made. No Stamp Duties whatsoever will be charged on the Transfers.

The Tenders to be for the whole or any part of such Loan, but not for sums of less than £500 Stock, and to state what amount of money will be given for every £100 of the said Stock. The Tenders are to be delivered in, sealed, at the Accountant-General's Department, at this Office.

A Deposit of 2 per cent., upon the amount of Stock tendered for, must, at the same time, be paid at the Accountant-General's Department, to be returned in the event of the Tenders not being accepted; and parties tendering must be careful not to enclose the Deposit in the sealed Tender.

So much of the amount tendered and accepted to be paid at the Bank of England, on account of the Secretary of State for India in Council, on Friday, the 15th of February, 1861, as, when added to the Deposit paid, on the Tenders being delivered, will leave Eighty Pounds for each Hundred Pounds of Stock, to be paid as under, viz.:

£20 per cent. on Tuesday, the 12th of March, 1861;

£30 per cent. on Tuesday, the 9th of April, 1861;

£30 per cent. on Friday, the 10th of May, 1861;

but parties who so desire may pay up in full, and will be allowed a discount at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum upon the anticipated payments.

The Dividend payable on the 5th of July, 1861, to be a six months' Dividend upon the Capital amount of Stock contracted for on the said 8th February.

In the event of the receipt of Tenders (at or above the minimum price to be fixed by the Secretary of State for India in Council on the 8th February) for a larger amount than that proposed to be raised, the Tenders, at the lowest price accepted, will be subject to a pro rata diminution.

Due notice will be given when the Scrip Receipts are ready, and these will be delivered only to the parties entitled, or to their order, at the Chief Cashier's Office at the Bank of England, in exchange for the receipt for the first instalment.

For each instalment after the payment of the first, which is due on the 15th of February, 1861, a proportional amount of Stock will be created for the contributors. The Stock for the first instalment, including the Deposit, to be created at the same time with that which will be due on the last.

No Tender will be received after One o'clock on the said 8th day of February, nor unless upon a printed Form, which must not be enclosed in an envelope.

This Form may be obtained at the Accountant-General's Department of this Office, or of Mr. Henry Scott, the Broker to the Secretary of State for India in Council, 16, Throgmorton-street, London, E.C. J. COSMO MELVILL.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY,
29, LOMBARD-STREET, LONDON; AND
ROYAL INSURANCE BUILDINGS, LIVERPOOL.
CHAIRMAN OF THE LONDON BOARD.
SAMUEL BAKER, Esq.
CHAIRMAN IN LIVERPOOL.
CHARLES TURNER, Esq.

THE ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY

Is one of the largest Fire Offices in the Kingdom.
At the Annual Meeting held in August, the following highly satisfactory results were shown:—

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the large accessions of business made annually through a long series of years, which obviously increase the difficulty of further advances, yet the Fire Premiums of the year 1859 rise above those of the preceding year by a larger sum than has been obtained by the increase of any single year since the formation of the Company, excepting the year 1853—disclosing an advance of 50 per cent. in three years.

The following figures exhibit the progress of the whole Fire Branch, running over the last ten years:—

	Total Premium received.	Inc. of the year above each preceding one.
1850 .....	£44,027 10 0	£9,557 19 8
1852 .....	76,925 4 2	24,251 18 3
1854 .....	128,459 11 4	15,895 7 0
1856 .....	151,733 9 6	21,672 17 7
1858 .....	196,148 2 6	21,988 17 10
1859 .....	228,314 7 3	32,166 4 9

LIFE BUSINESS.

The Directors desire to call the especial attention of the Proprietors to the statements of the LIFE BRANCH of the establishment.

The Actuary's Report on this subject is accompanied by an Appendix containing the fullest particulars of the investigations made, and is illustrated by TWO COLOURED DIAGRAMS, which make plain to the unprofessional eye the mortality experienced by the "ROYAL," as indicated by curved lines, which contrast most favourably with the former averages of mortality, also displayed on the diagrams.

It is expected that these elucidations will attract a deep and profitable attention to the subject of Life Assurance in the minds of tens of thousands who have hitherto given no heed to its principles and advantages.

The BONUS apportioned to the assured, with participation, amounts to £2 per cent. per annum, to be added to the original sum assured of every Participating Policy effected previously to the 1st of January, 1858, for each entire year that it had been in existence since the last appropriation of BONUS thereon, and is ONE OF THE LARGEST BONUSES EVER DECLARED.

PERCY M. DOVE, Manager and Actuary.

JOHN B. JOHNSTON, Secretary to the London Board.

BY J. R. YOUNG,

A COURSE OF MATHEMATICS,

PURE AND MIXED.

More especially designed for the Use of Candidates for the MILITARY & CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

WITH A VARIETY OF PROBLEMS IN, AND PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS OF THE FOLLOWING SUBJECTS:

1. ALGEBRA, TRIGONOMETRY, AND MENSURATION
2. ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (CONIC SECTIONS), STATICS, DYNAMICS, AND HYDROSTATICS.
3. THE DIFFERENTIAL AND INTEGRAL CALCULUS with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c., &c.

The object of this work is to furnish Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations with such a practical knowledge of Pure and Mixed Mathematics as may prove most serviceable to them in the course of the ordeal to which they are about to be subjected. On such occasions a mere theoretical acquaintance with principles is by no means sufficient. It is also necessary that the young aspirant should have been trained by actual experiments, as it were, to the application of the abstract rules, the enunciation of which he has otherwise mastered only by an effort of memory. To assist him in this gathering the fruits of his intellectual industry, Mr. J. R. YOUNG has devised a multitude of problems, of greater or less difficulty, in Algebra, Trigonometry, Mensuration, Analytical Geometry (Conic Sections), Statics, Dynamics, Hydrostatics, the Differential and Integral Calculus, with their applications to the Higher Geometry, Mechanics, &c. The chief peculiarity of this work, however, is one that will recommend it to a very large class of students. The most difficult questions are rendered comparatively easy, by the practical simplifications that are introduced in their mode of solution. Instead of a pompous and puzzling display of technical phraseology, the utmost care has been taken to explain the most knotty points in a plain, unaffected manner, intelligible to every ordinary capacity. In this respect, Mr. Young's "Course of Mathematics" will be found to possess a decided superiority over all preceding works on the same subject.

MUMFORD'S CONCENTRATED CORDIAL ESSENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER.

The Cordial Essence, which is now taken in preference to all other preparations of Ginger, not only from its agreeable flavour, but from the value and certainty of its effects, will be found most useful in all cases of indigestion, spasms, heartburn, diarrhoea, irritability of the bowels, and in most nervous affections. To invalids suffering with impaired digestion from long residence in warm climates, and to those who are proceeding to India, this preparation cannot be too strongly recommended.

Prepared only by GEORGE MUMFORD, Chemist, 5, Bathurst-street, Hyde-park-gardens, and sold by all Chemists, in bottles at 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each; also in large stoppered bottles, for foreign use, at 21s.

BARRIE and Co., Vepery, Madras, to enable their old correspondents returning from India to continue the use of the celebrated Condiments, have made arrangements to forward regular supplies of the above, packed in glass jars for family use, at 1s. 9d. and upwards, which may be had of CROSE and BLACKWELL, Purveyors to Her Majesty, 21, Soho-square; FORTNUM, MASON, & Co., Piccadilly; and of the Principal Sauce Vendors throughout the Kingdom. Each bottle is labelled, and BARRIE and Co., Madras, stamped on the glass.

BLAIR'S GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.
Price 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per box.

This preparation is one of the benefits which the science of modern chemistry has conferred upon mankind; for during the first twenty years of the present century to speak of a cure for the gout was considered a romance; but now the efficacy and safety of this medicine is so fully demonstrated by unsolicited testimonials from persons in every rank of life, that public opinion proclaims this as one of the most important discoveries of the present age. These Pills require no restraint of diet or confinement during their use, and are certain to prevent the disease attacking any vital part.

Sold by all medicine vendors. Observe "Thomas Prout, 229, Strand, London," on the Government stamp.

DELICACY OF THE LUNGS.
MR. JEFFREYS'S RESPIRATORS.

SUFFERERS from Disorders in the Organs of Respiration are warned of the fact, unquestionably true, that without the aid of RESPIRATORS, rightly employed, it is not possible that justice can be done to their cases; and that the only real Respirators being those for which this name was introduced by the original inventor, Mr. JEFFREYS, it is in the last degree imprudent to place any reliance on spurious articles assuming the name.

LE SOMMIER ELASTIQUE PORTATIF.

—HEAL and SON have patented a method of making a Spring Mattress portable. The great objection to the usual Spring Mattress is its being so heavy and cumbersome. The "Sommier Elastique Portatif" is made in three separate parts; and, when joined together, has all the elasticity of the best Spring Mattress. As it has no stuffing of wool or horse-hair it cannot harbour moth, to which the usual Spring Mattress is very liable; the prices, also, are much below those of the best Spring Mattresses, viz.:—

3 ft. wide by 6 ft. 4 in. long.....	£2 5 0
3 ft. 6 in. " " .....	2 10 0
4 ft. " " .....	2 15 0
4 ft. 6 in. " " .....	3 0 0
5 ft. " " .....	3 5 0
5 ft. 6 in. " " .....	3 10 0

The "Sommier Elastique Portatif," therefore, combines the advantages of elasticity, durability, cleanliness, portability, and cheapness.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, SET IN THE NEW CHEMICALLY PREPARED INDIA-RUBBER, forming a beautifully fitting plate to the gums, or over stumps, without producing the slightest pain, and on this plan it is impossible to detect them as artificial when the workmanship is of superior order. Mr. BRADSHAW can, with the greatest confidence, undertake any case, no matter how difficult, with certain success, being a thoroughly practical workman, supplying for many years the first dentists of the day with their most particular work in Artificial Teeth. Doing all his own work himself, he is enabled to supply his patients at an exceedingly moderate price. Single Teeth, from 3s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.; a Complete Upper or Lower Set, from £2 to £5. Mr. Bradshaw, Dentist, 20, Great Portland-street, Oxford-circus.

COMMANS'S CELEBRATED ARECA-NUT TOOTH-PASTE is used by Her Majesty and the Royal Family.—Has been examined, approved, is used and recommended, by many of our first physicians and dentists as the best preparation known for cleaning and preserving the teeth. Testimonials have been received, unsolicited, from many of the nobility and gentry. The following is amongst the many in testimony of its high value.

"Liverpool, August, 1859.
"I have much pleasure in offering my testimony to the value of your Areca-nut Tooth Paste, and have no hesitation in saying that it is the most efficacious and agreeable Dentifrice ever produced. I have recommended its use to my patients for some years."
"W. J. NEWMAN,
"Surgeon-Dentist to the Liverpool Infirmary for Children."

Prepared only by COMMANS, Chemist, Bath, in pots, 2s. each; to be procured of all Chemists, through the Wholesale Agents, Barclay, Edwards, London; Oldham and Co., Dublin; Duncan and Flockhart, Edinburgh.

NO ICE REQUIRED to produce common Ice, Dessert Ices, to Ice Wines, &c., in SIMPSON'S NEW PATENT FREEZING VASE.—This Apparatus is, without exception, the most efficacious, simple, and portable ever produced. By using the Patented Freezing Powder, Dessert Ices and Common Ice can be frozen by the most inexperienced, in a few minutes, on the table, or in an invalid's apartment. Residents and travellers in hot climates will find it invaluable, as it produces that luxury—Ice!—at command, and only occupies the space of an ordinary hat-case.

Prices: one pint, Four Guineas; three pints, Five Guineas. Freezing Powder, 3½s. per cwt. Freezing Pots, Ice Moulds &c., &c.

SODA-WATER, &c.—Use the "Seltzogene" (solely of one piece of glass), the only portable apparatus that has the patronage of the medical profession, who recommend it for making pure Soda-water and Aërated Beverages. Metallic impregnation is avoided, there is no leakage, and it is not affected by hot climates.

Prices: two pints, 23s.; three pints, 30s.; five pints, 42s. Powders (forty charges in box), 8s., 10s., and 16s. each. References and descriptive catalogues sent free. GEO. SIMPSON'S Patent Depot, 315c, Oxford-street, London.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

—Good Digestion, Clear Complexion.—Our winters abound in such constant changes of temperature and moisture, that skin diseases always prevail at this season. Rough skin, chapped hands, and pimples, are the simplest class; these admit of easy cure by smearing Holloway's Ointment over the affected portions each night at bed time; while his purifying Pills are taken in such doses as the system will bear without inconvenience. This is a safe and ready way of removing all skin diseases depending on irritation caused by atmospheric changes; when cutaneous complaints arise from disordered digestion, the same means will be found serviceable, and always curative. Any person on reading the "Directions for use," can apply Holloway's remedies with certain benefit.

CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS (KEATING'S).

The great remedy for these disorders in Children can now be administered in the form of a Purely Vegetable Sweetmeat, at once agreeable and effective.

Prepared and sold in Tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Church-yard, London, E.C., and retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the World.

Observe the words "KEATING'S WORM TABLETS" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each tin, without which none are genuine.—Sold by all Agents for "Keating's Cough Lozenges."

DR. BUCHAN'S DOMESTIC MEDICINES.
KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE WORLD, FOR THE CURE OF EVERY DISEASE INCIDENTAL TO MAN, WOMAN, AND CHILD.

PATENT SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE

PILLS, a Family Purgative for regulating the bowels, purifying the blood, removing vitiated humours, bilious, liver, and stomach complaints, rheumatism, gout, scorbutic affections, constiveness, pains in the limbs and joints, &c. These Pills work their way to the very root of each disease, cleansing in their passage, removing every unhealthy accumulation, till the blood is purified, the whole system renovated, and all the functions act according to nature. Price per box, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s.

VEGETABLE SKIN OINTMENT.
For eradicating all skin eruptions, sores, deep-seated ulcers, chapped hands, chilblains, boils, pimples, roughness and blotches on the face, neck, and hands, &c., &c., acting visibly on the complexion, preserving, improving, softening, and beautifying the skin. Thousands have used it, and declare to be the BEST OINTMENT IN THE WORLD. Per Pot, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d.

CONCENTRATED VEGETABLE ESSENCE.

This invigorating Medicine restores the wasted and impaired functions and powers of life, when exhausted by sojourn in hot climates, and excesses of various kinds, brought on in early youth, maturity, and old age. It is a certain cure for indigestion, lowness of spirits, hypochondriasis, asthma, neuralgia, sciatica, tic douloureux, chronic nervous debility, and premature decay, nerve cerebral affections, renal pains, irritation, and inflammation with their dangerous consequent deposits, such as gravel, stone, etc., chronic and spasmodic stricture, enlargement of the prostate, weakness of the bladder, retention and non-retention, softening of the kidneys, and all female complaints. The properties of this invaluable remedy possess the power of enriching, increasing, and purifying each particular vital fluid, rendering them prolific, so as to enjoy health and vigour. Per Bottle, 4s. 6d., 11s., or one containing four times that quantity, 33s. Thousand of cures proved and sworn to before.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

NEITHER the Calcutta Mail of the 8th of January, nor the China Mail of the 31st of December, brings any intelligence of an exciting, or even interesting, character. The latest accounts from Darjeeling show that on the 2nd of January a sense of perfect security prevailed at that station, owing to the arrival of the anxiously expected reinforcements. Colonel Gawler was making preparations for a second and decisive occupation of the disputed territory, and was to be accompanied in a political capacity by Mr. Ashley Eden, the young civilian whose rash insolence was one of the chief causes of the late indigo riots in Lower Bengal.

In all other parts of India profound tranquillity prevails, and yet trade and industry languish through want of confidence. There have been so many changes of late, and there is the certain prospect of so many more, that no one knows what next to expect, or by what rules to be guided. Of money there is even a superfluity, because in the existing state of transition, no one cares to make long investments. The Government Five and a Half per Cent. Paper is unsaleable at 101. The rate of discount is 8 per cent. at Calcutta, and 11 per cent. at Bombay. The market is glutted with cotton goods, the demand for which has been checked by the dearth in the North-west. With all this there is a glimmer of light on the horizon. Sir Charles Wood's sanguine calculations as to the future condition of the Indian finances are fairly borne out by facts. The Income-tax will probably produce not less than three and a-half millions sterling before the close of the financial year 1861-62, and there is no apparent reason why the military expenditure should not be further reduced to the extent of three millions. The scarcity in the Upper Provinces will, no doubt, cause a loss of revenue, and also a positive outlay in the relief of the most destitute. But on the other hand, this very outlay is of a remunerative character, and nothing is so likely to augment the finances in a permanent and healthy manner as the completion of canals of irrigation, good cross roads, and, above all, of railways. If, therefore, there be a deficit in next year's Budget, it will probably be of a small amount, and the last that will disgrace the annual financial statements of that great dependency.

The brightening prospects of India are naturally reflected in the home money market. Not only has there been no difficulty in raising the loan of three millions advertised by Sir Charles Wood, but there has even been a warm competition for the advantage of subscribing to it. Upwards of 1,100 applications have been rejected, representing a total sum of more than £10,000,000. The minimum fixed by the Council was 98½, at which and upwards about £6,000,000 were tendered, but the lowest tender accepted was 98. 11s. 3d., and the highest—one for £1,000—at par.

In our correspondence columns we have inserted a letter on a very important subject, and one that closely concerns the Anglo-Indian public. Foiled in his attempt to extort a double Income-tax from that already well-fleeced community, the Chancellor of the Exchequer is, nevertheless, determined to make a stand on another point, not a whit more tenable on just and equitable grounds. Since the amalgamation of the two armies the domicile of English officers serving in the East is declared to be in England, and consequently their estates are liable to English legacy duties. Assuming this to be a correct exposition of the law, its action cannot be retrospective, and yet it appears from our correspondent's statement that these duties have been exacted on the estate of an officer who died before the amalgamation took place—and, in fact, it has not yet taken place. But, it may be asked, will officers of the local European corps which is to be formed in each Presidency, be specially exempted from this reading of the law? If so, it is rather a singular proceeding to show favour to those who narrow their services to a limited sphere, while those who volunteer to serve their country wherever danger is imminent are not only put to many extra expenses in their lifetime but are mulcted after death. Civilians, merchants, and others, of course, entirely escape from the Chancellor's gripe, who reserves his squeezing powers for those who are least able to endure their effects, and also the least able to offer any resistance. We trust, however, that the Secretary of State for India will not permit such a gross injustice to be perpetrated at the expense of those who look to him for protection against the "Ramdialism" of his unscrupulous colleague.

From China the news is satisfactory. The troops at Tien-tsin are comfortably housed for the winter, and the townspeople are represented as being on excellent terms with their new found friends. Lord Elgin was still at Shanghai making the necessary arrangements for opening the Yang-tse to trade as far as Hankow. Two instalments of the indemnity had already been paid to both the French and English authorities. Owing to unpleasant news from Japan the admiral had sailed thither from the mouth of the Peiho. There is no reason, however, to entertain any serious apprehensions, as both a Russian and a Prussian squadron were in the Japanese waters. The Prussian expedition is said to have proved a complete failure—the Japanese declining to make any additional treaties with European Powers.

A NOVGOROD AND AN ORENBURG FOR INDIA.

We have received, and regret that we cannot publish, a minute by Sir Robert Montgomery, preliminary to the establishment of a fair either on the Indus or on some other of the Punjab rivers, for the commercial interchange of the products of England and India with those of Central Asia. It has long been abhorrent to the mind of the British statesman that the ladies of Cabul and Bokhara should waste their money upon Russian fabrics, when they might so easily be supplied from the Punjab and Sind with the superior article from Manchester; or that they should drink Banca tea out of Russian porcelain to the injury of the Himalayan plantations and the Staffordshire potteries. But the matter is slow to adjust itself under the ordinary laws of political economy. No doubt things are better than in Burnes' time, when the only instance of upward communication between Dehra Ghazee Khan and Kalabagh was that of an adventurous merchant from Shikarpoor, who took up molasses and brought down salt, but did not make a second voyage in the same direction. But in those days there were heavy tolls and transit duties which have long been done away with, and already an increasing export of the raw agricultural produce of the Punjab, towards Kurrachee, gives employment to numerous country boats, which just now frequently return laden with materials for the railway. But still our manufactures do not make way in Central Asia.

The traveller on the Trunk Road will frequently find his Glucose impeded in its progress by long strings of camels led by tall red-faced, bearded men clad in heavy turbans and yellow postheens. These are the Cabulees and Povindias merchants, the latter composed of Lohanees, Nassars, Neeazees, and Kharotees, with subdivisions known only to Colonel Lumsden. But how do they come here, and to Cawnpore, Benares, even Calcutta? It must be bad enough taking a convoy of silk and indigo, sulphur and pistachios, from Bokhara via Orenburg to the great Russian Fair at Nijni-Novgorod, "through an inhospitable desert in which water is scarce, provisions bad and forage not to be found, firewood scanty, and the only inhabitants roving predatory bands"—to pay five guineas hire for each camel, 5 per cent. on all goods, if you be a Jew, Hindoo, or Armenian, on leaving Bokhara, not less at the first Russian custom-house, and perhaps much more to the stray Kirghiz, Turcomans and Ozbegs whom you may meet on the road. But, though the route is certainly less difficult and dangerous, a journey from Bokhara to Calcutta is still a serious undertaking, and horses, dye-stuffs, and dried fruits must fetch good prices to pay for it. Things in Khorassan do not as yet go at railroad, but at camel's pace, and the Povindias are not in a hurry. Emerging at the end of October or beginning of November—perhaps after a fight with Afreedees, Wuzerees, Bozdars, or other robber tribes—from the Suliman Mountains, through the Gobeyree, the Zao, the Sikhee Surwur, or the Bolan Passes, they first try the markets of Peshawur, Dehra Ismail, Dehra Ghazee Khan, or Shikarpoor. Then leaving their families and flocks in the Derajat, these traders pursue the several routes to India—by Umritsur or Bhawalpore to Delhi and Calcutta, by Mooltan and Shikarpoor to Bombay. The Cabulees, again, more frequently reach the plains through the Tartara and Abkanah passes, eschewing the Khyber, and supply the Peshawur bazaars. About the beginning of March the Povindias wend their way back, through the rugged passes which afford pasture to their flocks, towards their black tents in the Ghuzni and Khelat-i-Ghilzye districts, whence their caravans again start off for Herat, and Bokhara.

Obviously these spirited and hardy traders would greatly benefit by the establishment of an annual fair at some convenient place in the Punjab, and it may confidently be expected that the merchandise of Europe and Hindostan will be forthcoming under good arrangements. Whether the commerce of Chinese Tartary can be directed from its present channel through Yarkand, Kashgar, and Kokan; whether British fabrics and commodities can be made to supersede the Russian which now have the monopoly of those markets, is to us doubtful. The route through Kooloo or Cashmere to Leh and Yarkand is long and difficult. Still we would not despair. The fame of an entrepot exhibiting for sale, at cheap prices, the collected products and manufactures of Europe, India, and Central Asia, might well lead the Tartar merchant at Yarkand to hesitate as to his best direction, and the Maharaja of Cashmere might not be indisposed to favour a trade which would increase his revenues. If this international Fair shall be permanently instituted it will not merely enable us to compete with Russia in supplying the markets of Central Asia, and so most effectually raise our prestige in countries which have not forgotten the bones of our army in the Afghan passes, but will be both politically and socially beneficial to the various races which it will bring together.—Friend of India.

THE FRANKENSTEIN MONSTER.

A native army and a financial deficit are the two curses of India. They render insecure the very foundations of our power, they obstruct every attempt at progress. There is not a thinker in India who does not acknowledge this, yet there is not an administrator invested with power who will put forth his hand to help in extinguishing either. Twelve months ago there was a nearer prospect of their destruction than there is now. Then Lord Canning had appointed a commission for the reduction of military expenditure, and his new zeal encouraged hopes of stern energy and effective action. Then Mr. Wilson urged on him the creation of a new constabulary, and the reduction of the whole native army of India to 40,000 men. Then the tax-paying classes welcomed a policy which, while it pressed with heavy weight on themselves, promised a speedy removal of the insolvency which was fast choking all the channels of commerce and all the springs of capital. Since that time the military commission has worked with singular zeal and unusual judgment. They have laid bare the causes of extravagance, they have recommended plans of reform. The fiat has gone forth for the reconstitution of the police force in India, so as to form a great army of constabulary administered and disciplined on the English system. And now at the close of this year 1860, where are the results? Actual reduction has been effected only in one Presidency, and that is of too homœopathic a character. The forces of Bengal and Bombay have been increased, and the whole native army of India is as large as it was in 1857. In addition to its numbers, a new force altogether is being created, established ostensibly as a substitute for it, but, so far as we see, likely to prove a permanent addition to it. By destroying the native army, a smaller European force would be necessary, and the deficit of 1860-61, which will be at least five millions sterling, would, with a little extra taxation, be extinguished. Yet the native army is increased in two Presidencies, and is not sufficiently reduced in a third. To check it a larger European army is maintained in the country than is absolutely necessary. To allow it to fatten in the idleness which leads to treason and mutiny, a police force costing two millions sterling is being fast organised.

To begin with Madras. Sir Bartle Frere recently, in the Legislative Council, took great credit to Government for the reduction of the Madras Army from 92,651, to 64,110. He maintained a most suspicious silence as to Bengal and Bombay. While we give the authorities of Madras all credit for this reduction we must withhold anything like an expression of satisfaction till it is carried out still further. In the panic of 1857, extra native regiments were raised, and 1,000 was the minimum strength of all the corps. Up to 1859, a force of 15,000 men was added to the army, and now the whole number has been reduced by only 25,000. Moreover, a large transport establishment of elephants, bullocks, and doolybearers was maintained in Pegu, at a cost of £160,000 a year. That will be almost extinguished. But on the other side a new army of 23,000 constables has been created, each costing no doubt £10 a year less than a Sepoy; and the whole will form when the new police of Pegu is raised a force of 30,000 men, for which only 25,000 Sepoys have been surrendered. With a population so peaceful, regiments so organised that mutiny is impossible, territories geographically so consolidated that there is no frontier to defend, and no internal foe to quell, what does Madras want, when she has 23,000 policemen, with 64,110 Sepoys paid at a rate much higher than their brethren in the other Presidencies?

But if we come to Bombay and Bengal, the conduct of Madras will seem positively self-denying. Sir W. Mansfield delights the Supreme Government and deceives the public by lengthy general orders reorganising the Bombay cavalry on General Jacob's sildar system, and nominally reducing the strength of regiments. Will it be believed that after these delusive orders have been carried out, the army of Bombay is larger at the beginning of 1861 than it was in 1857? Bombay is proportionally as rich in levies, local corps, and other nondescript bodies useless for either civil or military purposes, as Bengal. It has an army of 25,000 men. But even the stoutest defender of the Native army, while he proves to his own satisfaction the impossibility of reducing further the Madras and Bombay armies, confesses there is a noble field for reduction in Bengal. Its army destroyed itself; only fifteen skeletons of regiments were left out of the gigantic suicide of 1857. The levies which were so thoughtlessly sanctioned in 1857, and still more culpably perpetuated in 1858, have no claim to a permanent existence. They should all have been disbanded on 1st January, 1859. Then Lord Clyde declared that the last rebel had crossed the frontier, then only a few dacoits haunted like affrighted ghosts the jungles of Central India. But on 1st January, 1860, how stands the resuscitated, reorganised, reinvigorated Bengal army? At a strength of 87,000 men, exclusive of military police in Bengal proper, in Oude, in the North-West, and in the Punjab. At the very time that Lord Canning was signing pitiful entreaties instead of stern commands for reduction, a few hundred yards from him his subordinates were raising the Alipore militia, now dignified by the name of a regiment, to its war strength. After reduction, after Sir Bartle Frere's somewhat premature self-gratulation in the Legislative Council, with what Native army do we begin in 1861?

Bombay	...	...	...	25,000
Bengal	...	...	...	87,000

We do not take into account the 57,000 military police, as it is said they will be soon swept away. But their destruction, while it adds to our security and increases the comfort of the civil population, will not relieve the finances much, for a civil constabulary takes their place. If ever figures condemned an administration, if ever statistics spoke eloquently against a government, these do. An army of 170,000 sepoy, plus a second military police force of 57,000 plus a third constabulary force of 23,000, in the fourth year after a mutiny which a native army of less strength rendered almost successful! And it is we tax-payers who support these men, that they may pierce our own bowels with the sword; it is we who pay the extra number of European soldiers required to check them.

We believe a native army of 40,000 men is sufficient for all purposes, but we shall fix our limit at Mr. Wilson's second figure of 70,000. Indian officers, whom amalgamation has led to fear that they will find no place in the royal army, cling to the native regiments as their only hope. Well, we shall be content to organise it at first so as to employ them, leaving out of account the staff corps which they overlook. Will the Government go so far as immediately to get rid of all regiments for which there are no officers? Then the native army would stand thus:—

	Regiments for which there are officers.	Present Strength.
Madras ... ..	52	53
Bombay ... ..	29	34

That is, the native army of India has twenty-five regiments more than it has officers for. If each corps be reduced to a maximum of 800 men, the native army of India will amount to 89,400, instead of 176,000 as at present. Let us once see it at that point, let the staff corps once be established, and the great obstacle to the diminution of the native army—the vested rights of the Company's officers—will be removed. Then we may with success agitate for its reduction to 70,000, and ultimately to 40,000, with a civil constabulary of 138,000 men in place of the present military, darogah and thannah police who fleece and torture the people.

Who is to blame for this vast army? For a whole year the Military Commission has urged its reduction with a wisdom and a pertinacity which are now almost wearied out. Lord Canning and Sir Bartle Frere have expressed the warmest approbation of the labours of its members—but nothing more. Lord Canning is convinced of the propriety of certain reductions and the order is given. But the head of the department affected sees his Excellency, reasons with him; his nicely balanced judgment and vacillating will lead him to the fatal promise that he will "consider" the matter, and it is boxed. For twelve long months this process has been going on. Who is to blame?—First and foremost, Sir Richard Birch. We must speak plainly, for it is he who is the chief obstacle to the reduction. Timid, irresolute and destitute of all imagination, he trembles at the suggestion of a reform, his conservatism is shocked at the whisper of a change. Yet he is the Sydney Herbert of India. Till he is removed there will be no reduction of military expenditure. Who is to blame?—Sir Hugh Rose, an admirable soldier, and therefore determined to keep up to its full strength the army he commands; great as a general, but, unfortunately, frivolous as a statesman. Who is to blame?—Sir W. Mansfield, who hates interference with his command, would double the army of Bombay if the money were allowed, and would make it the finest as well as the most dangerous in the world. Who is to blame?—Sir Robert Montgomery and Mr. Edmondstone, the former of whom, in the police papers just published in the Gazette, studiously avoids any allusion to his gigantic Sikh army, though he promised to reduce it last June; and the latter of whom stoutly resists all attempts at diminution of expenditure. And yet, if we except General Birch, all these men are distinguished soldiers or administrators, are admirable servants of the State. Will this convince the home authorities, will Lord Palmerston condescend to understand that there will be no sufficient reduction of military expenditure in India, that Lord Canning, between the departments and the military commission, is reduced to a state of hopelessness—were in not so serious we would say ludicrous—impotence? When he would reduce, the Military Secretary says it is impossible. When he gives the order for reduction, Mr. Edmondstone pleads, Sir Robert Montgomery promises, Sir Hugh Rose shrugs his shoulders and disobeys, and Sir W. Mansfield refuses. Thus it is that

"—the native hue of resolution
Is sicklied o'er with the pale caste of thought,
And enterprises of great pith and moment
With this regard their current turn away,
And lose the name of action."

Thus it is that we are taxed to pay for a large native army to hatch a mutiny, and for a European force to watch the process.—Friend of India.

EDITORIAL LONGEVITY.—Mr. E. A. Harley, editor of the Madras Crescent, has died in his 81st year.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MAHARAJAH JUNG BAHADOOR has abandoned his intention of visiting the Terai country, made over to him, this cold season.

CAPTAIN MACNEILL has reported that in the Khond tracts of Jeypoor the Meriah sacrifices are still continued, and he proposes to proceed against them with the assistance of a Sebundee corps from Madras. Orders to this effect have been given.

THE ROYAL TROOPS IN INDIA.—In the beginning of last year the Government recommended that certain Royal regiments should be withdrawn. The all-powerful Secretary of State disapproved, and ordered them to stand fast. A strong remonstrance was sent home, stating that the finances could not stand the expense of more troops than were required. Orders—the result of this remonstrance—have come out to the effect that H.M.'s 2nd and 6th Regiments of Dragoon Guards, and the 5th, 6th, 24th, 37th, 64th, and 73rd Regiments of Foot are to return home immediately. By this movement the Delhi, Sealkote, and Rohilcund Brigade commands will fall vacant, these being now held by Colonels Grey, c.b., 5th Fusiliers, Brown, 24th, and Milman, 37th Regiments. Their successors will probably be Colonels Haly, c.b., H.M.'s 38th Regiment, Colonel Renny, c.b., H.M.'s 81st, and Colonel Holdich, c.b., H.M.'s 20th Foot, or perhaps Colonel Smith, 81st.—Englishman.

MORE JOBBERY.—We (Englishman) have lately noticed the rumour of two remarkable appointments—the Hon. Ashley Eden to be Special Commissioner with the force proceeding to Sikkim, and the Hon. Humphrey Bohun Devereux to be his successor as Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue. The first is an officer of nine years' service, the latter of upwards of thirty years' service. The former has risen steadily through the ordinary grades, the latter has held high appointments, and in the beginning of last year was Judicial Commissioner in Mysore. We are not well informed as to the true history of these appointments, but they do not look well. We wish to get at the facts of Mr. Devereux's case. * * * The Hon. Bohun Devereux was put out of employ by Lord Canning in February last year; he proceeded immediately to England, and immediately on his return, in less than a year, he is replaced in an inferior office with a respectable salary. The symptoms are suspicious, and amongst other questions that occur to us, we should like to ask the difference between Mr. George Plowden's conduct at Nagpoor and Mr. Devereux' at Mysore? There is evidently a great deal in a name. Under the old regime Plowden was, under the new Bohun Devereux is, a good name.

THE FINANCE COMMISSION.—The following gentlemen have been associated with the Civil Finance Commission, to aid the latter in reviewing the expenditure and establishments of the several departments mentioned below:—Customs Establishment, Mr. C. Chapman, collector of Customs; Salt and Opium ditto, —; Marine ditto, Commander J. Rennie, c.b.; Sudder Court ditto, Mr. H. T. Raikes, c.s., Judge of the Sudder Court; Board of Revenue, Mr. H. L. Dampier. For the Mofussil Establishments: Mr. E. Lautour, c.s., in the Judicial Department; Mr. C. F. Montessor, c.s., Magisterial Department; Mr. C. A. Campbell, c.s., collectorate; Mr. E. H. Lushington, Commissioners' establishments. The Commission have the materials all ready for a searching review of these establishments, and they expect to show a considerable saving in all departments. We (Englishman) have also heard that the Commission has finished the review of the larger proportion of the establishments of the North-West Provinces—all Pengu, Oude, and Nagpore, as well as a portion of the Punjab. It is not expected that there can be the same large reduction in the civil as in the military expenditure, but there is room for a very large saving even in the civil, if the heads of the various offices would but lend their hearty co-operation, instead of defending their own offices and pointing to their neighbours, as the more deserving of close inquiry.

CHITTAGONG, Dec. 29.—The expedition about to proceed into the Kookie Hills, for the purpose of punishing the atrocities committed by the Kookie tribes in February last, is being quietly organised at Chittagong. It is commanded by Captain H. Raban, formerly secretary to the late Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and not by Capt. Magrath, and consists of 350 Sikhs of the 1st Battalion Civil Police, under Lieut. Weldon, Head Quarters, 5th Battalion, under Lieut. Graham, Head Quarters, 7th Battalion, under Capt. Fagan, a howitzer and small party, from the Eurasian Company, under a sergeant, and a few men of the Cachar Kookie Levy. The expedition will proceed six days' journey into the hills by water, taking with it its own supplies, &c., and will then land and endeavour to perform the work cut out for it. A surveyor will be in company, from whose labours great future results may be expected. As regards natural obstacles and want of information, the expedition will, probably, have great difficulties to contend with, for by all accounts, the jungle is almost impervious, and our information as limited as it was ten months ago; the officer commanding (Capt. Raban) has, however, been selected on account of his experience in Kookie warfare, and will, no doubt, do whatever can be done.—Englishman.

BENGAL EXPORTS.—The Board of Revenue has published its report on the External Commerce of Bengal for the year 1859–60 in less than six months after the conclusion of the official year. It states the total value of merchandise and treasure imported and exported during the year to be Rs. 38,95,07,128, of which sum Rs. 23,89,69,414 represents imports, and Rs. 15,05,07,714 exports. The imports show an increase of Rs. 6,38,98,545 over those of the previous year, and the exports a decrease to the amount of Rs. 3,05,00,379. Exclusive of treasure the value of the imports of 1859–60 exceeded those of the previous year by Rs. 2,48,04,500, and the principal items on which there was an increase were beads, cotton twist, cotton piece goods, machinery, malt liquor, metals and silk goods. The value of exports, exclusive of treasure, shows a decline of Rs. 1,72,78,148 in the following articles—indigo, grain, gunny and gunny bags, hides, jute, opium, (Behar) seeds, sugar; on the other hand, the shipments, especially to the United Kingdom, France and China, of cotton, wool, drugs, opium (Benares) and raw silk have been progressive. The great deficiency (to the extent of over twenty-six lakhs) arises, according to the report, from diminished exports of indigo and opium. The Customs revenue is Rs. 2,03,67,437, or an increase of more than Rs. 62,000 on the average of the three preceding years. Thus in ten years the Customs revenue of Bengal has increased from seventy-three lakhs to upwards of two crores of rupees.—Hurkaru.

BABOO GOBIND PERSAUD PUNDIT, the proprietor of several large collieries in Beerbhoom, was lately concerned in an affray attended with loss of life. He has been sentenced by the Bengal Sudder to two years' imprisonment, or a fine of Rs. 10,000.

THE SYRIAN MASSACRES.—A committee to assist the Syrian Relief Fund has been formed in Calcutta, with Lord Canning president, Sir Barnes Peacock vice-president, and Mr. Fitzwilliam chairman. Mr. Fitzwilliam has been collecting subscriptions on his own account, and has already forwarded £800 to Beyroot. The sufferings of the Eastern Christians appeal strongly to the sympathy of Anglo-Indians, who were so nobly relieved in the hour of their trial in 1857.

THE MINTS.—In November, 1860, the following amount of silver was received and coined at the three Presidency mints:—

	Received.	Coined.
	Govt. Merchants.
Calcutta .....	49,410 ...	2,78,863 ...
Madras .....	40 ...	2,47,656 ...
Bombay .....	1,189 ...	...
	50,639	5,26,719

KUNDER PERSHAD SING, Raja of Sarung, in Assam, at present a State prisoner in Burdwan, has received an allowance of fifty rupees a month, which is to be continued to him as long as he continues to behave well.

ROHILCUND, Dec. 29.—The Commander-in-Chief got a "cropper" on the morning of the 28th, whilst reviewing the troops at Shahjehanpore. He came to grief as he was charging with the Irregular Cavalry; his horse came down with him. He was fortunately not much hurt, I am happy to say. He mounted Captain Moore's horse for the remainder of the parade. The Chief is as plucky a rider as he is a soldier, and rather prefers a fiery charger to a steady going one.

DARJEELING, Dec. 29.—The first instalment of troops has arrived. The detachment of H.M.'s 6th Foot, under command of Captain Unwin, came in yesterday, and are located at Senchul. Captain Baker's Sikhs and the 73rd N.I. are quartered in Darjeeling, and a further reinforcement of the latter regiment is daily expected, as also the artillery. Colonel Gawler has been here some days, and, report says, is making active preparations for an advance into Sikkim. No date has as yet transpired for the commencement of operations. The enemy still hold stockades on the opposite bank of the Runjeet river, and will probably annoy the working party of sappers sent down to bridge it.—Jan. 2.—It is expected that a force of about 1,500 men will leave here under the command of Lieut. Colonel Gawler in ten or twelve days hence. Officers as well as men will have to rough it, as they will get but few coolies to accompany the force. Another detachment of H.M.'s 6th regiment has arrived at Punkabarric. The invalids and a few other men left here yesterday for Calcutta, under command of Lieutenant Evans, of H.M.'s 16th regiment, Dr. Maclean, in medical charge. One of the 73rd regiment N.I. broke open the Commissariat chest a few nights since, and walked off with more than Rs. 2,000. A circular letter was sent round the station addressed to Mr. Grant, to ask him to push on our cart road from Punkabarric to the station, as the Municipal Commissioners are willing to give as much as Rs. 10,000 out of the funds towards the same.

DEBROOGHUR, Dec. 4.—The meeting called for the 1st inst., for the purpose of forming a Tea Planters' Association, was as well attended as could be expected, considering that this is the busiest period of the year, and those who are hard at work upon new clearings find it difficult to leave their factories and come in fifteen to twenty miles to attend a meeting. Those, however, who could not attend sent proxies, and a society was formed and a committee duly elected to carry on the good work. After the chief business of the meeting was over, there was a great deal of discussion on various subjects, and matters suggested ready cut and dried for the Association to commence work upon; amongst them the grand question of obtaining our lands in fee simple occupied a prominent place. In my humble opinion, it was the most important subject discussed, and offers a field worthy of the maiden efforts of the Association. The Rifle Club has been a success: about twenty names have already been enrolled (comprising nearly the whole of the residents of Debrooghur), and many more will join now they see it has become a fact. A committee, consisting of Captain Bivar, Lieutenant Ross, and Mr. Wagentreibar, has been elected by vote, and Enfields and accoutrements indented for from Government at cost price. Meantime, the number goes on increasing; the committee meets and discusses the propriety of selecting a neat uniform, and of inviting votes for the election of a president. Members are quietly expending powder and lead at their factories in order to come out strong at the "butts," and all are looking forward impatiently to the arrival of the Enfields and practice ammunition.—Hurkaru.

MR. THOMAS SKINNER, of Balasore, a son of the late Colonel Skinner, C.B., has, on the recommendation of Mr. Sapté, the commissioner, received from Government the proprietary right of confiscated Goojur villages, paying Rs. 5,000 per annum, as a reward for his gallant action in receiving several Christian families from Delhi, and protecting them during the whole of the recent outbreak.

BANCOORAH, Jan. 8.—We hear that a railway line is going to be constructed from Burdwan to Juggernath, and that the line falls in our district eight miles east of Bissenpore, between the villages of Joypore and Moynepore, and some gentlemen have come to the spot to mark the direction. Such a plan of the railway company is entirely to be approved of, for the excellence of its design, for the convenience of millions of people who daily go to Juggernath on pilgrimage, and the great advancement that commerce is expected to reach by such contrivance. The assessment work of this district has commenced. The istahars and purwannahs are seen to be issued daily, but how the management goes on is a question of future consideration.

CAPTAIN W. H. LOWTHER, writing on the Flora of Bourbon, urges the cultivation of the Vanilla plant with tea and coffee in India. A well managed plantation of one acre in the compound of a villa in St. Denis yielded last season a profit of Rs. 6,000.

NATIVE ENTERPRISE.—The Delhi Gazette understands that a company has been formed at Cawnpore, chiefly supported by native shareholders, to construct a railway between that station and Lucknow, and that the sum of fourteen lakhs has been subscribed on the spot.

TRIAL BY JURY.—A draft of proposed rules for trial by jury has been issued by Mr. George Campbell, judicial commissioner of Oude. All are liable to serve, excepting the chief commissioner and judicial officers. Special juries will be composed of the most respectable, and will be employed only in important cases, when parties can afford to pay for them. The juries are to consist of five, and will each receive four annas a day, while each special jurymen will be paid a rupee. When a disagreement takes place, the jury will be confined for one hour, after which the decision of the majority will be final.

CAPTAIN H. HOPKINSON.—Five hundred of the principal native merchants of Moulmein, in an address to Captain H. Hopkinson on his appointment as Commissioner of Assam, express their regret at his departure, and their sense of the fairness of his administration. In Assam Capt. Hopkinson will do well to emulate the career of Colonel Jenkins, his predecessor, and to assist the European capitalists there in the struggle for the fee-simple of the land, and to secure labourers.

LONGEVITY AMONG EUROPEANS in this country is rare. It is seldom we see them live to the age of a hundred years. The Delhi Gazette, however, records the death at Chunar of an old couple, one of whom, the husband, Sergeant Dale, a pensioner, died at the age of 104 years. His wife's age was 64. They died within a month of each other.

MAJOR RICHARDSON is to be presented with an address from several native gentlemen, expressive of the sense their countrymen entertain with regard to the services he has rendered in the enlightenment of the natives of Bengal. The form of the testimonial will be an elaborate address and purse.

PROSELYTISM IN THE PUNJAB.—Since the publication of the Governor-general's despatch declaring that missionaries are not prohibited from visiting the sepoys of the native army in their lines, and that the intercourse of officers with native converts is not forbidden, a chapel has been erected for the 24th Punjab infantry at Peshawur. Four of the sepoys were recently baptized.

MR. GORDON, who conducted the Mofussilite during the years 1857 and 1859, and the early part of the present year, has now succeeded to the editorship of the Lahore Chronicle, the late editor being compelled by ill-health to vacate the editorial chair.

CALCUTTA ENGINEERING COLLEGE.—Major Chesney, the retiring principal, has exposed the imperfect character of the means for instructing the students of the Calcutta Engineering College. He recommends that it be withdrawn from the control of the Education Department and put under that of Public Works, and that it should be assimilated in its constitution and curriculum to the Roorkee College.

MR. FORLONG has resigned his appointment as secretary of the Income-tax Commissioners, and accepted the appointment of superintendent of the property of the Durbungah Rajah, on the same salary as his late appointment—Rs. 1,200 a month. We (Hurkaru) can congratulate the Tirhoot planters, many of whose factories lie within the Rajah's estates, upon their having to deal with a gentleman of such large Mofussil experience as Mr. Forlong. We are given to understand that Mr. Forlong resigned the one appointment and accepted the other at the request of the Lieut.-governor, at the same time that he gratified his own predilection for a Mofussil life.

INDIGO IN THE PUNJAB.—From an interesting memorandum on the cultivation of indigo in the Mooltan district, which is published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 19th December, we learn that the total produce, at the rate of one maund for five beegahs, is in round numbers 10,000 maunds, which in money value is equal to Rs. 9,50,000, at Rs. 50 per maund. This is manufactured by the natives in their own rude style, and Mr. Morris, the author of the memorandum, has no doubt that "a large export trade might be established in a few years could European capital and enterprise only be introduced into the country." He states, however, that the tenures are peculiar, that the canal irrigation is variable, and that there are no proper arrangements regarding remittances. It appears from the following interesting sketch, that under native rulers the production of indigo flourished much more than it has done under our dominion:—"The production of indigo in this district appears to have arisen simultaneously with the introduction of irrigation by inundation canals. The Puttan rulers, as also their successor, Devan Savan Mull, invariably realised the revenue due from this product in kind, at rates varying from one-third to one-fifth of the gross produce. Money assessments on land growing indigo were entirely unknown, whilst the 'bhaolee' rates depended chiefly on whether the canals were, in the first instance, made by the Government or the Zemindars; in the former case one-third and one-fifth was taken, on the latter one-fifth or one-sixth. Although the Puttans may be said to have introduced the growth of indigo, still it is to Sawan Mull that the chief credit is due for having greatly extended the production of this most valuable crop, and made it, as it now is, the principal staple of this district. By him the old canals were enlarged and improved, in addition to two or three new ones constructed, whilst large branches or cuts were multiplied to such a degree that the lower portion of the Peninsular presented the appearance of a perfect net work of canals. Having by these means provided the irrigation necessary for the production of indigo, its growth was encouraged by lighter bhaolee rates being fixed for all new lands brought under this crop, so that in the course of a few years there was a very visible and large increase in the amount of indigo annually produced. This was particularly the case with the Sutlej canals, from one of which alone, the Sirdawah of Tehseel Ladran, the Dewan realised from nine hundred to one thousand maunds per annum of excellent indigo, where the Puttan did not get two hundred. Such was the state of things on the accession of British rule in 1849; but from that time up to the present date I fear there has been a gradual falling off in the production of this most valuable produce, which may, I think, be ascribed chiefly to two causes, first, to the want of direct Government interest in the production of this or any other particular crop; and secondly, to the absence of any satisfactory arrangements for the effectual clearance of the Inundation Canals. Under the Sikh Government it was the principal object of each ruler to realise as much revenue as possible, and consequently, with collections made in kind, the more valuable the crop, the larger the amount realised; hence one and all were personally interested in encouraging the growth of so valuable a produce as indigo, towards which they assisted, not only with their power and influence, but also with their capital, by lending pecuniary aid to those who without it would have been unable to make a beginning. So again with the Inundation Canals; each kardar was made responsible that the supply of water was plentiful and regular; indeed, so well aware was Sawan Mull that the successful production of indigo depended on an early, plentiful, and constant supply of water, that the effectual clearance and punctual opening of the canal was considered as much the duty of the kardar as the collection of the revenue."

CONSERVANCY OF FORESTS.—The question of abolishing the strict conservancy of the teak forests of Pegu and throwing them open to the commercial public has been fairly raised. A deputation of the merchants of Rangoon had an interview with the commissioners, Colonel Bruce and Mr. Temple, in which they urged the opening of the forests to private capitalists. Dr. Brandis, the superintendent of the forests, stoutly adheres to the policy of keeping them strictly closed, and the difficulty has been referred to the Governor-general. When Lord Dalhousie appointed Dr. Brandis, his object was to maintain a strict conservancy. Things have changed since then. We believe a moderately strict conservancy is quite compatible with the opening up of the forests. Ten years hence iron will be almost exclusively used where wood is now employed. Meanwhile let India have the teak.

THE "PRIJAHIT."—The Delhi Gazette states that a native paper, the Prijahit, published in Hindoe and Oordoo, has a circulation of 4,000 copies. It was originally issued for the purpose of furnishing the inhabitants of the Etawah district "with a paper inculcating sound moral principles, and correct notices of public affairs, in a spirit of loyalty towards the British Government, expressed in plain and simple language, and in idiom and style easily understood." The North-west Government subscribes for 600 copies. The journal is almost the cheapest in the world; it is published twenty-four times a year, and costs on country paper twelve annas only, on French paper one rupee two annas per annum. When more than fifty copies are taken the packet is sent banghy paid. It is only by thus competing with the ludicrously cheap literature, hawked in every village, and filled with the most disgusting details of mythological obscenity, that the masses will be reached.

STAMPS.—The Government have fixed the 1st of May, 1861, as the date on and after which the duty chargeable on the transfer of the shares of any banking corporation or joint-stock company which can be effected by simple endorsement shall be denoted by stamps. All drafts, except those at sight, must be stamped on and after 1st January.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, Jan. 8).—The produce market has remained in the same discouraging state as last represented; business has been done on a very moderate scale, and more so since the unfavourable communication received from home and America per steamer Nubia, and via Bombay. Linseed alone keeps firm at former prices; the demand is more speculative than bona fide. Saltpetre is much neglected, with large stocks in the hands of dealers, finer qualities are scarce; the bulk of the stocks consists of 8 to 10 per cent. shipping quality, and of lower refining grades. Sugar is declining rapidly, the demand for Bombay and the Gulph having subsided. Jute is abundant, and has fallen 2 to 3 annas the maund. Indigo, especially of fine qualities, continues to engage attention of shippers at full former prices.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, Jan. 8).—The accounts from the Upper Provinces are still discouraging, and our market continues as depressed as last reported. The demand for Grey Shirtings is confined to local requirement. Sales of 5 to 7 lb. cloths of 39 and 40 inches wide have been made at former rates; but heavier descriptions continue neglected; 45, 50, and 54 inches are still dull of sale. Grey Madapolams are in very limited request at about former prices. Grey Jaconets are also in very limited request. White of low qualities are in little local demand, and have slightly improved in value; middling and fine are rather neglected. Grey Mulls continue quite neglected. White are a little in request by the Affghans. Chintzes are out of season. Mule Twist continues quite depressed, and very little business has been done; prices of all counts have again slightly fallen. Metals.—No business has been reported in Copper; a little has been done in Iron, Spelter, and Tin Plates. There is no demand for the Upper Provinces, and importers do not wish to force sales.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE SOUCARS OF MADRAS have made the following modest and patriotic proposals to the Income-tax Commissioners. They state their inability to make the necessary returns, owing to the complicated nature of their accounts. They therefore request the Commissioners to fix the amount at which they shall be assessed, but require at the same time an assurance that the tax shall not be in operation for a longer period than five years, and also make their payment of the tax conditional on the impost being also paid by their brethren in Calcutta, Bombay, and the North-west Provinces. Yet, the Madras Times assures us, there is no class more successful than the Marwaree Soucars and money-lenders, who start life with very little capital, and by cunning, oppression and frugality, become great bankers in a short time.

HINDOO ESSAYS.—When Lieut.-gen. Cullen was asked to resign his appointment as Resident at the Court of Travancore his native admirers raised a sum of Rs. 2,500, the interest of which is to be devoted to prizes for essays. Remembering that Travancore is the only instance of a pure Hindoo State in India, the subjects assigned for 1862 are remarkable:—"Compare the effects upon India of Mahomedan and of British conquest." "Give an imaginary conversation between two lawyers, one condemning and the other defending the use of corporal punishment." The Dewan who assigned the latter subject must be anxious to enlighten the Legislative Council on the subject of the Flogging Bill.

IMPROVED TRANSIT.—The Madras Government have decided on arrangements for the convenience of travellers by dak, and at the same time abolishing impressment. Bearers and bullocks will be posted at proper distances on the most frequented roads. Travellers will be provided with way bills, showing the stages, and the amount they will have to pay at the end of each. When payment is not made after each stage, the aid of Government is stopped. Circular notes will be issued, payable on demand at the treasuries on the route, to avoid the necessity of carrying a quantity of coin.

THE RANEES OF TANJORE.—The Madras Times states that Sukkeram Saheb, to whom one of the Ranees of Tanjore was recently married, has had a son. This is the man of whom Mr. John Bruce Norton observed that the Madras Government selected him as a husband for the Tanjore princess, in order that the family should become extinct.

A MAHOMEDAN CONVERT.—A Mahomedan of a noble family received the rite of baptism at Secunderabad on the 9th December from the hands of the Rev. N. Parenjody. He was for many years a resident in the city of Hyderabad, and was in the habit of reading the Koran in the grand central mosque of the capital of the Nizam. His age is 28.

PROGRESS OF CHRISTIANITY.—We notice that in this the 55th year of the labours of the London Missionary Society, among the Tamul, Telugu, and Canaruse-speaking peoples of South India there are 11,072 youths, who daily receive a Christian education. Of these 2,120 are girls, and of these 500 are maintained as boarders. Mr. Morehead, the Acting-governor of Madras, presided at the last examination of the institution in Madras.

SIR MARK CUBBON has resigned the Commissionership of Mysore, on account of his ill health; being subject, the local journals say, to frequent attacks of gout. He leaves for England by the second steamer of February.

THE RICE CROPS for twenty or thirty miles round Madras have failed this year, to which circumstance is to be attributed the dearth of provisions in that presidency.

THE INAM COMMISSIONER.—The report of the Madras Inam Commissioner for the month of last November shows the following results:—"The number of cases decided by the deputy collectors during the month was 9,663, which raises the total number of cases decided from the commencement of the undertaking to the end of November to 94,358. Besides these, 4,032 cases of village service Inams were recorded during the month, making a total to the end of November of 20,980. The total number of titles confirmed to the end of November was 74,928; of which 8,649 were in respect of religious and charitable grants of a permanent character; 40,853 were personal grants enfranchised at the option of the Inamdars; 23,966 were personal grants enfranchised compulsorily, and 1,460 were personal grants not enfranchised and confirmed on present tenures. Total number of title deeds issued up to the end of last month was 41,684. The total amount of quit-rent now payable to Government in addition to former jodi is Rs. 1,20,245. The amount paid in redemption of quit-rent is Rs. 7,580-8-0. The combined quit-rent annually payable to Government for the future upon personal Inams confirmed to the holders amounts to Rs. 2,12,437-4-0, which is about one-fourth of their full assessment, viz., Rs. 8,10,774."

PETITIONS.—The people of Madras have addressed a petition to the Legislative Council of the same character as that presented by the taxpayers of Calcutta. They have also forwarded a petition to Parliament against the policy of centralization in India, and asking for a Government for each Presidency, like that of Ceylon.

MALABAR COAST, Dec. 13.—Nothing important on the coast in the shape of news; the only stir is about the Income-tax, which the outsiders have not as yet commenced paying. As mentioned in my last, the assessors have called on the sowcars and other merchants to fill up their returns; none have as yet complied with the order; it is distasteful to them to allow the assessors to scrutinise their accounts. It is of no use—they must very soon comply with orders. Medical invaliding committees are now frequent, discharging and pensioning the sepoy of the native regiments on this coast to reduce the strength to 600 rank and file. One jemadar and one fifer of one of the native corps, the former having served upwards of thirty years, and the latter forty, preferred their discharge instead of pension, finding that they would receive pretty round sums in the shape of gratuity—one month's pay for every four years' service—and travelling allowance offered to discharged men; the former received above 700 rupees, and the latter about 500 rupees. With this they may now settle themselves quite snug in their country, purchase land and secure subsistence for their families on their demise. An order has just been received by telegram, prohibiting men, after twenty years' service, the option of taking their discharge, but too late, as the jemadar and fifer have received their share, and are now on their way to their homes. The European general court martial on Lieutenant Alexander Chrystie, of the 18th Regiment N.I., assembled on Tuesday, the 4th, and the proceedings closed the next day. The charges on which this officer was tried were for having been drunk and absent from duty, and for leaving his quarters whilst under arrest. A district court martial is to assemble at Calicut next week for the trial of Assistant-Apothecary D. Phillips, attached to the detachment of H.M.'s 60th Regiment at Calicut. The charge is for having been incapacitated for the performance of his duties from the 25th to the 30th of last month, by the use of opium and ardent spirits and having become delirious. H.M.'s steamer Dalhousie, from Madras to Bombay, is expected at Cannanore about the 20th of this month, by which vessel Brigadier J. Fitzgerald, commanding the provinces, proceeds to Mangalore, to inspect and review the two native regiments stationed there. —Englishman.

MR. NORMAN POGSON has been appointed Astro-nomer of Madras.

THE INCOME-TAX COMMISSION of Madras have sent in their report for the first quarter. The Commission was organised on 1st October, and had issued 12,526 notices up to the 1st December, the total number to be issued being about 30,000. One-half of the persons served had made their returns. There were sixteen surcharges, against which there was only one appeal. The assessment made up to the 13th November was Rs. 102,521. The assessment made by the special commissioner was Rs. 45,047, of which three-fourths were assessed by private numbers. There was not one instance of complaint.

SLATE IN INDIA.—Mr. Oldham, superintendent of the Geological Survey of India, has written a long memorandum on the use of slates in India generally, and on the slabs of the Kurnool district particularly. After explaining, at length, the nature of true slate, namely, that it is "capable of almost infinite division, thin plates or slabs splitting with tolerably even surfaces of considerable size," he goes on to show that the Kurnool slabs and the same material found in other parts of India are incapable of this infinite division, &c. And he is of opinion that "the Kurnool slabs referred to by Lieutenant Beckley and the Madras Government are entirely unfitted for sloping roofs; that they cannot be procured in slabs dividing naturally of such size and thickness as would adapt them for such roofs; that sawing them would, even if practicable, be too expensive; that the slabs thus procured would be either too thin to give the requisite strength, or, if of sufficient strength, would be too heavy and thick for economical or effective use." But for flat roofs or floors he thinks they may be used with advantage. Mr. Oldham adds:—"I would further urge that such stone slab floors, where the proper material can be procured with a moderate amount of carriage, and at a fairly reasonable rate, will prove much more durable, economical, more cleanly, and in every respect better floors than either wood or 'pucka' for barracks, hospitals, court houses, or any place where there is constant intercourse, and also for the verandahs of such buildings. I have just alluded to the cleanliness of such floors; and I consider this to be by no means a trifling advantage. They can be mopped out with clean water or washed with soap and water in the same way as ordinary wooden floors, and can thus be kept sweet, clean, and free from vermin with the smallest amount of labour. There are several localities in Bengal and the North-Western Provinces where such slabs could be obtained as would be suited for flooring. The hills to the south of Monghyr, the Sikkim Hills (poor), the Soane Valley, the Kumaon Hills, &c., the Gwalior Hills. But in few cases will such materials admit of any great length of carriage; and they can therefore only be used economically when procured within a reasonable distance of the works where they are required."

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE BASSEIN RIOT.—According to the Bombay Gazette the case against the rioters who assaulted Mr. Hunter, the magistrate of Bassein, when he was explaining to them the clauses of the Income-tax Act, has broken down. Mr. Hunter fairly owned, in court, that out of the twenty-five prisoners he could only identify one as having been present when the riot occurred, while he was unable to state that even one of them had taken any part in the assault on himself. On cross-examination, Mr. Hunter admitted that he had, by mistake, assaulted and knocked down with a washing-stand one of his kelassies who came to help him, and that he was "overawed" and "confused" on the occasion. The sepoy corroborated this by saying that the sahib was "cold and frightened," and that not one of the prisoners was guilty, adding that one of them had come forward, not to assault, but to give help to the sahib and keep the people quiet. This is worse than the Moulmein affair.

BUSHIRE.—A letter from Captain Jones, British Resident at Bushire, relating to the tombs of the Persian expeditionary force, appears in the Bombay papers. The arrangements for the preservation of the tombs are now completed. The outer walls of the cemetery have been raised fourteen feet. The parapet is covered with broken glass, and the door is built up. The whole of the tombs within the enclosure have been freshly repaired, and the place altogether displays a neatness in accordance with its sacred character. Prince Murad Mirza, Sultan of Faristan, has issued orders for the preservation of the cemetery for the future.

PALI INSCRIPTIONS.—The Pundit of the Temple Cave Commission of the Bombay Asiatic Society, which is subsidised by Government, has, assisted by Dr. Wilson, finished the translation of eighty-eight of the Pali inscriptions on the Caves of Salsette, Karba, Nasik, and Ajunta. His work will be closed at the end of another year, by which time the remaining inscriptions, amounting to one hundred and forty, will be deciphered. The Pundit (Vishna Shastree) will afterwards revise the Gimar Tablets, at the request of the late Horace Hayman Wilson.

A NEW PAPER is to be started at Kurrachee, which will rejoice under the name and style of The Last of the Mohicans. It is to advocate free-trade principles and total abstinence.

THE BUIST FUND.—The receipt of Rs. 1,500 on account of the Buist Fund is acknowledged by the Bombay Gazette. Among the subscribers we observe the name of Sir George Clerk for Rs. 200.

MARRIAGE OF A WIDOW.—The Bombay papers mention a marriage that has taken place between a Brahmin widow, aged 20, and a man aged 22 years. They both belong to the caste of Gujrati Brahmins, among whom the remarriage of widows is a thing unheard of. The ceremony was performed by two priests by oblations and other rites, which lasted three hours. The spectators were 150 in number, consisting chiefly of Young Bombay.

WATER SUPPLY FOR KURRACHEE.—The Engineer's Journal notices Mr. Brunton's report on the supply of water for Kurrachee. The scheme proposed will cost £160,000, entailing an annual expenditure of £18,000 for fourteen years, equal to about 5½d. per 1,000 gallons of water. The supply of water required, allowing 20 gallons per head to 100,000 inhabitants, and including loss by evaporation and infiltration, is 1,234,087,500 gallons.

SCHISM IN THE CATHOLIC CHURCH.—Bishop Bonnaud, appointed by the Pope Visitor Apostolic of the Indian Missions, to heal the breach between the Goa and the ordinary priests, after a year's inspection of the Madras and Bombay dioceses, has issued a letter to the refractory Goa priests, who refuse to recognise the authority of Dr. Canoz, Bishop of Tamasia (in Bombay). He cites Bulls and Briefs without number, in which Pius IX. removed the Archbishop of Goa, and suspended a divinis the Bishop of Macao for contumacy, cutting off the latter from the Catholic unity. If the Goa priests all over India and China will not obey the English bishops, they have the Pope himself to blame. His concordat with Portugal seems, by its most indefinite language, to give a colour to the opposition to the bishops. The truth is the Portuguese is older than the English Popish Church in India, and the mass of poor natives and semi-natives, who call themselves Portuguese, are attached to it.

THE "ULWAL JUTERA."—The Secunderabad correspondent of the Poona Observer gives a description of the "Ulwal Jutera," as celebrated at Bolaram. There is a large temple in this place, said to be erected by the late prime minister, Rajah Chundoolal, and which is supported by a jagheer. To this temple thousands of Hindoos of both sexes, from all parts of the country, annually repair. They enter a large well, where the Brahmins receive a fee from each for the privilege of bathing in its sacred waters, which are considered able to purify one of his sins. The amount thus realised during this festival is estimated at one thousand rupees. After this the people enter the temple in their wet clothes, and prostrate themselves before their god. The second ceremony is, they get under a car from thirty to thirty-five feet in height, and painted of a dirty red colour, believing that by passing and repassing beneath it while it is being dragged along they are sure of going to heaven. On the last celebration of the festival in question the car met with an accident. As the multitude were pulling it, the top part of it, with its goddess, gave way, killing one woman, and wounding several.

THE BHOKE AND THULL GHAUT INCLINES.—In a lecture to the Bombay Mechanics' Institute, Mr. Berkeley, the well-known engineer, described the Bhoke and Thull Ghaut inclines on the two branches of the Peninsula Railway. In the former the most expensive portions of the undertaking are the tunnels. There are twenty-five of them, extending to 3,003 yards. The longest extends to 437 yards; 2,619 yards of heading are completed, and about 1,300 yards of bottom. In the long tunnel of 437 yards, 300 yards of heading are completed, and very considerable progress has been made. Already two miles of the incline have been worked by powerful tank engines with success. The only tunnel on the East Indian Railway is that through quartz at Monghyr, extending for 900 yards, and just completed.

CHINA.

HONG KONG, Dec. 31.—The London Mail of the 10th November arrived here on the 26th inst.

In our last overland issue we mentioned that the greater portion of the expeditionary force had reached Hong Kong, and that the rebels in the neighbourhood of Shanghai had been keeping quiet. The fortnight just concluded presents almost nothing to record. The troops at Tien-tsin are frozen up for the winter; and we are glad to be able to say that the latest news from that quarter have refuted the unwarrantable rumours, which we alluded to in our last issue, of Mr. Adkins having been assassinated at Peking.

From consular notifications it appears that the Treaty of Tien-tsin has already come into operation, though neither the Treaty nor the Convention are believed by the Chinese in the south to be authentic documents, and they have not been published in the usual manner by the Governor-general of Kwang-tung.

His Excellency the Earl of Elgin was still at Shanghai when the latest advices left. We understand that an expedition will be sent up the Yang-tze early in spring, with the view of opening up that river.

General Grant and staff and all who were not to pass the winter there, left Tien-tsin in the beginning of November, and embarked at Taku. The garrison is now settling down into comfortable quarters. The 31st were located inside the south gate, the 60th inside the east, and the artillery and military train in different yamuns all along the street, which runs from the east to the west gates. The 67th were stationed on the south bank of the grand canal, just outside the N.E. part of the city wall; and Fane's horse were in the S.E. suburb. The French and British embassies were in two of the best places in Tien-tsin, on the west side of the river, and but a short distance from the city wall. The French troops had taken up their quarters on the east side of the Peiho and the north of the grand canal.

Besides the departure of the generals, the only circumstance worthy of note was the arrival and delivery over of two instalments of the indemnity money. The first was 200,000 taels, and the second 300,000 taels; and similar amounts were paid over to the French.

The natives were very civil, and ready to adapt themselves to foreigners in a wonderful degree. They inquire anxiously regarding the prospect of trade in spring; and merchants will find them eager to do business when they come up next year. Opium, rice, iron, tin, and long-cloths, will no doubt find a good market, as all these commodities, excepting iron, are already extensively imported at a cost much greater than if brought by foreign ships right up the Peiho, or to the mouth of it. Native iron is used to a considerable extent, but is much dearer than imported iron would be. It is not yet quite clear what the exports will be beyond peas and medicines. A man who got a hint on the subject last August, says that he is preparing a cargo of ice for the Hongkong market.

The shop-keeper class are most extortionate in their prices, but will probably after a little more experience content themselves with more moderate profits. In spite of their extreme civility, the Tien-tsin people fleece to an alarming extent.

Some information has just been received which tends to the belief that the late collision in Japan between the native and foreign authorities is continuing to look serious. A despatch from Yokohama was brought to the Admiral while lying at the mouth of the Peiho, in consequence of which he departed immediately to Japan.—Overland China Mail.

NOTIFICATION.

British Consulate, Canton, 18th Dec., 1860.

The undersigned, in accordance with instructions he has received from His Excellency the Earl of Elgin and Kincardine, K.T., G.C.B., her Majesty's Special Ambassador in China, &c., &c., to concert measures with the Chinese authorities for carrying into execution the provisions of the convention between Great Britain and China, concluded at Peking in October last, and of the Treaty of Tien-tsin of the year 1858, in so far as they are applicable to her Majesty's subjects within his jurisdiction, has to notify that arrangements to that effect have been completed, and that the tariff and rules forming part of the said Treaty will come into operation at the Foreign Custom-house, to-morrow, the 19th inst.

(Signed)

D. B. ROBERTSON,

H.B.M.'s Consul for Canton.

To the British Community, Canton.

CEYLON.

COLOMBO, Jan. 16.—Our coffee drying weather is in full force, and the shipping season has regularly commenced. During the fortnight seven ships have sailed with coffee; viz:—Five for London, taking 19,895 cwt. of plantation and 2,831 native—in the aggregate 22,726. One has sailed for Havre with 670 cwt. plantation and 4,251 native; together 4,921. One for Mauritius with 1,467 cwt. plantation. The addition thus made to the season's exports is 22,032 cwt. plantation; 7,082 native; in all 29,114 cwt. Our total exports since 1st October, 1860, are 98,000 cwt. of plantation kind, against 102,000 to the corresponding period of the previous season. Of native, however, we have sent away only 35,000 cwt., against 50,000, so that our total exports are down to the limit of 1858, viz., 133,000 cwt. of both kinds. The shipments of cocoanut oil to date are very greatly in advance of previous seasons,—no less than double the average of the previous three seasons, in fact, 58,000 cwt., against an average of 28,000. Plumbago is also immensely in advance, 18,000 cwt., against less than 5,000. Coir and cinnamon are about the average.

Since our last the local legislature has passed the Supply Bill for 1861, and closed its sittings. The Governor's address, reviewing the session, will be found below. His Excellency is still at Colombo, but will, we imagine, speedily join in the migration to the hills, which annually takes place about this period. By the time the hot season is over we may expect his Excellency again in Colombo, probably to meet the council and come to a final decision on the railway question. The Select Committee of Council appointed to consider that important subject are "sitting in permanence." It is generally understood that Mr. Molesworth has submitted to them a very moderate estimate for a route which differs in thirty-seven miles of the upper portion from that reported on by Mr. Doyne. Proceeding by the north side of the Maha Oya and along the base of Allagalle, it emerges near the monument at Kaduganava; the result being a saving of about half a million of money. In fact we hear that, as the result of the labours of the engineers, a route has been chosen over which a railway can be carried for a total expenditure not greatly exceeding 1,300,000*l.*, including the money already spent. We believe that besides being easier in gradients it will be several miles shorter than the route on which Mr. Doyne reported. Such a report as this gives quite a new aspect to the case, and, going home at the same time with our Railway Bills will probably complicate the question of a final settlement. The prospect of our having a railway for less than one and a-half millions is now certainly brighter. Mr. Molesworth, we are assured, has not altered Mr. Doyne's prices—the saving is effected merely by applying them to a better and shorter route, and there are 40,000*l.* for contingencies. It is rumoured that Major Skinner and Captain Evatt, the scientific members of the Select Committee, are to be requested to inspect the line and report upon it. When the Railway Question next comes on for consideration it is probable the Council will have the benefit of the presence of a Singhalese member, physically as well as intellectually able to take a part in its discussion. Mr. J. C. Dias has resigned his seat, and the Governor has the choice of three well qualified Singhalese gentlemen for the vacancy. They are all lawyers, and one is a Kandian Chief.

The special religious services held last week in Colombo were well attended, and their interest well sustained.

The approaching session of the Young Men's Christian Association is to be opened by a lecture from Sir Edward Creasy on the Study of History. Cholera continues to haunt Kandy. Amongst its victims we regret to have to record the name of Mr. A. Leburn, a coffee planter.—We have also to notice the death on board the Teviot of Mr. James Carter, who was returning to Ceylon.

Mr. Simon Kier retires from the great Kandy Agency Firm, of which he was the founder. Mr. Dundas, the next senior partner of the firm, goes home by this steamer. He will have as companions a considerable number of passengers from Ceylon, including Mr. D. Wilson, of the firm of Wilson, Ritchie, and Co., a gentleman who, true to the tendencies of his family, has done much to further commerce and enterprise; Mr. Dyke, the well-known Government Agent of the Northern Province; Dr. Atkinson, the retiring deputy-inspector general of hospitals, &c.

General O'Brien seems determined to keep up the drill and efficiency of the troops under his command, if we may judge from the incessant parades and military evolutions with which Colombo has been enlivened for some time back.—Ceylon Overland Observer.

THE GOVERNOR'S ADDRESS.

GENTLEMEN OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL, In releasing you from the labour of a long and protracted Session, I have to express to you, before we separate, my cordial thanks for the care and assiduity with which you have examined and discussed the various matters submitted to you, and for the excellent spirit which has pervaded all your deliberations. The Bill which has just been read a third time gives ample proof of your desire both to develop the productive resources, and to control judiciously the miscellaneous expenditure of the colony, and if circumstances have prevented you from passing the usual number of ordinances during the Session, its results, if counted not by tale but by weight, will, I trust, be found of permanent benefit to all classes of the community.

The final enactments necessary to give effect to the Kandyan Marriage Ordinance, now happily brought into operation, will, I hope, inaugurate an epoch of social and moral improvement throughout the large and important districts to which its provisions are applied.

And, whatever be the resolution which you may hereafter come to on the great question of railway communication in Ceylon, there can be no doubt that the ordinance which you have passed for dissolving, on equitable terms, and by mutual consent, the existing contract with the railway company in England, was one urgently needed for any settlement of that question.

Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, I have to thank you, in her Majesty's name, for the liberal supplies which you have voted for the service of her Government during the ensuing year. I have given the best proof in my power of my anxious desire to apply the means of the colony to the supply of its most pressing wants, by proposing to you the appropriation of the whole available balance of revenue for useful public works. That balance, large as it is, has not yet sufficed to provide for all the expenditure of this kind which I would have willingly proposed, and for which you would, I doubt not, as willingly have supplied the means. But, great as has been the increase of our revenue, the large additions to our fixed establishments in the last few years, and the corresponding increase in almost every branch of Departmental and Miscellaneous expenditure, leave us scarcely more available funds for the prosecution of public works than we were able to devote to them before.

Convinced as I am of the paramount necessity of a vigorous and continued development of the productive resources of this island by opening up new channels of communication, it shall be my constant effort, by carrying out such reductions of expenditure as may be effected without injury to the public service, or to the just claims of individuals, to husband the resources of the colony for its present and future wants.

31st December, 1860. C. J. MACCARTHY.

THE STRAITS.

SINGAPORE, Jan. 7.—The revenue of Singapore for 1859-60 amounted to Rs. 774,050, being less than in the preceding year by Rs. 79,014. The expenditure, amounting to Rs. 971,052, was distributed under the following heads:—

Local Residency charges ...	Rs. 815,511
Straits Settlements ditto ...	55,878
Miscellaneous (on account of H.M.'s Government, &c.) ...	89,215
Military charges (including troops serving at Labuan) ...	468,956
Convict Department ...	78,794
Straits Lights ...	12,694

Rs. 971,052

There is thus an apparent deficiency in the revenue, as compared with the expenditure, of Rs. 196,901, but at least a half of the above charges ought not to be permanently debited to Singapore.

The official returns of the trade of Singapore for the year ending 30th April, 1860, make the amount of imports Rs. 47,199,139, being less than that of the previous year 1858-59 by Rs. 9,589,703. The exports in 1859-60 are stated at Rs. 50,513,885, showing an increase over those of the previous year to the amount of Rs. 5,227,314. No statements have yet been published giving details of the trade or of the shipping which arrived at and departed from Singapore during 1859-60.

From the monthly statement of the trade of Singapore, published in the Overland Free Press, we find that the value of the imports up to the end of 1860 is estimated at 25,130,681 dols., being an increase over those of 1859 to the extent of 1,194,725 dols. The value of the exports in 1860 is put down at 19,780,612 dols., being less than in 1859 by 2,874,851 dols.

The imports were brought as follows:—

By 1,067 square-rigged vessels ...	21,278,772 dols.
" 2,325 native-rigged " ...	3,856,909 "
3,392	25,130,681

The exports were taken as follows:—

By 1,092 square-rigged vessels ...	16,345,642 dols.
" 2,647 native " ...	3,434,970 "
3,739	19,780,612

The past year was, on the whole, an unfavourable one for the trade of Singapore. There was a considerable falling off in the exports of several articles of produce, such as tin, gambier, sago, coffee, sapanwood, &c., while there was very little speculation in rice as compared with the two preceding years. The state of affairs in China operated very disastrously to the Chinese merchants engaged in extensive transactions between Singapore and that country; and the trade with Siam also seems to have been overdone in past years; and there was, consequently, a reaction in 1859 and 1860, many of those who had entered into it largely making heavy losses. During the latter part of 1860 a number of failures occurred amongst the Chinese traders, and there is reason to fear that more may follow. In most cases private arrangements were made, and a composition accepted with security; but there seems reason to suspect that in some cases insolvency has been declared while the parties were quite able to pay in full, the temptation to save a considerable percentage on their liabilities apparently proving irresistible, and not to be weighed against the effect which such a course is calculated to have upon their future standing as traders. But the fact appears to be that, under the present system of doing business in Singapore, credit is to be obtained so readily that even repeated insolvency does not operate against a trader, except temporarily.

A census taken by the police during 1860 showed the population of Singapore to consist as follows:—

Europeans and Eurasians ...	2,445
Malays ...	10,888
Klings... ..	11,735
Bengalees ...	1,236
Chinese ...	50,043
Burmese and Siamese ...	14
Bugis ...	906
Javanese and Boyans ...	4,408
Arabs ...	117

CENTRAL ASIA.

Dec. 5.—This day the Ameer's camp left Khoord Cabool for Taizee. Dost Mohamed Ghilzee, the chief of that place, with one hundred sepoy, came out to receive the Ameer, and presented a number of sheep, rice, ghee, &c., as customary. He also sent one sheep, two seers of rice and ghee, to the tents of all the sirdars in the camp. The Ameer was very much pleased with Dost Mohamed Khan, and granted him a cloak and a Khaleel Khanee shawl as a khillut.—Dec. 6.—This day the camp arrived at Kuttah Suny. There were some merchants accompanying the Ameer's camp who were to stop just close to the camp at night. Some thief entered and bolted away with a valuable horse belonging to a merchant. The Ameer being informed of this, ordered the chief in charge of that place immediately to procure the horse.—Dec. 7.—To-day's march was to Jugdhulluk, where the Ameer ordered the Thanadar either to procure the horse which had been stolen at Kuttah Sung, or fine the people of Jugdhulluk and Kuttah Sung five hundred rupees, and pay the owner of the horse.—Dec. 8.—The Ameer's camp left Jugdhulluk and arrived at Sookh Aub. The mullicks and chiefs of this place (who are Ahmed Zaees) presented twenty five sheep, fifty fowls, rice, and ghee, according to the fashion of the country. The Ameer honoured the Mullicks with a chintz cloak and a loongee.—Dec. 9.—This day the Ameer's camp arrived at Gundoomuk. The Mullicks of Gundoomuk Mama Khye people presented one hundred and fifty sheep, ten maunds of rice, and three maunds of ghee. The Ameer was pleased to confer upon each Mullick one choga and one loongee.—Dec. 10.—From Gundoomak the camp marched to Numlee: at this place there is a famous garden. The Ameer remained here for two days, and granted the Baghban Bashee (a head gardener) a cloak and a loongee. Auleejah Shah Murdan Khan, the ruler of Jullalabad, with twenty sowars, came to receive the Ameer Sahib. A little after Shah Murdan Khan had joined the camp, the Chief and Mookhtear of Jullalabad, with fifty sheep, two maunds of rice, one maund of ghee, and some sugar canes, waited on the Ameer and presented the Nuzur. Naizir Khan Jan was ordered to take charge of the things.—Dec. 12.—The camp arrived at Bala Baugh, a place in charge of Sirdar Mohamed Oosman Khan. Here the Ameer and all the sirdars and khans of the camp were invited to a feast by Sirdar Mohamed-oos-man Khan, who took them all to see his fort.—Dec. 13.—This day the camp broke ground at Bala Baugh, and arrived at Jullalabad. All the troops were ordered to go and encamp at Jullalabad, while the Ameer and Sirdars Mahomed-oos-man Khan, Peer Mahomed Khan, Synd Mahomed Khan, and Ghoolam Mahomed Khan went to pay their respects to Shakee Khan, a hermit, who resides outside of Jullalabad. It is customary that whenever the Ameer comes to Jellalabad, he first of all goes to see this respected Faqeer. In short, the Ameer has great regard for Shakee Khan. The Ameer will be in Jullalabad about three o'clock to-day.—Dec. 14.—A durbar was held this day in the garden of Jellalabad. All the khans and chiefs attended to pay their respects to the Ameer. Auleejah Shah Murd Khan was directed to point out a piece of ground to Meer Akhore Qasim Khan, for the royal stables. It is ascertained from letters of the Bookhara merchants received this day by the Ameer, that the King of Kokan was very happy when he heard the news of the demise of the King of Bookhara. He ordered his Vakeel to go to Bookhara to read the usual Fataha (prayer), but privately he commenced making warlike preparations. As soon as the Vakeel returned to Kokan he, with a number of his troops, marched on the city of Ouriptah and besieged it. The young King of Bookhara was quite astonished when he heard of all this, and ordered twelve thousand of his troops to proceed to Summurkund without any delay. The Hakims of Kurshee, Meeana Gool, Koorah Kole, and other places, were desired by the King of Bookhara to march at once with all their troops to Summurkund. The King himself is said to have gone to Summurkund to command the troops in person. A great fight was expected between the two troops at Ouriptah.—Dec. 15.—Auleejah Sadt Mhan Mohmund of Lalpoorah waited on the Ameer and presented fifty sheep, six maunds of rice, two maunds ghee, and a horse, as a nuzur. The Ameer was very much pleased with the Mohmund Chief, whom he received with the due honours in the durbar, and ordered a man to be sent to the son of Uzeez Khan, Ghilzee to bring him to the durbar to settle about the Kashmund fort.—Dec. 16.—A letter was this day received from Sirdar Wully Mohamed Khan, the Governor of Cabool, with an enclosure from Sirdar Mohamed Ufzul Khan from Toorkistan. Sirdar Mohamed Ufzul Khan has written to the Ameer that on his arrival at Khanabad and Mamana, he had received letters from the Kubchak people, from the Khans of Shahur Subz, from the Kurshee chiefs, and from some of the chiefs in the Bookhara army, to the effect that if he, Sirdar Ufzul Khan, would once cross the Hamoon, they would all join with him and make him the master of Bookhara at once. "As there are not troops enough," (continues Sirdar Ufzul Khan) "to leave some in Toorkistan and take some to Bookhara, I am quite at a loss what to do." He has been repeatedly applying to the Ameer (says Ufzul Khan in his letter) to send some more troops under his two brothers to Toorkistan, but in vain. The Ambassador of the King of Bookhara had left for Cabool, to settle this important question, and if the Ameer thinks it advisable he should not lose time in pushing on some troops to Toorkistan. After the perusal of Ufzul Khan's letter, the Ameer closed the durbar, and said nothing about the subject.—Dec. 17.—The Ameer, accompanied by Sirdar Ghoolam Mohamed Khan Mookhtear, Ubdoolrazak Khan Moostoufee, went to see the artillery now at Jullalabad. The Moostoufee having been asked by the Ameer, how many rounds of balls and bags of powder were supplied to each gun, replied that for the present he had given them fourteen hundred each. On this Ghoolam Mahomed Khan remarked, that it was quite useless to give such a quantity, when there was no fighting or anything of the kind. The Ameer looked at Ghoolam Mohamed, and said that he had made all this preparation for the fort of Kusmund.—Dec. 18.—Khyburree Mulluks and Sungoo Khyll Mulluks were this day introduced by Shah Murd Khan. The Ameer received them very kindly. The Ameer, Sirdars Mohamed Oosman Khan, and Ghoolam Mahomed Khan went to see the new stables built close to the garden of Sirdar Ghoolam Heider Khan. The Ameer was very glad to see the new stables so soon built for his valuable horses. Meer Akhore Qasim Khan was ordered to remove the horses to the new stables at once.—Dec. 19.—The Ameer having consulted with Sirdars Mahomed Oosman Khan, and Ghoolam Mahomed Khan, desired Shah Murd Khan to send some confidential person to Cashmere, to bring about fifteen thousand rupees worth of Khaleel Khanee shawls, &c., for the khilluts. Shah Murd Khan, accordingly, despatched his servant with a letter to Cashmere. It is ascertained that these khilluts are intended for the young King of Bookhara and his ambassadors. The ambassador of the King of Bookhara (it is now reported) had arrived when the Ameer's camp was at Bookhak, but to keep the thing secret the Ameer had ordered him to go to Cabool, and there to wait until Sirdar Shere Allee Khan was ready to leave for Jellalabad. The Ameer's object in so doing, is to see what more he hears from Sirdar Ufzul Khan on the subject, and how the matter turns out."—Delhi Gazette.

LIEUT. COL. H. W. NORMAN'S APPOINTMENT.

Military Dep., Fort William, Dec. 22.—No. 1,228.—The following paragraphs of a military letter from the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India, No. 429 of Nov. 17, 1860, are published for general information:—

H.R.H. the Gen. C. in C. having applied for the aid of an efficient and experienced officer of H.M.'s Indian army to assist in the performance of the additional duties which will devolve upon him in consequence of the amalgamation of the royal and Indian armies, I have to acquaint you that I have recommended to H.R.H. the C. in C. Lieut. col. H. W. Norman, c.b., Bengal army, who, by his ability and experience in charge of the adj. gen.'s dep. with the C. in C. in the field, appeared to me to be eminently qualified for the appointment.

The designation of the office will for the present be "Assistant Military Secretary" to the Gen. C. in C., and H.R.H. has app. Lieut. col. Norman to this office. The time passed by him in the performance of its duties will reckon as service in India for the retiring pension.

The retention of this office by Lieut. col. Norman will render unnecessary any extension of the leave of abs. granted him by you. He will be subject, however, to the limit of abs. prescribed by the Act 33 Geo. III., cap. 52, sec. 70.

Court Martial.

LIEUT. W. W. LEE, H.M.'S 3RD BENGAL EUROPEAN REGIMENT.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Simla, Dec. 13.—At a general court-martial assembled at Agra on Nov. 6, 1860, Lieutenant William Wells Lee, of H.M.'s 3rd regt. of Bengal Eur. inf., was arraigned on the following charge:—

Charge.—With having, at Futehgurh, on June 10, 1860, broken the arrest in which he had been previously placed, before being set at liberty by competent authority.

Finding.—The Court is of opinion that the prisoner, Lieut. W. W. Lee, H.M.'s 3rd Bengal Eur. inf., is guilty of the charge preferred against him.

Sentence.—The Court sentences the prisoner, Lieut. W. W. Lee, H.M.'s 3rd Bengal European inf., to be cashiered.

Agra, November 7, 1860.

Cawnpore, Nov. 28, 1860.

RECOMMENDATION OF THE COURT.

The Court begs to recommend the prisoner, Lieut. W. W. Lee, of H.M.'s 3rd regt. Bengal Eur. inf., to the favourable consideration of H.E. the C. in C. on the following grounds:—

That the prisoner has been in arrest upwards of eleven months, and that from the straightforward manner in which he has acknowledged his guilt, the Court feels inclined to believe him to be sincere in his expressions of penitence and contrition.

REMARKS BY H.E. THE C. IN C. IN INDIA.

The C. in C. regrets that he is unable to accede to the Court's recommendation in behalf of Lieut. Lee. This officer's detention in arrest since the month of January last has arisen solely from complaints of gross misconduct in money matters brought against him, and which called for investigation. During this inquiry he committed the offence of which he has now been convicted.

The name of Lieut. Lee is to be struck off the rolls of the 3rd Eur. inf. regt., from the date of receipt of this order.

Prizes for Artillery Firing.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Simla, Dec. 24, 1860.—The C. in C. has much pleasure in announcing to the army that H.E. the Viceroy has, with great liberality, acceded to his request that prizes for correct firing by the artillery in India shall be granted to the best shots with ordnance, subject to the regulations which Sir Hugh Rose publishes.

The C. in C. congratulates the artillery on the enlarged sphere of efficiency which this G.O. insures to their most important arm, and on the reward which it gives to soldiers whose merits Sir Hugh Rose cannot rate too highly—artillery marksmen.

As a still further encouragement to the artillery to fire correctly, H.E. directs that the names of all non-commissioned officers and soldiers who gain prizes in the annual practice shall be published in regimental orders, together with the names of officers who have instructed them, and the commanding officers of their divisions.

The names also of all officers who, during the annual practice, distinguished themselves by good firing, will be mentioned in regimental orders.

Officers commanding batteries are requested to use their utmost endeavours to instruct their officers and men in judging distance, which is indispensable for correct firing, according to the instructions contained in the "Manual of Artillery Exercises, Horse Guards, 1st January, 1860."

RULES FOR REGULATING THE AWARD OF PRIZES FOR GOOD FIRING TO THE SOLDIERS OF THE ARTILLERY IN INDIA.

The present scale of practice ammunition will give about four rounds per non-commissioned officer and man (exclusive of shrapnel and common case). Even to the strongest batteries this may be increased to eight rounds per man, by recovering and regrounding the shot and shell and firing them again; and for this purpose H.E. has sanctioned additional cartridges being provided when necessary, the powder to be taken from the exercising ammunition.

1ST PRIZE.—To the best shot in the brigade, a badge of crossed guns and crown worked in gold; entitling the wearer to extra pay of 2d. a day.

2ND PRIZE.—To the best shot in each battery, a badge of crossed guns worked in gold; entitling the wearer to extra pay of 2d. a day.

3RD PRIZE.—To the six second-best shots in each battery, a badge of crossed guns worked in worsted; entitling the wearer to extra pay of 1d. per day. When the battery exceeds 100 non-commissioned officers and men in strength, these rewards to be in the proportion of 6 per cent.

The badges to be worked on red cloth, and worn on the left arm, above the cuff.

In order to insure a sufficiently high standard of excellence, it is directed that no man shall be granted these rewards who shall not have obtained as a minimum the number of points specified below.

They must also be acquainted with the construction of the gun; the rules affecting the direction of the shot and principle of the fuze; with the mode of preparing it, and with field artillery; to equip a gun and wagon in marching order, and pack ammunition.

The result of the firing will be shown by the range reports, which must therefore be most carefully made out by the officer in charge of the range party, and according to the form annexed.

Nominal lists of all men who have obtained any points will be forwarded from batteries to brigade headquarters, from which the best shot in the brigade will be selected, and afterwards those entitled by these regulations to battery prizes. The names of the men so selected will be transmitted to the head-quarters of the regiment in Bengal for record, in return showing regimental number, age, service, rank, and number of points gained.

To entitle a soldier to the first prize awarded as best shot in the brigade, he must in firing the eight rounds have gained at least nine points.

To entitle a soldier to the second prize as best shot in the battery, he must have obtained at least eight points in the eight rounds.

To entitle a soldier to the third prize, of which 6 per cent. are awarded in each battery, six points will be required.

In case of ties, it is to be decided as laid down in para. 8, page 74, of "Musketry Instructions," edition of 1859.

The target to be nine feet square, with a circle of four feet diameter in the centre.

A shot striking the centre of the target to count three points, elsewhere two points; one point to be deducted if the shot grazes before striking, provided the graze is within thirty yards of the target, but if beyond that distance no point will be allowed.

One point to be allowed for good fuze in shell-firing.

Practice to be carried on from ranges varying from 400 to 1,500 yards, and not more than two rounds are to be fired from the battery at the same range at the same time; and commanding officers must be careful to move all marks which may indicate the exact range; and if it is believed that the men have so marked the ground the target must be moved so as to prevent such marks being made use of.

With 9-pounder batteries each soldier to fire two rounds at a range from 500 to 700 yards; two rounds from 700 to 900 yards; two rounds from 900 to 1,200 yards; and two at a longer range, say about 1,500. With 6-pounder batteries the ranges to be from 400 to 600; from 600 to 800; 800 to 1,000; and from 1,000 to 1,200 yards.

The battery having taken up its position (where the captain is certain the ground has not been marked as mentioned above), the officer commanding will call upon certain numbers of each gun detachment or any drivers (say No. 4 or the leading drivers of waggon), to act as No. 1, and two rounds will be fired from either flank; the officer himself recording the names of each man as he fires, thus:—

1st round, Gunner and Driver Smith ...	Range, 800 yards.
2nd " " " " Jones ...
3rd " " " " Ramsey ...
4th " " " " Jackson ...
5th " " " " Williams ...
6th " " " " Edwards ...
7th " " " " Smith ...
8th " " " " Jones ...
9th " " " " Ramsey ...
10th " " " " Jackson ...
11th " " " " Williams ...
12th " " " " Edwards ...
1st round, Gun. and Driver Thompson ...	Range, 1,200 yds.
2nd " " " " Atkinson ...
3rd " " " " Brown ...
"&c." "&c." "&c." "&c." ...

Date and place. (Signed) A. B.

The battery will then limber up and move off to take up a fresh position, when some other commanding battery numbers (say No. 6 of the detachments), or a driver, will be called upon to act as No. 1, and to fire two rounds in a similar manner; the officer recording their names and the range, as before.

The ranges should be made to vary as much as possible every time the battery comes into action, to prevent men taking advantage of the elevation, &c., of their comrades, who acted as No. 1 immediately before them; thus, if the battery comes into action for the first time at a range of 800 yards, it should retire to 1,200 or 1,500 before firing again, and not directly to the rear; one or two manoeuvres might also be performed in the mean time, to prevent as much as possible observations being made.

In all cases it is directed, in order to prevent accidents from ignorance, that the officer shall look over every gun himself immediately before it is fired, to satisfy himself that it is so laid as not to endanger life or property; he will, however, not interfere more than is absolutely requisite, and any necessary alteration in the direction of the gun thus made by order of the officer, will of course exclude the soldier from the benefit of the shot, whatever the result may be.

Independent of the previous instruction which must be given in judging distances, pointing and elevating guns, preparing and fixing fuses, &c., the men should be encouraged, and opportunities afforded them of learning as much as possible during their leisure hours; but at the time of trial no assistance whatever is to be rendered to the soldier while acting as No. 1, who must give his own directions to the detachment, and point and elevate the gun himself, depending entirely upon his own knowledge and skill.

The detachments should also be changed from guns to howitzers, and vice versa, in order that each man may be tried with both descriptions of ordnance, and in preparing and fixing fuses, &c. The correctness of length of fuze should be carefully noted in the range reports; each man may thus fire five rounds from guns and three from the howitzers, and the fuze recorded good to add one point.

The practice of the garrison or reserve batteries with heavy ordnance will be carried on from 18, 24, or 32-pounder guns, 10 or 8-inch howitzers, and from 10 or 8-inch mortars.

Four rounds to be fired from the guns, three from the howitzers, and three from the mortars, per man; the shot and shell being of course recovered, and used twice, or oftener if necessary.

The authorised number of rounds of shrapnel, common case, &c., will, of course, be fired for the instruction of the men, in addition to the above, but will not be taken into consideration in awarding the prizes.

The target for the practice from guns and howitzers to be the same as that already described for the field artillery, viz., 9 feet square, with a centre circle of 4 feet in diameter, and the points to be allowed in the same manner, viz., three for the centre, and two for any other part of the target, the shot grazing before striking to be still allowed to count, if the graze is within 30 yards of the target, but one point to be deducted on account of such graze. In shell firing a good fuze will count one point.

For the mortar practice a small flag-staff, or other conspicuous object, to be used, and a shell falling within 10 yards to count three points; within 25 yards, two points; a good fuze, an additional point. It must, however, be understood that it is not merely the laying the mortar that is required; but to entitle a man to these points, he must determine his own charge of powder, weigh it himself, and prepare and fix his own fuse, without any assistance whatever; the officer of course exercising the necessary supervision to prevent accident from excessive charge, &c.

The range for the mortars can be varied as often as necessary, by shifting the flag, so as to prevent advantage being taken by any man of the result of previous firing.

The range for the guns and howitzers should be from 600 to 1,500 yards; that for mortars, from 500 to 1,000 yards.

As greater precision will be expected from heavy ordnance than from field guns, not only on account of the steadier flight of the shot, but from the fact of the range being better known, the following points will be required to entitle men to the several prizes, viz.:—

1st prize, as best shot in the brigade, fourteen points.

2nd prize, as best shot in the battery, exclusive of the gainer of No. 1 prize, twelve points.

3rd prize, as second-best shots in the battery, of which 6 per cent. will be allowed, ten points.

The regulations at page 76, paras. 18 and 19, of the "Musketry Instructions," edition of 1859, relative to the time for which these rewards are granted, will, of course, be observed in the artillery, and the holders must compete with their comrades annually for their possession.

"To qualify soldiers for these rewards they must have displayed the requisite skill in judging distances, being at least in the first class at the final classification of the judging distance practice," as laid down in para. 7, part V., of the book of "Instructions of Musketry," edition of 1859.

Sir G. Barker and the Commandant of Bengal Artillery will direct arrangements of the strictest nature to be made, to secure the practice being fairly carried on. A certificate from the officer commanding the battery to this effect, and that he was present at the practice, must be attached to bills for the rewards. The markers should be from a different battery to the one practising, if possible; and no man shall receive the reward who is not qualified in judging distance to the extent required by the "Book of Musketry," para. 7, part V., as above quoted.

By order, W. MAYHEW, Lieut. col.,
Adj. gen. of the Army.

Durbar at Benares.

Foreign Dept., Camp Benares, Dec. 12.—H.E. the Viceroy and Gov. gen. held a durbar at Benares on the 11th inst. for the reception of the principal native nobility and residents of the city and division of Benares.

A large number of princes and gentlemen were admitted to private audiences with the Gov. gen., including the descendants of Mirza Koorum Bukht, a member of the ex-royal family of Delhi, and the Maharajah of Benares.

A salute of 13 guns was fired on the arrival and departure of the Maharajah of Benares.

Afterwards the native gentlemen, with the exception of the members of the Delhi family and of the Nipal princes, together with other native gentlemen entitled to the privilege, and the principal civil and military officers of Benares and the neighbourhood, assembled in general durbar. The Viceroy and Gov. gen. entered and took his seat under a royal salute.

The native gentlemen present were introduced to the Viceroy and Gov. gen. in the order of their precedence, and presented the usual offerings, which were accepted by the Gov. gen., but returned to those who had not been admitted to a private audience. On the latter H.E. conferred khilats in return for the offerings which they presented.

To the Maharajah of Benares the Gov. gen. presented with his own hands a diamond ring, in addition to the usual khilut, and expressed pleasure at meeting him again. H.E. availed himself of the opportunity to congratulate the Maharajah upon the loyal and dutiful temper which had lately been exhibited by the inhabitants of the great city from which the Maharajah derives his title, and in which he exercises a just and beneficial influence.

To Rajah Deo Narain Sing Bahadour H.E. remarked that he had heard of the zealous aid which the Rajah and others acting with him had given to the commissioner in the assessment of the Income-tax, and of the example which, on this as on former occasions, he had set of an intelligent obedience to the law and to the authority of Government. H.E.

had pleasure in thus publicly acknowledging the Bahaj's good services.

To Sirdar Soorut Sing Bahadoor H.E. observed that he was sorry to see that the Sirdar had not recovered from the severe wound received by him in the service of Government, and expressed a hope that the estate which has been granted to the Sirdar in the Gorruckpore district was prospering.

On the conclusion of the ceremonies H.E. the Viceroy and Gov. gen. left the durbar under a royal salute, and the assembly broke up.

This day the Viceroy and Gov. gen. paid a return visit to the Maharajah of Benares. H.E. was accompanied by the officiating secretary to the Government of India and by his personal staff.

The usual ceremonies were observed. On the arrival of the Gov. gen. at the residence of the Maharajah, and on H.E.'s departure a royal salute was fired.

Transfer of Non-Commissioned Officers.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Simla, Dec. 17.—The C. in C. is pleased to direct the publication of the following letter from the Sec. to Govt., military dept., to the Adj. gen. of the army, No. 57, dated 2nd October last, for information and guidance:—

"With reference to your letter, No. 1,574, of the 26th ult., conveying the suggestion of the C. in C. that the transfer of non-commissioned officers from the British to the Indian army, for the purpose of filling situations in departments, should be suspended, I am desired to observe, for H.E.'s information, that as it has been determined not to enlist any more men for H.M.'s Indian military forces for the present, and as the measure now proposed is only temporary, pending the new arrangements, Government see no objection to men selected for probationary employment in departments continuing, under the circumstances, to belong to their own regiments. Their places, while employed in departments, will have to be filled by the appointment of supernumeraries in their respective regiments."

Officers' Wives and Families Proceeding to China.

The following copy of a letter from the Right Hon. the Sec. of State to H.E. the Gov. gen., No. 362, India-office, London, 26th Sept., 1860, is published for information and guidance:—

"Para. 1. Having communicated to the Sec. of State for War the arrangement made by you for the passage to this country for the wives and families of the officers of H.M.'s regts. going to China, reported in your letter, 18th April last, I have been informed that, although the grant of free passages to this country to the wives and families of officers of regts., which are temporarily detached from the Indian estab. for service in China, is contrary to regulation, and may prove inconvenient as a precedent, the Sec. of State for War will not, in the present instance, decline to charge the expense in question, viz., the difference between the proposed scale of charges for messing, and the total cost of the passages of the ladies and children, who have already embarked, to the vote of the China expedition."

Asst. Surg. Millar, 1st Bombay Fusiliers.—Racing Disputes.

Camp Aurangabad, Dec. 17.—During the month of October, 1860, a dispute took place between First class asst. surg. Millar, M.D., attached to 1st Bombay Fusiliers, and certain officers who were stewards of the Belgaum races.

The dispute turned on an assertion made by Dr. Millar that he was precluded from receiving his just dues from the Belgaum stewards, therefore, taking the law into his own hands, he declined to pay certain moneys due on account of entrances, &c., which, as alleged by the Belgaum stewards, were due from him; at the same time he demanded inquiry and arbitration. The stewards of the Belgaum races proceeded with an extraordinary measure, ruinous to the reputation of Dr. Millar as an officer and a gentleman, that is to say, that according to the terms of the Turf, Dr. Millar was posted as a "defaulter" by the Belgaum stewards, and disqualified from running either at Belgaum or elsewhere.

The Belgaum stewards followed up this measure by addressing the stewards of another race meeting, to warn them against Dr. Millar.

2. Dr. Millar, on becoming aware of these circumstances, asked for a military court of inquiry to clear his character. This court of inquiry was immediately granted by H.E. the C. in C. on Dr. Millar's application reaching him.

3. The finding of the court of inquiry is published for the information of the army.

OPINION.

The court having carefully weighed and considered the correspondence laid before it by the Asst. Adj. gen. P. D. A., and the statement of the parties examined by them, are of opinion:—

1. That the prospectus officially published for the Belgaum meeting for 1860 was not carried out, inasmuch as the stewards had no power to substitute races for the fifth day, in lieu of those mentioned in the prospectus, without first running out those advertised; and further, after publishing that steeple and hurdle races should take place on that day, they (the stewards) overstepped their power in adding at a subsequent meeting terms that prevented these races being run.

2. That the stewards issued terms for flat races for the fifth day, without waiting to see if the advertised races would fill.

3. That it was the bounden duty of the stewards to carry out their prospectus in its integrity, and that after doing so they might have disposed of the surplus funds (if any) as they considered fit.

4. That Dr. Millar should have paid up his liabilities up to the time of his having claimed the hurdle race: after his horse had walked over for it, and then have demanded his right from the stewards.

5. That according to the strict rules of racing law carried out to their fullest extent, Dr. Millar, from not settling as alluded to, rendered himself liable to be posted as a defaulter; but they consider that before taking such an extreme, it would have been advisable to refer the matter to a committee of arbitration, more as it appears Dr. Millar had expressed his readiness at all times to settle his liabilities upon the stewards awarding him what he considered justice.

6. That the rules of Racing law are made with a view to prevent any transaction of a dishonest nature on the part of persons not bound by their position in society as gentlemen. Doctor Millar has been posted by the stewards of the Belgaum meeting as a defaulter, by applying to him the laws alluded to, in the severest manner. The court acquit Doctor Millar of attempting in the slightest degree to evade his liabilities; he merely acted under a conviction that he had not been treated as he should have been, and gave out that on justice being done him he was ready to fulfil his liabilities.

7. That not the slightest imputation can remain on Doctor Millar's character as an officer and a gentleman with regard to any occurrence that has come before the court connected with the Belgaum meeting.

8. That in support of the above, the court maintain that the term "defaulter" is usually applied to men who abscond with a view to evade their creditors or dishonestly refuse to fulfil their just debts. In the opinion of this court, Doctor Millar was not guilty of these acts; he was not only forthcoming, but expressed his readiness to meet all demands, on his case being investigated by parties unconnected with the dispute between him and the stewards; a defaulter generally courts privacy and not publicity. Doctor Millar adopted the latter course.

REMARKS BY THE C. IN C.

I concur in the finding of the court of inquiry. I trust that the dispute which has led to the assembly of the court may now terminate without further discussion or litigation, and that the lesson taught by the finding of the court of inquiry which calls for these remarks will not be lost on officers undertaking responsibilities not belonging to their profession, for which perhaps they had little previous education.

It appears to me that the litigants should now arrange their differences and respective demands according to the principles laid down on the finding of the court of inquiry.

Dr. Millar acted properly as an officer and as a gentleman in demanding a court of inquiry to clear his character after it had been attacked. If the proceedings of the court had terminated in a finding adverse to Dr. Millar, the result would have been absolutely fatal to him. It is therefore but due to Dr. Millar that the special finding of the court of inquiry should be made as public as the attack was on his reputation.

It is much to be regretted that whilst formal investigations affecting the honour and reputation of a gentleman are in progress, controversies should appear in the public prints on the subject of inquiry.

It makes little difference whether such controversies are carried on under anonymous signatures or those of the parties concerned. In the case of the former we may take it for granted that the requisite information has been furnished by the individuals most interested, and that the articles or letters are prompted or written by them.

I have been asked by Lieut. Gayer to protect him against certain letters which have appeared in the Poona Observer, bearing the signature of Robert Millar. I am obliged to decline to accede to that request on more than one ground.

Firstly, if Lieut. Gayer considers he has been libelled in the columns of the Poona Observer, he has his remedy at hand against the editor of the paper. It is beyond my province to act as censor of the press.

Secondly, a gross, and as it may be gathered from the finding of the court of inquiry, an unprecedented provocation was given to Dr. Millar by Lieut. Gayer on the authority of the Belgaum stewards, the latter having in Lieut. Gayer's letter, dated Oct. 18th, previously dared Dr. Millar to bring an action against them for their conduct at the late Belgaum races. If Dr. Millar has chosen to retaliate by means not dissimilar to those adopted by Lieut. Gayer on the authority of the stewards, it does not appear to me that either the stewards or Lieut. Gayer have any right to ask the protection of the military authorities. I am obliged to say again, that if either the stewards or Lieut. Gayer have reason to think themselves libelled, their remedy lies in the Supreme Court, as by their attack on Dr. Millar's reputation on a question of racing liability prosecuted solely on their own responsibility and authority they removed the whole matter from the ken of military discipline, according to my reading of the 103rd article of war. I conceive that such of the stewards as belonged to the army were not justified in thus stigmatising the character of an officer in her Majesty's service; they should have brought the conduct they condemned to the notice of his and their military superiors in due form.

6. It appears to me that many mistakes have been committed in this matter. I will refrain from commenting on the laws of racing, as laid down in the finding of the court of inquiry. I leave such subjects to other criticism. But I am constrained to say that I think Doctor Millar's case was not rightly appreciated at Belgaum. In consequence of a letter which may be considered intemperate, written on account of what has been shown by the court of inquiry to be a gross provocation, Dr. Millar was placed in arrest. He was released from arrest on consenting to withdraw his letter. He then asked for inquiry, which was not granted to him. The term used by him was "justice."

I conceive that a court of inquiry should have at once been conceded, and an application made to me to nominate members free from bias, and competent to decide the peculiar questions which had been raised.

(Signed)

WILLIAM MANSFIELD, Lieut. gen., C. in C.

The Victoria Cross.

WAR OFFICE, Feb. 5.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to signify her intention to confer the decoration of the Victoria Cross on the undermentioned officer of her Majesty's army, whose claim to the same has been submitted for her Majesty's approval, on account of acts of bravery performed by him in India, as recorded against his name, viz.:—

Surgeon Herbert Taylor Reade, 61st Regiment.—During the siege of Delhi, on the 14th of December, 1857, while Surgeon Reade was attending to the wounded at the end of one of the streets of the city, a party of rebels advanced from the direction of the bank, and having established themselves in the houses in the street, commenced firing from the roofs. The wounded were thus in very great danger, and would have fallen into the hands of the enemy had not Surgeon Reade drawn his sword, and, calling upon the few soldiers who were near to follow, succeeded, under a heavy fire, in dislodging the rebels from their position. Surgeon Reade's party consisted of about ten in all, of whom two were killed and five or six wounded. Surgeon Reade also accompanied the regiment at the assault of Delhi, and on the morning of the 16th of September, 1857, was one of the first up at the breach in the magazine, which was stormed by the 61st Regiment and Belooch battalion, upon which occasion he, with a sergeant of the 61st Regiment, spiked one of the enemy's guns.

The Indian Army.

India Office, Feb. 4.—NOTICE.—The Secretary of State for India in Council has resolved that all officers of H.M.'s Indian military forces entitled by length of service to full-pay pension, who may retire in this country before the 1st of August next, shall be granted an addition of £50 per annum to the pensions to which they may be entitled under the regulations of the service.

STAFF CORPS FOR INDIA.

Victoria R.—Whereas it is expedient to provide a body of officers for our service in India, by whom various offices and appointments hitherto held by officers borne on the strength of the several corps or regiments of our forces in India shall in future be held; and whereas our Secretary of State for India in Council has resolved to charge upon the revenues of India the sum necessary to provide the pay, half-pay, and pensions of such body of officers on the scale hereinafter contained; our will and pleasure is that a corps be formed in each of the presidencies of our Indian dominions, to be denominated the Bengal, Madras, and Bombay Staff Corps respectively, to consist of such officers as may be required for such employment and are selected for such purpose by our Governments in India, with the approbation of our Secretary of State for India in Council.

It is also our will and pleasure that all officers now holding, or who immediately before the commencement of their present unexpired furlough may have held such appointments, and in future officers belonging to any of our land forces serving in India under the rank of regimental field-officer, who shall have served three years with a regiment, of which two shall have been in India, shall be eligible to enter such staff corps; but such officers will not be permanently transferred to the staff corps unless fully qualified, and until they shall have passed such periods of probation as may be determined on for the branch of the Indian service for which they may be selected. Officers will receive commissions in the staff corps on their names being submitted to us by our Secretary of State for India.

It is our further will and pleasure that the promotion and pay of the staff corps shall be regulated as follows:—

1. Ensigns, when permanently transferred to the staff corps, to have the rank of lieut. Other officers to have the rank which they may hold in their regiments.

2. Promotion in the staff corps to be governed by length of service.

Officers after twelve years' service, of which four must have been in the staff corps, to become captains.

After twenty years' service, of which six must have been in the staff corps, to become majors.

After 26 years' service, of which eight must have been in the staff corps, to be lieut. cols.

Five years' service in the staff corps as lieut. col. to entitle the officer so employed to the brevet rank of col.

8. Officers now in staff employment in India, joining the staff corps on its formation, shall count their previous staff service towards promotion to the following extent:—

One step or rank will be given to every officer whose period of service would qualify him for it according to the above rules. An interval of two years at least must intervene between each succeeding step.

4. Officers in the staff corps will be eligible for brevet rank in common with the rest of the army.

5. Officers of the staff corps holding military appointments will take military command according to their army rank, but officers while holding only civil appointments will not be entitled to assume such command.

6. Exchanges may be allowed between officers of the staff corps under the substantive rank of field officer and regimental officers of the same rank, on the recommendation of the Indian Governments. Officers of the staff corps exchanging into a regiment will become the juniors of their regimental rank.

7. The power of removing officers from the effective list of the staff corps will be exercised by us through our Sec. of State for India.

8. Officers of the staff corps will receive pay according to the following scale:—

	While required to remain in India.			Out of India.
	Per Mensem.	£	s. d.	Per Diem.
Gen. officers ...	1,295	5	0	1 5 0
Brev. col. and lt. col.	827	14	0	1 0 0
Major ...	640	14	0	0 16 0
Lieutenant ...	225	12	0	0 6 6

Every officer when in active employment will also receive, in addition to the above pay, such a sum as will make his total pay and allowances up to the sum assigned by the Governments in India, with the approval of the Secretary of State for India in Council, as the consolidated pay of the office which he may hold. Eventually a certain proportion of the senior officers of the staff corps will receive colonel's allowance.

9. Officers of the staff corps will be allowed to retire on the following scale of pension, provided that not less than half of the required periods of service shall have been passed in the staff corps:—

SCALE.		Per annum.

Officers of her Majesty's Indian forces joining the staff corps will be entitled to pensions under the regulations of the Indian service.

10. Officers of the staff corps in England who may not wish to retire, but who are unable to return to India, and officers removed from the effective list who may not be entitled to retire on the above scale of pension, will be placed on a half-pay list, provided they have served three years in India in the staff corps on the same rate of half-pay and on the same conditions as officers of a similar rank in our army.

11. It is also our will and pleasure that this warrant shall be administered and interpreted by our Secretary of State for India in Council, who shall be the sole and standing authority upon the matters therein contained.

Given at our Court at Windsor this 16th day of January, 1861, in the 24th year of our reign.

By her Majesty's command,
CHARLES WOOD.

Delhi and Lucknow Prize Money.

(From the London Gazette, Feb. 8.)

Of the Delhi prize money one-twentieth part of the booty and proceeds to be distributed to and between the legal personal representatives of the said late Maj. gen. Sir Henry Barnard, the said Lieut. gen. Reed, the said Maj. gen. Sir Archdale Wilson, bart., and the legal personal representatives of the late Maj. gen. Penny, respectively, to be distributed to, and divided amongst them, and the legal personal representatives of these deceased, in proportion to the number of days during which each of them respectively held the aforesaid chief command.

Of the Lucknow prize money to the then C. in C. of our forces in India (Colin, Baron Clyde, of Lucknow), one-twentieth part of the whole of the said booty and proceeds.

Of the Delhi and Lucknow prize money the following proportions, as far as the same may be applicable to the several ranks of officers and men engaged therein, such scale and proportions being settled and determined, and fixed by and according to a calculation of the day's pay of each rank, and being in the proportion of one share for each day's pay, videlicet:—

Lieutenants-general—One hundred and fifty-two shares.

Majors-general—Seventy-six shares each.

Brigadiers—Fifty-one shares each.

Colonels and Lieutenant-colonels—Seventeen shares each.

Majors—Sixteen shares each.

Captains—Twelve shares each.

Lieutenants, first class, after seven years' service—Seven shares and a-half each.

Lieutenants, second class, under seven years' service—Six shares and a-half each.

Ensigns—Five shares and a-half each.

The shares of officers in command of regiments to be double the amount of the shares attached or accruing to them, according to the day's pay of their regimental rank only.

Staff-Sergeants—Three shares each.

Colour-Sergeants—Two shares and a-half each.

Sergeants—Two shares each.

Corporals—One share and a-half each.

Privates—One share each.

All officers on the divisional, personal, and general staff, to be allowed shares according to their staff-pay, added to the half-pay, of their respective ranks.

REGIMENTAL STAFF.

Adjutants—Ten shares each.

Quartermasters—Six shares and a-half each.

Paymasters—Twelve shares and a-half each.

Riding-Masters—Nine shares each.

Assistant-Surgeons—Ten shares each.

Together with any additional shares to which they or any of them may be entitled, in virtue of additional pay for length of service.

NAVAL FORCES.

The naval officer actually commanding the said naval forces—Fifty-one shares.

Captains in the Royal navy, not commanding the said naval forces—Seventeen shares each.

Commanders—Sixteen shares each.

Lieutenants in the Royal navy, captains of marines, masters, surgeons, paymasters, and pursers—Twelve shares each.

Mates, lieutenants of marines, assistant-surgeons—Seven shares and a-half each.

Second masters, midshipmen, master's assistants, clerks, naval cadets, clerks' assistants—Five shares and a-half each.

Warrant officers and sergeants of marines—Three shares each.

Petty officers and corporals of marines—One share and a-half each.

Seamen and marines—One share each.

The share of the native troops to be fixed in proportion to their day's pay, but no such share to be less than one-half of the share of a British private soldier of the infantry of the line in our service. Such classes of the native Indian non-combatants, as have been accustomed to share, according to the usage of the army in India, are to share in the same manner, and in the same proportions, in relation to the shares of the fighting ranks, as they have hitherto been accustomed to share, according to such usage.

INDIA OFFICE, Feb. 6.

The prize money for Delhi and Lucknow is, in the first instance, payable in India only. All applications on the subject must be addressed to the General Prize Committee, Calcutta.

ALLAHABAD, Dec. 31.—The India medals for the Volunteers at Agra, Lucknow, and elsewhere are being sent up for distribution. I have seen several of the Baillie-guardites wearing them at the last performance of the theatre, much to the surprise of some newly arrived officers, who could not understand this innovation. Mr. Thornhill is in the station, and Mr. Cocks will be in for the races. In fact, we shall have visitors from all parts of the surrounding country. The Lieutenant-governor will not be here, however, before the 10th of January; he will again stay the ensuing hot season at Nainee Tal.

PANORAMIC VIEW OF BOMBAY.—The Rev. W. H. Carpendale, formerly lieutenant in her Majesty's Indian navy, has done that which claims the grateful appreciation of all dwellers in "Duck land." He has made a water-colour drawing of Bombay from Malabar Point that, simply as a work of art, is entitled to very high praise, but which to all who have any pleasant associations with the beautiful scenery he has so skillfully delineated must be of priceless value. The spectator is supposed to be standing on Malabar Point, whence he takes in almost at a glance the island of Colaba, the Lighthouse, and the Indian Ocean, the esplanade, town, fort, and shipping, the island of Elephanta, Byculia, and Mazagon, and the high mainland in the background. It is no hasty sketch that Mr. Carpendale has thrown off in an idle hour, but an elaborate and highly-finished panorama, seven feet in length. A more acceptable present to those who are in any way connected with Bombay can hardly be imagined. The drawing is reproduced in coloured tints in the highest style of lithography, and the price is no more than thirty shillings, or two guineas for proof copies. Merely as a picture it is well worth the money.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, February 13, 1861.

MAHARAJA DHULEEP SING.

It has been asked in more than one quarter what possible motive could have induced Maharaja Dhuleep Sing to tear himself from the charms of civilised society, and return to that distant land which has long ceased to be his home? Those who are content with simple reasons for simple acts, speak of his Royal Highness's intention to visit his estates, and, like a good landlord, make himself acquainted with the moral and material condition of his tenants. But these worthy people forget that the Maharaja's apostasy from the faith of his sires has formed an impassable gulf between his people and himself. Almost any European gentleman would probably exercise greater influence over their minds than a Christian proselyte who has renounced the errors and superstitions of his ancestors. This same objection applies yet more strongly to the theory set up by certain wisacres, whose vision is ever directed towards the heart of the nether millstone. The prince, they say, is to be raised to the rank of a sovereign ruler, owing fealty alone to the Paramount Power. This view is put forth with variations, but one and the same idea pervades every version of the story. According to some he is to be restored to Lahore with a lordly domain adjacent to the town, while others maintain that Delhi is to be the seat of his future government, but all agree that he is to be the instrument in the hands of Providence for making a wide and fatal breach into the false religions now existing in India, by rendering Christianity "fashionable," and by showing that it "pays." For ourselves, we are disposed to believe that his Royal Highness has no higher motive or mission than to judge for himself of the true value of his estates, and, not unlikely, with the intention of exchanging them for Indian Stock, which he will afterwards realise, and invest the amount in this country. This is a simple and intelligible proceeding, and for that reason sure to be unsatisfactory to those gobemouches who stand agape at the corners of the streets, with the vague notion that every man who mounts a ladder does so for the purpose of breaking his neck, and busy themselves yet more earnestly to devise mysterious and far-sought explanations for the most ordinary events in the lives of public characters.

THE STRANGERS' HOME.

Now that our own countrymen are able to resume their usual avocations, and once more earn their daily bread by their daily toil, the attention of the charitably-disposed may not unfairly be directed to the necessitous condition of the stranger that is within our gates.

Only a few years ago the terrible sufferings of the unfortunate Asiatics turned adrift in the streets of London, and indeed of every great seaport town were a scandal to European civilisation, and a blot upon our profession of Christianity. Ill-clothed and ill-fed, the poor wretches shivered and starved, and speedily sunk under their dreadful privations. In the depth of winter it was no uncommon spectacle to behold a native of sultry Hindostan, all in rags, crouched upon the pavement, and seeking to keep some little warmth in his half-frozen limbs by coiling himself up in as small a compass as possible. Such dismal sights are now of rare occurrence, thanks to the institution of a Strangers' Home at Poplar, for the reception of Asiatics until an opportunity is found for sending them back to the East. The most formidable enemy—far more pitiless than "the icy blast"—they formerly had to encounter, were crimps of their own race, who decoyed them into vile dens, where they were speedily stripped of their small savings, and then turned out to perish. The annual number of sick Indians and other Asiatics received into the public hospitals was, only fifteen years ago, quite appalling, in proportion to the entire number of such persons in the country, and death from ill-treatment and starvation was an event of frequent occurrence. All this is now changed. An agent who understands their language is constantly employed in finding out and bringing to the Home Lascars and others who have no regular employment or habitation. Their property is taken care of and restored to them on their departure, and every exertion is made to find suitable situations for them, either in this country or on ship-board. In the mean time, they have warm rooms, abundant clothing, and wholesome food, and, in many cases, the seed of a purer and holier faith alights on a kindly soil, and humanises, even if it do not altogether convert, the recipient. Detached passages of the Scriptures appear to be in great request, and now when the denizens of the Home return to their native land, they can tell their countrymen that the Christianity of the Sahib Logue implies something more than skill in gunnery, or dexterous use of sabre and bayonet. There is a magic art, they will say, possessed by these wonderful white men, far more powerful than that which enables them to construct railroads, or flash a message with the speed of lightning, and the secret of which is contained in the simple formula, "Love one another." That is the talisman which unlocks the chests of the wealthy, and draws out a dole even from the humble hoards of the poor. By that the naked are clothed, the hungry fed, the sorrowful consoled, the sick tended to. And this secret was taught by the great Teacher whom the Feringhees adore, and in whose name they work miracles of love and charity. Princes and nobles from the East readily admit the excellent character and object of this Institution, and have liberally contributed to its funds, but a considerable sum is yet needed to render it fully efficient. The smallest offerings will be gratefully received, and in no more graceful way could the war hatchet be buried, and the antagonism of races fused into brotherly kindness. Ye, then, who would smoke the pipe of peace, first give something to the Strangers' Home from your well-filled garners, or even from the old broken teapot in the corner of the topmost shelf of the cupboard, in your "kitchen and parlour, and hall."

THE OUDE LIBEL CASE.

In the character of a judge, from whom there is no appeal save to the British Legislature, Lord Canning has carefully and impartially summed up the entire evidence, and all the circumstances connected with the recent trials at Lucknow, and with equal hand has administered praise or reproof to whom either was due. He regrets that Ramdial had recourse to law to vindicate his character from unjust aspersions, but, proceedings having been instituted without the cognisance or advice of that official's superiors, the Viceroy could do no more than instruct all Government servants to abstain from the slightest interference in the matter. It is evident that both Captain Chamberlain and Lieutenant Scott wandered from their legitimate province in instituting inquiries as to the truth of the allegations put forth in the Oudh Gazette. They did not even content themselves with listening to such complaints as might voluntarily be made to them, but went out of their way to invite, and even to summon, those persons upon whom acts of oppression were said to have been exercised. On the other hand, when a certain individual declaimed in the public streets of Lucknow against the legality of the Income-tax, and exhorted his fellow-citizens to resist payment of it, the police looked on apathetically, and made no attempt to arrest, or silence, the seditious orator. It further appeared that Captain Chamberlain had availed himself of his official position, as Superintendent of the Lucknow District Police, to assist the proprietors of the local journal in procuring evidence in support of the libel they had uttered, and that he had taken pains to prevent this fact from coming to the knowledge of his superiors. The Officiating Chief Commissioner, Colonel Barrow, had, therefore, no course open to him but to recommend the removal of that officer from his appointment in the Oude Police. In discharging this painful duty, however, Colonel Barrow does his utmost to soothe Captain Chamberlain's feelings of shame and vexation. He speaks of him as "an officer who has performed excellent service." He expresses "the highest opinion of his honourable character," and alludes to his name as one "to which it is painful to attach the slightest stigma." An explanation of his conduct, submitted by Captain Chamberlain, being deemed incomplete and unsatisfactory, the Governor-general was compelled, though with regret, to send him back to his regiment. Lieutenant Scott, the Superintendent of the City Police, has also been deprived of his appointment for being a too "active and willing participator" in his superior officer's insubordination, and for an arbitrary and vindictive exercise of power.

Of the perjury committed by the witnesses against Ramdial, the Governor-general appears to entertain no doubt, and yet he accepts as a fact that "there was an absence of due precaution against abuse of authority by the subordinate agents employed to levy the tax." Again,—

"He cannot approve of the assessment and collection of it in Lucknow having been so long entrusted to a Native Officer, whose acts, however upright and careful, were sure to be misconstrued, or of that officer having been left without more explicit instructions as to the course which he should take in enforcing the tax against dilatory or recalcitrant taxpayers. For whether it were strictly legal or not to search the apartments of women for valuable effects or to restrain their jewels in satisfaction of the demands of the Government, there is no question as to the impropriety and impolicy of the proceeding in such a case, and the Governor-general laments that the prohibition of this course, which the Chief Commissioner issued immediately he heard that it had been followed (he being at the time absent from the province), was not sooner thought of. The same observation applies to the confinement of respectable citizens in the lock-up house of the Tehseel. It may not have been illegal, but to detain such persons in such a place for several days, and for such a cause, was a measure to be resorted to only as a last necessity; and it does not appear that recourse was previously had to any of the less objectionable modes of enforcing the just claims of Government which are familiar to revenue officers in other parts of India."

Mr. Carnegie, the Deputy Commissioner, next comes in for his share of the viceregal displeasure, and even Colonel Abbott, the Commissioner, does not escape unscathed. There might not have been any positive supineness in the discharge of their duties,

"But it is evident to the Governor-general the kind of activity which the occasion demanded in Lucknow was wanting. The Governor-general is satisfied that there is no more efficacious mode of reconciling a large native community to a new and unpalatable measure of Government than the free intercourse of intelligent English officers with all classes, and their frequent presence amongst the people, for the purpose of explaining and smoothing difficulties, and of convincing all that no oppression or abuse of authority will be permitted. The suspicious and excitable population of a great city should be met more than half way on such occasions; but this was not the course followed. The Deputy Commissioner remained for the most part in his office, and the active enforcement of the tax, together with the delicate task of making it as tolerable and as little obnoxious to the people as possible, was left to the subordinate officer, Ramdial. Such petitions, too, as were received were in too many cases referred to lower authority. It thereby was made less manifest than it should have been that power would not be misused, and scope was given to grave misrepresentation on this point."

"On the whole, the Governor-general is compelled to say that he fails to find in these papers the evidence he had hoped to see of active and sedulous caution and exertion on the part of the European officers of the commission at Lucknow in anticipating or removing all cause of complaint upon the occasion of introducing for the first time a very obnoxious tax into a large city."

"Furthermore, the Governor-general remarks with disapproval the tone of levity and disregard of the feelings of the people, which appears in Mr. Elliott's report of his investigation of the charges first made against Ramdial; and the omission on the part of the Commissioner and the Officiating Commissioner to notice this."

The sentences of imprisonment passed upon Unjore Tewarree, Jugganath Singh, and Mowla Buksh, are remitted, but all three are dismissed for ever from the service of the Government. The first-named, moreover, is removed from the Roll of the Order of British India, though an allowance equal to what he would have received as a member of the First Class of that Order will be continued to him for life. Mr. Berkeley, an extra assistant, who so far forgot himself as to inflict personal chastisement upon some villagers who came to his office to complain against the tax, is to be sent to another district, and reduced to a lower rank. A judicious reprimand is likewise administered to Colonel Barrow for some hasty expressions he used in a letter to Colonel Abbott.

With regard to the statement put forward in the Delhi Gazette by a Mr. Fitzgerald, the Governor-general considers it unworthy of credit, and there are very few who would not agree with his lordship, whose concluding remarks are so just, so well expressed, and so worthy to be remembered by all who take part in the administration of public affairs in India, that we need offer no apology for reproducing them in extenso :—

of the reports of the Government of Oude. In these reports there appears to be a very imperfect appreciation of the fact that in this matter the conduct of the affairs in the city of Lucknow has given room for scandal, and discredit has been thereby thrown upon the measures of the Supreme Government for the general imposition and collection of a direct tax throughout India. It is true that the scandal has been grossly exaggerated, and that the discredit is undeserved; but it is also true that in the proceedings which really did take place, there is scarcely a single error of commission or of omission which might not have been prevented by timely precaution. If Ramdial had been properly directed, and if complaints against his alleged acts had been more generally taken up and promptly inquired into by English officers, there would have been little temptation or facility for attacking him in a libel. If, when the libel was published, prompt reference had been made to ascertain its authority, and if the facts alleged had been thoroughly inquired into, there would have been no occasion for Ramdial to bring an action. If the police had been properly in hand, and if Captain Chamberlain had been kept to his proper duty, the manifest antagonism exhibited by the police and the civil officers would have been checked, and the consequent loss of character to individuals, which is a matter that concerns the Government little less than themselves, would not have occurred.

"Moreover, the Governor-general is unable to concur in the Chief Commissioner's opinions in respect to the measures taken to levy the trades tax in Lucknow. It is quite possible to realise such taxes in India without resort to distraint: and if distraint becomes necessary, it is an indication either that the tax is too heavy or that the arrangements for collecting it are defective. Success in levying the tax in Lucknow depended upon the care taken in the first assessment, and in promptly hearing and disposing of all remonstrances and appeals. To lighten the assessment on one quarter of the town, and increase it by the same amount on another, was not only an injustice in itself, but a direct inducement to resistance. If difficulty were found in enforcing payment, the cause, whether real or pretended, should have been inquired into. There should have been a formal invitation of appeals, and they should have been heard publicly in presence of the neighbours. Recusant parties should have been summoned to the inquiry, and if they failed to attend, but not otherwise, an ex parte, but still a formal decision, should have been passed. If on such inquiry it had appeared that contumacy was the sole cause of non-payment, there were unobjectionable and efficacious ways of enforcing the demand, by the service of peons and otherwise, before resorting to distraint: and if distraint had been unavoidable, it should not have been carried out in the manner in which it appears to have been carried out in the Mohulla of Ashrafiabad. To break open locks because the keys are not brought quickly; to expose respectable women to the threats of the underlings of office; to send sweeper women into zenanas, and to seize the jewels of the inmates of zenanas, are practices which the Government of India cannot tolerate, and which a local Government ought not to defend. The upholding of such acts, even where they have been rare and exceptional, as the Governor-general believes them to have been in Lucknow, is calculated to destroy the confidence of the people in the justice and considerateness of the Government, and his Excellency desires that it may be clearly understood that they are regarded by the Government of India as indefensible.

"The Governor-general appreciates the ability with which the plan for the general assessment of the tax throughout the province of Oude was designed, and the energy, combined with good judgment, with which it was carried out. His Excellency especially appreciates the fact that there has been an absence of all complaints against the tax, or the mode of levying it, except in the city of Lucknow. Even there the petitions against the tax were, as has been already stated, few. But the general success of the measure, and the prudence and moderation which have, in almost every instance, characterised the proceedings of the officers entrusted with its execution afford no reason for passing over defects or for excusing faults which are really without excuse. Nothing is to be gained by doing so. On the contrary, the Governor-general holds it to be true justice to the members of the Oude commission to declare that such defects and faults have in these very few instances occurred, and at the same time to establish that they are no necessary accompaniment of the measure of taxation as devised by the Chief Commissioner, and as carried out by the great body of his officers."

CORRESPONDENCE.

LEGACY DUTIES ON PROPERTY IN INDIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Whatever advantages the transfer of India to the English Government may have conferred on the living, the following relation will prove that it has been very detrimental to the interests of the dead.

In October, 1859, an officer of the Bombay Artillery died—Captain V. S. K.—leaving two orphan children and a property of about £2,000, of which £800 was in England.

His executor in India administered the estate in India in accordance with the rules and laws of that country, and then forwarded a probate of the will to England, to enable his co-executor to obtain possession of the £800 in this country.

It became necessary in England to take out a new probate, and to incur expenses amounting to £50. 15s. before this probate could be presented at the Inland Revenue Office, for the purpose of paying the legacy duties on the property here. On this being done the Commissioners of Inland Revenue require a statement of the property in India, and that legacy duties should be paid on the whole amount in this country—stating that since the amalgamation of the Indian and British armies the domicile of the officers of the local Indian army was England.

A reference was made to the Inland Revenue Office, showing that this officer had died before the amalgamation, but without any effect; and as the Secretary of State for India was understood to have said that the privileges of no officer in the Indian army should be damaged by the transfer of India to the Queen's Government, an appeal was made to the India Council, from which a reply has been received, saying that Sir Charles Wood is unable to interfere, &c., &c.

Whether the term officers, as used by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, is intended to merely apply to military officers, or to civilians in the service of the State, or to British merchants, British subjects—European as well as native—is not defined; but as the native subjects of her Majesty claim equal privileges with those of her Majesty's European subjects, it is possible that they may look with some anxiety on the decision passed by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue.

To simplify the matter, the case is this, and it equally applies to all British subjects in India, or will, if this attempt to enforce it is not resisted, soon be made to apply. A B dying in India—leaving property in India, his executor in India (as compelled by the law of India) administering the estate in India, according to the forms of the Courts in India, the property also invested in Indian securities—the Commissioners of Inland Revenue in England have no legal claim to interfere, or demand succession duties on that property.

If the Inland Revenue Office has a claim on such property or estate, why has not that claim been uniformly demanded? No difficulty existed in the way of obtaining information; returns from the Indian Probate offices are officially transmitted to England, yet every agent and banker connected with India well knows that his demand has never been hitherto made.

India is a country empowered to make its own laws and regulations, and may retaliate on England, and demand duties and taxes on the estates of parties dying in India, in this country. There was some justice in a double Income-tax, however impolitic the infliction may have been, but declaring the domicile of Indian officers to be England, is both severe and unjust, and according to the opinion of some of the first lawyers in Great Britain, illegal. Yet, nevertheless, in the present instance it must be submitted to, as an executor to an Indian officer's estate, not amounting to more than £2,000, left for the benefit of two infant orphan children, would not be justified in incurring the expense of even a successful suit in the Court of Exchequer to avoid its payment.—I am, sir, yours,

Feb. 8th, 1861.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

PARLIAMENT was opened on Tuesday the 5th, by her Majesty in person. The Speech from the Throne contained the following allusions to India and China:—

"I announced to you also, at the close of the last Session of Parliament, that the pacific overtures which my Envoy in China had made to the Imperial Government at Peking having led to no satisfactory result, my naval and military forces, and those of my ally the Emperor of the French, were to advance towards the northern provinces of China, for the purpose of supporting the just demands of the allied Powers, and that the Earl of Elgin had been sent to China as special Ambassador to treat with the Chinese Government.

"I am glad to inform you that the operations of the allied forces have been attended with complete success. After the capture of the forts at the mouth of the Peiho, and several engagements with the Chinese army, the allied forces became masters of the Imperial city of Peking; and the Earl of Elgin and Baron Gros, the Ambassador of the Emperor of the French, were enabled to obtain an honourable and satisfactory settlement of all the matters in dispute.

"Throughout these operations, and the negotiations which followed them, the commanders and ambassadors of the allied Powers acted with the most friendly concert. Papers on this subject will be laid before you.

"The state of my Indian territories is progressively improving, and I trust that their financial condition will gradually partake of the general amendment."

THE INDIAN LOAN.

Mr. CRAWFORD asked the Secretary of State for India whether the necessity for raising a loan of £3,000,000 in London, for the service of the Government of India, was owing to circumstances connected only with railway receipts and expenditure; or whether it arose from the falling off of the available sources of income or increase of expenditure in India.

Sir C. WOOD, in reply, explained that large funds had to be provided in England for the service of India, and, on the other hand, the main portion of the means required for railroads in India required large remittances to India, which were paid into, and drawn from, the Home Treasury. The sum expected to be paid in England was £7,000,000, and £2,500,000 had been expected from India on account of Indian expenditure at home; but the home expenditure on account of India in this country had exceeded the estimate, while the railroad payments had fallen short, and the Indian Government had remitted £1,250,000 less than had been calculated upon. The whole amount was £2,750,000 short of what he had expected, and he had, therefore, found it necessary to exercise the power given by Parliament last Session. As to the bulk of the expenditure in India, he was happy to say that there was no necessity for borrowing a single shilling. The expenditure had been very considerably reduced since he had last addressed the House upon this subject. The military expenditure would be reduced in the course of the year £3,300,000, following a reduction last year of £3,500,000, making a total reduction in the course of two years of £6,800,000; and next year, 1861-2, if no unforeseen circumstances arose, the income and expenditure would be almost balanced.

INDIAN PRIZE MONEY.

Sir W. M. FARQUHAR asked the right hon. baronet the Secretary of State for India whether he could state when the distribution of the Delhi and Lucknow prize money was likely to take place; and what was the course to be pursued with reference to the Kirwee and other Indian prize money?

Sir C. WOOD replied that a warrant for the distribution of the Delhi and Lucknow prize money had been forwarded to India. Early in autumn, in anticipation of the issue of that warrant, he wrote to the Government of India desiring them to take such measures as they could to further that, which was the first step to be taken by them in the preparation of the prize rolls, upon which depended the fixing of each man's share. After the distribution in India, the remainder would be sent home for distribution in this country. With regard to the Kirwee money, the Advocate-General at Calcutta had to consider whether it was prize money or not, and, until that legal question was decided, he could not give any further information on the subject. As to the remaining prize money, a committee of officers had considered the matter, and recommended that the entire of it, with the exception of the Delhi and Lucknow prize money, should be thrown into a common fund and distributed among the army generally. The Government of India had been asked to give an opinion, and until that opinion was received he could not state what conclusion would be arrived at on the question.

THE INDIAN ARMY.

Sir M. FARQUHAR asked the Secretary of State for India, whether the scheme for carrying out the amalgamation of the Indian Army had been completed, and forwarded to India for promulgation; and whether he had any objection to lay a copy of the scheme upon the table of the House?

Sir C. Wood said that despatches had been sent to India giving directions on many parts of the scheme for a local army in India. One document connected with it had lately appeared in the Gazette. The Governor-general, with the Commander-in-chief, had power to modify; and it was not desirable to produce a document, which might or might not appear in its present shape, before it was actually promulgated to the army.

Sir M. FARQUHAR inquired whether the Governor-general could issue the order if modified, without sending it to this country again?

Sir C. Wood said, that with the instructions sent to the Governor-general, a power to modify was reserved to his Excellency.

THE INDIAN LOAN.

In reply to Colonel SYKES,

Sir C. Wood said he had succeeded in arranging the whole of the money which he proposed to raise to day for India. He called for tenders for a loan of £3,000,000. Tenders were sent for £13,000,000, and £6,000,000 of that amount were at the minimum and above. He had the whole £3,000,000 above the price which he fixed for the minimum price.

THE GRANT TO THE MYSORE FAMILY.

In reply to Mr. VANSITTART,

Sir C. Wood said, there might be a question certainly whether he should not have referred the matter to the Government of India, but there were circumstances which induced him, with the concurrence of the Council, to take it into his own hands, and attempt to make a final settlement. He did not think it expedient on the present occasion to go into any details, but wished to confine himself to a statement, as brief as possible, with regard to some remarks which had fallen from the hon. gentleman, representing, as he did, the views of gentlemen in Calcutta, who thought that the descendants of Hyder Ali had no claim. When Tippoo Sultan was killed, and the Governor-general, Lord Wellesley, determined not to reinstate his family on the throne of Mysore, but to substitute a descendant of the old Maharajah, a treaty was made with the Nizam to divide with him the territory that was taken, the British Government undertaking the maintenance and custody of Hyder Ali's family; and in order to enable them to do that, a territory, yielding £70,000 a-year, was assigned to them. The spirit in which the arrangement was intended to be carried out by those most cognizant of the circumstances would be seen from two short extracts from letters of Lord Wellesley and the Duke of Wellington. Lord Wellesley wrote to the Court of Directors, saying:—"I determined at the same time to grant the families a more magnificent maintenance than they had enjoyed during the late reigns." It had been maintained by some persons that it was incumbent on the Government to allot the whole £70,000 to the maintenance of the family; but the sum allotted was nothing like £70,000 a-year, and the Duke of Wellington wrote on this subject:—"The family are not now spending more than half the sum allotted to them by treaty, and there assuredly can be no grounds for this shameful breach of faith with persons in our power." He (Sir Charles Wood) did not at all concur in that view, but this passage would show that the Duke of Wellington thought them entitled to receive the whole sum. The engagement was made with two reservations—the one that the Government of India had the right of making deductions in the amount allowed, according as members of the family might die off, and the second, that if they should be guilty of disloyalty to the Government of India, or should attack the territories of the Nizam, the Government might withhold the entire allowance. Well, in 1806 the mutiny of Vellore took place, and the mutineers availed themselves of the presence of one of the sons of Tippoo, took him from the palace, and placed him at their head. One of the assertions made by the hon. gentleman (Mr. Vansittart) was, that the family had been guilty of mutiny, and had forfeited their claim; but the circumstances were inquired into at the time by Lord Minto, the then Governor-general, and he recorded his deliberate opinion that this circumstance "did not affect the claims of the family to a liberal allowance, and it was still incumbent to show as much generosity towards those families as was consistent with the public security." Security was taken by removing the family to Calcutta, and they had lived ever since at Russapugla, a place near that city. Any gentleman who was acquainted with the way in which Mahometan families in such a position intermarried and lived together would be aware that it was not desirable that the social and moral state of the family at Russapugla should be perpetuated. The produce of the territories set apart for the maintenance of this family were kept entirely separate from the revenues of India, under the name of the Mysore deposit, and the sums spent were so much less than the produce of the territories that in 1855, when the fund was merged in the general receipts of India, there had accumulated from the savings no less than £600,000. In the year 1852 Prince Gholam Mahomed, the representative of the family, presented a memorial to the Court of Directors, claiming that the whole sum of £70,000 a-year should be disbursed for the maintenance of the family, and also stating that they were entitled to the £600,000 which had accumulated up to that time. Those claims the Court of Directors very properly refused to admit, but thought the family were entitled to a fair, suitable, and liberal maintenance. Gholam Mahomed came to this country in 1854, and the Home Government then directed that an addition should be made to his allowance, and that of certain other members of the family, and this direction was transmitted to Lord Dalhousie. It was quite true that Lord Dalhousie did not think there was any claim, and Sir Barnes Peacock recorded his opinion that there was no legal claim. Lord Dalhousie therefore proposed that after the fourth generation the payments should cease altogether. As for a legal claim under the treaty there was none, but that did not appear to him (Sir C. Wood) in the slightest degree to impair the equitable and moral claim of those persons whom he had dispossessed of their throne—a claim which Lord Minto and every other Governor-general up to that time considered good. The Home Government, therefore, entirely declined to adopt the recommendations of Lord Dalhousie. So the matter stood till the year 1858, when his noble friend opposite (Lord Stanley) became President of the Board of Control, and Gholam Mahomed, who had the greatest confidence in his justice and equity, came over to this country again. He arrived shortly after he (Sir C. Wood) became Secretary of State for India. A similar question was opened at the time, and a committee was appointed to investigate both cases. The result was the arrangement which had been made. He should, perhaps, have said that during the whole of this time the Government in India and at home both believed it of extreme importance to put an end to the state of things which existed in the family at Russapugla, and if possible to their state of dependence. One idea was that the family should qualify themselves for public positions, but those who knew them gave up this expectation as hopeless, and the only other mode of relieving them from their state of dependence was to give them a permanent provision. Whenever a portion of the family died, the stipends were reduced, and thus at every death the Government had to take various circumstances into consideration and make a new allotment. The Court of Directors in 1854 expressed their opinion that any arrangement for making a permanent provision should be concluded only with the full assent of the members of the family to such a scheme, and accordingly the only surviving son of Tippoo Sultan came over to this country, represented himself as authorized to speak in the name of the whole family, and declared their desire to have an end put to their state of dependence on the Government. The first proposal made to Prince Gholam Mahomed was, that a sum should be capitalised in order to make a permanent provision for the families. Of these, there were, last summer, twenty-two grandsons with families, and thirteen great-grandsons with families. There were stipends payable to Prince Gholam Mahomed himself, and to various members of the family, servants, and others. Well, finally, it was arranged that a sum of money should be invested which would produce a permanent income of £17,160 a year. The sum was invested in the name of trustees, without whose consent no member of the family could touch a penny of the principal. Prince Gholam Mahomed asked nothing for himself; but he did represent that there were some younger branches of the family who were unable to maintain a decent respectability with the funds which they had. And for these, as a temporary measure, it was agreed to increase their stipends to some £12,000. This would fall in with their lives, and greater part of them were old men. In fact, two of them had died since, and no doubt in the course of a few years the stipends would all fall in. Then as to the removal of the family from Russapugla, he begged to say that it was not owing to any political motive, but simply to displace what had become a great social evil. They, however, could not remove without funds, and £40,000 was given to them to pay their debts, and £40,000 more to purchase residences elsewhere. This, then, was the arrangement that had been made, and bearing in mind that since the mutiny of Vellore, the Indian Government had been receiving £70,000 a-year from the territory, then taken, it was clear that a very considerable saving had been effected. He did not know any word strong enough to describe the obligation on the British Government short of a legal claim to provide for the descendants of Hyder Ali Khan and Tippoo Sultan. What had been done for them would relieve them from the state of dependence in which they had been placed, and would give them a strong inducement to qualify themselves for a position in society which they never would have attained as stipendiaries.

THE INDIAN LOAN.

Mr. BAILLIE having asked the Secretary of State for India to explain the discrepancy that existed between his own statements on the subject of the Indian Finances and those of the Governor-General,

Sir C. Wood replied that, according to the last estimate from India, the deficit at the end of this year would be £5,574,000. The statement put forward in India was erroneous to this extent—that it included in the disbursements upwards of £700,000 on account of compensations for the mutiny, which formed no portion of the annual revenue, but, being taken from the Treasury, reduced the balance accordingly. The deficit, or what he might fairly call the debt and charge of India for the present year, was £5,574,000, or, in round numbers, £5,500,000. This was very much better than he had anticipated when making his statement in August last. He now came to next year, as to which his hon. friend said he did not understand on what grounds he had arrived at the conclusion that expenditure and income would balance each other. The deficiency of £5,500,000 in the course of the present year would be partially met by the anticipated produce of £3,500,000 from the Income-tax. Of this £1,000,000, as he had said, would be received in the course of the present year; so that deducting the balance of £2,500,000 from the deficit of £5,500,000 it left £3,000,000 to be provided for. He had every reason to believe that the reduction of military expenditure was proceeding at such a rate in India, that next year they would be able still further to reduce it by £3,000,000. In 1859-60 the military estimates had been reduced by £3,000,000; £3,300,000 had been struck off in 1860-61; and in 1861-62 they hoped to reduce the amount by a further sum of £3,000,000. If, therefore, an increase of £2,500,000 was obtained, and at the same time a reduction of expenditure to the extent of £3,000,000 took place, his hon. friend would see that an equilibrium of income and expenditure would be established.

Sir H. WILLOUGHBY could not agree with the sanguine view of Indian finance taken by the right hon. gentleman, who had made rather "a prosperity speech." In a statement put forward by the Governor-general the income for the year 1860-1 was calculated at 39 millions and a fraction; whilst the expenditure was taken at 45 millions and a fraction—thereby leaving a formidable deficit. In the contrary opinion just expressed by the right hon. gentleman, he wished to know whether he had taken into account the famine with which a large tract of Indian territory, particularly in the North-Western Provinces, was afflicted? It was difficult to overlook such a misfortune at this; but the right hon. gentleman had not even alluded to it in asking the House to believe in his pleasant dream of a financial equilibrium in 1861-62. For his part, he did not in any way join in such sanguine expectations. The Governor-general in his statement alluded to the home charges, amounting to £6,983,000. Such an extraordinary sum required explanation; and he therefore wished to know whether the right hon. gentleman would place on the table of the House a document, showing in detail the expenditure of these charges. It would also be desirable to know what amount had been spent on the passage of officers and troops between India and this country, as he was informed that this item amounted to half a million.

Colonel SYKES wished to observe that there was now in India a latent feeling the existence of which was dangerous. It existed in the native mind, and was owing to the manner in which the Income-tax was levied. He had letters from various parts of the country—letters which spoke of the sentiments of the people from one end of India to the other—stating that the agents employed in levying the Income-tax did so, in many instances, under duress, and exercised their powers in a very tyrannical manner. He regretted extremely that that dangerous tax had ever been introduced into that empire, for it might have been done without.

THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS.—Captain Houghton, Superintendent of Port Blair, has sent to the Agricultural Society of Bengal an interesting account of experiments in the Andaman Islands. He has succeeded in rearing cotton and imphee, which promise abundant crops. The bark of the mangrove which covers the islands is used as a dye by the Chinese, and as the supply in the Straits is diminishing it will have no little commercial value. A convict has set up as a dyer. The palm, which furnishes the "attah" used by the Burmese for thatching purposes, and which produces a "toddy" and molasses, also abounds. In a quarter of a century the Andamans should be a tropical garden, and the fishery of their coasts produce sardines equal to those of the Mediterranean.

Terms—including French (acquired in Paris)—Music, Singing, Calligraphic Exercises, Dancing, and the various branches of a sound English Education, 70 Guineas per annum, paid, as in Continental schools, quarterly, in advance. Drawing or German, 6 Guineas per annum. Parents who are abroad, or otherwise necessarily separated from their Children, may secure for them a Good Education, and all necessary apparel, with every care and attention to Health and Morals, for the sum of 100 Guineas per annum, comprising everything educational and domestic. Each Pupil is required to be supplied with two silver forks, and one desert spoon, six toilet towels, and six table napkins, which will be returned. It being esteemed most essential to cultivate order and neatness, great attention will be paid to the personal habits and demeanour of the Pupils. The highest references and testimonials offered.

SUPERIOR EDUCATION for the DAUGHTERS OF GENTLEMEN in a FIRST-CLASS ESTABLISHMENT, West of London. Inclusive Terms, from Sixty to Ninety Guineas per annum. The system adopted combines the most approved features of the Colleges, with the discipline of the School. Professors of eminence attend for all the higher branches of English Instruction, all Accomplishments, and Foreign Languages. A French Governess is resident. References to Clergymen and others. Situation and Residence unexceptionable.

Address ALPHA, Messrs. LEADER and Cock's, 63, New Bond-street, London.

MILITARY AND NAVAL EDUCATION.—A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, resident at Brighton, RECEIVES a limited number of PUPILS, between the ages of Twelve and Fifteen, who may be destined for the Military and Naval Professions. With a view to this ultimate object, the entire course of Study, from the outset, is regulated expressly in conformity with the requirements of the Examinations at Addiscombe, Sandhurst, Woolwich, and Portsmouth; and every care is taken to direct special attention to those subjects likely to prove professionally useful in the future career of the Naval or Military officer. The Pupils are examined periodically in Mathematics by Professor J. R. Young, formerly of Belfast College, and Author of "A Course of Mathematics, Pure and Mixed, for the Use of Candidates for the Military and Civil Service Examinations," &c.; and also in Classics and Modern Languages by Scholars of repute. Prospectuses may be had of Messrs. ALLEN and Co., 7, Leadenhall-street, London.

MUMFORD'S CONCENTRATED CORDIAL ESSENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER.

The Cordial Essence, which is now taken in preference to all other preparations of Ginger, not only from its agreeable flavour, but from the value and certainty of its effects, will be found most useful in all cases of indigestion, spasms, heartburn, diarrhoea, irritability of the bowels, and in most nervous affections. To invalids suffering with impaired digestion from long residence in warm climates, and to those who are proceeding to India, this preparation cannot be too strongly recommended.

Prepared only by GEORGE MUMFORD, Chemist, 5, Bathurst-street, Hyde-park-gardens, and sold by all Chemists, in bottles at 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each; also in large stoppered bottles, for foreign use, at 21s.

THE PERFECT SUBSTITUTE FOR SILVER.—The real NICKEL SILVER, introduced more than twenty-five years ago by WILLIAM S. BURTON, when PLATED by the patent process of Messrs. Elkington and Co., is beyond all comparison the very best article next to sterling silver that can be employed as such, either usefully or ornamentally, as by no possible test can it be distinguished from real silver.

A small useful Plate Chest, containing a set, guaranteed of first quality for finish and durability, as follows:—

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay Mail, of the 26th January, fully confirms the worst apprehensions that have been entertained respecting the famine in the North-West. The Government, however, appears to be doing all that the most generous and enlightened benevolence could suggest, nor are the contributions of private individuals wanting in this terrible emergency. Even the wealthy natives are cheerfully co-operating with the European magistrates in affording relief to their countrymen, and mixed committees are working in cordial harmony to mitigate a calamity that, although foreseen, could not possibly have been entirely prevented. In a semi-official document published by the Lahore Committee, we read that—

In villages to the south of Delhi, and leading into the Goorgaon district, where there are little or no means of artificial irrigation, and the inhabitants depend entirely on seasonable rains for the sowing and growth of their crops, the distress is even now dreadful to think of.

Crowds of women and children, presenting the most miserable and emaciated appearance, may be seen spread over the jungles, sifting the earth for "Gekhroo" thorns, or picking the few berries left on the "Ber" bushes; while even these miserable sources of food are most failing. Grain of the most unwholesome description, which has been buried for years, and which the medical officers pronounce to be almost poisonous, is exposed for sale in the bazaars. Many poor creatures are found dead on the road side, and deaths from starvation are of constant occurrence. Families are off from their homes in search of food, and villages and districts are rapidly becoming depopulated.

The Government, notwithstanding its own financial difficulties, has already provided large sums of money for the employment of the labouring classes on roads, canals, and other works of a productive nature, but it is obvious that there is a large class of sufferers who can derive no benefit from these liberal measures. Owing to the late rebellion there is an immense and quite exceptional number of widows and orphans clamorous for bread, but without the means of purchasing a single meal. It is here that private charity gracefully steps in to complete the good work inaugurated by the constituted authorities. No doubt the comparatively small community of Englishmen scattered over India will do their utmost to lessen the horrors of starvation, but it must be remembered that their means are as limited as their numbers. If the people of this country, then, have money to spare for impoverished Syrians, burnt-out Hamburgers, flooded Frenchmen, and Portuguese ruined by earthquake or by war, they will scarcely hesitate to acknowledge that their own fellow-subjects in India have still greater claims upon them, and according to the measure of their means will hasten to supplement the wise benevolence of the Government.

Lord Canning arrived at Jubbulpore on the 11th January. His Excellency was engaged in holding durbars and receiving addresses, couched—as the Bombay Gazette happily remarks—in the style of the Orator Tertullus before the judgment-seat of the Roman Governor Felix:—"Seeing that by thee we enjoy great quietness, and that very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence, we accept it always, and in all places, most noble Canning, with all thankfulness."

Sir Hugh Rose was in the Upper Provinces, moving from station to station, and judging with his own eyes of the discipline, material discomforts, and absence of amusement on the part of the European soldiery.

In the Bombay Presidency Sir George Clerk was on a tour through Guzerat, where there is much that needs amendment. The political surveillance of Baroda is likely, it is said, to be re-transferred to the Bombay Government. One of Sir George's recent acts has given great satisfaction to the natives. He has appointed a committee, consisting of Captain Cowper, late Revenue Commissioner for Alienations, and Messrs. Mansfield and Rose, Revenue Commissioners for the Northern and Southern Divisions of the Presidency, to superintend a summary process for the settlement of all alienated revenue.

It is proposed to settle all claims to exemption from the payment of land revenue and all payments in cash to various descriptions of "huddars," to whom such a settlement will be an invaluable boon. We are not quite familiar, adds the Bombay Gazette, with the details of the scheme in contemplation, but we believe it is intended to impose an assessment on all rent-free lands to the extent of one-fourth of their annual value, and to confirm them to their holders, subject to no future scrutiny of any sort. It is also proposed to levy a "nuzzerana" on each successive change of names or holders. The treasury will largely profit by the contemplated change, and thus all the advantages of a new tax will be secured, with increased contentment among the people, and greater respect and popularity for the English Government.

The Hon. Samuel Laing, successor to the late Right Hon. James Wilson, as extraordinary financial member of the Council of Calcutta, arrived at that Presidency on the 10th January, and immediately proceeded to Government House, a wing of which had been prepared for his reception.

From Darjeeling there are no very definite tidings, but it is reported that the Dewan of the Rajah of Sikkim, the inveterate enemy of the English, has been compelled to flee for his life by the Bhootias whom he had assembled for aggressive purposes. This will probably bring about a satisfactory adjustment of all difficulties in that quarter.

The Wagheer campaign is also at an end—at least for the present. Perhaps it might now answer to try the experiment of good government—persuasion and self-interest being sometimes quite as efficacious as coercion.

MEMORIALS OF THE MASSACRED.

There are few of the spots in Northern India consecrated by Christian blood that should not be marked by the monuments which a nation erects to the worthiest of those who have fallen in its service, as well as by the tributes which affection pays to the great departed. Holier dust there is none than that which lies under the Cashmere Gate of Delhi; in the site of Wheeler's entrenchment and in the fatal Well of Cawnpore; in the Alumbagh and Residency Square of Lucknow, and in such spots as the Meerut Cemetery, Sealkote, Shahjehanpore, Allahabad, Jhansee, and Gwalior. The waves of the Ganges have long swept over the scene where the fugitives of Futteghur and Bithoor were slaughtered. Had a tithe of the courage which so long maintained the hovel at Arrah against the Dinapore sepoys been manifested in Europe, a long-enduring memorial of marble would have perpetuated the story to distant ages. Though the same heroism to the death which distinguished Christians in India in 1857 may be latent in the breast of every Englishman, it is only once in a millennium that an occasion arises to call it forth. Yet what is the truth in India? The dead are buried out of sight, and all goes on as before. None but the traveller from other lands now looks with emotion on the dust-driven plain of Cawnpore, or cares to turn aside beneath the tottering gateway of the Baillie Guard. Troops are peacefully reviewed, little children play, gay equipages roll past, and bands send forth mirthful music, on the spots where the doomed of Cawnpore were butchered, where Nicholson lies, where Neill fell, where Sir H. Laurence is buried. The past is forgotten, so that even the stranger finds it difficult to discover the scenes where a tragedy was enacted more full of human sorrow, more distinguished by Christian courage, than, let us trust, the world will witness for many a day. Men live at so rapid a rate in the East that a decade of India is equal to a century of Europe. Already Clive is to the India of 1861 what William of Normandy is to the England of Victoria. The antiquarian can more easily unearth the records of the days of the first Edward than the traces of Warren Hastings. In two centuries three great cities have been blotted from the face of India, and three others have sprung up, which, if abandoned, would be covered with jungle more dense than that which has buried Gour. We can track the footsteps of Sivajee by his rock forts, and dream over the glories of the House of Timour when we walk the streets of Delhi, gaze on the Taj of Agra, or wander among the fairy ruins of Futtehpore Sikri. But hitherto England's memorials in India have been all of brick. There is not one erection in masonry which will last fifty years without watchful care. It would seem as if even the massacres of 1857 were to pass away from the eyes at least of men without a memorial. It will soon be four years since the first Christian fell at Meerut. The admiration of comrades has covered the bones of Nicholson, of Neill, of Lawrence, and other heroes with stone. Filial piety has prepared a fit monument for the solitary grave of Havelock in the Alumbagh. But the Well, and the mounds near the entrenchment, at Cawnpore, are still marked only by the rude cross erected by the private soldier, and the plan which the Governor-general himself sanctioned for consecrating the hallowed ground, seems forgotten. Worse than this, the small burial-ground within the Residency-square of Lucknow is a receptacle for filth. There lie Lawrence and Banks and the heroes who died with them, but no one watches the spot. In one part it is overgrown with offensive jungle; in another the stench is so terrible as to forbid approach. And no one in Lucknow cares, for no one thinks himself responsible.

At last a monument is about to be raised to commemorate the massacre, the siege and the capture of Delhi. A sum of Rs. 13,000 has been subscribed for the purpose, and Major Maisey, of Umballa, calls for designs, which must be sent to him before 1st March next. On that monument will be recorded the opening incidents of the rebellion, the names of the Christians who fell in and around Delhi, details of the force who captured it, and the killed and wounded who suffered, a record of the siege and of the capture of the last of the great Moguls. On the rocky ridge between the city and the old cantonment, on the heights where 2,000 men so long upheld the honour of England, a historic memorial will be erected. Let the State double the sum, that it may worthily commemorate the greatest event in the military annals of Asia.—Friend of India.

THE FAMINE AND ITS PALLIATIVES.

As the season advances the calamity impending over some of the districts of the North-West Provinces gathers deeper shades and becomes invested with a more tragic interest. It is no longer a question of fact as to whether famine is to be met or no in the Northern Doab. On authority above all question or suspicion, the reality of the terrible visitation has been placed beyond doubt. In the details published in the supplement to the Gazette of the 29th Dec. a series of pictures of suffering are presented to us, so clear in outline and so vivid in colouring that none who look on them are likely to refuse to the sufferers their earnest sympathies, and, if need be, their abundant help.

Excepting only in the narrow tracts of country lying under the shadow of the Himalayas, and having their climatic condition influenced by the vicinity of the mountains, there has been no rain crop from lands naturally irrigated. It is only where artificial irrigation from wells, tanks, or canals is procurable that any food-grains have been raised for man or beast. Scores of miles of country are spoken of which present no green spots to the eye save here and there a few sickly patches of stunted wheat, living feebly on the limited water supply that is available, and promising a harvest that will be but a mockery to a people perishing of hunger. The cold weather crop—the great food crop of the provinces—has not been even sown in these stricken districts except under the influence of artificial irrigation. The aspect of the country generally was described, so far back as the end of November last, as that of vast arid plains where the soil has been baked to the hardness of iron and where all agricultural effort is paralysed. Whole villages are said to be migrating to less desolate territories. The last extremity of all, death by starvation, has not been unknown. "His honour has traversed the Doab diagonally," says the official report, "from Anoopshuhur to Muttra; the commissioner has travelled through it from Meerut to the south-western boundary of the division, seeing everywhere the same unmitigated state of drought." And if this was the condition of things on the 16th of November last, it is scarcely necessary to say that the lapse of six rainless weeks between that time and this must have intensified deplorably the misery of the people. Even those Christmas rains which usually make the season one of security and gladness to the native almost as much as to the European in the north-west, have this year utterly failed. There is now not a hope of mitigation from ordinary or natural sources to brighten the gloomy prospect that lies before us. Under these circumstances it seems to us desirable that we should make some endeavour to measure the true magnitude of the calamity. There is as much danger in exaggerating as in underrating it, and although it is undeniable that all data available for the investigation of the subject are liable to some doubts, it is still practicable to arrive at conclusions that will be of the highest value in directing our future course.

It is very important to note first that the famine is, correctly speaking, a local one. Its range is no doubt large, and the population it affects is numerous enough to make the difficulty of saving them from starvation most grave and formidable. Still it is unquestionable that the famine-stricken area is small in comparison with that of the districts adjoining it whence surplus grain may be attracted by famine prices. Hence we would hope for an effective palliative from that source. But all foolish interference on the part of ill-informed local officers with the natural flow of trade under conditions like those we have to deal with must be peremptorily checked. Such interference can have no other result than to aggravate the horrors of famine, while it inflicts a grievous injustice and wrong on the farmers and traders of the protected districts by depriving them of most profitable markets. So far as perfectly reliable information is as yet before us, we conclude that the famine is restricted in its greatest intensity to the districts of Seharunpore, Mozuffernuggur, Meerut and Boolundshuhur east of the Jumna, and Muttra westward of that river. Future experience probably will extend the range of the famine, but for the moment, at any rate, the above are the only districts in which its pressure is such as to have elicited official reports or to have required active measures to lighten it. To these districts, therefore, we request attention, and primarily to the extent of their population. The following abstract will serve to give a sufficiently accurate conception of this for all practical purposes.

	Agricultural.	Non-Agricultural.	Total.
Seharunpore ...	400,000	130,000	530,000
Mozuffernuggur ...	240,000	300,000	540,000
Meerut ...	300,000	460,000	850,000
Boolundshuhur ...	350,000	345,000	695,000
Allyghur ...	340,000	400,000	740,000
Muttra ...	860,000	340,000	700,000
Total ...	2,080,000	1,975,000	4,055,000

Although the statistics of the North-West Provinces may not be perfectly reliable, we shall not be far from the truth in assuming that the six famine-stricken districts contained a population of about four millions, distributed in very nearly equal parts between the agricultural and non-agricultural classes. It is on the two millions forming the first mentioned class that the calamity will fall with its most disastrous force; but no such great convulsion as is implied in their misery can possibly occur without producing the most serious distress among the traders and artisans of the towns and villages who form the main sections of the non-agricultural class. Hundreds of bonds link the two classes together in intimate union, and their adversity like their prosperity must be a common fortune. Hence we must expect that the suffering masses will be largely supplied from sections of the community not directly dependent on the land.

But a considerable deduction must be made on account of the population of those parts of the districts where artificial irrigation is sufficiently abundant to save the crops. After full consideration of this point we believe that about three-fourths of a million will fairly represent this fortunate section of the community. Further deductions must be made on account of persons having independent resources, of the number who will manage to subsist on reduced means and avoid absolute destitution, for emigrants who will leave the districts, and for those who on many miscellaneous grounds may be preserved from the necessity of appealing to public charity. Making, however, the largest and most liberal allowances for these numbers, it is impossible to conceive that they can exceed from about 1½ to 1¾ millions in all the districts together. We fear much that in assuming these figures to represent the aggregate of the classes capable of self-support we present too favourable a picture of the possibilities of the case, but taking even the highest, we come to the terrible conclusion that in a short time hence—perhaps in a month or six weeks—we shall have at the very least a million and a half of men, women, and children, between whom and death there will stand nothing but the helping hand of human charity.

What resources are available to meet this sad demand upon us? All the suffering districts except Muttra are traversed by canals of irrigation. Seharunpore, Mozuffernuggur and Meerut are in this respect doubly fortunate, since on one side they are watered by the Eastern Jumna Canal, and on the other by the Ganges Canal. Boolundshuhur and Allyghur are partially irrigated from the Ganges Canal only. The rivers supplying these canals are, however, in a sensible degree affected by the drought, and it is sometimes a matter of difficulty to fill them. The Lieutenant-governor laments that the failure of the Ganges Canal supply at the most critical period of the rain crop should have aggravated the general misfortune; but, for the cold weather crop the supply is as abundant as it is possible to admit with safety into the channel. The supply of the Eastern Jumna Canal has been continuous, both for the rain and cold weather crops. Whatever, therefore, of alleviation can be given at the present time from canal irrigation must be attributable to the Eastern Jumna Canal only, and it will not be before the very end of March or beginning of April next that the influence of the harvest saved by the Ganges Canal can be felt in the markets. The food-grains of the rain crop saved by irrigation from the Eastern Jumna Canal must have amounted to about a million of maunds, of which about 700,000 would be reserved for feeding the population of the Canal districts, while surplus produce to the extent of 300,000 maunds will have been made available for export, and would realise at present famine rates about a million and a half sterling.

It will give a more complete view, however, of the palliatives to be found in these canal works if we take their action for a complete year. The last is the best we can have, as its results must have influenced very materially the present state of affairs. In 1859-60 the produce of food-grains from lands watered by the Eastern Jumna Canal was, we are informed, in round numbers about two millions and a quarter of maunds. Of this quantity about a million and a-half must have been required for local consumption, leaving about three-fourths of a million of maunds for the markets of the distressed districts. Similarly the Ganges Canal must have watered land producing in 1859-60 about six millions and a-half of maunds of grains suited for food, and the largest estimate of the supply for local consumption within canal villages can scarcely raise it above 4½ millions, thus leaving two millions clear for export. Thus, then, these two canals contributed in 1859-60 to the food markets of the North West about 2½ millions of maunds of grains suited for the food of man, and a corresponding quantity of straw fodder for cattle. Their aggregate results during the present year will not be quite so high, both because of the failure of the Ganges Canal to protect the rain crop and of the influence of the drought on the volumes of the supplying rivers. Even, however, with these abatements, the beneficial influence of the canals has been and will be immense.

It is impossible to make more than the very roughest guess at the probable produce of the land beyond the influence of the Canals. We are told on the highest authority that it is only in the vicinity of wells or tanks that any crop at all exists. It must not be overlooked that the same drought which dries the soil to metallic hardness parches up the springs both of wells and tanks; and we greatly fear that, rigidly speaking, we ought to conclude that any palliative from well or tank irrigation is not to be relied on. In ordinary seasons the breadth of land under cultivation in the six districts is rather over five millions of acres, of which probably about three-fourths, or roughly 3¾ millions, are under food-crops in both harvests. It would, however, be a large estimate that would put the watered area—wells or tanks being the sources of supply—at one-tenth of the total area, and it is from this narrow field of some 375,000 acres only that even the most sanguine can look for any food grains in addition to those furnished by canal-irrigated lands during the current year. The yield per acre will be far below the ordinary average. Taking one kind of grain with another we doubt if more than one million of maunds could be calculated upon, even supposing that the wells continued moderately well supplied with water.

By the close of the present season, therefore, it may be expected that the districts will supply from their own interior resources about five or five millions and a-half of maunds of grain, which, however, it must not be overlooked, cannot affect the markets either within or beyond irrigated tracts earlier than April next. Now, for the whole food supply of the districts between, say, the 1st of January and the 15th of April, 1861, not less than 75,000 maunds daily, or about eight millions of maunds, must be provided, and of this quantity it is vain to look for more than about one million and three-quarters, or at the very utmost two millions of maunds, from the produce of the districts themselves, even with all the help irrigation can have given them. Hence six millions, at least, must be imported, either by private enterprise or by the action of Government.

We have previously estimated the proportion of the population which will be reduced in the course of the season to absolute destitution at about one million and a-half. It is possible that this number may only be gradually arrived at, and allowing for this we may take an average of only one million to be fed. Reducing rations of food to famine standard for men, women, and children alike, and economising to the utmost we think justifiable, we cannot see how life is to be maintained among them for those three and a-half months for any smaller supply of grain than about one and a quarter million of maunds, the whole of which must be issued either without return at all or for the only return these wretched people can offer—their personal labour. Now one and a quarter millions of maunds are fifty millions of seers, and taking superior and inferior food-grains together, it will probably not be excessive to assume the average bazaar rate at 12 seers for the rupee; whence we conclude that from 4 to 4½ crores of rupees, or £4,500,000 sterling, must be expended on food alone to avert the frightful possibilities of the next few months. The alternative is, that the people must be allowed to perish by tens of thousands while we stand by in pitiful imbecility. And even if we were to succeed in tiding the stream of misery over the immediate crisis, and suppose the sufferers to have all the help which the harvest to be reaped in the spring can give them, we have beyond that time equally dark prospects, if they be not even darker than have now to be looked at and thought of.

We leave these details to the consideration of our readers. We know well they will create among them a deep and universal sympathy. They will see that, tone down our descriptive terms as cautiously as we may, it is a calamity that cannot be painted otherwise than as awful which we ask them to contemplate. It has ceased to be imminent, and is among us with all its sad and ghastly features growing gradually larger and more stern. The measures of mitigation adopted by the Government are but as drops in the ocean. They scarcely penetrate beyond the merest surface of the misery, or meet it to even the tithe of its length and breadth. What are a few loaves and fishes among so many? Sixty thousand pounds is a generous donation even for a Government, and especially for a Government harassed on all hands by financial difficulties of the gravest kind. But its expenditure will barely be felt in mitigation of the great woe, and it must be multiplied fifty-fold if it is to produce any material impression upon it. The community, we believe, only awaits the signal from Government that its help is needed and would be welcome, to come forward with that broad and generous liberality which has never been known to turn away from a righteous appeal. And there are communities beyond our own who would at once open their hearts and hands to such claims as the present. We believe the time has come to state them with all the force which official authority can give to them. We trust very soon to see the Government and the community working earnestly together to lighten the great burden of suffering and sorrow which those unhappy districts will have to bear.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CALCUTTA ADDRESS TO THE HON. SAMUEL LAING.—A deputation from the public bodies of Calcutta attended at the Government House on the 16th January, to present the following Address to the new financial member:—"Hon. Sir,—We, the public bodies represented by the undersigned, desire respectfully to express our sincere congratulation on your arrival at this Presidency to fill the important office of financial member of the Council of the Governor-general of India. To those engaged in the trade and commerce of this city it is a matter of great satisfaction that the choice of a successor to the late Right Hon. Mr. Wilson should have fallen on one so eminently qualified to fill the post left vacant by the death of that lamented statesman. Your large experience in public affairs, particularly in those relating to trade and finance, and the broad and liberal views you have always held in dealing with those subjects, inspires us with confidence, and we entertain a well-grounded conviction that, in the consideration of many important matters now before the Supreme Government, you will be found a consistent advocate of the same enlightened and progressive opinions. We repose also great confidence in your high administrative abilities, proved as they have been not only by the efficient manner in which you have conducted the duties of the responsible office you have just vacated in her Majesty's Ministry, but also by the marked success which has attended those important industrial undertakings, in the management of which you have been actively associated. For the exercise of those abilities in the restoration of the finances of this Empire to a sound condition, there is wide scope. Much was done by the late lamented Mr. Wilson, and more would have been done, had it pleased Providence to spare him; but it was not so ordained. On you, hon. sir, has now devolved the task of carrying out those reforms in the financial system of the country which your lamented predecessor inaugurated, but of which he was not permitted to see the fruition. We rely with confidence on your ability to discharge the responsibility of this high mission, and we desire to assure you of our cordial support to measures adopted for this purpose, and having for their object the welfare and prosperity of all classes. Finally, hon. sir, we desire to assure you that it will be gratifying to us at all times to be invited to communicate with you on subjects of local or general interest, on which you may wish to obtain information from us."

THE MEERUT RELIEF FUND raised Rs. 4,054 up to the end of December. The magistrate, who is secretary, has applied to Government for a similar sum. All persons requiring relief who are able to labour are sent on to Roorkee. Nearly a thousand such passed through Meerut in one morning. As many of the starving lie down to die in obscure corners, the police have orders to search them out and send them to the poor-house.

CAPTAIN MILDMAY has offered the Church Missionary Society a house and grounds at Mount Abou, with a view to the establishment of a Mission among the Rajpoots and Bheels, especially the latter. The society have accepted the gift and the duty.

DOWLAT SINGH, the last of the Oude rebel leaders, was recently killed by two Porbeea sepoys who had long been his associates, but were induced to perpetrate the deed by a thakoor, who was himself a rebel in 1857.

COAL MINES.—The Governor-general has decided that coal mines are not to be liable to a revenue assessment.

THE HON. SAMUEL LAING, the extraordinary financial member of Council, arrived by the mail steamer Bengal on the 10th January. On landing he proceeded to Government House, a wing of which had been set apart for his reception.

JUBBULPORE, Jan. 7.—Jubbulpore is 236 miles from Mirzapore, to which it is joined by a very good pukka road, with trees planted on both sides, and called in the executive engineer's department, the Great Deccan, and it is over this road, the mail, with the overland letters, is carried from Bombay twice a month, via Poona and Nagpore, to the City of Palaces. There is also a waggon train carrying passengers and goods, conducted by the Howard Brothers, of Mirzapore, which leaves both ends of the line daily. The centre stations of the G. I. P. Railway Company from Bombay and East Indian Railway from Allahabad are to be here, and the ground is now being marked off. The military force consists of H.M.'s 97th Regiment, the 17th P. N. I., Money's troop of Horse Artillery, Alexander's Horse, Moxon's Police, and Hervey's Nujeebs. The public buildings are a church, a school, a racket court, two jails, the school of industry, library, a museum, a bath, and a theatre. The climate is mild, not being so cold as the N. W. in the winter and averaging ninety-six degrees in summer. The soil is extremely rich, and the finest wheat in the world is grown along the valley of the Nerbudda, extending from Jubbulpore to Hosingabad. The whole country is rich in mineral ores, and is destined, one day, to become the Birmingham of India. Iron and coal are so plentiful that a hundred companies would scarcely make any impression on the mines, and for centuries past the native smelters have been working the mines of Teindoo, Gurey, and Poona-gur, supplying half the N. W. Provinces with iron cooking utensils. Already is Mr. Blackwell, the manager of the Nerbudda Iron and Coal Company, at his post, and the machinery for his works, with his miners and others must be, by this time, in Calcutta. Railway engineers are to be seen all along the road from Asseerghur to Allahabad, surveying, staking, timber cutting, and all the other preliminaries for commencing the great iron road that is to connect the two great cities of the east. For many days past the place has been enlivened by the arrival of petty chiefs from Bundelkund and Central India, and to-morrow H.H. the Begum of Bhopal is expected, followed the next day by the Holkar of Indore, the Commissioner of Nagpore, and many other persons of note, and on the 11th the great gun himself, accompanied by our Commissioner, who went out on the 28th Dec., towards Rewah, to meet the Viceroy of India and his staff.

BANK OF BENGAL.—The half-yearly report of the Bank of Bengal shows that the accumulation of coin in the coffers of the bank is quite unprecedented—amounting to no less than Rs. 3,08,00,000. No available outlet could be found for the money. Trade was unusually depressed, and large stocks of the leading imports are still held at a depreciated value. The profits of the half-year amount to Rs. 3,51,429 13-3, yielding a dividend of Rs. 6-9-2 per cent. per annum on the bank's capital. The dividend, free of Income-tax, is declared at Rs. 6-8 per cent.

NEW DOCK AT KIDDERPORE.—The Hurkaru mentions that negotiations are going on for the purchase of several dwelling houses and lands for the proposed new Calcutta dock in the vicinity of Kidderpore. One large building and lands have been bought for Rs. 85,000. The estimate for the dock is about 15 lacs.

CIVIL SERVICE.—The State Secretary having recommended to the consideration of the Government of India that young civilians might be made available for service immediately after passing the examination in one language, and the Governor-general having received very favourable reports from the Lieutenant-governors of provinces, there is every probability of the suggestion being carried into effect.

TROOPS FOR ENGLAND.—The British ship Newcastle, engaged for the conveyance of troops to England, left Calcutta on the 12th of January with the following passengers:—Brevet-major Tisdale, H.M.'s 35th Regiment, and wife; Lieutenants Doering and Whitley, 6th Dragoon Guards and 88th Regiment; and 209 men, 15 women, and 15 children, H.M.'s British and Indian armies.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.—"We (Englishman), are informed that Mr. C. Sanderson, through unforeseen circumstances, has been obliged to decline the appointment of Secretary to the Commissioners of Income-tax; and that Sir A. de H. Larpent, Bart., has been appointed instead. This latter selection should give great satisfaction to the mercantile community of Calcutta, as it is in deference to the written recommendations of the leading members of some principal firms, we understand, that Mr. Grant has made this appointment. It will be gratifying to them to know how much consideration the Lieutenant-governor has for their wishes, and how ready he is to support their views, when they coincide with his own. At the same time, Sir Albert's well-known urbanity and inflexible good humour, which have supported him through many trials, will make him a popular secretary, and one whose amiability may even reflect some of its pleasantness on the disagreeable duties of his office." On this the Friend of India remarks:—"The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has, it is said filled up the vacant office of Secretary to the Income-tax Commission. Does Mr. Grant forget the bills sold at Meerut to the North Western Bank in 1847, in Lord Hardinge's time? Does he forget who was joint assignee with Ashutoss Dey of Palmer and Co.'s estate, and the £20,000 Ashutoss Dey had to pay? Can he forget the names of the directors of the Union Bank and the three or four hundred thousand pounds got for Cockrell and Co.? Is he ignorant of what would be the fate of these directors as the law now stands and after the history of the London and Eastern Bank? The mere rumour of the appointment has excited an outburst of feeling among the natives and Europeans of Calcutta. What adds to the difficulty is, that, in a weak moment, five of the leading mercantile houses were tempted out of compassion to give a certificate of integrity and fitness for the post, which has led to the appointment. In nothing so much as in giving certificates, are the minor moralities so often forgotten."

MILITARY MOVEMENT.—The left wing of the Benares Horse, the Mynpoorie Levy, and two guns, mountain train, have been ordered from Dinapore to Julpigoree under the command of Major F. Crossman.

THE PENAL CODE.—The Government of India notifies that the penal code is applicable to all non-regulation as well as regulation provinces. But only the substantive law will be affected by the code; it will not involve any change in the constitution of the courts, or in their mode of procedure, whether as respects original or appellate jurisdiction.

CALCUTTA PREVENTIVE SERVICE.—The officers of the Calcutta Customs Preventive Service have submitted a petition to Government for a redress of the grievances under which they have been suffering. They show that while trade has enormously increased since the service was established twenty-five years ago, work has become heavier and the cost of living higher, their position "has remained stationary in some respects, and in others certainly deteriorated." They enter upon Rs. 100 a month, and must serve twenty years before they attain to Rs. 200 a month. They have generally to remain on board vessels thirty to ninety days consecutively. They work twelve hours a day, whereas the term in England is only eight hours, and in winter seven hours. Their duties are of an arduous nature and require tact and address in their performance. The petitioners mention that Lord Stanley when in office viewed their case with commiseration. Their demands are not unreasonable:—an increase of pay "in such proportion, as may be deemed adequate;" a month's sick leave when requisite, on full pay, and subsequent months on half pay as at present; a reduction of the hours to the English standard and extra pay for extra work.

SEETAPOOR.—The Governor-general has sanctioned the formation of a Volunteer Rifle Corps at Seetaপুর in Nagpore; the volunteers are almost all members of the Uncovenanted Service.

MALWA.—The Governor-general has abolished the appointment of political agent in Malwa, and has placed the office in charge of an assistant political agent.

THE BOOTIAS of the frontiers have held aloof from the dispute at Sikkim as well as the Lamas. It is said that the Dewan, who is at the bottom of all the mischief, and who had assembled the Bootias with the intention of getting them to join in a war against the British, quarrelled with one of their chiefs, and was compelled to seek his safety by flight from amongst them.

GOVERNMENT SCHOOL AT LAHORE.—The list of prize-gainers at the Lahore Government school, at the examination of which the Lieutenant-governor presided, suggests strange contrasts. The school consists of two departments. In the upper school, established at the request of the Sikh Sirdars, the pupils consist of the sons of those only who have the right of entrée to the Governor-general's Durbar. The most successful boys were the sons of Rajah Tej Singh, the head of the old Sikh aristocracy, and members of the families of the late Raja Dena Nath Singh, and Rajah Shere Singh. The best conducted boy in the school was the son of our old and very ill-conducted enemy Moolraj, of Mooltan notoriety. The fees are only from one to three rupees a month, with an entrance fee of rupees five; sixty of the pupils are sons of the old Sikh nobility. This experiment is most important and its success a cause of congratulation, when we remember that in time these sixty lads will be invested with magisterial and revenue powers on their estates.

PUNJAB, Jan. 4.—You will have heard that the Indus tunnel is progressing rapidly; that is, rapidly for such an important work. Boring is going on from either side, and advancing at the rate of from three to four feet a day, both ways. The Commissioner of Peshawur has succeeded in bringing to reason a noted and refractory Momund chief who has been troubling British villages for years past. He has been even induced to pay "damages," in order to avert a threatened expedition against him. The reports from the Peshawur valley as to the future are very gloomy. No rain had fallen up to the latest accounts; and if the drought should continue for another ten days there will be no food for the people in that part of the country, where wheat is at times so abundant that it is left to rot on the ground for want of sufficient hands to reap it. The thermometer is rising gradually, and it is to be hoped the change which a rise usually indicates may come and save the people from the famine which undoubtedly threatens many districts under this Government. The Baree Doab Canal is doing its work well, or at least so much of it as is open—the right branch—towards Lahore. The main stream is still dry, and the works are not proceeding so rapidly as they might do, notwithstanding the numerous staff employed thereon. It is now said that some of the contract bridges will have to come down, being badly built. As it is, that part of the canal which is in operation will, in all human probability, avert the horrors of a famine in these parts of the country at least, and tend to alleviate the sufferings of the population of other parts not so well provided for.—Englishman.

Dr. EATWELL, Principal of the Medical College, is not likely to return to India. If he does not, it is probable that Dr. Chevers, at present Secretary to the Director-general of the Medical Department, will be appointed Principal, and Dr. Hugh Macpherson, of Dum-Dum, in that case, will be moved to the Secretaryship.

THE SHIP CONWAY, chartered by the Emigration Commissioners for the conveyance of soldiers' families from Liverpool to Calcutta, was, on the voyage, found to be in a sinking state, and was abandoned in lat. 36 deg., long. 19 deg. Happily no lives were lost. The crew and passengers were safely conveyed to Madeira by the ship Summer Cloud, but with the loss of all their clothing. The provision of the requisite clothing and sea necessities for these families has been authorised by the Secretary of State for India, and the Emigration Commissioners have engaged the ship Chatsworth for the conveyance of the families from Madeira. That vessel sailed from London with this object on the 30th October.

FORT WILLIAM.—A camp is to be formed on the glacis of the Fort for the reception of the troops returning from China, as they are expected daily. The Zuleikha was in the river on the 16th Jan. with Probyn's Horse on board.

SOME OF OUR READERS may be interested in seeing the rules and conditions laid down for the competitors for the design of the Delhi monument. They are as follows:—

1. The amount of premium will be Rs. 400.
2. The prize design and estimate will be kept by the committee; all others will be returned on demand.
3. Each drawing, and any written or figured papers, to be marked in the left-hand lower corner with some symbol or monogram, and not with the competitor's name or initials.
4. The same symbol or monogram, together with the competitor's name and address in full, to be enclosed in a sealed envelope, bearing on its outside the same symbol or monogram.
5. The drawings and estimates, as hereinafter detailed, to be sent to the address of Major Maisiey, Deputy Judge Advocate General, Umballa, Secretary Delhi Memorial Fund, on or before the 1st of March, 1861; the sealed envelope to be sent to the same address on or before the 15th of March, 1861.
6. The designs and estimates will be examined by competent parties, whose names will be duly notified; and, after selection, the sealed envelope corresponding to the selected design will be opened; the other envelopes will be destroyed unopened.
7. The style of architecture to be at the artist's discretion; subject only to the proviso that it be in keeping with the semi-funereal character of the monument.
8. It has been decided that the monument shall commemorate the mutiny and rebellion of 1857; the Delhi massacre; and the siege and capture of the city, which was the turning point of the campaign: provision must therefore be made for tablets, or compartments, (more or less numerous as may best harmonise with the design,) for recording the following particulars, viz.:—

First. The mutiny and rebellion, and their opening incidents.

Second. The names of the Christians who fell victims to the outbreak at Delhi, or in its vicinity.

Third. A detail of the force employed in the siege and capture, or in operations in support thereof.

Fourth. Lists of those who were killed, or who died of wounds or disease, during, or in consequence of the siege.

Fifth. The siege and capture of the city; and the subsequent capture of the royal family.

9. The site of the monument will be the rocky ridge between the city and the old cantonment.

10. The drawings to be furnished are,

1st. A general elevation.

2nd. Longitudinal and transverse sections.

3rd. Ground plan.

11. No figures, human or animal, to be admitted in the design.

12. Estimates to be based upon the Delhi rates for labour and materials for January, 1861; the secretary will request the executive officer at Delhi to afford any information on those points to applicants.

13. An application will be made to Government for the grant of marble and red stone; but, as the application may not succeed, the cost thereof must be allowed for in the estimate.

14. The amount hitherto received in subscriptions is Co.'s Rs. 10,700, and excluding unrealisable sums, fully Rs. 13,000 may be counted upon as available for the monument.

The amount actually subscribed considerably exceeds 13,000, but much is doubtless unrealisable; every effort will be made, however, to collect outstanding sums, and some new subscriptions may be expected, so that there is fair ground for hoping that more than 13,000 will be collected, though it is not safe to rely upon more than that sum.

FRED. MAISEY, Major,

Sec. Delhi Mem. Fund.

Dacca.—The appointment of an additional judge at Dacca for a further period of six months has been sanctioned by the President in Council.

OFFICERS' QUARTERS.—The Commander-in-Chief in India desires to intimate, for general information and guidance, that in all forts, entrenchments, or cantonments, where public quarters have been provided for officers doing regimental duty, on the scale prescribed for their rank, such officers are not at liberty to reject them; but on public quarters being available, all officers belonging to the troops ordered to occupy the barracks or lines in question, will be allowed (if necessary) three months to get rid of the bungalows or private houses they may be occupying, but after that period they will cease to draw the amount of house-rent deemed equivalent for the accommodation furnished for their respective ranks in the public quarters available.

INCOME-TAX MACHINERY.—The Government call for suggestions from the local governments as to the best mode of confining the knowledge of the incomes of tax-payers to the assessors by introducing a system of ciphers. Mr. Cooper, deputy commissioner of Delhi, pursues the following plan:—The general register is kept under lock and key, but the names and particulars of persons instead of being copied into the assessor's abstract appear in cipher. The tax-payer gets his receipts in cipher from the assessor who receives all money payments and pays in to the treasury in even sums daily so that it is impossible for the inquisitive to identify individual amounts. These arrangements cause much satisfaction among the people. The Government are desirous to extend this or a similar system throughout the country.

THE "BATTLE OF JUNGUL" CASE came before the Sudder Court recently, in which forty-three persons were accused of riotously resisting the Deputy-Magistrate of Comercolly, killing two men, wounding several others, and plundering property worth Rs. 199. This is another of the disturbances connected with indigo. The circumstances occurred in April last. Mr. Lingham, the deputy-magistrate, took a party of thirty or forty military police and peons to overawe the villagers. Though anxious to avoid bloodshed he was attacked by the ryots, and a struggle ensued, in which two hundred ball cartridges were expended. One of the villagers was killed and eight were wounded. Mr. Bayley, the Sudder Judge, sentenced four of the convicted prisoners to transportation for life, two to fourteen years' labour in irons with banishment, and the rest to ten years' with labour and irons in banishment.

THE INCOME-TAX AT BENARES.—We (Oudh Gazette) hear from Benares that a deputation headed by Rajah Deo Narain Singh, Rao Narain Doss, Baboo Gooroodoss Mitter, and others, has waited on Mr. Gubbins, the Commissioner of Benares, with the proposition that the inhabitants were ready to pay down one lac and twenty-five thousand rupees, as a lump-assessment of the Income-tax for the whole city, and thus obviate the necessity of the employment of Government agency in the collection of the tax. Mr. Gubbins referred the matter to the Lieutenant-governor who, though approving of the proposition, thought the amount too little. After some further reference, however, it was settled that 1,30,000 rupees should be paid. We are now informed that the head men of the people are levying the impost right and left in the city of Benares without any reference whatever to the income of individuals; those with less than 200 rupees per annum by no means enjoying the exemption provided by the Act. In short, we are assured that such an indiscriminate levy of the tax, or that may be more properly designated Black Mail, could never have been contemplated by Government when it accepted the proposition of the deputation, and the cry of oppression is great.

FRIENDS IN NEED.—A letter from Darjeeling mentions that the bridge thrown across the Runjeet by the Sikkimites was destroyed by Mumba Kajee, who has been handsomely rewarded by the authorities. The chief of the Lamas has sent in his adhesion, and has been presented with a khillut of twenty-five rupees. A road to the Runjeet via Zuring is being cut, and a number of lephas have been employed to watch all the fords of the river.

THE INDIGO PLANTERS' ASSOCIATION of Bengal during the past year raised the sum of Rs. 12,148 for their expenses by levying one rupee on each chest of indigo, in addition to personal subscriptions. On the main point of an increase of price given to the ryot for the plant, the report says:—"The committee think that it is not sufficiently known that the planters have come forward, and have offered fair and liberal terms to the ryot to cultivate indigo, fully as much as can be afforded, and giving as high if not a higher rate of remuneration to the cultivator than he receives in Tirhoot, in the North-West Provinces, in the Punjab, or in Madras." The committee for their own sake should give details. The report urges on the Government of Bengal the establishment of Small Cause Courts, and an improved and effective police. They declare their determination to agitate for "means of speedy realisation of full and fair rents for the landed property of the planters, for legal means of compelling the fulfilment of contracts willingly entered into, for the independence of judicial officers. They are entitled to demand these as rights, and they feel confident that they will obtain them from the Parliament of England, if not from this Government. When obtained, they do not fear the result as regards the value of the property of European settlers, whatever may happen with respect to the production of indigo in lower Bengal, for a short period."

BOLUNDSHUHUR, Jan. 5.—About the famine you will be sorry to hear that it does prevail to a certain extent up here. Atta is selling in the bazaars at 8 and 8½ seers for the rupee, and a coolie who gets two annas has a difficulty in providing food for himself and family. All eyes are turned to the heavens, which last night were overcast, but to-day the clouds have passed away and the hopes raised have not been realised. There is time yet if the rain would come, which we trust and pray it may. There is not a blade of vegetation but what grows in fields watered by wells, or by the canal. Thousands on thousands of acres are sown, but nothing has come up: villages too poor or lazy to have wells have been almost deserted, they say, by the people, who are making their way to more favoured districts. I have not seen them, but the people say chuprassees are down here with orders to send the hungry up to Roorkee, where Government is supplying work. A committee meets at Agra on Monday to see what assistance they can give. If they could fall in with more orphans and build up another Secundra they would do much good. But I cannot help thinking more efforts might be made by the Government for helping on the corn from the surrounding districts. I mean that they should do this by encouraging the legitimate trade in corn. If the rain does not fall in these districts, there will be a sad tale, but we will live in hope of better things. This part of the country has suffered terribly from the three chastisements that afflict men. In 1855 the pestilence, cholera, swept over it in a very destructive manner. In 1857-58 the scourge of war bore hard on it. And, lastly, in 1860-61 famine is already pressing on it and threatening a still more severe pressure. A little congregation has sprung up in Agra from the preaching of the simple Gospel by faithful missionaries—while no fruit attends the labours of the same men in the Missionary College. A second village in Meerut is listening cheerfully, and some fruit appears, while in Delhi the Baptists are working hard.—Hurkaru.

A GREAT CRICKET MATCH between Captain Vicars and ten of H.M.'s 68th in Pegu, and the Eleven of Calcutta, has excited much interest in Calcutta. The match closed on the 13th of January with the Pegu men as victors. The men of the 68th went in first and scored one hundred and ninety-two, of which Captain Vicars alone gained sixty-eight. After scoring only nineteen the Calcutta Club gave up the match, with nine crickets down. Captain Vicars deserves great credit for his careful training of his men, and for his "pluck" in bringing them up to Calcutta. One officer such as he in every European regiment, would reform the idlers in it.

SUDDER AMEENS AS REGISTERS.—The Government have decided that in future Principal Sudder Ameens shall be appointed registers of deeds in their respective districts as vacancies occur. At present there are seven vacancies which will be filled up in this manner. The registration fees, after the establishment charges have been deducted, will be carried to a general fund, which will be equally divided among all the Principal Sudder Ameens once a quarter. The Lieutenant-Governor has recommended this plan as an efficient means of registering deeds and as a suitable method of increasing the salaries of a deserving but underpaid class of officers; he estimates the increase, when the scheme is in full operation, at Rs. 150 to Rs. 200 a-month. The only objection to the plan is that all are paid alike, whether the work is heavy or light.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S CAMP, JUBBULPORE, Jan. 13.—"The escort and camp of his Excellency the Governor-general arrived here on the 11th; about two miles from cantonments his Excellency left his carriage and rode into the station, a procession being formed in the following order:—His Excellency the Governor-general and Staff, the Body Guard, Squadron 4th Bengal Cavalry, three guns No. 12 Battery, Bengal Artillery, two Companies, her Majesty's 75th Regiment, Cawnpore Levy, Squadron Jhat Horse. The garrison was under arms to receive him, and a street was formed by her Majesty's 97th Regiment, Alexander's Horse, and 17th Punjabees, through which the procession passed, while Major Money's Battery of Horse Artillery welcomed the Viceroy with a royal salute. There was a levee the same day for the officers of the garrison, and all went off with great eclat, in spite of the rain, which fell in showers during the day. Her Majesty's 97th amateurs gave a performance at the theatre on the 11th, which was very well attended. To-morrow there is to be a durbars, when all the native princes and chiefs, who have assembled here for the purpose, will be presented. We anticipate some good fun from the games, which have been got up by the officers with his Excellency's camp, for the soldiers of the escort; Lord Canning himself heading the list with a handsome subscription. The stewards are Major Balmain, 4th Cavalry; Captain Milles, her Majesty's 75th; Captain Hills, A.D.C. to the Governor-general; Lieutenant Swinton, Artillery (Secretary); Ensign Hennessy, Jhat Horse. The games will last two days, but the weather promises to be anything but favourable. It has rained now for twelve hours, and gives no sign of clearing yet." Another letter from the camp of the same date says:—"We are to have two durbars here—one for the Bhopal Begum and the small chiefs of the Jubbulpore division; and the other for Holkar, and the Nagpore people. The Begum is to be rewarded with a slip of territory; but Holkar, will, I believe, receive nothing substantial. It would be a good thing could we get him to give up some of his country south of the Nerbudda, through which the rail will eventually run; we have obtained this from Scindia. Rain has begun to fall here, and I hope it will be abundant and widely diffused. Grain is, however, cheap in these parts. The country is a very delightful one."—Delhi Gazette.

VOLUNTEER RIFLE MATCH.—The officers of H.M.'s 6th at Barrackpore have invited the first Company of the Calcutta Volunteer Rifle Corps, under Captain Malleson, to compete with the 6th in a rifle match on the 14th and 15th February. The volunteers will be provided with tents on the Barrackpore plain. Their rifles have only now been served out to them, but they will have daily practice for the next five weeks. The element in the volunteer movement, which will make it permanent, is competition in rifle shooting. It is this which has given the movement such an impetus in England, enlisting as it does every sportsman, and calling forth the emulative principle. This will be the second volunteer rifle match in India. The first was held at Lahore.

THE HON. CAPTAIN ARBUTHNOT has been appointed to the command of the European Invalid Battalion at Chunar, vice Colonel Blake, deceased.

MEERUT.—Jan. 10.—The booming of artillery yesterday morning announced the advent of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief at half-past seven o'clock. The camp had preceded the chief, who came in by carriage dakh within a few miles of the station, from whence he rode in, accompanied by all the big wigs of Meerut. A levee was held in camp at twelve o'clock. His Excellency inspected the Carabineers, and had a review in the evening of all the troops present, which was an imposing sight; and I hear Sir Hugh was highly gratified with the manoeuvres of the troops. He has in an eulogistic speech to Colonel Custance bid the gallant Carabineers "good bye," and permitted them to march to-morrow (Sunday), the 20th, en route to England. The head quarters camp will move on towards Delhi on Tuesday morning. The Artillery Mess-house had a grand "house warming" to welcome the chief last night. There were some 200 guests present on the occasion; the house, the finest building in the country, suitably decorated and brilliantly illuminated, was alive with music and dancing till daylight. I hear the officers of the 35th are about to have a "great spread," and will be honoured by the Commander-in-Chief's presence also. Clouds hover about and tantalise us with prospects of rain looming in the distance, and we are nearly starved already.—Delhi Gazette.

DEHRA, Jan. 9.—Robberies are rife here just now. The village of Raipore, about three miles from Dehra, was attacked by Dacoits about three weeks ago. The Zemindar's house was attacked by a gang of about forty men, and cash and jewels to the extent of about four thousand rupees worth carried off. The robbers have not been traced; but they are supposed to have come from beyond the limits of the valley itself. Dehra has always been somewhat notorious for robberies. The numerous tea plantations and public works afford employment for a large gang of men, who come from Oude and other places, whose antecedents are unknown, and whose ostensible employment gives them the excuse of honest work; while the wildness of the country allows large bodies of men to move about unobserved while proceeding to effect their robberies, and safe hiding places for the goods after they have stolen them. It is to be hoped, however, that the new system of police, which has just been introduced here, will put a stop to these robberies, and if they do take place, will put a stop to the curious after-circumstance which has hitherto attended them, of the robbers never being traced. The new system of police provides for a class of detectives. With a change in the system of police has come a change in the officers. The able and energetic officer, who raised the corps of military police here and brought it to a high state of efficiency, has been transferred to a higher appointment. He carries with him the good wishes of the whole station. There was a fall of rain here on the 8th inst. It was very slight, however. It is to be hoped that it was heavier in the plains, where it is so much more wanted, as in the Doon there is no risk of failure of crops, so far as the influence of the canals extends, which is to the chief part of the cultivated area. Bears are beginning to be driven down from the hills by the increasing cold, and four or five have been shot by native shikarees. A young lady, when out riding the other morning, met with an unfortunate accident; her horse kicked and threw her, and she broke a collar bone. Major Plowden of the (late) 3rd Bengal Cavalry died the other night at the hotel here. A house was burnt down at Mussoorie the other day. The fire could be plainly perceived from here, as it was one of the houses overlooking the Doon. Dehra is every year becoming more and more a favourite winter residence. House property is consequently rising in value. Rs. 80 a-month are given for houses that would not let for Rs. 30 a-month at Agra. Need I say more in describing its attractions than to mention that there are fifteen spinsters here? I may be permitted to add, however, that the Sirmoor battalion band is rapidly arriving at perfection; its progress is, indeed, most wonderful, considering that it was established by the officers only about six months ago, and it may be allowed to be combined with the attraction to which I have already alluded. Tea plantations are rapidly rising on every side; there are now in an advanced state some six or seven large ones.—Delhi Gazette.

DESERT AT A DISCOUNT.—As an example of the total disorganisation of market rates prevailing under ordinary circumstances, we are informed that the coarser kinds of Kabul dried fruits are selling at Umritsur cheaper than Atta, while piece goods are selling at Bombay and Calcutta quotations. On the other hand, those engaged in the wheat trade are realising large sums of money, which will, in due course, add materially to the general prosperity of the Punjab, though, of course, the poorer inhabitants are suffering from the very circumstance that is enriching those who are in a position to export, and profit by the demand in the North-West Provinces and in Rajpootana.

ANARKULY, Jan. 12.—I am glad to be able to inform you that since I last wrote we at Lahore have had two slight showers of rain, and that there is every probability we shall have another to-day, for the clouds are hovering about in thick clusters, and by their dark appearance indicate something of the kind. Although the rain we have had has been very slight indeed, it has still done service, for things have become a little cheaper; for example, gram sold at 15½ seers per rupee before, and 16 seers after the first shower. The Lieutenant-governor has directed the grant of two lacs of rupees to be given to Sultan, contractor, for the purpose of employing the labouring classes of the Lahore district in the construction of new works. A fund has also been established for the relief of the poor, to which Sir Robert has subscribed the munificent amount of Rs. 250 per month, to be doubled if necessary. Under instructions from the Supreme Government the Inspector General of Hospitals has directed that in future none but public servants are to be supplied with medicines from Government dispensaries. This was first proposed by Mr. Cust, who, however, charitably recommended that in emergent cases medicines might be given if the persons requiring them would go to the dispensary; or, as he might have better and more clearly expressed it, "might be given in charity to the paupers of the uncovenanted body." The members of that body resident in Lahore have, therefore, established a medical depot, from which they will procure their medicines at the prime English price, and be perfectly independent of Government.—Delhi Gazette.

THE FRONTIER, DERAJAT, Jan. 11.—The frontier is quiet, but the blockade against the Mahsood Wuzerees is maintained; and as these fellows are still plucky enough to keep our outposts on the qui vive, it is not at all improbable that Brigadier General Chamberlain may stay another year (and that he may long command the Punjab Infantry Force is the universal wish), and lead our army a second time to Kanegorum. He must chafe at the unsubdued attitude of the gallant Mahsoods, whose hills and fastnesses he traversed and overran in the face of their banded tribes, in chastisement of manifold aggression on our border. They fought us well, and on a grander scale than we were ever before engaged in on this frontier. They tried our troops, too, to the utmost, and, if equally well armed, would have beaten and scattered the invading force, as certainly as they thrashed and kicked out a Sikh army a score of years ago. It will be a new chapter in our border annals if our troops have again to enter the Wuzerees country, as one visit has never hitherto failed to subdue a hostile tribe; but though these fellows were thrashed soundly both by Lumsden and the General, they still "square out" at the latter from the tops of their hills, while the General shakes his fist at them through a telescope from the top of Shekh Boddeen.

THE "NEW NORTHERN INDIAN TURF CLUB" has been revived, with Sir C. Oakley, of the 5th European Cavalry, Meen Meer, as secretary.

CAPTAIN BATTYE, of the 11th Punjab N. I., has been appointed postmaster-general of Scinde and the Punjab.

FIELD OFFICERS' EXAMINATION.—The Mofussilite understands that boards composed of experienced field officers (holding command of regiments) of her Majesty's British forces are about to assemble at the different large stations of the army, such as Meerut, Umballa, Lahore, Peshawur, &c., for examination as to their professional qualifications—of the field officers of her Majesty's Indian forces. This examination will, in the first instance, only embrace the examination to which Lieutenants in her Majesty's British forces are invariably subjected, before they can be recommended for companies.

A FEBRIFUGE.—The Indian Field mentions a febrifuge indigenous to this country which may be advantageously used until the cinchona is naturalised; it is the bark of the common Neem tree. The mode of using it is thus described:—Two ounces of the bark to be well bruised and then infused in a pot, the dose being a wine glassful every three or four hours. The proportion of water required is not stated.

HUZAR SING, chief of Moleem Poonjee, a small State near Cherra Poonjee, has—says the Englishman—been oppressing his subjects so severely, that many residents of Moleem Poonjee petitioned for leave to dethrone him, and to elect another in his place. They accuse him of drunkenness, incapacity, extortion, murder, and, above all, of refusing assistance to the British authorities when it was demanded of him. The agent of the Governor-general N.E. frontier, recommended that the protection of the Government should be withdrawn, and the people be allowed to elect a new Rajah. The Supreme Government has sanctioned this recommendation. This Huzar Sing was some time under charge of Government as a minor, and is another proof of unsuccessful management in the education of minors.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PROVINCE OF ALWAYE.—The Cochin Courier contains an account of the small and little known province of Alwaye, about twenty miles by river from the town of Cochin. When the latter place was besieged and taken many of the Dutch inhabitants fled to Alwaye. In this fertile spot they settled and built neat villas along the banks of the stream. There, even to this day, are to be found some of the descendants of the old Dutch grandees. Among others a Mr. Vandersluyt is now the owner of a plantation, who is the lineal descendant of "Rip Vandersluyt," the governor of the Dutch possessions in Cochin, and long the terror of the Malayalam population. It was in those old times that a Dutchman conceived the idea of introducing the coffee plant into Alwaye. He succeeded, and the place is now one rich coffee plantation. The planters have begun to live in Cochin, and Alwaye is used chiefly as a holiday resort.

HYDERABAD.—At Secunderabad, near Hyderabad, Deccan, it is reported that the Governor-general has appointed Mr. Saunders, the Commissioner of assigned districts, to Mysore, in room of Sir Mark General Cubbon. Mr. Saunders came down to the Deccan from Rawul Pindia in the Punjab. Although he had been only a few months in the Hyderabad Commission, all his colleagues admired his qualities for governing. Rumour has it that there is a possibility of Major Balmain succeeding as Commissioner of the Hyderabad assigned districts. This officer belongs to the Madras artillery, and has been many years attached to the Hyderabad Contingent. Subsequently, as Deputy Commissioner Raichoor Doab, he resigned, it is believed, owing to ill health. He has recruited himself in England, and it is believed is now in Calcutta, or perhaps at Nagpoor. The Hyderabad Deccan races are to come off at Mozl Aldy in January. The Jarfilces muster very strong. I hear the President has ordered some horses. Consequent on the Bombay forces reaching Aurungabad, the station of the Nizam's contingent, the forces of the latter quitted the place, and have marched for Akala, the new civil sudder station of West Berar, Zillah, Hyderabad assigned districts. Brigadier Hill, commanding the contingent, and his brigadier Major, Captain Hoseason, reviewed the troops at Ellichpoor, and went to Omrowtee. The brigadier there received orders to proceed towards Akala, and select a site for the Aurungabad force. The site chosen is rumoured to be near Akala. The deputy commissioner, Captain Allardye, is at the Suddur Omrowtee. His late assistant, Mr. Bell, is out on jumabundy towards Burroor Talooks. The second assistant, Mr. DeGaerber, is out towards Karingee. The West Berar deputy commissioner, Captain Hamilton, is at Ballapoor. His first assistant is deputed on special duty towards Jaulnah. That great millionaire Bunssee Lal Ameerschand, Rai Bahadur of Kamptee, has had about 70,000 rupees of treasure plundered in the Nizam's country, between Jaulnah and Omrowtee. It is believed that the Madras troops from Jaulnah have not yet received orders from their own Government to abandon the station. The Nizam's contingent from Bolaram are near Jaulnah."—Public Opinion.

MANUFACTURING STEEL AT BEYPORE.—The Madras Examiner states that the East India Iron Company has erected at Bey pore the necessary apparatus for manufacturing steel by the Bessemer process, viz., converting vessel, blowing engine, tilt hammer, &c. The two first experiments succeeded. "A quantity of pig iron was charged in a reverberatory furnace, and from thence, when fluid, allowed to run into the converting vessel; powerful jets of air from eleven small tuyeres were, for about twelve minutes, forced through the metal; the converter was then tapped, and its contents received into a ladle, whence, by a simple and ingenious contrivance, they were quickly transferred to suitable ingot moulds, and the resulting produce was good cast steel." No country in the world is so rich in ores as India. The difficulty of climate in working them may be overcome, but that of the want of lime will always operate against a large manufacture.

BOMBAY.

MISCELLANEOUS.

GREAT EASTERN HOTEL.—A company is in course of formation in Bombay for the establishment of a great Eastern Hotel, to meet the increasing wants of the Presidency. The site proposed is a reef of rocks in Back Bay, and the form of building suggested is a cross, with the wings stretching north and south, and the front facing the sea and exposed to the westerly breeze. The proprietor of an existing hotel is among the shareholders. Such an undertaking if prudently managed ought to succeed. The question is one of expense.

LIEUT. C. R. KENNEDY, of the 2nd Bombay Light Cavalry, married a Mussulman woman at Rajcote in 1854. In March, 1859, he went to Damascus for the benefit of his health and to study Arabic with a view to a staff appointment. There he gave out that his mother was a native of India, and that he had a Mussulman wife in Bombay. The British Consul thus describes his life in Damascus:—"He resided for about three months in a Christian house in the city, where he rigidly observed the customs of Mahomedanism, and strictly kept the fast of Ramadan. He then married a Mussulman woman and went to lodge with her family. A few days after his marriage he received news of his father's death in England and went thither; in a little more than three months he returned, and after a short residence went to India." The Consul heard from common report "that amongst his Mussulman friends he criticised severely the conduct of the Indian Government towards the native chiefs and sepoys, and that he also spoken disparagingly of the Christian religion." These facts were first made public by the Syrian correspondent of the Daily News. On his final return to India from Damascus he travelled as a Turk, taking a deck passage on the Emeu. When he reached Bombay he was called on for an explanation; and he wrote a letter publicly contradicting the report in the Daily News, which Sir George Clerk pronounced "perfectly satisfactory." But Sir Charles Wood, on receiving the papers in the case, applied to the consul at Damascus, whose letter, quoted above, re-opened the whole question. Lieutenant Kennedy was examined by Major Taylor in the presence of two officers at Neemuch; failed to explain the facts in the consul's statement; acknowledged that he had lived as a Mahomedan, but denied that he had spoken against the British Government. In justification of what he had done, he cited the example of Captain Burton, who, as a Mussulman, made the pilgrimage to Mecca. Sir Charles Wood directed Lieut. Kennedy's name to be struck off the Army List, and he is to receive his pay for six months to enable him to leave India. Mr. Kennedy demands a military court of inquiry. As no proof except "report" is adduced of his having spoken against the British Government, the crime of which he is guilty is only that of living as a Mussulman and bringing the British name into disrepute when he was known to be an English officer. A court of inquiry should have been granted to prove the heavier charge.—Friend of India.

SEDA SHEVAGHUR HARBOUR.—Surveys effected by officers of the Indian navy and by professional engineers make it clear that, with the exception of Bombay, Sedashevaghur has no rival on the Western coast. The roadstead is, as at Bombay, sheltered by several islands on one side, and by Carwar Point on the other, and thus is formed the only port between this place and Galle, along the whole length of the terrible Malabar coast, where vessels of large tonnage can anchor safely in a south-western monsoon. The surveyors suggested that the various islands should be connected by small breakwaters, leaving only one entrance, nearly half-a-mile wide, with six fathoms of water in all parts of the harbour. Sir George Clerk having visited it has decided to leave the harbour as it is, and improve the means of communication with the inland cotton districts. Apart from financial considerations this is most wise. Good roads would allow Indian cotton to reach Manchester a penny a pound cheaper than it now does. This is all that is wanted to make Lancashire independent of the Slave States.

INDIAN NAVY.—The Bombay Gazette mentions changes in the command of the chief stations of the Indian Navy. Commander Balfour, in the Victoria, will have charge of the Indus flotilla, Commander Drought, of the Clive, will be the new Commodore of the Persian Gulf Squadron, and Commander Cruttenden will probably go to Aden.

SIR MATTHEW SAUSSE.—The Chief Justice of Bombay has spent his vacation tour in examining the practical working of the Zillah Courts in the Ahmedabad district. The information thus acquired will be of use when he presides over a High Court, some of whose judges have to administer regulation law.

SURGEON J. PEET, M.D., has been confirmed as Principal of the Grant Medical College and Professor of Medicine in that Institution.

MIRACLES AT GOA.—Can we wonder at the degradation of the descendants of the Portuguese in India when their spiritual leader and superior, Antonio Jose Pereira, "Vicar-general and Acting-governor of the Metropolitan Archbishopric of Goa, &c., &c.," declares, after official investigation and strict sifting of the evidence "of a sufficient number of credible witnesses," that eight miraculous cures were wrought last year at the opening of the shrine of St. Francis Xavier at Goa? Among them one boy, nine years old, born with a serious defect in the left foot, was cured by kissing the mummy's feet. A girl of thirteen, who since 1855 had lost the use of her right leg and used crutches, was cured by applying the withered member to the mummy's feet. A girl of nineteen when dying, a man of fifty with tetanus, a spinster of sixty with paralysis, a widow who was a paralytic for twelve years, a boy of eight who could not walk, and a man of twenty-four who was a lunatic, were all made whole by kissing the dead man's feet.

GAYE'S (THE 4TH) TROOP B. H. A., has been ordered from Poona to Kirkee. This move will afford increased accommodation to the Fusiliers, the families of which gallant corps are still very much inconvenienced for want of room.

THE 15TH REGIMENT N.I., which corps recently left Poona for Aden, have arrived there all well. The vessels conveying the regiment arrived at Aden as follows:—The Victory, eleven days after departure from Bombay; the Ben-coolen in thirteen, and the Clyde in seventeen days. The two latter vessels left Aden with portions of the 29th Regiment N.I. for Bombay en route to Poona on the 6th and 8th January respectively, and as they will take from thirty to thirty-five days to reach Bombay, they are not expected until after the 10th of February. The weather at Aden was delightful, and the officers of the 15th N.I. gave a grand ball to the station on the 3rd of January, to inaugurate their arrival and to speed their parting guests of the 29th.

BARODA.—It is not unlikely that Baroda will be re-transferred to the Bombay Government. The Bengal authorities find the State difficult to manage; and as we have now a Bombay Officer installed in the residency, it is desirable, in a variety of ways, that the change should be made. It is probable that Sir George Russell Clerk, during his tour through Guzerat, will make the necessary arrangements for the transfer. At all events, some such measure is in contemplation; the unsatisfactory conduct of the late and former Waghar campaigns having rendered it absolutely necessary. The present resident of Baroda is altogether unfitted for advising the Guikwar as to the policy to be adopted with regard to the refractory Waghurs; and as the Bombay Government are unable to interfere in the matter, the stupid mismanagement in Kattiawar is scarcely a matter for wonder.—Telegraph and Courier.

MR. JOHN CONNOR, Barrister-at-Law, having on the 14th January taken the oaths of allegiance and supremacy, was admitted to practice as an advocate of the Bombay Supreme Court.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS.—We (Poona Observer) are informed that H.M.'s 83rd Regiment at Belgaum have received their orders for returning to England, and they expect to leave for the Presidency very shortly. There are various rumours as to what regiment will relieve them at Belgaum, but the most probable one appears to be that either the 33rd or the 4th Foot will do so. In consequence of the 64th and 83rd Regiments being both under orders to return home, it is said the 28th will stand fast at Nusseerabad. In this case, as two European regiments is more than is now required in Guzerat, either the 4th or 33rd Foot will be sent to Belgaum. A rumour has also been current that the 95th Regiment, which arrived at Poona on the 21st of Jan. from Neemuch, would be sent on to Belgaum, but we consider this highly improbable, as they have only just come off a long and fatiguing march.

SCINDE COTTON TRADE.—As the cotton trade of Scinde expands, Kurrachee will receive attentions from the Manchester cotton kings, whose interest, if once obtained, will be the making of the place. Scinde grows cotton herself, but not more than she consumes, and so does the Punjab; why these two fine provinces should not produce the staple for export is a question for the revenue officers to answer. We think if the ryots were only encouraged and informed of the price the Kurrachee merchants would give for the article, they would willingly cultivate it to a greater extent than they do now. We remember looking over a pamphlet some months ago, published by Dr. Charles Watson, read by him before the Society for the Encouragement of Arts, in which he stated that Kurrachee in a few years' time, from its cotton and flax exports alone, would be one of our largest harbours for shipping in the East. We well know that in these parts Onde, and in Rohilcund, consideration connected with the soil, the climate, and the past history of the country, tend to the conclusion that, by irrigation alone, can we expect to obtain any extensive supplies of either native or exotic cotton. Sir John Lawrence stated in one of his reports, that in the Delhi division from 224lbs. of clean cotton has been grown on some lands by irrigation; and in Rohilcund, without this aid, large crops are occasionally obtained. The average yield per acre in the north-west is estimated at 162lbs., and it must be noted, that although many plantations in the United States yield from 200 to 400lbs. per acre, yet the average yield of all the cotton States is not more than 630lbs. of seed cotton, or from 182lbs. to 172lbs. of clean. We know in the Punjab that excellent cotton can be produced there, as also flax, a gentleman just having arrived at Umritsar to begin the cultivation. But Sind is par excellence our greatest cotton growing district; in no part of India is the regulation of moisture under greater control, and there can be no doubt that with more attention to the selection of seed, and other points connected with the cultivation of the plant, it may eventually furnish some considerable supplies to this country. We all know that prior to the introduction of machinery our export in cotton was large, whereas at present what was our own manufacture by machinery necessitated the adoption of the long staple cotton supplied by the Southern States of America, and known as New Orleans cotton, and therefore it ought to be our object to establish the cultivation of this latter variety in this country as much as possible.—Our Paper (Kurrachee).

THE INCOME-TAX IN SURAT.—The district assessors of the Zillah of Surat have completed their work of assessment and returned to their substantive appointments. The assessments amount to Rs. 13,00,000, yielding Income-tax to the amount of Rs. 52,000 a-year. In the city of Surat the example made of the Income-tax rioters has had a very good effect. About one-half of the whole year's tax has been collected without a single distraint or compulsory measure being adopted. Most of the rich citizens have elected to pay for the whole year in one sum, so as to avoid the periodical visits of the tax-gatherer. The amount already paid in is nearly Rs. 35,000.

MILITARY RUMOURS.—The Poona Observer has heard it rumoured that, on the return of Colonel Green to this country, he is to be appointed to the command of the first brigade that may fall vacant, and that he will be succeeded in the office of Adjutant-general of the Army by Lieut.-colonel W. H. Kirby, H.M.'s 94th Foot, Military Secretary to his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief. It is also rumoured that on the amalgamation of the armies in May next, Colonel R. Phayre, Quarter Master-general of the Army, will retire from the service. On the retirement of Colonel A. Rowland, Commandant of Artillery at Kirkee, which our contemporary understands will shortly take place, Colonel G. J. L. Buchanan, Royal Artillery, will be appointed to succeed him.

MR. LYTTELTON HOLYOAKE BAYLEY, who arrived in Bombay on the 21st January from Melbourne, was on the 22nd sworn in before Sir Joseph Arnould to practice as a barrister of the Supreme Court.

MR. JOHN RITCHIE, agent of the P. and O. Company at Bombay, is appointed superintendent of all the agencies of the company abroad. Mr. Thomas Black, who arrived by the last mail, is appointed agent at Bombay, in succession to Mr. Ritchie. Mr. Macaulay, assistant agent, goes home on leave.

H.M.'s 95TH REGIMENT.—The head quarters wing of this regiment arrived at Poona on the 21st of January from Neemuch, and have taken up their quarters in the Ghorpoorie barracks.

IMPORTS (Bombay, Jan. 26).—Piece Goods.—Owing to the want of demand from the up country, and the tightness of the money market, the market for Piece Goods has become dull, and sales consequently have been very limited. Yarns.—The market for Yarns is very dull. Both Mule and Water Twists are out of demand for the present, and the former has receded in price, while the latter is still held at former rates. Turkey Red and Orange Yarns are steady in position and value. Green is quoted lower. Saffron.—Extremely scarce, and held at very high prices.

EXPORTS (Bombay, Jan. 26).—Cotton.—The market continued very firm and without transactions until a few days ago, when, on the receipt of favourable advices from Liverpool, holders raised their demands, and the transactions have since shown an advance of Rs. 4 to 5. Stocks of Old Cotton have become much reduced; parcels of the New Cotton are coming in freely. Wool.—The market has become less active, and inquiries have fallen off, owing to the want of money. Superior qualities maintain their former prices, but the value of the other descriptions has declined. Oilseeds.—Linseed has been well maintained by the demand of the home market, and the prices which had been reduced in the early part of the fortnight have been recovered. Rapeseed is in limited inquiry, and has receded in price. Teelseed is held for Rs. 26 1/2. Ground Nuts have a small inquiry at our quotations. Niger and Poppy Seeds are not to be had at market. Hemp.—Scarce, but in limited request. Pepper.—Scarce, and held for higher prices. Saltpetre.—Seinde is offered at former prices; Mooltan being scarce, has risen in price.

No. 1,115.—Letter from the Secretary of State for India, dated July 30, 1860.

"I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 107, dated 17th May, 1860, submitting certain questions in regard to the promotion of the young officers who have been placed on the General List under the instructions contained in my despatch No. 343, of the 30th September, 1859, and to inform you in reply, that in order to meet the difficulty which has arisen from some of the young officers in question having arrived in the country before others who stood above them on the General List, it has been determined that the officers shall be permitted to reckon the time qualifying for promotion from the date of sailing from England, which date also regulates their standing in the army.

"2. In the case of infantry cadets who have passed through the College at Addiscombe, the year's service qualifying for promotion will be held to commence from the date of their last public examination.

"3. The promotion of the ensigns on the general list will date from the vacancy, provided that they have completed the requisite service, otherwise from the date of completion of such service.

"4. The promotion of the posted ensigns will be regulated by the established usage of the service, as stated in para. 2 of your despatch."

OFFICE OF PRESIDENCY PAYMASTER.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

THURSDAY, February 21, 1861.

THE TRADING CLASSES IN OUDE.

THE Report on the Incidence of the Trade-tax in Oude curiously illustrates the condition of the industrial and trading classes in that province. Out of a population of probably five millions of inhabitants, 442,952 individuals have proved liable to this tax, though the average rate per head is only Rs. 1-14-5. As the tax is levied at the rate of 3 per cent., it follows that the aggregate sum of Rs. 8,43,714 thus collected, represents an aggregate income of Rs. 2,81,23,800, and an average individual income of Rs. 63-7-10. This statement, however, gives an imperfect idea of the actual state of the case, for 250,055 persons of the total tax-paying number contributed no more than one rupee each. A balance, therefore, remains of 192,897 individuals paying the aggregate amount of Rs. 5,93,659, representing an aggregate income of Rs. 1,98,88,633, and an average individual income of Rs. 102-9-4.

The class most highly assessed are the sugar manufacturers, one of whom pays the respectable sum of Rs. 338, testifying to his enjoyment of an income of Rs. 11,300, or £1,130 per annum. There is, however, a considerable variation in the incomes of this prosperous calling. In the Mahomdee district, where the cane is largely cultivated, and where an extensive traffic in sugar is carried on with Shah-jehanpore, Bareilly, Chandosees, &c., the assessment averages as high as Rs. 32-9-9; whereas in the Sultanpore and Pertabghur districts the average is not above Rs. 6. The sugar manufacturers, it is remarked, are the only traders who, as a class, would be liable to the Income-tax duty of 4 per cent., imposed by Act XXXII. of 1860.

Next to these come the dealers in money, mahajuns, shroffs, bankers, money-lenders, changers of money, &c., &c. Their average, however, is only Rs. 5-2-10, though the highest sum paid by any single individual in the province comes from the coffers of a mahajun. This fortunate being is able to contribute Rs. 750 a-year to the necessities of the State, out of an annual income of Rs. 25,000, or £2,500. The average varies from Rs. 3-10-4 in the Pertabghur district, to Rs. 10-7-11 in the Seetapore district.

After the money-changers and bankers come the cloth merchants, whose contributions vary from Rs. 2-8-8 in the Mahomdee and Baraitch districts, to Rs. 7-9-5 in Fyzabad—the average being Rs. 4-0-1. The dealers in copper vessels are fourth on the list, with their modest average of Rs. 3-15-7. A thriving business is theirs, and yet the wealthiest member of the fraternity is assessed no higher than Rs. 40—the index to an annual income of little more than Rs. 1,300. Goldsmiths and confectioners are nearly on a par with one another, and take the pas of the bunnials, or corndealers, a numerous class, but deriving from their business very fluctuating profits. Few in number are the tobacco dealers, even including the betel-leaf sellers, and their general average does not exceed Rs. 1-10-6. The Chief Commissioner, however, observes, by way of explanation, that "very few persons deal exclusively in tobacco. The trade in that article is insufficient to permit a livelihood, and confectioners, druggists, and bunnials add the retail sale of tobacco to their regular line of business." Owing to the large demand for carriage of building materials for the different military cantonments throughout the province, the owners of carts have been making comparatively handsome returns, and consequently occupy an exceptionally high place in the assessment-roll. Artisans bring up the rear, divided into five classes, the average rate on which amounts to Rs. 1-6-5.

From these figures the Chief Commissioner infers that although no individual may have been taxed unfairly, there has been made "somewhat too wide a cast of the net," and that some have been "drawn within the range of taxation who ought not to have come within it." It is not easy to reconcile this apparent contradiction, for can injustice be done to a class without affecting every individual of that class? It may, nevertheless, be quite true that "no scheme of taxation could have been less burdensome in amount, less annoying in the mode of enforcement, or have caused less dissatisfaction." We can also readily understand that the Licence-tax in rural districts is likely to answer better than the Income-tax. "Many traders, whose profits vary between 200 and 300 rupees, will not return them to the Income-tax at all, and all the vigilance of assessors cannot prevent this. Such persons can only be made liable under the 1st class of the Licence Bill." With the gradual development of the natural resources of the province, and the improvement of the means of traffic, the Income-tax will, of course, be more easy to levy, and will also prove far more productive than at present. In the mean time, the Chief Commissioner expects but a slight return from that impost for the next five years—apparently forgetting that its duration has been limited to that period. That it will positively cease and determine at that date no one in his senses ever believed; but it is scarcely becoming in such a high official to publish his distrust of the assurances and engagements of the Government.

On glancing over the foregoing statement, one is tempted to smile at the very moderate incomes of even the most opulent of the Oude merchants. Only one capitalist pretends to clear £2,500 by his manifold dealings and speculations. What hope, then, can there be that native enterprise will ever do much for India. In the great cities there are, undoubtedly, a few persons possessed of almost fabulous wealth, but they are not numerous enough to provide capital for any really great undertakings. Besides, they care not to wait any lengthened period for a profit from their investments. The large and prompt returns from a pettifogging retail system of trade, and from small loans at usurious interest, are far more to their taste and comprehension than the vast enterprises of European capitalists with their small and often long-delayed profits. Moreover, there is wanting in India the numerous class of annuitants, pensioners, and persons of fixed and limited incomes, whose united contributions, however insignificant individually, form an important item in the calculations of projectors. And the projectors themselves are wanting. Who shall say to what extent England is indebted for many of her greatest works of public ornament and utility to the certainly not disinterested imaginations of engineers and solicitors? Granting that to the same source she is indebted for many a disastrous failure, for much suffering and anguish, it will scarcely be denied that the good outweighs the evil, and that national prosperity is oftentimes promoted by the misfortunes of individuals. This element of greatness—however strange it may seem to view a scheming attorney in that light—is not to be found in the social system of India, nor would it be of much account if it did exist, so long as an income of £1,000 a year is an exceptional fortune, and so long as a banker thinks himself a prosperous man with a business that yields £300 per annum.

THE INDIGO-PLANTERS AND THE GOVERNMENT.

As the disturbances that have recently taken place in Lower Bengal are likely to be brought before the House of Commons at an early date, it may be worth while to prepare our readers for the discussion that may be expected to ensue. It is an unquestionable fact that until very lately the policy and practice of the Indian Government have been opposed to the immigration of European settlers. As monopolists the Directors of the East India Company could scarcely be supposed to regard with much favour the audacious and somewhat unscrupulous adventurers who sought to encroach upon their exclusive privileges. They had come to look upon India as a sort of commercial preserves, from which they sternly warned off all trespassers and poachers. The "interlopers" themselves, it must be admitted, were not, until the last fifty years, the most favourable specimens of Englishmen. They may have possessed all the enterprise and energy of the Anglo-Saxon character, but they had also something too much of the piratical tendencies and heathenism of the ancient Norsemen. The Company's servants, therefore, entertained towards them the same kind of antipathy that the coastguard have for smugglers, only more intense, from its being their own interests that they had to protect. An antagonism of class against class was thus produced, which has been handed down traditionally to our own times. Nor is this to be wondered at. Although a very superior description of men have, within the last half century, crossed "the ocean-stream" to fix their abode in the steaming plains of Lower Bengal, the young civilian has gone out imbued with the ancient prejudices of his caste, and too little acquainted with the world to understand the revolution that had gradually been wrought in the ideas, character, and circumstances of the new settlers. Scattered far and wide over an immense tract of country, the planters seldom came in contact with the European magistrates, except as plaintiffs or defendants in their court.

Unjustly, but not altogether unnaturally, the name of planter became associated in the mind of the civilian with all that is most litigious, oppressive, and troublesome. The evidence adduced before the late Indigo Commission shows how cruelly the planters have been misrepresented and maligned, both by commissioners and officials. With a few exceptions, they are proved to be the truest friends and benefactors the native peasantry have ever possessed. Both Lord William Bentinck and Sir Charles Metcalfe have borne willing testimony to the gentlemanly and beneficent dealings of the planters with their neighbours, whether rich or poor, but especially with the latter. They act as arbitrators in matters of dispute, they dispense medicines to the sick, they advance money, without exacting interest, to those in need of temporary pecuniary aid. They are the champions of the weak, the redressers of wrongs, the solace of the afflicted. Unarmed and unprotected they have hitherto resisted without harm or fear in the midst of a dense native population, by whom, as a body, they were generally respected and esteemed. Unhappily this is now all changed. It is not that the planters have deteriorated in character, or rendered themselves odious by tyrannical caprices. Neither are the natives alone to blame. The torch of discord has been lighted through the insolence and inexperience of a young magistrate, who has lately figured as a co-respondent in the Divorce Court, and whose disgraceful violation of the most sacred ties of domestic life should have ensured his dismissal from the public service and debarred him from entering into the society of gentlemen.

It is the custom in India to make advances to the ryots to enable them to cultivate their fields, and they are also not unfrequently supplied with seed at a nominal price. In the opium cultivation, which is a State monopoly, the ryots receive an advance of four rupees per beegah in the month of August or September, and deliver over their crop to the Government agent in the following March or April. They are then paid at the rate of 3s. 6d. for every pound of manufactured opium, the selling price of which, for some time past, has been 22s. per pound. Should the cultivator fail to produce sufficient to cover the advances he has received, the balance is recoverable by a summary process enacted for that special purpose. The opium cultivation, moreover, is a very uncertain speculation. In one season it may be most profitable, while in the next it is a complete failure, and for this reason it is by no means popular with the natives. Why, then, it will be asked, do they not turn their attention to some other kind of produce, and the rather that it is only the richest land that is suitable for the growth of the poppy? The temptation lies in the gratuitous advance. Few, indeed, are the ryots who are free from debt. As a rule, their little plots of land are mortgaged to their full value to moneylenders, who never exact less than 60 per cent. Any extraordinary expense, therefore, such as a wedding or a funeral, or any partial failure of his crops, reduces the ryot to the verge of destitution. He cannot raise another pice from his usurer, but there before his eyes gleams the money of the Government agent. He has only to sign a contract for so much opium, and he and his family can live on in their frugal way until better times turn up. The same system prevails in the manufacture of salt in Bengal, also a State monopoly. Advances are made to the Molungees, who obtain it by boiling the sea-water, until the salt alone remains, when they are paid for their time and trouble at the rate of one farthing per pound, the Government afterwards selling the same article for one penny per pound. Hard as these terms may appear, the density of the population and the ancestral nature of all industrial callings compel the natives to submit with resignation—for what would it avail to resist the Sircar?

In like manner the indigo planters have been in the habit of making advances to the ryots in the neighbourhood of their concerns, on condition of furnishing a certain quantity of indigo at a certain fixed price. The temptation here also was the gratuitous loan which enabled the wretched peasant to tide over the difficulty of the moment. But in all these cases it is clear that the low fixed price paid to the cultivator, or manufacturer, was unfair, as between man and man, though strictly within the bond. The pretence of demanding no interest for the loans obtained is, in fact, arrant hypocrisy, where the borrower is tied down to such stringent and disadvantageous terms. It may be questioned if the usurious interest charged by the Mahajun, or Bunniah, is not less ruinous in the long run. In the latter case the ryot benefits by a rise in the market, and has at least a certain sense of freedom, whereas in the other case his spirit is crushed by the reflection that he will not be any gainer by the exceptional excellence of his crop, except as to quantity, or by any extraordinary demand for the commodity. Still he has gone on doing as his fathers did before him, toiling without hope, but content to live. Suddenly a thrill went through the land. An English magistrate had declared that "the ryot is at liberty to sow any crop he likes," and that "where contracts or promises may be admitted, there may still be many irresistible pleas to avoid the consequences the planters insist upon." It is obvious that such a declaration as this would soon be exaggerated into a cancellation of all existing contracts. The planter calls upon the ryot to fulfil his engagement—the latter refuses, on the ground that he has "irresistible pleas," which he is ready to state in open court. The proposition looks plausible, but as the planter has probably made some twenty thousand advances, and would have to take out a stamp and institute proceedings upon every one separately, years would elapse before the cases were all settled, and in the mean time the manufacture of indigo must be suspended. And, assuming that he came off victorious and was able to establish every claim, what redress would he obtain? Far better to submit to the first loss, and shaking off the dust from his feet turn his back upon a land where the letter of the law is the spirit of injustice, and where the magistrates, prejudiced against their own countrymen, attach more faith to the assertions of a lying pagan than to the oath of a Christian gentleman. There is an illustration now lying before us of the meaning the natives were certain to attach to the insidious statement addressed by the Hon. Ashley Eden to his deputy magistrate. That official, himself a native, instantly issued a proclamation to the effect that—

"In cases of disputes relating to indigo ryots they shall retain possession of their own lands, and shall sow in them what crops they please; and the police will be careful that no indigo planter nor any one else be able to interfere in the matter, and indigo planters shall not be able forcibly to cause indigo to be sown on the lands of those ryots, on the ground that the ryots consented to the sowing, &c., of indigo. If ryots have so consented, the indigo planter may bring an action against them in the civil court. The criminal court has no concern in these matters, because, notwithstanding such contracts, or such consent withheld or given, ryots may urge unanswerable excuses against the sowing of indigo."

The ryots at once interpreted this proclamation to mean that the Government intended to put an end to the cultivation of indigo, and that they were absolved from all engagements to supply that plant in payment of past advances. A dangerous excitement spread through the indigo districts, and at one time a Jacquerie seemed imminent, in which many native zemindars would have perished as well as Europeans. This disaster was fortunately averted, but ruin still stares the hapless planters in the face. It is idle mockery to talk of the Civil Courts being open to them. A summary process alone is applicable in dealing with ryots, and the Government acknowledge this in their own monopolies of salt and opium, though willing to mete out a different measure to individual enterprise. But summary process alone will not suffice. Both Government and individuals must be satisfied with smaller profits. Let them charge a reasonable interest upon their advances, say ten per cent., but let them also remunerate the cultivator for his time and anxiety, and with some consideration to the real value of his land. Perhaps, too, it might not be inexpedient to limit the recoverable rate of interest to ten per cent., as ample return for any man's capital, which would give the ryot a chance of emancipating himself from the galling thralldom of the native moneylender. It is clear that some decisive steps must be taken, and without delay, to adjust the present differences between the planters and the ryots; for otherwise, not only the manufacture of indigo will be brought to an untimely end, but no English capitalist will risk any portion of his means in a country where he cannot rely upon the equitable action of the laws, or the protection of the executive.

MEMOIR OF GENERAL DE LA MOTTE. (COMMUNICATED.)

On Tuesday, the 5th February, at his house in Craven-hill-gardens, at the advanced age of seventy-nine years, deeply lamented by a large circle of sorrowing friends, relatives, and neighbours, General Peter De la Motte, C.B., of the Hon. East India Company's Service, Colonel of the 3rd Regiment of Bombay Light Cavalry, departed this life.

The services of this gifted and accomplished officer, as partly recorded by Sir John Philippart, extended over a period of half a century, during thirty-six years of which he had been actively engaged in every variety of Indian service, from the action of Sedaseer in 1799, followed by the storming of Seringapatam, and the Expedition to Egypt in 1801, for both of which he held medals, to the close of his military career in 1845.

Peter De la Motte landed in Bombay in 1798, being then in his 17th year, and so youthful in appearance, that when as ensign he joined at Cotaparamba, in Malabar, the 1st battalion 4th regiment N.I., commanded by Major Disney, he was known among the sepoys as the "Chota Sahib." The following year his battalion ascended the Ghauts, and joining the Bombay force under General Stewart, was in the advanced brigade of Colonel Montresor, which sustained and defeated the attack of the army led by Tippoo in person at Seedaseer, 6th March, 1799. The battalion was present at the siege of Seringapatam, and after its fall returned to Malabar, when Ensign De la Motte was transferred to the European regiment. In March 1800 he was promoted to lieutenant in the 1st battalion 7th regiment N.I., and proceeded with it early in 1801, in the Expedition to Egypt, under Sir David Baird. Landing at Kosseir, Lieutenant De la Motte was sent in advance to dig wells in the Desert (which still remain) at Moilah and Legata, for the use of the army.

On the breaking out of the plague in the Bombay division he commanded for an entire month a detachment placed over the Pest Hospital; and, having happily escaped that peril, returned across the Desert by Suez, and embarked for Bombay in August, 1802. In the same year he marched under Sir John Murray to Poonah, and during an eight months' command of the outpost at Corrygaum, received, and forwarded to head quarters, several foreign officers who had quitted the service of the native States under the proclamation of Lord Wellesley. Having witnessed, during five years, a variety of field service in the Dekkan, Candeish, and Berar, in 1807 he marched from Poonah to Goa, and the route through the Southern Mahrattah country being then almost unknown, he was ordered to survey it. In 1808 he was appointed interpreter to his regiment; and at Goa, a rupture with the Portuguese being expected, he was ordered to examine and report upon the leading passages of the Ghauts, especially of the Timen and Dighee.

The ability displayed in the performance of these duties was so highly estimated by Sir John Abercromby, that on his recommendation Captain De la Motte was appointed in 1812 to the command of the Bombay corps of Pioneers—a responsible trust, which he held for eight years, during which the various works, civil and military, constructed by him, proved that the extent of his resources was equal to every emergency. In 1817, at the commencement of the Mahrattah war, he was ordered to the Bhoze Ghaut, to defend that Pass, in order to keep open a communication with Colonel Burr at Poonah. In January, 1818, he joined the field force under Colonel Prother, which besieged and captured the strong forts of Kurnulla, Owchetchhur, Soorghur, Pauloe, Boorup, Loghur, Issapoor, and Koaree; and next, that of the strong fortress of Ryeghur in the Concan; during this whole period, the duties of Captain De la Motte, as commanding the Pioneer corps, were most arduous and unceasing. He had the entire responsibility of getting the guns up to their position; the construction of the roads and batteries. For these services as head of a department, among other compliments, he had the pleasure to find his name mentioned in the London Gazette of 3rd November, 1818.

In 1819 he completed the military road over the Bhoze Ghaut, from Campoly to Candalah, for which he received the thanks of the Bombay Government. This great work, executed at small cost by the Pioneer corps, remains a monument of the ability and constructive skill of Captain De la Motte.

He had now reached the crisis of his military life; an excellent infantry officer, a good linguist, well acquainted with the character and habits of the natives of India, an architect, engineer, and topographer; his great knowledge of the country and its resources; so many accomplishments seldom found united in the same person, pointed him out as an officer eminently qualified for the highest rank of the staff. In 1820 the raising of a third regiment of cavalry had promoted him to a majority, and lost him the command of the Pioneers. Being now an available officer, the C. in C., Sir Charles Colville, selected Major De la Motte for the new cavalry regiment. The infantry officer had now to commence a new career. A keen sportsman, and a capital horseman, he had by long observation and experience acquired a consummate knowledge of the horse and its qualities, during the many years he presided over the committees for re-mounting the cavalry and horse artillery. His skill and judgment now availed him in the selection of horses for his new regiment, and having received a number of sepoy grenadiers to be trained as cavalry, he marched his raw levy thus mounted a distance of 600 miles, in the Monsoon, to Kaira, where, by the aid of her Majesty's 17th dragoons he learned his own cavalry drill, and then trained his young soldiers so successfully as to lay the foundation of that steadiness, discipline, and efficiency which have so distinguished the 3rd Regiment Bombay Light Cavalry to this day.

Returning to England in 1822, after twenty-four years of continued services, which were brought to the special notice of the Hon. Court of Directors, Major De la Motte, after a short absence, resumed the command of his regiment. In 1826, as lieutenant-colonel, he was appointed to the command of the northern division of Guzerat, where his active and useful services in the inspection of regiments received a pointed compliment from the Commander-in-Chief, Sir Thomas Bradford. In 1831 extreme ill health compelled him to quit his beautiful cantonment of Hursule, which he had both selected and personally completed, and to return to England.

Being restored, by a few years of rest, in 1839 he returned to India, and was appointed as major-general to the staff of the Bombay army. His period of five years' command of the southern division was marked by many important successes gained in the field. The general's despatches, and the high compliments which he had received for the capture by storm of Samunghur and Purnullah, were published by authority in India, and republished by the newspapers in London; but the absent Indian general could find no friend in office to do him the justice to publish his despatches in the London Gazette. He had no interest at the India House or the Board of Control.*

Major-general De la Motte returned to England in 1845. He had been a Companion of the Bath for some years, and thus closed his long period of active and honourable services. He had been subsequently promoted by brevet to the rank of lieutenant-general, and to that of general in 1860.

Endowed by nature with a noble person and commanding stature, his handsome features were set off by singularly graceful and expressive manners. From his youth he excelled in all active and manly exercises, and he retained his mental faculties to the last. Having settled in the parish of Paddington, he became a leading vestryman, and for many years took an active part in its management. He found also an exercise for his benevolence by interesting himself in many public and private charities, to which he was a liberal contributor. At the age of 78 years he was still a working member of the Indian Relief Committee, up to the time of his last illness.

A good man and a worthy member of society has been taken from his friends and neighbours; and those who best knew his worth will long respect the memory of the departed.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—FEB. 14.

VOTE OF THANKS TO THE FORCES IN CHINA.

Lord HERBERT, in an able and eloquent speech, moved—

That the thanks of this House be given to Lieutenant Sir Hope Grant, G.C.B., Vice-Admiral Sir James Hope, K.C.B., Major-general Sir John Michell, K.C.B., Major-general Sir R. Napier, K.C.B., Rear-Admiral Lewis Tobias Jones, C.B., for the distinguished skill, zeal, and intrepidity with which they conducted the combined operations in the north of China which terminated in the capture of Peking, whereby an honourable peace has been obtained on the terms proposed by her Majesty and her ally the Emperor of the French;

That the thanks of this House be given to the other officers of the navy, army, and the Royal Marines, including her Majesty's Indian forces, both European and native, for the energy and gallantry with which they executed the services which they were called upon to perform;

* His despatch, dated 3rd December, 1844, detailed the storm and capture at once of the two strong fortresses Purnulla and Samunghur; the death of the insurgent leader with many of his followers; the capture of two thousand prisoners, and the release of a political agent.

That this House doth acknowledge and highly approve the gallantry, discipline, and uniform good conduct displayed by the petty officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of the navy, army, and the Royal Marines, and her Majesty's Indian forces, European and native, and the cordial good feeling which animated the united force;

And that the same be communicated to them by the commanders of the several ships and corps, who are respectfully desired to thank them for their gallant and steadfast behaviour.

The motion was seconded by the Earl of Derby, and supported by the Duke of Cambridge, Lord Clyde, Lord Grey, and the Duke of Somerset.

The Marquis of Bath protested against the destruction of the Summer Palace as an "act of Vandalism," and only comparable "to the burning of the Alexandrian library and the sack of Rome by the Constable Bourbon."

Lord ELLENBOROUGH briefly and eulogistically dwelt upon the services of Lord Elgin, who had gone to China at considerable personal inconvenience, and whose conduct had been marked by firmness, judgment, and decision.

The motion was then unanimously agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—FEB. 14.

VOTE OF THANKS TO THE FORCES IN CHINA.

Lord PALMERSTON moved the thanks of the House to the army and navy engaged in the recent operations in China, whose brilliant services had been performed under circumstances of considerable difficulty, with the greatest possible skill, gallantry, and intrepidity.

Mr. DISRAELI gracefully and eloquently seconded the motion.

Mr. SCULLY adverted to the circumstances connected with the destruction of the palace, and argued that no greater provocation had been given by the Chinese to us than to the French, who had not concurred in the act, and if it was not justifiable—if it was an act of barbarism and Vandalism, the nation should separate itself from it.

Mr. WHITE took exception to Lord Palmerston's statement that the war had originated in the refusal of the Chinese to ratify the Treaty of Tien-tsin. He contended that they had not refused to ratify it; that they had ratified the American treaty, and that the British Government had virtually acknowledged the ratification.

Sir J. ELPHINSTONE, expressing his warmest admiration of the brilliant services of the army and navy, avowed that he did not believe in the efficacy of the treaty.

Lord J. RUSSELL justified the destruction of the palace as a fit atonement for the barbarous treatment of the captives by the Chinese authorities. Lord Elgin was of opinion that if he had demanded the surrender of the perpetrators of the outrages, the Chinese would have had no difficulty in complying with the demand, and the lives of some miserable subordinates would have been sacrificed, while the real offenders would have escaped. The reason why General Montauban and Baron Gros had not acquiesced in the act was because they thought it would strike such terror into the Chinese that the treaty would be broken off.

The motion was then agreed to.

THE MYSORE PRINCES.

Mr. BUXTON asked the Secretary of State for India what amount of pension had actually been paid over to the Mysore Princes in each of the last seven years.

Sir C. WOOD said that from accounts annually presented to Parliament he found that in the year 1853-4 there was "appropriated by the Treaty of Mysore, for the maintenance of the families of Hyder Ali Khan and Tippoo Sultan," £70,000; in 1854-5, £70,000; in 1855-6, £20,000; in 1856-7, £29,177; in 1857-8, £104,718; in 1858-9, £55,701; and in 1859-60, £28,022. These figures gave for an average of five years £47,524. For the year 1860-61—that was, for the current year—the estimate was £54,000, and that would have to be increased before the close of the year by, perhaps, £12,000, so that the total of the year would be £66,000. That would include the salaries of superintendents and other officials.

Two of those persons who had been entitled to payment had lately died. The ultimate permanent income of the members of these families would be, as he had before stated, £17,160.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—FEB. 15. INDIAN LOCAL LEGISLATIVE COUNCILS.

Mr. EWART asked whether any measures would be adopted by Government for giving improved Local Legislative Councils to India, of which British settlers as well as natives of India might, to a certain extent, be members, in conformity with the recommendation of the Select Committee which lately considered the subject of British settlement in India.

Sir C. WOOD said he had been in communication with the Governor-general on the subject of the recommendations of the Committee, and before he had received a reply he should be sorry to express any opinion upon it; but it would not be lost sight of. The employment of natives of India was extremely desirable, and had to a certain extent been adopted; but it was a different thing to put them into the Legislative Council at Calcutta.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—FEB. 18. INDIAN APPOINTMENTS.

Lord ELLENBOROUGH asked in what manner the Government had provided for the interests of the sons of persons who have served in India since the transfer of the government to the Crown, and whether recent alterations would affect the provision of the Act of 1858, which provided that one-tenth of the military appointments other than in the artillery and engineers should be given to the sons of persons who had served in India?

Lord DE GREY could not give any positive answer, as the subject was still under consideration. The Government fully intended to carry out not only the letter, but the spirit of the Act of 1858.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—FEB. 19. OUR RELATIONS WITH CHINA.

Lord GREY, in moving for certain despatches explanatory of the projected expedition up the Yang-tse-Kiang, inveighed against the entire policy pursued by this country towards China. We took advantage of the corruptibility of the Chinese officials to foster a smuggling trade in opium, and to introduce a traffic in slaves, which we called coolie emigration. We had done everything in our power to weaken the Chinese Empire, and were now encouraging piracy. The present treaty would certainly give rise to future wars.

Lord WODEHOUSE had no objection to produce the required papers. The British Government had shown great forbearance towards the Chinese. He regretted the coolie emigration system, and steps had been taken to discourage it. A naval force was now engaged in putting down piracy. He hoped and trusted that the Central Government would henceforth exercise more control over the acts of the local Governments.

Lord ELLENBOROUGH concurred with what had fallen from Lord Grey. Our conduct with regard to the traffic in coolies subjected us to the title of "manstealers." He did not regard the war as at an end. The troops at Tien-tsin are likely to be attacked. The expedition up the Yang-tse-Kiang was so far good that it would probably bring us into collision with the rebels, and thereby lead to their discomfiture.

Naval Medals for the Indian Mutiny, 1857, 1858.

Department of the Accountant General of the Navy, Admiralty, Somerset-house, Feb. 14.

Her Majesty having been graciously pleased to grant a medal to the officers, seamen, and marines of H.M.'s ship Shannon and H.M.'s ship Pearl, who formed the Naval Brigade in India, under the command of the late Sir William Peel, K.C.B., in the years 1857 and 1858, notice is given that all claimants to such medal, notwithstanding any previous applications, should apply personally or by letter, to the Accountant-general of the Navy, Admiralty, Somerset-house (with "India Medal" on the outside the written application).

Regulations for the Port of Hakodadi.

Board of Trade, Whitehall, Feb. 12.

The Right Hon. the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade have received from the Sec. of State for Foreign Affairs a copy of a despatch from her Majesty's Minister in Japan transmitting a copy of port regulations for the port of Hakodadi, which have been sanctioned by him, in accordance with articles 4 and 5 of the order in Council of the 23rd of January, 1860.

The following are among the clauses contained in the above regulations:—

6. Masters of a British vessel must not permit foreigners, not being subjects of treaty powers, to land without special permission so to do, and they will be held liable to provide a return passage for such foreign subjects as they may bring to the port, in addition to any penalty they may incur for breach of regulation.

10. Masters of vessels will be held accountable for the conduct of their crews on shore; and no seaman must be allowed on shore except between the hours of sunrise and sunset.

11. Seamen found on shore after sunset, or at any time drunk or disorderly, will be apprehended; and any fine inflicted which he may be unable to pay will be levied upon the master of the vessel to which he belongs, besides such further penalty as may be incurred by the master for any neglect on his part.

12. Should any seaman absent himself from his vessel without permission the master shall without loss of time report the same at the consulate office.

13. No seaman or person belonging to a British ship may be discharged or left behind without the express sanction of the consul, and in conformity with such stipulations as he may require.

14. No British subject may establish either a boarding-house, eating-house, or other public house of entertainment, without the sanction of the consul, and under such conditions as he may require; and any person harbouring a seaman who is a deserter, or who cannot produce his discharge with written sanction from the consul to reside on shore, will be liable to the penalty attending breach of these regulations.

15. Every British subject intending to reside on shore must register his name at the consulate office within ten days after his arrival; and any British subject having in his employ a subject of a nation not entitled by treaty to have residence in Japan, must register the name of such servants, for whose behaviour he will be held accountable.

16. The discharge of fire-arms on shore in the neighbourhood of residences or thoroughfares, or afloat within the limits of the anchorage, is strictly prohibited.

17. All cases of death occurring either afloat or on shore, must be immediately reported at the consulate office.

18. British subjects are strictly prohibited from using violence against Japanese offenders, or taking the law into their own hands, unless in strict self-defence, and where they are menaced with bodily injury. Any Japanese guilty of an offence may be detained and delivered over to the Custom-house officials, from whom a receipt may be claimed stating the name of the offender, the offence charged against him, and the name of the complainant. The matter should then be reported at the consulate office.

19. Riding furiously through the streets of the town is strictly prohibited.

20. The distance to which British subjects may extend their excursions is limited by treaty to the territory around Hakodadi. The limits in several directions are marked by a notice in English under the hand of the consul. Fuller information can be obtained at the consulate office. Persons wilfully breaking the regulations in this respect, or refusing to return when so requested by Japanese officials, will subject themselves to be brought back by force, and to any further penalty which may be adjudged appropriate.

21. Resistance by force to Japanese officers in the exercise of their duty will entail severe penalties.

22. Any violation of the laws and customs of the country, so as wilfully to cause alarm or give offence (save in so far as such laws and customs have been abrogated in favour of foreigners) is strictly prohibited.

23. The breach of any of the foregoing regulations will entail a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars, or three months' imprisonment.

(Signed) C. PEMBERTON HODGSON, Consul.
British Consulate, Hakodadi, July 17, 1860.

MR. J. W. CAMPBELL, lately a Bengal civilian and now drawing a pension of Rs. 10,000 a year, passed through the Calcutta Insolvent Court with debts to the amount of Rs. 58,579. The Commissioner told Mr. Campbell his case was a very painful one, as nearly all his debts are due to gentlemen not in Calcutta. He said:—"I am sorry to see a gentleman of your long standing in the service to have been compelled to seek the protection of this Court. I should have been glad if you could possibly avoid it. I thought from the attitude of your creditors an arrangement might be made without your going through the Court. However, as you say that this could not be done, I have nothing more to do but to grant you your discharge. But I sincerely trust you will not come here again." The insolvent, being anxious to pay his creditors, was in the receipt of Rs. 150 per month as agent to a Dawk Company.

A RELIEF COMMITTEE has been formed at Agra to collect subscriptions for the starving poor. Mr. Edmonstone heads the list of givers with a donation of Rs. 1,000. Lalla Man Rai has given a similar sum. The names of most of the residents appear as monthly subscribers for sums varying from 50 to 2 rupees.

SIR HUGH A "HIELAND LADDIE."—Sir Hugh Rose, on presenting new colours to H.M.'s 92nd Highlanders at Bareilly, expressed his gratification at what was at once an honour and a favour to himself—"an honour, because he was of Highland origin himself, and once wore the tartan when belonging to the 92nd Highland Light Infantry; a favour, because it was unsought, for which he very warmly thanked Colonel Priestly, commanding the regiment." Sir Hugh was expected at Meerut on the 27th Jan.

LE SOMMIER ELASTIQUE PORTATIF.

—HEAL and SON have patented a method of making a Spring Mattress portable. The great objection to the usual Spring Mattress is its being so heavy and cumbersome. The "Sommier Elastique Portatif" is made in three separate parts; and, when joined together, has all the elasticity of the best Spring Mattress. As it has no stuffing of wool or horse-hair it cannot harbour moth, to which the usual Spring Mattress is very liable; the prices, also, are much below those of the best Spring Mattresses, viz.:

3 ft. wide by 6 ft. 4 in. long.....	£2 5 0
3 ft. 6 in. " " " " " " " " " "	2 10 0
4 ft. " " " " " " " " " "	2 15 0
4 ft. 6 in. " " " " " " " " " "	3 0 0
5 ft. " " " " " " " " " "	3 5 0
6 ft. 6 in. " " " " " " " " " "	3 10 0

TO LATE RESIDENTS IN INDIA.—

TRUE MADRAS CURRY and MULIGATAWNEY PASTE and CHUTNIES.—Messrs. BARRIE and Co., Vepery, Madras, to enable their old correspondents returning from India to continue the use of the celebrated Condiments, have made arrangements to forward regular supplies of the above, packed in glass jars for family use, at 1s. 9d. and upwards, which may be had of CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Purveyors to Her Majesty, 21, Soho-square; FORTNUM, MASON, & Co., Piccadilly; and of the Principal Sauce Vendors throughout the Kingdom. Each bottle is labelled, and BARRIE and Co., Madras, stamped on the glass.

NO ICE REQUIRED to produce common

Ice, Dessert Ices, to Ice Wines, &c., in SIMPSON'S NEW PATENT FREEZING VASE.—This Apparatus is, without exception, the most efficacious, simple, and portable ever produced. By using the Patented Freezing Powder—Dessert Ices and Common Ice can be frozen by the most inexperienced, in a few minutes, on the table, or in an invalid's apartment. Residents and travellers in hot climates will find it invaluable, as it produces that luxury—Ice!—at command, and only occupies the space of an ordinary hat-case.

Prices: one pint, Four Guineas; three pints, Five Guineas. Freezing Powder, 3s. per cwt. Freezing Pots, Ice Moulds &c., &c.

SODA-WATER, &c.—Use the "Seltzogene" (solely of one piece of glass), the only portable apparatus that has the patronage of the medical profession, who recommend it for making pure Soda-water and Aerated Beverages. Metallic impregnation is avoided, there is no leakage, and it is not affected by hot climates.

Prices: two pints, 23s.; three pints, 30s.; five pints, 42s. Powders (forty charges in box), 8s., 10s., and 16s. each. References and descriptive catalogues sent free.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The most

Effectual Remedy for Liver Complaints and Disorders of the Stomach.—At this season of the year, when the complaints are so prevalent, there is no better remedy than Holloway's Pills, whether as a preventative or cure. When taken in moderate doses, and strict attention paid to diet, the worst cases will be relieved. The strengthening properties of these Pills restore the impaired tone of the stomach, and cleanse the Liver. Nothing so good has been discovered for the cure of persons from a long residence in hot climates, and they surpass every other medicine for general family use. They have the happiest effect on the stomach and secretions, promoting digestion, and gently stimulating the torpid bowels.

CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS (KEATING'S).

The great remedy for these disorders in Children can now be administered in the form of a Purely Vegetable Sweetmeat, as once agreeable and effective.

Prepared and sold in Tins, 1s. 14d. and 2s. 9d. each, by THOMAS KEATING, Chemist, &c., 79, St. Paul's Church-yard, London, E.C., and retail by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Vendors in the World.

Observe the words "KEATING'S WORM TABLETS" are engraved on the Government Stamp of each tin, without which none are genuine.—Sold by all Agents for "Keating's Cough Lozenges."

BLAIR'S GOUT & RHEUMATIC PILLS.

Price 1s. 14d. and 2s. 9d. per box.

This preparation is one of the benefits which the science of modern chemistry has conferred upon mankind; for during the first twenty years of the present century to speak of a cure for the gout was considered a romance; but now the efficacy and safety of this medicine is so fully demonstrated by unsolicited testimonials from persons in every rank of life, that public opinion proclaims this as one of the most important discoveries of the present age. These Pills require no restraint of diet or confinement during their use, and are certain to prevent the disease attacking any vital part.

Sold by all medicine vendors. Observe "Thomas Prout, 229, Strand, London," on the Government stamp.

DINNEFORD'S PURE FLUID MAGNE-

SIA has been, during twenty-five years, emphatically sanctioned by the Medical Profession, and universally accepted by the Public, as the Best Remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion, and as a Mild Aperient for delicate constitutions, more especially for Ladies and Children. Combined with the Acidulated Lemon Syrup, it forms an agreeable Effervescent Draught, in which its Aperient qualities are much increased. During Hot Seasons, and, above all, in Hot Climates, the regular use of this simple and elegant remedy has been found highly beneficial.

Manufactured with the utmost attention to strength and purity by DINNEFORD & Co., 173, New Bond-street, London and sold by all respectable Chemists throughout the Empire.

MUMFORD'S CONCENTRATED

Cordial ESSENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER.

The Cordial Essence, which is now taken in preference to all other preparations of Ginger, not only from its agreeable flavour, but from the value and certainty of its effects, will be found most useful in all cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, diarrhoea, irritability of the bowels, and in most nervous affections. To invalids suffering with impaired digestion from long residence in warm climates, and to those who are proceeding to India, this preparation cannot be too strongly recommended.

Prepared only by GEORGE MUMFORD, Chemist, 5, Bathurst-street, Hyde-park-gardens, and sold by all Chemists, in bottles at 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each; also in large stoppered bottles, for foreign use, at 21s.

DELICACY OF THE LUNGS.

MR. JEFFREY'S RESPIRATORS.

SUFFERERS from Disorders in the Organs of Respiration are warned of the fact, unquestionably true, that without the aid of RESPIRATORS, rightly employed, it is not possible that justice can be done to their cases; and that the only real Respirators being those for which this name was introduced by the original inventor, Mr. JEFFREY, it is in the last degree imprudent to place any reliance on spurious articles assuming the name.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE intelligence received by the Calcutta Mail of the 22nd of January is only five days later than that obtained through the Bombay Mail of the 26th of that month. It amounts, moreover, to nothing so far as India itself is concerned. Mr. Laing, indeed, had afforded an interview to a mixed deputation from the different commercial bodies and associations at Calcutta, but does not appear to have made a very favourable impression. He spoke, say the local newspaper writers, in a low voice and without emphasis, as if conscious of being adrift on an unknown and stormy sea, without chart or compass to guide his perilous course. Then, "he has a stoop," which indicates a want of physical vigour, and also a want of will. He is simply a clever calculator, quite capable of making out an estimate of probable expenses, and a fair judge of what sort of contract would be most advantageous to himself, but there is a wide space between a character of that sort and the Financial Minister of an Empire in difficulties. It is vain to try to make things "pleasant." No amount of "cooking" will suffice to cover a real deficiency, or enable a Government to pay with thirty millions for what will cost forty. The logic of facts is quite as inexorable in matters of finance as in questions of Imperial policy, and unless Mr. Laing can bring to the fulfilment of his onerous duty boldness of conception, sound originality in initiation, and a patient resolution, he is neither "the man for Galway" nor for India. Last night the Secretary of State for India acknowledged, from his place in Parliament, that he had been taken by surprise, as much as the rest of the world, by the allegations put forth touching Mr. Laing's relations with the Great Western of Canada Railway. Sir Charles at the same time pointed out that these imputations upon that gentleman's nice sense of honour were merely ex parte statements, not as yet borne out by any evidence, but disputed by persons in a position to know something of the real state of the case. Until a full and searching investigation has been made, it would be unjust as well as uncharitable to condemn Mr. Laing in his absence for what he may never have done.

The accounts of the sufferings of the poor in the Upper Provinces continue to be very distressing, and they are likely to be still more acute. Deaths from starvation are becoming more frequent, for it is impossible to search out every case of destitution in remote districts, and the natives will make no effort to help themselves. It is their destiny, they conclude, to die of hunger, and of hunger they accordingly die, contemptibly patient and idiotically resigned.

No further mention is made of the Viceroy's movements. By the latest accounts he was still at Jubbulpore, welcoming the great Native Princes of Central India to his durbar, and addressing them in courteous and conciliatory phrases.

The First Prince of Travancore has written a letter to an Anglo-Indian journal, inviting his "royal brethren" to contribute, according to their means and gratitude, towards the purchase of a throne of solid gold, to be presented to the Queen of India. We know not what sort of response this appeal is likely to meet with, but the Prince has proved his own sincerity in the movement by putting down his name for £500.

The most important news from China refers to the cession of an immense tract of territory to the Russian Government. The entire seaboard between the mouths of the Amoor and the Tumen, extending 900 miles in length, and varying from one to two hundred miles in breadth, has been handed over to the Czar, in conformity with a treaty signed between Prince Kung and General Ignatieff a few days after the ratification of the Convention of Peking. No doubt this was the price of the Russian General's mediation, the value of which he would naturally exaggerate after the manner of his countrymen. The Eastern Tartar is evidently no match for the Western one.

Lord Elgin left Hong Kong on the 12th of January for Canton, and proposes to visit Batavia and Manilla before returning to England.

There is a report in circulation which we believe to be well founded, that at the end of the present term Addiscombe is to be finally abolished. It is also said, but we trust, not truly, that those gentlemen cadets who are so unfortunate as to be plucked will thereby lose all chance of obtaining commissions even in the Line. There must, surely, be some misconception in this rumour.

It may not be amiss to direct the attention of trustees to a statement lately made by Sir Charles Wood with reference to the investment of Trust Funds in India Stock. In reply to a question by Colonel Sykes, he said that the notice issued recently by the Court of Chancery, authorising the investment of Trust Funds in Bank Stock and East India Stock, is confined to the old East India Stock of the company, to be paid off at two hundred in 1874, and does not apply to the new.

The Indus, with the heavy portion of the mails, &c., may be expected at Southampton on the 5th of March.

BENGAL.

MEMORANDUM BY THE LIEUT-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL ON THE EVIDENCE REGARDING THE UNPROFITABLENESS OF INDIGO, TO THE RYOT, AT THE PRICE PAID.

It is shown that the fairest comparison of the return from spring-sown indigo with that from other crops is the comparison made with early rice, both of these crops being sown in spring and cut in the rains.

Appendix No. IV. gives the value of the average return from an acre of land, in a large number of districts, of several crops, and amongst others of early rice. The average return from early rice in Nuddea (Kishnaghur) generally is stated at Rs. 8-10. At Culna, on the border of Nuddea, and at Santipore, in Nuddea, it is stated at Rs. 11; at Chagdah, in Nuddea, at Rs. 9; and at Ranaghat, in Nuddea, at Rs. 7-2. The averages given in the neighbouring districts—namely, in Jessore (where it is so high as Rs. 14), Moorshedabad, Hooghly, and Baraset—are all higher than that given to Nuddea. Mr. Sawers, an indigo planter, states that  $7\frac{1}{2}$  maunds of rice, meaning evidently early rice, is a high yield, the value of which, formerly, with the straw, would have been Rs. 9, but at present prices it is Rs. 17. On the whole, I think that Rs. 8-10 must be considered a low average return from early rice.

All the evidence goes to show that nine bundles of indigo (from eight to ten) is about the average return. Appendix No. 1 shows that the most common price given for indigo is one rupee for six bundles, the highest price ever given being one rupee for four bundles, and prices as low as one rupee for seven, eight, and even in two cases ten bundles being given. I make out the general average to be about five and three-quarter bundles for the rupee. At this rate the average return will be less than Rs. 1-0; so that the difference between this return and that from early rice, being the net loss of the ryot upon indigo, comes out at Rs. 7-1.

There seems no difference in the cost of cultivation to take into consideration. But against indigo has to be set the cost of a stamp, charged to the ryots whether used or not, and often the cost of cartage, or a part of it; also the fees of the factory Omlah, of indefinite amount, which I observe one planter, Mr. Sage, thinks do not exceed one-fourth part of the amount credited to the ryot.

The above seems to me the simplest and most certain method of calculating the loss on indigo.

Sometimes indigo stumps are left in the ground, which produce seed. The seed is taken by the factory at a fixed price, about a quarter of its present market price, or less; but even so it may yield an additional two rupees or four rupees to the ryot. This, however, does not affect the calculation, because in this case the ryot cannot have a cold weather crop, the value of which must be set against the seed.

Spring-sown indigo is the most important for present purposes, as October plant is usually sown on low land, inundated early, on which the pressure of indigo cultivation does not appear to be nearly so severe as on good high land. It appears to be a universal rule, that the severest loss from indigo is from land fit to raise the most valuable crops, which, as might have been expected, is naturally unsuited to so coarse and low-priced a crop as indigo plant.

Mr. Eden makes a comparison between indigo and tobacco, on land fit for tobacco, which is the best sort of land in Bengal, and pays three times the average rent. He gives the cost of the cultivation of this land at Rs. 13-6, and the produce at twenty bundles (a fair estimate for the produce of such land), which at a price of five for a rupee are worth but Rs. 4, showing a net loss of Rs. 9-6. Mr. Eden has omitted fees and stamps from his cost; but I imagine, nevertheless, it is above the mark for plough cultivation, even of a high sort. For tobacco he gives the cost of cultivation at Rs. 24, and the produce at Rs. 35, showing a net profit of Rs. 11. Adding the net profit on the one to the net loss on the other, he deduces an absolute loss on indigo of Rs. 20-6. But I do not think this a fair calculation; because indigo is not grown on tobacco land instead of tobacco, but in rotation after it. The comparison, therefore, should have been made, not with the produce of tobacco, but with that of the most paying crop which ought, in good husbandry, to be grown after it. Even so, I think there can be no doubt that an absolute loss from indigo upon tobacco land, at a price of a rupee for five bundles, would be fairly deduced, greatly exceeding the loss of Rs. 7 a beegah, assumed on land of ordinary quality. A gross return of four rupees a beegah, from the finest land in Bengal, would be an absurd return to assume under a system of free agriculture, as it would not pay the cost of cultivation.

Mr. Larmour, the able manager of the Bengal Indigo Company, gives the expense of cultivating a beegah of nij land, reckoning the full price of seed, but, of course, without charging for stamps, or omlah's fees, at Rs. 6-14-6 a beegah, by kodalee cultivation; and the produce of twenty-four bundles, upon land of high quality. In inferior land he states the expense at one-third less, and the produce at ten bundles. At the price he gives for indigo, viz., one rupee for six bundles, the value of this would be Rs. 4, which to a ryot would be a dead loss of Rs. 2-14-6 by the planter's own account. In this calculation only Rs. 1-4 is charged for rent, but the usual rent of tobacco land is Rs. 3. To this loss must be added the loss of the profit that the cultivator would have made by another crop.

Taking the cost of Mr. Larmour's nij cultivation roughly at Rs. 7, and the selling-price of the dye manufactured from the produce at Rs. 24 (which is about the mark when indigo sells at Rs. 200 a maund), there remains a sum of Rs. 14, from which, if all the general and manufacturing charges are deducted, the remainder will be the profit and interest upon capital divisible in fair proportion between both cultivation and manufacture. I find no evidence as to what this deduction should be; but from what I can learn, I am inclined to believe that those charges must be taken on four seers of dye, at from Rs. 6 to Rs. 7, leaving at the lower estimate only Rs. 8 to be divided between the cultivator, as such, and the manufacturer, as such, for interest upon capital and profit. This estimate may not be very near the truth, though it can hardly be very far from it; but, however that may be, it is plain that twice the price now paid would not nearly remunerate the cultivator, as such, though it would much reduce the manufacturer's profit. It is very far from clear that putting cultivation and manufacture together, an ordinary crop would not, on such land as this, pay better than indigo at present prices. In my view there is nothing in this calculation to invalidate, and much to corroborate, the result above arrived at, as to the amount of average loss to the ryot being Rs. 7 a beegah.

The calculations of Joy Chand Pal Chowdry, zemindar and indigo planter, do not materially differ. He puts the ryot's cost of cultivating tobacco land for indigo at Rs. 5, 6 annas 6 pie a beegah, and the produce at sixteen bundles; the quality of land assumed being probably not so good as Mr. Larmour's, and its degree of cultivation being less.

The same gentleman, as well as Mr. Rose, a planter, and others, admit that a rupee a bundle on some land would not compensate the ryot. As a bundle only makes a rupee's worth of dye, this evidence throws light upon the above calculation; for it makes it manifest that on some land it would be a great waste of money in any one, being both cultivator and manufacturer, to raise indigo. It follows, that for the produce of some ryot's land, if he is forced to cultivate it with indigo, not only does the ryot not receive a fair price, but the manufacturer could not afford him a fair price. Whenever, by the force of circumstances, such land is cultivated with indigo, at the present prices of agricultural produce, and of the dye, the country loses by this unnatural application of capital at least an amount equal to all the manufacturer's charges.

Mr. Morrell calculates the net profit on rice at Rs. 3-10-4 a beegah. This is in the Eastern Soonderbuns, where rice is very cheap. Mr. Sawers, a planter, gives the profit on rice in Western Bengal at Rs. 3-2 formerly, and at Rs. 10-10 now. All the evidence supports the statement of Shumboo Nath Mookerjee, zemindar and indigo planter, that the dead loss to the ryot from cultivating indigo is the value of the labour of man and beast upon the land. This may be taken at between Rs. 3 and Rs. 4, and the net profit from rice may be taken in Western Bengal, at present, at between the same two rates. This corroborates the first calculation made, which gave Rs. 7 as the absolute loss on average land from cultivating indigo at the price now paid for it.

MR. GRANT'S MINUTE ON THE REPORT OF THE INDIGO COMMISSION.

The Indigo Commission sent in its report to the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal on the 25th August last. After a delay of four months, on the 17th December the Lieutenant-Governor wrote his minute on that report. It is now before us, filling thirty-four pages of foolscap. We may state at the outset that Mr. Grant's opinion as to the manner in which the Commission conducted their inquiries is precisely that of all the intelligent and unprejudiced. "At a moment of passionate excitement, the careful impartiality with which they conducted their inquiries was admitted on all sides. And though every one will form his own judgment as to their conclusions and recommendations, the cautious, temperate, and kindly manner in which they have framed their report, will, I am sure, be cordially acknowledged by every one."

After an introduction, in which Mr. Grant shows that the system of ryottee cultivation of indigo on high lands has long been unsound, while of late years there has been a marked diminution of the gravest cases of oppression, he assigns what he believes to be the causes why the ryots have only now renounced. Besides "the single root" of all that is wrong in the system—the fact that it does not pay the ryot, the planters by a mutual understanding have, of late years, established local monopolies, portioning out the country among them so as to avoid competition with each other. And they have also acquired landed tenures, and thus deprived the ryot of the protection he before obtained from the native lord of the manor. The not uncommon practice of a planter paying the native landlord largely in excess of the gross rental due from the ryots, is owing to the zemindar, who thus indirectly imposes an illegal cess, which he receives in the surplus rent. The planter is a party to the act, and spends in the excess rent paid to the zemindar that which might enable him to obtain willing cultivators of the plant. This practice, of which the planters complain, is equivalent to selling the rights of the ryots. Enforced ryottee cultivation by discouraging nij is opposed to free trade. If a ryot cannot grow indigo at a remunerative rate in a certain soil, still less would a European be able to do so. The more profit the ryottee planter makes by getting his plant for less than it costs, the more injustice is done to the real planter who grows his own indigo. Mr. Grant reckons the loss to the ryots, who generally have to sow a sixteenth of their whole land with indigo, at not less than 7 rupees a beegah, which is equivalent to at least seven times the rent of the land. Considering them as "the virtual owners of the greater part of the land in the old cultivated parts of Bengal," he says:—

"This is as though a farmer in Great Britain, farming under a long lease 160 acres of land, at a rent of two pounds an acre, were, by some sort of pressure, forced to cultivate ten acres say in flax, which he was compelled to sell to a certain neighbouring manufacturer at a dead loss of £140 a year. This is precisely a parallel case, in the legal and economical view. In the social and political view, the case of a new English landlord forcing a corresponding loss upon several thousand Irish cotters would perhaps be a fairer illustration."

Mr. Grant considers the Commission has treated too lightly the list of forty-nine heinous cases of offences by planters, laid before them by Mr. Eden. He "respectfully expresses his admiration of the conduct of the missionary body throughout these trying events." He extols the recommendations given to his brethren by Mr. Fergusson, "the experienced and intelligent man of business, who so efficiently represented the general body of the planters," and meets what he considers his misapprehension of the nature of the permanent settlement by defining it as "only a settlement of the Government demand of revenue," as leaving all rights, interests, or tenures of land as it found them, as "a contract between Government and the Zemindar," which therefore necessarily could not affect third parties, whose rights, titles, and interests, indeed, it acknowledges specially, and excepts in terms. Having thus disposed of the system Mr. Grant comes to the main point—the proposed changes of law and administration. Believing that the law is perfectly equal and fair for both parties, he does not see one evil that requires special legislation. He has increased the number of subdivisional courts, while all complaints of their action are removed by the new civil code and by causing moonsiffs to keep cases of indigo contracts on a special file. The police is "slowly" improving, and if they can be reformed on the Madras system it will be done by implication, though not in so many words. Mr. Grant is of opinion that Europeans should be subject to the Mofussil Courts in all criminal matters. He approves of the system of honorary magistrates, provided they have nothing to do with the police, and do not try any case in which they are directly or indirectly interested. He would disarm only hired clubmen, and punish all who employ them, without exception of classes. He would invalidate all contracts for the delivery of agricultural produce, not registered in accordance with a special registration law. Finally he reiterates the truth which Mr. Fergusson in his minute allows, "that the root of the whole question is the struggle to make ryots grow indigo plant, without paying them the price of it." Feeling sympathy for the indigo manufacturers of Nuddea and Jessore personally, but remembering that he is dealing with a large question, he shows that only fourteen per cent. of the whole indigo trade of India has been placed in jeopardy by recent events.

We acknowledge to the full the ability of Mr. Grant's minute—we sympathise with many of his remarks on the ryots; but we reiterate our charge against this minute as against the report, that it conceals these two great facts—Government created the indigo system now condemned, by an administration of the law, which Mr. Grant himself terms disgraceful, and to which his predecessor applied a stronger epithet, Government is responsible for the system as it stands. And what, we ask, is Mr. Grant doing to reform the Government he condemns? He has power, he has ability, he has money, he has everything which the most absolute Governor could desire. Yet he is doing only one thing—increasing the number of Moonsiff's Courts, a palliative pronounced by the press, the public, and the Supreme Government as weak and ineffectual. The Indigo Planters' Association, the body most affected, condemns this measure as "inefficient and practically useless," "as not in any way obviating the grievance of which they complain, or fulfilling the promise held out by the Governor-general in Council." Mr. Grant may write able minutes, but neither India nor England will believe he is in earnest so long as he obstructs the three reforms we have so frequently urged, and which the Supreme Government has so repeatedly forced on his attention—Small Cause Courts, the fee-simple of the soil, and a Civil Constabulary like that of Madras.

The question of a reform in the Government of Bengal is hopeless after this minute, so far as Mr. Grant is concerned. It is now removed to the higher tribunal of the Governor-general in Council for settlement. It is really this. Are the evils of a century, which have so long rendered our richest province the most disgracefully governed part of the empire, to be removed by moonsiffs? Analyse Mr. Grant's minute and that is what his reform amounts to. Or are the same policy and principles which have made Ceylon the garden of the East to be applied to Bengal? A commission has reported, Mr. Grant has minuted. We have wearily reached the third stage—what does Lord Canning mean to do?—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ALLAHABAD, Jan. 14.—All the officers were assembled this morning at H.M.'s 75th mess, at half-past seven, to hear the sentence of Lieut. Gledstane's court-martial read out; he was to be reprimanded and placed at the bottom of the list of lieutenants in H.M.'s 75th Foot. Capt. Pym's will re-assemble in a few days, by order of the Commander-in-Chief. A Court of Inquiry is being held on Lieutenant Thorpe, attached to this regiment as interpreter. We had a ball here the other night, at the Assembly-rooms, given by the station to the 75th Foot, but it was not well attended by the fairer portion of the creation. It is to be hoped that Mr. Court's ball, which will take place on the 17th, may be more fortunate in that respect. There is to be a marriage to-morrow at this station, the bridegroom being a gallant colonel from Cawnpore; the bride, the lovely and accomplished daughter of a medico here. No signs of rain; grain rising in price every day; weather becoming very hot; and, worst of all, no ice made, shares consequently at a great discount. The proper thing would have been to have made the ice at Cawnpore, and brought it down by rail to this place.

DARJEELING, Jan. 14.—You will be sorry to hear that we lost yesterday a very promising young officer, Lieutenant Crolly, who was drowned in the Runjeet River while rashly attempting to swim across it. His body was carried a long way down the torrent, but has been found. A battery of artillery has just arrived, and great preparations are being made for advancing into Sikkim. The demand for provisions of all sorts is, of course, great; and I hear that old Scanlan, one of the principal shopkeepers, has gone to Calcutta to bring up a good supply. The appointment of the Hon. Mr. Eden has created a sensation here. Dr. Campbell is furious about it. Coming events cast their shadows before, and our old superintendent begins, I fancy, to twig the next move on the board. Some say he has already received a quiet hint to "move on." We are all concerned to hear that Government has refused to accede to our memorial praying for an extension of the time allowed to Dr. Collins to remain as Civil Surgeon of this station. Our winter is a very severe one, and our troops have found out to their cost what folly it was to select such a high and exposed site as Senchal for a cantonment.—Englishman.

THE OUTRAM INSTITUTE.—A great step was made, January 10, in advancing a cause which has enlisted the sympathies of so many self-denying and earnest men of our community. We allude to the opening at Dum-Dum of that Institute which is to be for ever connected with the name of one of India's noblest warriors, and of the soldier's greatest friends. Sir James Outram himself will never return among us. A disorder, contracted in the energetic performance of duty, compels him to renounce his heartfelt wish to revisit the scene of his life labour. The memory of one so deserving, so much loved and respected, will, however, remain for ever in the land in which he spent his career. Last night the Outram Institute at Dum-Dum, the establishment of which he long and earnestly advocated, was to have been opened by the first authority in the country, the worthy colleague of Sir James—Sir Bartle Frere. Owing to the untiring energy of the Rev. Mr. Norman and the committee, and the liberality of the public, the building had been brought, in an unprecedentedly short space of time, into a fit state for the purpose for which it was designed. Furnished neatly and comfortably, it offers for the soldiers every inducement to repair thither for recreation and amusement. Books in abundance, games of every description, gave certain indication that nothing had been forgotten; that in trying to reach the heart of the soldier his physical requirements had not been overlooked. The number and composition of the audience testified to the great interest taken in the object proposed by all parties. Of the speeches it is impossible here to give an adequate account. Sir Bartle Frere was unfortunately unable to attend, but Mr. Norman's address was admirably fitted for the purpose for which it was delivered, and he showed here, as he has shown elsewhere, the possession of that peculiar quality—the power of adapting his language to the audience he was addressing. Addresses so admirable have seldom been listened to by Indian residents. Altogether, the opening was most successful, and gave a brilliant promise of that which all must hope will be a profitable future.—Englishman.

RAILWAY IN OUDE.—A very influential meeting was held at Mr. Johannes' house, on Saturday, January 5th, for the purpose of taking into consideration the subject of constructing a railway between Lucknow and Cawnpore. Amongst those present were Shah Bunarseedoss, Lalla Girdharee Loll, Lalla Buddreedoss, Rajah Sewnauth Singh, Lalla Sewnauth Kakajee, Meer Wajid Ali, Daroga Shumshere Alli, Lalla Goordial Purboodial, Lalla Goolabrai Jhowree, Lalla Chottunjee Jhowree, Lalla Soomeydehchund, and Lalla Feroo Mull of Allahabad. These constitute the aristocracy of wealth of the city. It was explained to them that Government wished to have as little as possible to do with the undertaking, further than making a grant of the land, guaranteeing the exclusive working of the line to the company for a certain number of years, and helping it in any way which would conduce to the rapid completion of the work. Also that it was highly desirable that the scheme should have the credit of originating with the citizens, and that all propositions connected with it should proceed spontaneously from themselves. The advantages of railroads generally were fully pointed out to them, many of whom seemed to have been in correspondence on the subject with their constituents at Allahabad, Cawnpore, Delhi, and other places, and fully to comprehend the importance of it, especially at the present time, when the work would give employment to thousands of the starving poor. The meeting was unanimously of opinion that the details of the project should be at once drawn out, and circulated throughout Oude, the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, Bengal, and elsewhere; it expressed its willingness to subscribe largely towards it, and desired that the funds should be invested in Government securities, and the Government solicited to give every possible support to the suggestions of the company—to be called the "Lucknow Railway Company." The capital to be limited to 50 lacs, divided into 20,000 shares of rupees 250 each. It will be remembered that, at one time, there were two companies (we cannot say whether they still are) in existence for the construction of railroads in this province. One was called the Oude Railway, the other the Central Oude Railway Company. The former was formed under the auspices of Sir Macdonald Stephenson, the latter under those of General Sim. So far back as October, 1859, it was, however, thought that the two would merge into one, but we do not remember having seen any notice of the amalgamation. About the latter end of 1859 a staff of engineers arrived here from England, and having completed the surveys, &c., returned home early in 1860. The lines surveyed were those between Lucknow and Cawnpore, between Lucknow and Fyzabad, between Lucknow and Benares, and between Lucknow and Shahjehanpore—Lucknow being the starting or radiating point. These lines were not all alike in favour with the Government, but though much depended upon the report of the engineers, still the choice seemed to rest on the Lucknow and Cawnpore line, as presenting the least engineering difficulties, and being calculated to prove of the greatest public convenience, and to make the quickest returns. Since the departure of the engineers we have heard nothing of what the home companies have done in the matter; possibly they have given up the project, or we should not have had Government holding out encouragement to a local company. In that case the local company would save a great deal of time and trouble, and the bother and expenses of going into the preliminaries, were it to avail itself of the result of the labours of the engineers just mentioned, taking over their surveys, plans, sections, reports, estimates, &c., which would enable it at once to commence operations. This could not, however, perhaps, be done without a consideration, but that would be nothing to the consideration of economising time and labour at the present juncture. It is needless to reiterate the assertion that the most urgent necessity for railroads exist in Oude, and probably there are few parts of India which afford such facilities for their construction. With the exception of the iron-work, every other material is on the spot, and the country is almost a dead level, with but few streams of any considerable size. Between Cawnpore and Lucknow, save the Ganges, which might advantageously be plied by a steam ferry, there is only one—the Syee. Oude, at this moment, is about the worst off of any province in India in its means of transit and channels of communication. In this respect, it is quite in its primeval state. The roads in the interior are all kutcha, and the land traffic is almost entirely confined to antediluvian carts; even camels, which are so plentiful in other parts of India, being scarce here. Very large sums have been spent on making, rather improving roads already made, but this has been money little short of absolutely thrown away. An engineer officer assured us the other day, that on travelling back a road which he had made, rather improved two or three months before, he found it in the same state as when he first saw it—requiring the same outlay to put it in order again. And this will always everywhere be the case. Kutcha roads are perfect sinks, and we were glad to see the fact prominently brought forward at the meeting. It was suggested that unless good roads were opened out throughout the province, goods could not be carried into the interior, nor brought thence into the capital, in sufficient quantities and with sufficient rapidity, to afford sufficient employment to the railway, while the necessity for constructing a fine, broad, metalled highway between Lucknow and Fyzabad was imperative. A copy of the proceedings of the meeting has been submitted to the Chief Commissioner through Mr. Glynn, the city magistrate, who seems to take an enthusiastic interest in the project. A committee, however, has been formed, consisting of eleven of the principal residents, with Messrs. Johannes and Hollingberry, for the purpose of giving effect to the scheme. The co-operation of Prince Moomtazoodowla, and Nawab Moshumoodowla, together with the Rajas of Bulrampore, Kuppoorthulla, and Ametee has also been invited. We may mention that the movement here is quite independent of any that may have taken place in Cawnpore, of which, most strange to say, our millionaires seem to be quite ignorant, notwithstanding the assurance of a Cawnpore correspondent that they had largely shared in it. Now, however, that the initiative has been taken by our city merchants, bankers, nobles, and others, we feel very little misgiving as to the ultimate success of the undertaking, provided only that their views are warmly and actively supported by the powers that be; for without their help our native friends, one and all, have most candidly confessed that they can do nothing.—Oudh Gazette.

DELHI, Jan. 12.—The recent rain appears to have been very plentiful all round us, and, for a wonder, our station has experienced the blessing in fair proportion. It has had the effect of cooling the atmosphere and slightly reducing the price of grain, but only in chittaks as yet. I fear it has come too late to do more. Small-pox continues very prevalent, and unless this rain wash it away, I fear it will continue on the increase. My letters from Umballa mention it as prevailing there, and some men of the hussars have fallen victims to it. The rain appears to have been pretty general in the district and neighbouring stations; but however plentiful it may have been, it cannot, I fear, do more than lessen the unusual heat and cleanse the atmosphere. It is too late to prepare the ground for most grains. Tobacco, melons, cucumbers, and chena may be attempted, but that is the extent of the benefit the cultivators may expect. Captain Earle, commanding the police at Bolundshuhur, has been transferred to Bareilly, a Mr. O'Dowda relieving him. Lieutenant Corbyn, the adjutant, has been thrown out by the new arrangements of 1861.

SIR ALBERT DE H. LARPENT.—When it was known that Mr. Forlong had determined to resign the secretaryship to the Income-tax Commissioners, among the various candidates for the appointment was Sir Albert de Hochepeid Larpent. That gentleman called upon several of the first mercantile houses in Calcutta, bearing in his hand a certificate stating that he, Sir Albert, possessed to the fullest extent the confidence of the mercantile community, which he requested them to sign. We regret to say that several of these gentlemen, unable to say no, and feeling confident that Sir Albert would not be the successful candidate, did sign the certificate. Armed with this, Sir Albert presented his application to the Board of Revenue, and begged that his name should be sent up to the Lieutenant-governor. The Board, unable to say no, and knowing that it had been already determined to appoint Mr. Sanderson, sent up with their recommendation to the Lieutenant-Governor his name, together with that of Sir Albert Larpent. The Lieutenant-Governor, unable to say no, wrote to Sir Albert a polite letter, stating that if it had not been desirable that the services of a gentleman connected with the law should be secured for the Commission, Sir Albert, possessing, as the certificate he had forwarded plainly showed he did, the confidence of the mercantile community, would have certainly been the fittest person for the post; but as he was unfortunately not a lawyer, Mr. Sanderson had been preferred. The above is the story as we have been told it, and which we have reason to believe is pretty correct. So far the being unable to say "No" had produced no bad effects. Mr. Sanderson's clients, however, hearing that he had accepted the appointment, informed him that in consequence of his doing so they would transfer all their business to some other firm. On learning this, Mr. Sanderson, whose partner, Mr. Owen, is in England, honourably determined, at whatever sacrifice to himself, to resign the appointment, and then were seen in the fullest extent the consequences of being unable to say "No." Mr. Grant could not possibly refrain from appointing the man to whom he had written the flattering letter, and so Mr. Grant has appointed Sir Albert Larpent to the most confidential situation in Calcutta—to a situation where he will have exposed to his view the whole of the affairs of the whole mercantile body; but they cannot object, because the largest and most influential firms in the city have declared that he possesses their most complete confidence. The Board of Revenue cannot object, because Sir Albert's name was the only one sent up by them to the Lieutenant-Governor besides Mr. Sanderson's.

We believe that there is only one way to get out of this dilemma, and that is to be taken. We believe that the Chamber of Commerce will remonstrate against the appointment. We believe that the very men who signed the certificate presented to them by Sir Albert Larpent will come forward and say that they did so merely because they could not say no, and because they believed that whether they had or not, the appointment could not possibly have been given to him. They will thus set themselves right with the public, who will understand the venial weakness which led to their error, and appreciate the strength of mind which enables them to confess it. Mr. Grant will then be left with the consequences of his act upon his own head, for he ought to have known, and did know, that, however many certificates to character Sir Albert Larpent might produce, he was not a man whom any Government ought to appoint to one of the highest situations of trust in its gift. Mr. Grant must have known that neither Lord Canning nor Sir Charles Wood would for one moment permit the appointment to continue to be so filled, after its being brought to their notice.—Hurkaru.

ROORKEE.—The works above Roorkee have filled. The commissioner of the division, accompanied by Mr. Sapte, has been along the entire line of road between Haupper and Ghazeeabad, and in the course of a day or two all the hands to be employed will be located. Sheds have been erected, and kutcha wells are being dug, as the metal cannot be laid down without water. By the time the earthwork is completed, there will be plenty of kunkur collected, and employment will be given to some 4,000 persons. The works above Roorkee having filled so rapidly have caused some confusion, as hundreds, who had been started, have returned, and those on their way have been stopped at Meerut, and sent back to Haupper for employment on the Ghurmuktesur road. Preparations are likewise being made for opening the works on the Futtighur branch of the canal, which will commence during the present week. There are now about nine thousand men, women, and children employed on the railroad between Ghazeeabad and Delhi. The poor-house here is also densely crowded, and a member of the European committee attends daily to superintend the distribution of the food. The amount of subscriptions, donations, &c., received since the 1st of January amounts to Rs. 1,000. This, however, is barely sufficient, even with the Government grant, to meet the expenditure. The dormitories at Haupper and Ghazeeabad, where deserving applicants are received, sheltered, and fed, are crowded, and orders have been issued to provide for the requisite increased accommodation. Notwithstanding the exertions that have been made, many deaths have occurred; but as the weather gets warmer, it is thought the distress will not be so great.

NEW POSTAL ARRANGEMENTS.—Notwithstanding the objections raised by the Chambers of Commerce, both in Bengal and Madras, against the proposition of the Director-general of Post-offices to make Bombay the mail port of all India, and to bring down the Europe mails from that presidency after the arrival of the mail steamers there by land, the Government of India has approved of the plan, and has submitted it to the Secretary of State, recommending it for his sanction. The President in Council observes that he has full confidence in the suggestions made by Mr. Riddell, and requests the Secretary of State to add a new clause in the contract of the P. and O. Company to that effect, when the old one expires. His honour is also of opinion that a considerable reduction of public expenditure may be expected by the proposed arrangements.

THE CHITTAGONG EXPEDITION.—It is one of those foolish acts of the Bengal Government: the row was not against us, it was among the Tipperah people; one party called on the Kookees to kill another party, and when they found that the party who should have been killed had escaped, they did not like going back empty handed, so attacked some of the villages en route, thinking that they were the Tipperah Raja's people, but they happened to be our ryots. Now, instead of making these hill people responsible (who cannot be found) would it not be more sensible to come down upon those who invited them down and who can be found, and if they say that they were helpless, would it not be a good piece of policy to take a portion of the Tipperah rajah's lands in compensation for the protection we are to afford him? The making of political agents is rank nonsense. So long as these exist they will be the cause of reports being spread, in order to enhance their own and the importance of their little Pedlingtons. And what is there that can be found in Chittagong that is not known already? There is no coal, no lime, the beautiful forests of Gurjun trees are being destroyed: yes, they will discover something—namely, that the rivers run contrary to what the map says.—Hurkaru.

CAPTAIN IMREY has been appointed engineer to the force proceeding into Sikhim; he left Calcutta on the 16th January.

MAJOR D. L. RICHARDSON intends publishing a work by subscription. The volume is to contain a selection of some of his favourite pieces, with some new matter. The subscription is ten rupees.

A LADIES' PAPER.—We (Hurkaru) have received the first three numbers of a new Maulmain paper called, the Friend of Burmah. It seems to be a ladies' paper, for the third number alone contains two elopements—one at Maulmain and one at Rangoon—and a murder.

EXPORTS (Calcutta, Jan. 22).—The market has remained very dull and discouraging; the less encouraging accounts from home and the high prices of almost all staples still maintained here hold out no encouragement to shippers. Indigo had engaged active inquiry, but has since last week been rather slack, at slightly lower prices. Raw Silk still maintains former prices, and in some instances an advance, and is sparingly dealt in. Corals have been dealt in to a fair extent, but at a reduction in price. Choppahs and Bandanas continue neglected. Sugar and Saltpetre in very limited operation. Rice, table sorts held at high price, which prevent's free operation. Ballum is the only kind resorted to for all places at our last quotations. Lumber in limited operation, and the Greek houses are almost the only buyers. Rapeseed without transaction for shipment. Hides in steady demand at former prices. Jute in fair inquiry at full previous prices.

IMPORTS (Calcutta, Jan. 22).—The accounts from the Upper Provinces are still very unfavourable. Grain is reported at famine price, and business at the principal marts is almost at a stand. There is no actual demand in our market for the North-West Provinces. A few transactions in heavy Grey Shirtings have taken place, induced by low prices. The little inquiry which had lately existed for Lower Bengal for light Grey Shirtings has been almost completed, and the few purchases which are now in progress are for actual present requirement. Grey Madapocans have been in limited local inquiry. Grey and White Jacquets also in limited local inquiry. Grey Mulls are dull of sale. White Mulls have been in little inquiry by the Afghans. Lenoe, Lappets, &c., are now difficult of sale, as is generally the case at this time of the year. Mule Twist continues in very limited operation in the absence of buyers. Metals continue slack in demand; holders, however, are firm.

MISSIONS IN TINNEVELLY.

There is a notion generally prevalent among those who take an interest in missions, both in England and elsewhere, that our Protestant Missions in Southern India are eminently successful, and that their results actually achieved are to be counted among the signal triumphs of Christianity. The name of Tinnevely is echoed from platform to platform; with our church-going people, and our Sunday-school-going youth at home, it has become like a "household word," as familiar as Yorkshire or Lancashire—it is used as a talisman to open out the springs of Christian philanthropy and munificence. We should not find fault with this, even though the facts on which such a notion has been formed had been somewhat highly coloured; a little exaggeration in a matter of this kind is excusable and inevitable; but we have good reason to believe that inferences are very generally drawn from the facts, which are not only not warranted by the truth, but which are likely in their consequences to be highly prejudicial to the Missionary cause. We know that the success in Tinnevely is looked upon as the first great victory over Hindooism, and hence to faith and hope it not unreasonably presents itself as the pledge and earnest of the final triumph of Christianity in India. We believe this to be an utterly erroneous view, and the mischief of it is this, that so long as it prevails, the system which obtains in Tinnevely, and which is supposed to be so successful, is likely to be, and in fact is, the one more or less generally adopted in carrying on Missionary operations elsewhere.

Referring to the statistics furnished by the Missionary Conference in their report of 1858, we find that for the whole of Southern India, comprising a population of forty-three millions, there was then an aggregate of 91,251 so called "adherents and constant attendants on public worship," of whom 57,352 were baptised. Of this sum 55,832 adherents, of whom 29,542 were baptised, i.e. more than one half of the whole belonged to the province of Tinnevely. Now there can be no question whatever of the fact, that in that province there is at this moment a body of thirty thousand native Christians, a body as genuinely Christian as is to be found anywhere in Christendom. The fact is palpable; it meets the eye of the most hasty observer; there are whole villages and clusters of villages entirely Christian; the temples in which orgies of the most horribly debasing character were once celebrated are demolished or going to decay; Christian temples, for solidity and beauty of structure in some cases surpassing any we have seen in Madras, shoot their spires above the tall palmyras, and are becoming the landmarks of the country; thousands of children in the various schools are acquiring, over and above the knowledge of life-giving truths, the elements of a higher civilization. These results are patent, and they give evidence of a genuine bona fide work of Christianization. But lest false inferences should be drawn therefrom, the following facts should also be carefully borne in mind. These results are almost entirely confined to a circle of perhaps not more than thirty miles' radius, and to a race not Hindoo, and bearing no affinity to the Hindoo. The Shanars, who form almost the entire bulk of the Tinnevely Christians, are marked off by a broad line of demarcation, from all the other races of India. Unlike any other, their hereditary religion is demonolatry, simple fetishism. This alone is sufficient to mark the essential difference. Hence any inference drawn from any fact in their history, and made to bear upon the Hindoos, who are locally contiguous, will be sure to mislead. The fact of their embracing Christianity, taken by itself, affords no more indication of a like result in the rest of India than if they were the natives of New Guinea, and any conclusions drawn therefrom as to the course to be pursued with the Hindoo would be in the highest degree fallacious. Nay more, such is the abhorrence in which this alien outcast race is held by the Hindoos, that the fact of Christianity having made its way with the former would, according to all human calculation, rather bar and hinder its progress with the latter. We see that one of the great obstacles which the missionary has to contend with is the fact that Christianity in its native aspect is looked upon as a low caste religion, and the Bible as a Pariah Veda. We are aware there are those who are disposed to draw rather a favourable conclusion than otherwise from this fact. They say that the progress of truth is always from the lower to the higher strata of society, and they point, in confirmation, to the fact that it was "the common people" in Judea and in the Roman Empire generally who first embraced Christianity. Admitting this to be the fact, which must at least be taken with many large qualifications, still we think there is no analogy between the two cases. In old Rome it was merely a difference of gradation, or at most the difference between the bond and free, which was easily got over. In India we have, between Hindoo and Pariah, a gulf which has never yet been bridged over. Moreover, the circumstances which led to the planting of Christianity in Tinnevely are such as cannot be calculated upon as likely to occur elsewhere in India. We are not to suppose that the Shanars as a body were led in the first place towards Christianity by any process of reasoning or spiritual enlightenment, the result of missionary preaching. As probably in all cases of conversions of large bodies of men, at least since the Apostolic times, the directly moving causes were of a lower and altogether worldly kind. Whole villages were thus induced to follow the leading of their headmen, and to place themselves under Christian instruction. There were peculiarities in the Shanar character, in their then state of society, and in the constitution of their villages, which favoured this wholesale movement. The result is what we see—a result, it matters not by what immediate causes brought about—regarded in itself of infinite value, redounding alike to the glory of God and to the honour of the Christian Church. But we again urge, let no inferences unwarranted by the circumstances be drawn therefrom. We hold that it is of the utmost importance to the progress of Christianity in India, that the case of Tinnevely should be regarded as an exceptional one. We hold it to be contrary to all reason, to all Scripture precedent, and to all human experience, that Pariahs and Hindoos, rude demonolaters and fetich-worshippers, and the devotees of a system like Hindooism, should be dealt with in the same way, and according to the same methods. We cannot help thinking that missionaries have too much fallen into this error. We believe that the system of tactics by which Hindooism is to be successfully assailed is yet to be organised. It is painful to see how little has been effected. True, fifty thousand is a goodly number, but then how few of them are Hindoos; true, their souls are as precious as those of the proudest Brahmins, but they do not tell much towards the overthrow of Hindooism. Let us not disguise the fact—it is a comparatively easy matter to gather congregations of Pariahs, but to convert Hindoos, hic labor, hoc opus est.—Madras Times.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HYDERABAD, Dec. 31.—A crisis is hanging over the Nizam's Government; its present revenues do not cover the public disbursements, and the Government is maintained by loans contracted year after year, which the personal character of the minister enables him to obtain. The reliance of the creditors for payment has been based on their firm conviction that the minister would omit nothing which should place him in a position to pay the debts of the Government. They have had expectations, which the minister's opinions, all along consistent upon this point, have contributed to impress strongly upon them, that the surplus revenues of the assigned districts would be paid to the Nizam's Government on some future day and employed to pay their debts. They have also believed that if the pecuniary embarrassments of the Government broke it down, the English Government would stand in its place and pay its debt, and Madras and Tanjore were quoted to justify their opinion. The prominent and immediate expectation of relief from the surplus revenues has been realised. The English Government restores to the Nizam territories, yielding about eighteen lacs of Hyderabad rupees, the surplus revenues held by it after payment of its demand. The sum would effectually assist the minister to pay off the debt of the Government, amounting to about a crore of rupees standing at twelve per cent. per annum interest, which would gradually, from the annual decrease of interest, give relief and finally produce a saving of twelve lacs a year to the Government. In such case the actual benefit to the Government being thirty lacs of rupees a-year, or say twenty-five lacs, (I have no figures to guide me) the Government would be enabled to acquit itself of all its obligations to the departments and troops, to whom it pays regularly but two-thirds of their pay, postponing the payment of the remaining third upon agreement to a future day when its pecuniary circumstances may be improved. But there is apprehension lest the Nizam should take for his private expenditure the revenues of the districts about to be restored. It is argued that he has a right to do so: but what then becomes of his obligations? Either a pressure and embarrassment will come upon the Government, allowing it merely an almost extinct vitality, or the Government must extinguish its just debts to capitalists, the common resort of native States in times of difficulty. It must do more, for though it will not and cannot disband its military establishments without paying off their arrears, as has been usual at this Court, it will cease to pay all who are not strong enough to extort payment of their just demands. The consequence of such an issue is obvious, and the Government of India must, in the terms of the Viceroy's letter of the 30th April, unavoidably be led "to step in to set right such serious abuses as may threaten any part of the country with anarchy and disturbance." It cannot be denied that anarchy and disturbance would arise from such a condition of things at the Court of Hyderabad. It may be obviated with one word, and considering the opposite side of the question and that its views cannot be mistaken any more than those of the European Powers as respects the Sultan, there should be no obstruction to the Nizam being properly advised on the subject by the representative of the British Government. It requires no sorcerer to tell us what the advice of the friends of the present bountiful Nizam to him is and will be; their interests lie in his obtaining an accession of revenue. These are the men that will share the income with him by holding the new made offices of the districts, or from his profuse gratuities. Their advice to the Nizam will not be nakedly and openly to consult his own self indulgences and pleasure. It will come cloaked before him under the internal guise of his rights as sovereign of the country, and they will not fail boldly to asseverate that the minister under whom this State is peaceably governed without any pecuniary demands upon it, or clamour, cannot possibly require any accession of revenue for public purposes, and that if it is to be wasted in bounties and gratuities upon the friends of either party, the Nizam is the best entitled, being supreme master, to this indulgence. I do not know that the above will be the language of his highness's advisers, but it is the out-of-door observation, and will possibly be used. If the British Government be acquiescent to such a disposition of the coming revenues, I do not believe that at any time when it may choose to correct the error it will raise up a war against itself, but the retrieval cannot be made without disbursing money. Extra resources must be called in to provide correction, and stringent means employed to bind the Nizam's Government to a future prescribed conduct, or to the interposition necessarily superseding the Nizam's authority, which the Viceroy has described in the thirtieth paragraph of his letter of the 30th April, given in your paper of 20th December, to the Indian Secretary. The presents from the English Government for the Nizam and his subjects are on their road to Hyderabad from Kocanada. Whatsoever the British Government may be pleased to do in this matter it should be done at the outset, to preclude the Nizam from undergoing the mortification of receding from any measure of his adoption. The debts to capitalists and to its servants being once paid, the Nizam will be at perfect liberty to dispose of the surplus as it may suit his convenience or his pleasure, and I hope to see the Nizam filling his treasury as his forefathers did, to be usefully employed as their hoards were in staving off the evil day when the ministers of the State had so impoverished it that the contingent could not be paid, which led finally to the alienation of territory under which this Government, durbar, and people have been smarting for the last eight years.—Englishman.

A THRONE OF GOLD FOR THE QUEEN OF INDIA.—The following letter has been addressed by the First Prince of Travancore to the editor of the Indian Statesman:—"Sir,—It is with true and grateful pleasure that I read the paper relating to the adoption of heirs by the Native Princes of India. The Governor-general's letter, dated the 30th April, and Sir C. Wood's reply to it, dated the 26th July of the last year, are before the public. Lord Canning has assuredly gained a place in that gallery of fame, which is adorned by the names of Lord Metcalfe, Sir J. Malcolm, Lord Ellenborough, Sir G. Clerk, and Sir H. Lawrence. That wretched and odious annexation policy, of which Lord Dalhousie is the brightest exponent, has been brushed out, in that nobleman's own words, by a stroke of the pen. I hope Lord Dalhousie survives his policy. Britannia is usually represented by a figure, with a sword in one hand, and a balance in the other. For a few years past, owing to the ill-advised policy of certain high functionaries, the sword was to be seen in full relief while the balance was thrown in the dim background, in the eyes of India. But it can be safely assumed now that the chivalrous love of justice which characterises the British nation has at last gained the ascendancy. Every Native Prince will now enjoy peace of mind. Every Native Prince will now bless the name of Victoria. Every Native Prince will now regard the Queen as the beneficent Empress of India, as the fountain source of honour and dignity, as the ultimate dispenser of justice and clemency. Queen Victoria has ascended the throne of India. It is usual in all native States for the nobles and subjects thereof to pay Nuzurs to the new sovereign, as betokening their fealty. It is, therefore, the duty of every Native Prince to pay his respects to the Queen with a nuzur. On that subject the following idea has struck me. Instead of sending separate presents, it is far better that a single, substantial, and worthy present should be contributed by all the Indian princes conjointly. In figurative language, the Queen occupies the throne of India. I wish she may literally do so. A throne of solid gold will be a fit nuzur of loyal India. Both English and Oriental tastes will be flattered by this. Guessing roughly, the throne will cost, in round numbers, ten lacs of rupees. A subscription should be opened to be filled by natives—especially princes. If my proposal be responded to by my fellow princes of India, I gladly head the list with 5,000 rupees. A committee may hereafter be formed to manage the construction, presentation, and other points connected with the throne. —RAMA VURMAH, First Prince of Travancore."

MAJOR-GENERAL BELL, commanding the Pegu division, intends resigning his command, and will leave by the next steamer for Bengal. His successor is not known, but the choice, it is said, lies between Major-general I. C. Coffin and Major-general Carthem.

COFFEE ESTATES IN THE WYNAAD.—The Secretary of State, on the 24th November last, thus replied to the letters of the Madras Government, which informed him of the manner in which it had been resolved to assess coffee estates in the above districts:—"In consequence of the peculiar tenures prevailing in that locality, you consider that it would be impossible to apply the rule prevailing elsewhere, and to assess the whole estate, without reference to the extent of land under cultivation, at one rupee per acre; and you have accordingly determined that the rate of tax shall be two rupees an acre on all land actually planted with coffee, the tax being imposed in the third year when the produce first begins to be gathered, the year of planting and the succeeding year being exempt from demand. The main objection to this plan is, that it involves the necessity of an annual inspection of each estate, in order to ascertain the extent of cultivation. I should have been glad if in this, as in other similar localities, you had found it practicable to fix an assessment per acre to be paid under all circumstances, without reference to the extent of land actually under cultivation. I observe, however, that you have promulgated that, in the event of a coffee planter desiring to pay for his estate by a 'fixed lump assessment,' and offering suitable terms, you will be prepared to give a liberal consideration to such an application. I shall be glad to be informed of the extent to which this rule may be taken advantage of by the planters. I approve of your order of the 9th July last, that land in Wainad required for coffee cultivation shall be put up to public auction, and sold to the highest bidder subject to the condition previously noticed."

THE MADRAS PIER WORKS are again progressing. A ship has brought out another section of piles, and as, during the temporary stoppage of the works, the land end had been commenced on, operations will now be carried on at both ends. "There is every reason to believe," says the Indian Statesman, "that this important undertaking will be completed with all despatch, and that the public will hear no more of the unpleasant matter upon which we commented some issues back."

TEA CULTIVATION.—On the 31st of last October, the Secretary of State informed the Madras Government that he had "perused with much interest the reports by Dr. Cleghorn, the Conservator of Forests, on the growth of the tea plant on the Neilgherries and other parts of the Madras Presidency." Sir C. Wood then goes on to say:—"It is satisfactorily established that tea plants will thrive in several different localities; but no attempt appears yet to have been made to convert their produce into a marketable article of commerce. I agree with you that, as a general rule, it is undesirable for Government to step out of its way to aid the efforts of private adventurers. Considering, however, the great success which has attended this branch of culture in Assam and in the Himalayas, and which, it can scarcely be expected, would have been attained, at any rate to the same extent, or in the same time, if the initiatory proceedings had not been taken by the Government, I shall not object, if it should appear that there is little chance of the matter being taken up by private enterprise, to your acting on the recommendation of Dr. Cleghorn, and obtaining the services, for a limited period, of a few skilled tea manufacturers from the North Western Provinces, which, it appears from the information supplied by Dr. Jameson, might be procured at a very moderate cost. I presume that, under the rules now in force, the difficulties which were apparently experienced by Capt. Mann in obtaining land in the Neilgherries suitable for his tea plantation, will no longer exist." In an order on the above despatch, dated the 5th Jan., it is remarked by the Madras Government that they "have recently made a grant of land on liberal terms to Mr. Rae for tea cultivation, and the advantage of their now affording assistance in this important experiment may be lessened by the fact of its having been thus undertaken by a private individual. The Board will, however, consult the Collector of Coimbatore and some of the residents of the Hills on the subject."

—Athenæum.

MADRAS IRRIGATION COMPANY.—In consequence of the many injurious rumours that were current some time ago as to the nature of the works in course of execution by the Madras Irrigation Company, Government deputed one of the engineer corps to report specially on the matter. The officer selected was Major Orr, and his report has just been published. It has, however, come too late to enable us (Athenæum) to do more than to state that it generally confirms the rumoured want of engineering skill exhibited in choosing Kurnool as the site for a dam. Major Orr says, that had the Tumboodra risen in July last, only a few inches more, a frightful catastrophe would probably have been caused, in consequence of the dam being situated where it was. And further on he states, after giving certain calculations to prove his position, that matters were so managed or mismanaged that "every ordinary fresh" would be converted "into a flood, and every flood into a destructive inundation," in consequence of the works it would be necessary to execute on the site selected. "It is certain, therefore," adds Major Orr, "that the alarm expressed at the spot as to the effect of the company's proceedings near the town was too well founded, and that the erection of an annicut at the spot selected is too unsafe to be permissible." This question and the other parts of Major Orr's report are thus noticed by the Madras Times:—"Omitting details almost unintelligible and perfectly uninteresting to those unversed in engineering, 'the situation' of the company as it appeared to Major Orr may be briefly and easily described. They commenced their operations by erecting a dam in the neighbourhood of Kurnool. Upon this work and about a mile and a half of canal they expended Rs. 82,678. But they soon found that their plan was not the best that could have been made, and they hit upon another and, as all admit, a better one. It seems to Major Orr inexplicable how any one in Colonel Cotton's position could have made 'the great engineering and dangerous mistake of locating an annicut and other works at Kurnool,' and how any one in Captain Randall's place could have sanctioned it. He stigmatises it as a blunder which admits of no palliation—much less of defence, and it must be owned that the grounds on which he rests his censure seem very strong. He recommends 'that the works below Kurnool should without hesitation be abandoned, and their cost written off to profit and loss as unproductive expenditure,' though the chief engineer, with a very natural reluctance to leave behind him such a memorial of his fallibility, proposes to bring them into the new scheme at an estimated outlay of three lacs, inclusive of the sum already expended. Of this new scheme Major Orr appears to have formed a favourable opinion, though he thinks the estimate made of its probable cost is very far too low. Assuming that the 'dangerous' dam will be abandoned, and that certain modifications are made in reference to the Mari Tank, he holds that the continuation of the company's works to the coast would compel an expenditure of nearly eleven lacs in excess of the crore guaranteed by the State; but as no outlay beyond a million sterling will be permitted, or, at any rate, guaranteed, he suggests that operations should only be extended at present to Nellore, and although such a limitation would not only leave the scheme incomplete, but diminish the profits, he yet allows that the works, even within slightly contracted limits, would enable their owners to drive a very profitable trade. In short, he maintains that the company have lost somewhat less than a lac by a grievous engineering blunder, and that they cannot do as much as they expected with the remaining lacs at their disposal. That is the sum and substance of his report."

PROMPT INGRATITUDE.—We (Athenæum) beg to call the attention of the commissioner of police to the state of the Neill statue. It is now lying on the island, cared for by no one, and the case containing it has been broken open. If not looked after in time, the statue may disappear altogether, and the only authority competent to deal with the matter we can think of is Major Wilson. We are of course aware that taking care of an abandoned statue cannot properly be considered as forming one of the duties of the police, but under the peculiar circumstances of the case, the commissioner might, we think, take possession of it as lost or strayed property and put it into the pound. The responsibility thus incurred would not be overwhelming, and in the event of the poor deserted thing ever being claimed by any person or persons it could easily be restored on payment of costs. Major Wilson would thus have the satisfaction of knowing that he alone, of all Madras, had bestowed the least care on the statue of one of India's greatest heroes.

A VISIT TO KONDANPOOR.

The following account of a visit paid by the Rev. A. White to Kondanpore, about twelve miles from Poona, will be read with deep interest:—

"I left Poona December 25th for Kondanpore, the road lying over a line of hills, and being very rough. I got out of the cart and went on foot. Leaving the cart behind I reached the place a little after sunset, and procuring some native cakes and milk sat down on the spot selected for my tent. Though I waited long no cart or carter made his appearance. It had got too late to get any other place; and I spent the night in the open air, keeping up a small fire of sticks and grass to drive away the cold, which was very severe. Next morning the gadi appeared. It turned out that in climbing the road one of the bullocks had sat down, as the saying is.

"Kondanpore is a mere hamlet of some thirty or forty houses, having no importance except as a place of pilgrimage. The goddess is Tukai, or Devi; called also Ai, or mother, or Amba. It is one of the innumerable forms of Parvati, the wife of Shiva, worshipped under a multitude of names and ideas. The goddess, as Tukai, seems to have special care of the ring-worm department; but her sphere embraces itch also, and a number of similar troubles.

"By patient inquiry I found the substance of the following story among the people. The first sent of the goddess was on a hill at some distance. A worshipper complained to her of the distance and the difficulty of visiting her. She appeared to him in a dream, and told him that she had descended to the plains, according to his wish, and pointed out the spot. The temple was built in consequence, and a small village gathered around. A pilgrimage every year in the month of Margashirsh, from new moon to new moon, was the result.

"Kondanpore is not Tukai's great seat; it is Tooljapoor; but they say Kondanpore was the first place favoured by her presence. It is likely that some other dreamer was instructed as to her manifestation at Tooljapoor. The latter now eclipses Kondanpore; but there is a reciprocity between them by the mutual visits of the priests and priestesses at the great seasons. On the present occasion the whole establishment of Tukai appeared to congregate at Kondanpore.

"Kondanpore is situated in a valley or rather cup, having high hills girding it on every side. It is beautifully placed; and the whole scene, so far as nature is concerned, is exceedingly fine; in some directions it is even grand. Only man is vile.

"The people place great confidence in Tukai, and firmly believe that she hears their vows and fulfils them. In all times of distress or difficulty they flee to her for refuge, and vow that if delivered they will make some offering or perform some service for her. Some promise to offer a sheep or goat. To-day a good many hundred sheep have been slaughtered in front of her temple: the ground is swimming with blood. Tomorrow, it is expected that one thousand will be slain. The slaughterers are Mussulmans, who receive for each victim three pice, out of which about one is given to the Mahars of the place, on account of their continual service of the goddess. If the animals were slain by common hands they would be mere carrion, moordar, and thence abominable; but the Mussulmans slay in a particular religious way, so that the flesh is lawful and useable, halal. The Mussulmans for this work are hereditary: three brothers, I believe; and Government gives them Rs. 12 yearly. The heads of the animal are divided among the Deshmookhs who live at Shiwapore; the trunk belongs to the offeror, who eats it with his family or friends at the place where he is encamped.

"Others vow to walk in procession with a broken earthen vessel on their heads, in which seeds of cotton mixed with oil are burning, and appear before Tukai. They walk along with an extemporised canopy, a friend holding the pot on, and with their hands joined together holding some betel leaves and a nut. On arriving at the temple, accompanied by music, or rather din, they present themselves before the priest waiting at the gate to receive them. The following is the dialogue which takes place:—

"Priest: Has mother received you and granted your vows?—Answer: She has.

"Priest: What was your vow?—Answer: (Perhaps). I had ringworm, and I asked to be made better.

"Priest: Then Saheb Mother has heard you. You must give twelve annas.—Answer: We are very poor, poor, poor. How can we give so much?

"Priest: As you like. If Ai has accepted you, then give it; if not you can go your way.

"The fear of Mother Tukai's being displeased and the priest getting her to afflict them is sufficient to extort from these poor deluded people whatever is demanded. Also the priest will not let the vow be considered fulfilled, or allow the hot pot to be taken off the head until the demand for money is satisfied. The priests give out that by their influence with the goddess the vows are granted; so that they are entitled to money for the exertion of that influence. The poor people are very unwilling to pay in this fashion; but they never fail to give the money, fearing the power of Tukai. Multitudes of little children are brought to her with the burning pot held on their little heads.

"I sat down beside the priest and spoke a few words with him while the people were thus coming forward. The people are invariably asked as above the nature of their vow. Some had come to thank Tukai for the child which she had given them; others for the child whose life she had saved; others for a child given to their child (a grand-child); others for having got rid of itch, others for being cured of a broken arm, others for a mother's milk restored, others for a good situation, others for a good crop. Of course I told the priest what I thought of all this. They appeal to the fact. See, say they, Devi has received us; she has granted our petitions; each new pot-bearer is a proof of it. I often tell them the following story:—A king and his minister were one day talking about the superstition of the people. The vizier said, I shall show your Majesty very soon how simple they are. He went to a shoe-maker's and bought a couple of red leather shoes. These he inserted in the ground in a garden, leaving the toes out. The gardener soon observed them and was persuaded that a god had come out of the ground, a very common wonder in Hindostan. He performed worship and made a vow. His request was granted. He fulfilled the vow, and spread the fame of the new god in the village. The villagers began to worship and many supposed their requests were granted. The fame of this god increased, and pilgrims began to come from all directions. At length a dog unceremoniously pulled the shoes out. All the people then saw what fools they had been making of themselves. If God's glory and majesty be insisted on as a reason for not worshipping stones, they often say; true, but God has appointed this way of worshipping him. I have been told this about Devi at this place again and again.

"The poor people, having declared their vow and paid their money, are appointed still further to march round the temple, with the burning pot set on their heads, when they are encountered by numbers of the Aradhi fraternity, who bar their way at two or three points until a pice be paid. The people resist a little, more especially after having given once; but it is of no use. They say, we are miserably poor, let us pass; we paid already. They are answered, is that the way to deal with Devi? Has Tukai received you or not? If not, go on. The pot of fire is getting hotter, the Aradhis bar the way; the pice is given, very generally with grumbling and outcry, and the procession passes on.

"The Aradhis are among the most horribly debased of mankind. They are men who have been perhaps offered by their parents in a vow to the goddess when they were very unwell, on condition they should not die. Some have adopted this course of life voluntarily. They are neither men nor women in dress or otherwise; their whole appearance being a shocking and revolting composition of man and woman. Their countenances convey a dreadful and infamous impression. They wear hair like women, plaited and braided with cowrie shells; and a necklace of the same, the badge of their being the servants of Devi. Their course of life is stained by the most abominable practices; practices described in Scripture as about the lowest point which man, deserted of God, can fall to. At night these wretched creatures dance in the temple court with a large crowd round them, and hold in their hands a long snake-like torch, the ashes of which they apply to the forehead of whoever pays them. These ashes convey the favour of Devi. Their dancing in the dark with the great flaming torch, with their female dress and low gestures, gave me, the short time I was a witness to it, the impression of the orgies of devils.

"So awfully have the Hindoos departed from God that they believe the Aradhis to be the great favourite of Devi; and under the fear of their doing them damage with her, submit to their extortions. They know at the same time how utterly vile they are.

"The Bhutyas are another class of attendants on Devi, so called from their resemblance to goblins. I addressed a large company of them at this festival.

"The temple enclosure contains Khokatai, or Mother Cough, the goddess in whom those suffering from cough put confidence. Outside is Kharoozai, or Mother Itch!

"Drinking is freely carried on, that being supposed to be quite agreeable to Devi. Government some twenty years ago prohibited the selling of spirits here, owing to the disorders that arose when it went on. Unfortunately, the independent chieftain, Suchoopunt, has a small territory in the neighbourhood, on the confines of which spirit-selling goes on. The worship of Devi here belongs clearly to the shakt system, one of the most depraved of religious inventions."—Bombay Guardian.

ACCIDENT TO LIEUTENANT NEAVE.—The Goona correspondent of the Delhi Gazette relates a melancholy accident which occurred at that station. Lieutenant K. Neave, of the 24th Bombay Native Infantry, whilst out shooting, wounded a tigress. The animal sprung upon that officer, and severely injured him. A medical officer, one of the party who accompanied Lieutenant Neave, was attending to his wounds, when a loaded gun which was in the hands of a servant who was standing near accidentally went off. The ball hit Lieutenant Neave behind the hip, and passed into the stomach. The poor officer died in a few hours after the accident.

WOMEN AS TELEGRAPHERS.—Our Paper says that the name of the young lady employed in the electric telegraph department at Ootacamund is Miss Ida Knope. She is most efficient in her duties, and has pleased the superintendent of telegraphs so much, that he intends engaging as many females in the office as he can induce to enter it.

HONG KONG, Jan. 15.—The London Mail of the 26th November, arrived here on the 10th inst.

In last Overland Summary, we noticed that General Grant and staff had left Tien-tsin, as also all the others who did not intend passing the winter there. Regarding those who do winter there, the latest advices describe them as being comfortably butted, and enjoying excellent health. At Hope Sound, provisions are scarce and of an inferior kind; but at Taku, good mutton and game are both plentiful and cheap.

Lord Elgin and suite arrived here in the I. N. steamer Feroze on the 8th of this month, and left on the 12th for Canton. On the 10th at noon, he held a levee at the Government-house, but he has not otherwise made Hong Kong aware of his presence. His lordship visits Manilla and Batavia before returning to England. His proposed departure in a few days is felt by the people here to be rather hurried.

The Commander-in-Chief has gone to Nagasaki in the Chesapeake. Admiral Jones has also gone to Japan in the Imperieuse, accompanied by three other vessels. Matters there have been slightly unsettled of late, owing to a collision between some Japanese officials and some Englishmen. It appears that an Englishman having been arrested for shooting a goose, was rescued by a few of his countrymen, and further retaliation resulted in the serious injury of a Japanese official. A great deal of sharp feeling has been eliminated, and a notification by Captain F. Howard Vyse, acting-consul at Kanagawa, has been remonstrated against by many of the English residents there. Captain Vyse, alluding to the serious injury of the Japanese officer, points out that the carrying of firearms during the day must be looked upon as a breach of the peace, and treated accordingly. He also states, that if parties will violate Japanese game laws, they cannot expect immunity any more than if they had done the same by English game laws. The residents have resented these sentiments in a protest signed by twenty individuals. They claim the carrying of fire arms as a precaution absolutely necessary, and deprecate that part of the notification which forbids the practice. They also demand that foreigners, arrested on any charge whatever, be brought up first before the Consul of the Flag under whose protection they may be living. Japanese complaints against furious riding have received attention, and servants are not to be allowed to go on horseback at all; the thing is offensive in the eyes of the authorities. Altogether the feeling appears to be strong against the foreigners, but we trust that it will soon be allayed.

The opening of the Yang-tze, a duty which will probably devolve upon Admiral Jones, is looked forward to with hopes of immediate commercial advantage. The Chinese produce at present in the hands of the rebels is, according to the best accounts, considerable; and that they are anxious to dispose of it, we cannot for a moment doubt.

The Island of Chusan, which by treaty provision had to be given up, has at length been evacuated by the Allies.

At Shanghai, movements are going on against the rebels, but little fighting has taken place. The Imperial forces are quietly gathering together, and it is not impossible that we may soon hear of a battle. Passports to travellers are now obtainable under the recently ratified treaty. A treaty—of which the Friend of China publishes a translation—between Russia and China, was signed at Peking on the 14th of November last—five days after Lord Elgin left the city. The signing parties were Prince Kung and Count Ignatieff. By this treaty China cedes to Russia all the seaboard from the mouth of the Amoor in 141 East, to the mouth of the Tumen in 131 East. This valuable strip of land is fully nine hundred miles long by from one hundred to two hundred miles in breadth, and may be considered as advancing Russia's facilities for operating either for or against China.

From Fuh-chau, we learn that the gun-boat Algerine had gone in search of a pirate fleet, reported to have been seen surrounding the brig Aim of Singapore.

The following notification issued by H.M.'s Consul on January 5th, will be pleasing and satisfactory to our readers:—

"Her Majesty's Consul has much pleasure in announcing for the information of the British community, that the proclamation by the Prince of Kung, making public the China portion of the Convention of Peking and Treaty of Tien-tsin, was yesterday officially posted by order of the Viceroy in front of the Yamen, in presence of the Consul and senior naval officer, and Chinese officials appointed to perform the duty. The Viceroy has also, at the Consul's request, made arrangements for the posting of eighteen other copies of the proclamation in different quarters of the city by British and Chinese deputed officers in communication together."

Captain Aubaret of H.I.M.'s war steamer Pre-geant is now at Fuhchau, specially deputed to look after the due promulgation of the Chinese version of the French Treaty, which will take place during the present month. It appears also that official instructions have reached the Viceroy, overland from Peking, to promulgate extensively and carry out the provisions of the Treaty and Convention.

From Ningpo and Amoy there is no news.

An American named Meredith, engaged in his lorchas in escorting some merchant junks, has been taken by pirates near Wanchew, and is held to ransom for 4,000 dols. The U.S. gunboat Saginaw has left Hong Kong to try and liberate him.

There is still no appearance of the Canton Merchants' Indemnity Money being paid, although the Americans have got nearly all theirs by this time. The garrison at Canton are enlivening themselves and friends this week by horse-racing.

With regard to Hong Kong matters, there is little to record. Our new acquisition on the Kowloon side is exciting a good deal of silent anxiety at present. The likelihood is, that some considerable time must elapse before it can be determined how the ground is to be disposed of. The most valuable piece of sea frontage has already been decided upon as the only good spot for no less than three purposes, only one of which it can be applied to. The governor, naturally enough, wishes it to build upon; the commanding officer recommends it as the only possible site for a barracks, and for that purpose every inch of it would be needed; and the admiral finds in it the very site for docks that has been so long desired and called for. The exact weight of each of those claims cannot be determined in a day, and until they are determined, the rest of the sea frontage will likely remain unallotted.

In the Civil Service Abuses inquiry, Mr. Caldwell goes on examining witnesses for his defence; there is no prospect of a speedy termination to this inquiry.

The weather here has been colder of late—thermometer at 60 to 65; at Whampoa, it has been as low as 45.—Overland China Mail.

RETURN OF THE JAPANESE EMBASSY.

KANAGAWA, Nov. 30.—The United States Steam Frigate Niagara arrived off Kanagawa bay on the morning of the 9th inst., and having received a visit from the American Consul, and despatched a messenger by land to Yedo to announce the arrival of the Japanese Embassy, passed on her way to that city. Since then there has been a singular dearth of news from Yedo. Even the people of the place wonder that nothing is heard about the Embassy since their return. It appears that the Government wasted no gunpowder, nor had any spare enthusiasm to show off, on the occasion. It is said that the members of the Embassy were afraid to land in the Niagara's boats, alleging as a reason for preferring to go on shore in Japanese boats, that they regarded it as impolitic to let the common people see that they were on such intimate terms with their foreign friends as to land in the Niagara's boat would imply. It is reported, however, that the principal members of the Embassy were so much affected at parting with those friends with whom they had so long been associated on board the Niagara, that they actually shed tears when the time came to leave the ship. The ambassadors were saluted as they left the ship by a salvo from the Niagara's guns, but no response was made to the salute by the forts, and indeed from all we can learn, it has been the aim of the Government to make as little public demonstration of interest in the return of their countrymen from the United States as possible. This is quite in keeping with their usual mode of action, and does not excite much surprise. We cannot expect to see the results of the late embassy at once. The Japanese move slowly, like their neighbours, and we must give them time to work out their own problems in their own way. Impatience on the part of foreign Governments, or their subjects, instead of expediting their movements, may rather retard them. A snail does not go faster for being pushed, but is more likely to crawl back into his shell, and stop altogether. No doubt the Japanese would be glad to go back to their old regime, if they could, for with their best endeavours, they would find it difficult, trammelled as they are by their want of experience in international comity, and still more by the peculiar constitution of their own Government, to carry out the treaties they have made. This is one reason why Count Eulenberg makes little, if any, advance as yet toward the negotiation of a treaty for Prussia. Another reason is that the ministers of foreign affairs at Yedo cannot understand how one man can make a treaty for the thirty-eight different States of the German Confederacy. But probably the Prussian envoy will accomplish his object by patient waiting. It is only a question of time, and the count has begun well in telling the ministers of foreign affairs that he is in no hurry, that he has provisions enough for many months, and that he is quite prepared to wait until such time as this Government is ready to enter into negotiations with him. He has taken up his residence at Yedo in the quarters provided for him by the Government, and as it were laid siege to the citadel of exclusiveness. If he does not abandon the siege too soon, the strong hold will yield and capitulate by-and-bye in order to get rid of the besiegers, if for no other reason. The Prussian Ambassador is in a position much like that of "patience on a monument, smiling at" delay. If he sits there long enough, he will smile it out of countenance, and his policy is a wise one. Meantime his artists are painting and photographing Yedo, his naturalists are studying the flora and fauna, the arts, the commerce, the mineralogy, and the geology of Japan, and the officers of the squadron are surveying and mapping the bay of Yedo. A better appointed expedition for these purposes has never visited these islands. Whatever else may or may not be accomplished by it, it is quite certain that the world will be better informed respecting this even now terra incognita, through the explorations and observations of the able corps of scientific men, and the labours of the artists attached to the Prussian Legation.

On the 19th inst. Yokohama presented a rare sight to the natives of this country. On that day the bodies of the two Russians who were assassinated last year were removed from their temporary graves to the new and handsome chapel which has been erected by the Japanese Government, as their sepulchral monument, and which has recently been completed under the superintendence of H.B.M. Consul at Kanagawa. It is a stone structure, consisting of a roof resting upon four massive columns, and surmounted by a gilded dome and cross, and having a large, elaborately carved and gilded cross beneath it. A strong palisade enclosed the structure. At noon three hundred marines and blue jackets were landed from the Prussian frigates, Arcona and Thetis, with the fine band of the former, and drawn up in line in front of the Custom-house. As a precaution against treachery on the part of the Japanese, two of the Arcona's boats, manned with fifty men and provided with howitzers and shells, were stationed at one of the bridges on the road leading from Kanagawa to Yokohama, ready to blow up the bridge if it should be necessary, and so cut off the access to the place on that side. The marines and sailors were all armed with their needle guns, and the show of officers and men in full uniform made a fine appearance. All the consuls at this port were also present in their official dress, as well as M. Bellecourt, the French Chargé d'Affaires, who came from Yedo for the purpose. The flags of Prussia, Holland, Portugal, France, England, and the United States, were borne together in the procession, to and from the place of landing and the cemetery. Crowds of Japanese thronged the beach and the streets through which the procession moved. All business was suspended at the Custom-house, and Yokohama has not seen such a parade of men in arms since the day when Commodore Perry landed there in 1854.

Arriving at the chapel, the men under arms were drawn up in a double column on either side of it. The chaplain of the Prussian flag ship Arcona read the Lutheran service for the occasion, and followed it with an address in the German language, after which he performed the ceremony of consecrating the spot as a place of Christian burial. The chapel stands in a little dell among the hills east of Yokohama, whose sides are thickly covered with trees and shrubbery. On these hill sides, adjacent to the cemetery, a great number of Japanese had congregated, many of them climbing the trees to get a better opportunity to see the novel ceremony. But their innocent curiosity was rudely disturbed. Japanese like, some little officials, armed with bamboos, apparently annoyed at seeing the people so eager to gratify their harmless curiosity, in the midst of the chaplain's address began to beat the bush, and drive the unoffending people from their look-outs among the trees. The noise they made in thrashing the bushes, and the backs of those whom they could reach, was a far greater disturbance than the presence of the multitude on the hill sides. But Japanese official dignity takes every opportunity to show its authority among the unsworded masses, and the more public the occasion the better, apparently, in the estimation of those bare-legged and bare-headed executives of the law. After the consecration the band played the Russian national anthem, whilst all the flags were lowered and the military presented arms.

Mr. Bellecourt then read an address in French to those assembled, during the delivery of which he appeared to be a good deal affected, his lips quivering with emotion. When he had concluded, Mr. Consul Vyse briefly thanked those who were present for "the noble, generous, and unanimous manner" in which they had manifested their interest in the transactions of the day. During all the time of the ceremony a Prussian artist had been busy at a little distance from the chapel, endeavouring to photograph the scene. By request of Commodore Lunderwohl the people present were detained a moment at the close, until the sun could once more paint the scene around the chapel. This done (and I learn from Mr. Heine that it was a very successful picture) the procession took up the line of march back to the landing. As it proceeded the band played in succession the national airs of those countries whose flags were displayed on the occasion. Altogether the thing passed off well, with a single exception, which could not but be observed by those present, and which certainly detracted from the otherwise good arrangements of the day. Though all the foreign residents at this port were invited by a circular from the British Consulate to honour the occasion by their presence, there was no marshal on the ground to give them any attention, nor to assign them a place in the procession. The consequence was that a good many did not join it, and those who did fell in in a straggling style, as if not half sure that they were in the right place, or that they might not be regarded as intruders. Probably the neglect was unintentional, but the effect upon the appearance of the procession was not the less on that account. A repetition of it on some similar occasion might confirm the impression already quite common among the mercantile portion of the community at this place, that gold lace and gilt buttons are essential to entitle a man to respectful consideration on the part of certain officials; in other words, that the man who comes here to make money is, ergo, as in the Japanese account, nobody. Should the Government here discover that such is the estimate put upon a person engaged in mercantile pursuits by the representatives of foreign Governments; or should the latter, by any possibility, give occasion for such an opinion to be entertained by the Japanese, it would prove greatly detrimental to the interests of those nations having commerce with Japan.

I cannot forbear to remark, that in this country first impressions made upon the native mind by our intercourse with the Government, like all other precedents in Japan, are slow to be set aside. In no country in the world will they be found on this account to be more permanently beneficial, if good and true, nor more harmful in the future, if they be false and wrong. The last twelve months' proceedings at Kanagawa will therefore have the obstinate force of precedents for years to come. It becomes every diplomatic agent here, as well as every private individual, to remember that a mistake once made, or a wrong once done, will not easily nor early be corrected and forgotten. I hope I am mistaken, but I apprehend that precedents have already been established here, even at this early period in our intercourse with Japan, the bad effects of which will not soon be remedied.—Correspondent of North China Herald.

CENTRAL ASIA.

Dec. 21.—In this day's durbar, held in the garden of Sirdar Ghoolam Heider Khan, the Ameer desired Ubdoolrazak Khan, Moostoufee, to write a letter to Sirdar Shere Allee Khan, requesting him to leave Cabool for Jellalabad as soon as possible. The letter was accordingly despatched by a kossid. It is given out in Jellalabad that Sirdar Shere Allee has already left Cabool.—Dec. 22.—An urzee was this day received from Sirdar Mohamed Ameen Khan from Kandahar, in which he informed the Ameer that Sirdar Sooltan Allee Khan, son of Sirdar Kohindil Khan, who, having been dissatisfied with the proposals of the Ameer, had gone to Heerat, is come back to Kandahar. Sooltan Allee is ashamed, and repents of what he has done. It would be highly obliging, continued Mohamed Ameen Khan, if the Ameer would kindly restore to him his Jagheer. He (Mohamed Ameen) also intimated to the Ameer that he had received a letter from Sirdar Jellalooddeen Khan, son of late Wazeer Mohamed Uklar Khan, from Muskit. He was very badly off at that place, and as he was much in want of money he had remitted to him twelve thousand rupees. Futeh Mohamed Khan, the brother of Jellalooddeen, had also sent him six thousand rupees. Mohamed Ameen observed that, as it was a disgrace for the family to see the son of Mohamed Uklar Khan wandering about in such a state, it would be advisable if the Ameer would send some one after him and get him back to Cabool.—Dec. 23.—The durbar was held as usual. The Ameer, turning towards Sirdar Mohamed Oosman Khan, remarked that on his leaving Cabool he had desired Sirdar Sooltan Mohamed Khan not to stay too many days at Lugman, and to come to Jellalabad as quickly as practicable; as his presence was very much wanted here, he had better be written to, and sent for at once. Mohamed Oosman Khan ordered his Paishkhdmut to go to Lugman and bring Sooltan Mohamed Khan. Sirdar Peer Mohamed Khan introduced three Bajoree Mulliks to the Ameer, who ordered them to wait in another room until the durbar was broken. A private council was held, where Sirdars Peer Mohamed Khan, Mohamed Oosman Khan, and the Bajore Mulliks were called. Something important was discussed in this council, but without its being known to anybody.—Dec. 24.—Mohmund people waited on the Ameer and complained that a party of the Sungoo Khyle people had made an attack on their villages, and had taken away some cows, sheep, and a woman, after killing four men and wounding a few. If the Ameer would not punish them, would they be allowed to take the revenge? On this the Ameer informed them that he had just heard from Sirdar Shere Allee Khan, and as he would be there in two or three days, the first thing he would have him to do would be to bring the Sungoo Khyle people to their senses and to get their property and women restored to them.—Dec. 25.—Auleejah Shahmurd Khan was ordered by the Ameer to get the Bajoree Mulliks, who were living with Sirdar Peer Mohamed Khan, to his house, and to pay them their daily expenses, also to keep the Mohmund men until the arrival of Sirdar Shere Allee Khan. A letter was ordered to be written and sent to Sirdar Mohamed Ameen Khan to Kandahar, to the effect that as Sirdar Sooltan Allee Khan is come back to Kandahar, his Jagheer was to be given to him, and he was to be assured that he would be called to Cabool, after the nourooz (new year), when the roads, which are now closed by the snow, would be opened. The Ameer also requested Mohamed Ameen Khan in his letter to send some more money and a confidential person to Muskit to Jellalooddeen Khan, son of the late Uklar Khan, and to get him back to Kandahar.—Dec. 26.—After receiving the chiefs and khans in the durbar, the Ameer went to see the horses in the new stable, and thence he went to the tent of Ghoolam Mohamed Khan, Mookhtear. Here Shahmurd Khan came to pay his respects, and requested the Ameer to go and see the artillery. The Ameer, accompanied by Shahmurd Khan, went to inspect the artillery, and was highly pleased with everything in that department. The Ameer desired Shahmurd Khan to prepare a list of the mulkeah (mercenary) troops of Mohamed Soolaman Khyle, Ahmedzaie and Ghilzaie people serving under him (the Ameer), and his sons. Accordingly Shahmurd Khan ordered his duftrees (writers) to get the list ready and present it to the Ameer.—Dec. 27.—The Ameer was very glad to receive an urzee from Sirdar Shere Allee Khan from Futehabad, acknowledging the receipt of the Ameer's letter, and informing the Ameer that he would be at Jellalabad next day. He also stated that he got the Ameer's letter the day his camp was at Taizee. On this the Ameer ordered all the sowars and khans belonging to Shere Allee Khan, who had accompanied the Ameer's camp, to go and receive their master, Sirdar Shere Allee Khan. Shahmurd Khan also asked the Ameer's permission to go and receive Sirdar Shere Allee Khan, and having complied with his request, he took some sugar-canes and other fruits with him, and left Jellalabad for Shere Allee Khan's camp.—Dec. 28.—The durbar was held as usual. It was about two o'clock, when Sirdar Shere Allee Khan, with six regiments of infantry and one of cavalry and artillery, and with all the khans and chiefs, arrived at Jellalabad. All the troops were drawn out, and a salute in honour of the Ameer and Shere Allee Khan was fired. Having inspected all his troops, Sirdar Shere Allee Khan ordered them to go and be encamped to the south of Jellalabad, while he himself and the ambassador of the King of Bokhara went to pay their respects to the Ameer. The Ameer received Sirdar Shere Allee Khan and the ambassador very kindly, and turning towards the latter, told him to rest assured that everything would be settled to his and his master's satisfaction. All the other khans and chiefs began to ask the ambassador how the things were going on at Bokhara.—Dec. 29.—A private durbar was held, Sirdar Shere Allee Khan, Peer Mohamed Khan, Mohamed Oosman Khan, and Ghoolam Mohamed Khan Mookhtear, were called, a long conversation went on, but it was kept secret. It is ascertained from the Paishkhdmut of the Ameer that the chief object of the council was to settle the Sungoo Khyle affair. It has been decided that Sirdar Shere Allee Khan, with all his troops, is to go to Sungoo Khyle and to see the matter settled, while Sirdar Peer Mohamed Khan and a son of Sirdar Sooltan Mohamed Khan, with their respective troops, are to march on Bajore. After Shere Allee Khan had seen the Sungoo Khyle people punished, he was to go and join Peer Mohamed Khan at Bajore.—Dec. 30.—The Ambassador of the King of Bokhara attended the durbar. The Ameer, turning towards the Ambassador, stated that, as nearly all the roads from Cabool to Toorkistan were closed by snow, it was out of the question to send any troops just now to Toorkistan, but after the nouroze (new year) he would send all the available troops he had, and he would dismiss the ambassador with due honour. "Till that time," continued the Ameer, "it would be better that he, the ambassador, should remain at Jellalabad." On this the Ambassador replied that the son of the late King of Bokhara had ordered him to settle the matter as soon as possible, and then return with an answer. The Ameer told him not to be afraid of his master, as he would write and send a letter to Bokhara to that effect. The sowars of Sirdar Peer Mohamed Khan are busy having their horses shod.—Dec. 31.—A merchant has just arrived from Bokhara, from whom it is ascertained that at first a battle had taken place between the Persian troops and the Huzara Jumshaidee people, in which the former were defeated, leaving many prisoners with the Jumshaidees. The Persians thus left were sold by the Jumshaidees at seven or eight tillas, a gold coin, per slave. The Persians having been thus treated collected a large force, &c., and made an attack on the Hazara Jumshaidees. The Persians taught them a good lesson—that is, they took the territory of Surruksh Murve Shajehan, and Jumshaidee, plundered all the places, destroyed all the forts, and carried away a number of prisoners to Heerat, of whom they made slaves. The merchants say that the Persian troops are now encamped at Mamane, while Sirdar Utzul Khan, with his troops, is in the fort of Khairabad. Almost all the roads are closed, so nothing can be done until after the nouroze.

Jan 1.—All the khans and sirdars attended the darbar as usual. Sirdar Shere Allee Khan having been asked by the Ameer how the affairs were going on in Cabool, replied that a few days before his leaving that capital the snow had fallen there in such a quantity that all the roads had become impassable, and that the price of grain had risen so high that Sirdar Wullee Mohamed Khan, the present governor of Cabool, had been obliged to have the grain brought up from districts where it was a little cheaper, and have it sold in the Munde or the market of Cabool. On this Ghoolam Mohamed Khan Mookhtear represented that he had just received news from Hindoostan to the effect that in consequence of the scarcity of rain, grain was selling there at famine prices, and that as grain had been exported from the Punjab to Hindoostan in great quantities, it was getting dear there also. Lately, continued Ghoolam Mahomed, it had been raining a little in Rawul Pindie, Nowshera, and other places. "There is no doubt that the British authorities will do their best to supply this deficiency," said the Ameer; "but what can be done when it is the will of God?" Turning towards Shere Allee Khan, the Ameer desired him to see that none of the troops now stationed at Jellalabad were in need of anything.—Jan. 2.—The darbar was held in the garden, where Shahmud Khan, the Hakim of Jellalabad, introduced Syud Baboo Jan, the King of Koonair, to the Ameer. The Badshah of Koonair presented to the Ameer a few hawks, some royal white falcons, and four deer. The Ameer was quite pleased with the presents, and inquired of the King how he had been treated by the Koonairies and Bajoorrees. On this the King replied that the Koonairie people were as quiet as lambs, and were always wellwishers of the Ameer, but that the Bajoorrees had lately gone so much out of their way that scarcely a day had passed without some blood having been shed. The Ameer assured him he need not be afraid of them, as he was shortly going to teach them a good lesson.—Jan. 3.—In to day's darbar Sirdar Peer Mohamed Khan handed over to the Ameer a letter which he had received from the sons of Koottal, natives of Paneer, in Kashkar. The sons of Koottal informed the Ameer in their letter of their having been threatened by the troops of the son of Maharaja Goolab Singh, and have begged of the Ameer to assist them with some of his troops, which were already going to march on Bajore. The troops of the son of Raja Goolab Singh, continued the sons of Koottal, had reached Kashkar via Thibet, and if the Ameer did not look to this in time, they would be ruined. The Ameer looked at Ghoolam Mahomed Khan, and said that if the territories of Bajore, Samat, and Punair in Kashkar were taken and well managed, there would be no doubt a profit of some fourteen or fifteen lacs of rupees a year, as the present Khanzadas in charge of the above-named place cared very little about the management of the revenues of those places. Not only would there be profit, but several other advantages would be derived by having those places annexed, replied Ghoolam Mohamed Khan; firstly, it would increase the income of the State; secondly, it would make a direct road to Toorkistan via Kashkar; and lastly, it would make the Ameer the sole master of Kohibunds.—Jan. 4.—The Ameer asked Sirdar Shere Allee Khan if he had settled with the jagheerders of Cabool, Kandabar, and Toorkistan. He had already paid the cash to the jagheerders of the troops of Cabool and Toorkistan, as their allowances, and had confiscated their jagheers, replied Shere Allee Khan, and was going to do the same with the jagheerders of the troops of Jellalabad. In future all the troops would be paid by cash from the treasury, and there would be no more jagheers given to any one in place of allowances. The Ameer then said that he had been given to understand that he (Shere Allee Khan) had called on Mirza Naeem Khan for the past accounts, and as the Nazir was one of the old and favourite servants of the late Sirdar Ghoolam Haidur Khan, he (the Ameer) hoped he would be treated with the same kindness. Sirdar Shere Allee Khan having taken leave from the Ameer went to his place, and sent for Nazir Naeem Khan, and spoke to him thus: "You have complained against me before the Ameer for my having called on you for the accounts. I will see that you be no more the same Nazir." Poor Naeem Khan tried his best to secure pardon of the Sirdar and to make him believe that he had not done such a thing, but in vain; as Sirdar Shere Allee Khan ordered all the villages of the Jagheer of Nazir Naeem Khan to be confiscated. The Moostoufee was directed by the Sirdar to take charge of the villages, and to see that the Nazir had settled the accounts of the past and present year. If anything remained unpaid for the past year, the Nazir was to make it up from the Cabool customs.—Delhi Gazette.

THE STRAITS.

NETHERLANDS INDIA, Jan. 16.—The Governor-general of Netherlands India arrived at Banda, in the Moluccas, on the 16th Dec., after a quick passage of ten days. He was to leave for Amboyna on the 21st.

The accounts from Banjermassing do not contain any news of importance. The insurgents still continue throwing up entrenchments in different directions, which are destroyed by detachments of Dutch troops. Government is said to entertain expectations that the mutiny will be soon ended; but this is questionable, so long as the leaders of the rebels remain at large. The native master of ceremonies at Batavia has been sent to Banjermassing, for the purpose of endeavouring to bring the rebel chiefs back to their allegiance.

The outbreak on Ceram seems at an end for the present. The mutineers have been offered forgiveness, provided they deliver up the persons who murdered the schoolmaster at Waisamu.

Amoks appear to be very frequent in Celebes. Within thirty days the same number of persons lost their lives by this means in the government of Makasser.

Small pox was raging in the Sangir Islands, no less than 4,000 having been carried off by the disease. This had induced the population to allow vaccination to be introduced, which hitherto they had refused to submit to. About 14,000 had been vaccinated, being about a third of the population. The disease was also very prevalent in the Talaut Islands.

In the end of October fifteen large pirate prahus were seen off the Coast of Menado steering south. On the 17th November eight pirate prahus were met near Tanjong Flesko by a Gorontalo prahu, which watched them for some time, but at last lost sight of them during the night. The steamer Etna examined a number of places without finding traces of these pirates. The steamer Reynier Claeszen was more fortunate. Leaving Makasser on the 10th December, she arrived on the forenoon of the 19th at the island Sayussu, or Sailus, one of the southern Paternoster group. Six large pirate prahus were drawn up on the shore, and when the steamer's boats approached to reconnoitre, a man armed with shield and klewang jumped out of the jungle, and with gestures of defiance seemed to challenge them to the encounter. A shot from a 12-pounder on board the steamer hit the ground close to the champion, and was immediately returned by a heavy fire of liles and muskets from the side of the pirates, but it did no harm, owing to the distance at which the steamer lay. Under cover of the fire from the boats and the steamer a landing was effected, and the prahus were destroyed and set on fire. The boats then proceeded past the west point of the island to where the campong of the pirates was situated, and after having cannonaded it for some time a party was landed, who set it on fire. The approach of night prevented further operations. The pirates were now deprived of the means of flight, but it was still no easy task to capture them, as the island, which was about 2,800 yards long and 1,000 in breadth, was covered with a thick jungle and dense underwood. It was therefore resolved to cut passages through the jungle, and the whole of the 20th was occupied in doing this, and in completing the destruction of the campong and the property of the pirates. By dint of great exertion roads were cut along and across the island, but still the pirates were not fallen in with. With their numerous slaves, women and children, whom they obliged to carry their goods, they marched round the island, evading the steamer's people, although they were suffering much from hunger, but they kept themselves up by using opium. These particulars were learnt from some slaves who managed to make their escape. On the 22nd a slave pointed out the place where some minutes previously the pirates had put twelve of their captives to death with spears and swords. On the 23rd, information was received from an escaped slave that the pirates had encamped in a field of alang-alang (long grass), and had resolved to die on this spot, which they regarded as holy, from having on it the grave of an Arab priest. Commander Willink, with a party of thirty men, armed with muskets, immediately proceeded to the spot. When they were close to the place, a pirate chief showed himself, and was brought down by a shot, upon which the pirates replied by a heavy fire of musketry and liles. Some of the attacking party were placed hors de combat by this discharge; the rest went on with great steadiness, and a number of the pirates were shot or bayoneted; but fired upon from the jungle on three sides, and having already nine men disabled, the unequal struggle could not be maintained, and the party fell back in good order, although harassed by the heavy fire of the pirates and embarrassed by the care of the wounded, who were all brought off. As the crew of the Reynier Claeszen had lost two men killed and three men dead from exhaustion, and besides four severely wounded and twelve on the sick list, many of the others were suffering from wounds in the legs, the commander resolved to return to Makasser; and he was further induced to take this course as there were only five days' provisions on board, and the pirates had no means of escaping from the island. During the operations, from the 19th to the 24th December, seven large and many small prahus and the pirate campong were destroyed, while twelve pieces of ordnance and a great quantity of other stores were taken or destroyed, and twelve slaves liberated. The pirates, besides all their property, suffered a heavy loss in killed and wounded. The Reynier Claeszen and the steamer Gede left Makasser on the 28th of December to complete the destruction of the pirate force.—Singapore Free Press.

THE RICE CROPS in Java are reported as promising a good out turn, and the sugar and coffee produce is unusually favourable. In the residency of Pasuruan the average sugar production is sixty-two piculs per bouw, which amount has never previously been reached in any residency. It is expected that this residency will turn out 372,000 piculs of sugar and 210,000 piculs of coffee in 1861. A public sale of sugar, on account of Government, took place at Batavia on the 15th December. The quantity sold was 60,000 piculs, quality No. 16, of which 40,000 are deliverable at Soerabaya, and 20,000 at Samarang. The average price was fl1060.

DEATH FROM SNAKE-BITE.—Two officers belonging to the garrison of Willem I, while out walking, fell in with a snake, which they nearly killed, and then carried to Mr. Van Lammeren, a surgeon of the garrison, who was making a collection of snakes. The snake appeared to recover itself; and while Mr. Van Lammeren was incautiously playing with it, bit him on the hand. He refused to take any precaution, treating the matter lightly; but he soon began to suffer great pain, accompanied by lock-jaw, and at last died four hours after he received the bite. The snake was of the kind called ular teclang. Experiments were afterwards made with this snake which proved it to be of a most venomous description. A fowl bitten by it died in one minute and a-half, and a dog in an hour and a quarter, exhibiting all the symptoms which had marked the case of Mr. Van Lammeren. The natives know of no remedy for the bite of this snake.

THE INDIAN MUTINY RELIEF FUND.—A document has just been issued by the committee intrusted with the management and distribution of this fund, of which Mr. Alderman Finnis is chairman, showing its present position and operations during the past year. From this it appears that, from the commencement of the fund in August, 1857, to the 31st of December last, the subscriptions received have amounted to £134,850. 11s. 5d., the interest on securities to £28,881. 13s. 5d., the repayments for relief to £2,680. 18s. 11d.; making the total receipts £166,412. 3s. 9d. Of this sum, £22,787. 14s. 2d. has been remitted to Calcutta; £20,619. 2s. 10d. to Bombay; £12,000 to Lahore; £5,178. 9s. 1d. to Oude; £5,344. 14s. 4d. to Delhi; £2,000 to the Lawrence Asylum, and £10,356. 18s. 2d. to Agra. The relief granted to people in this country, by donations, has been £77,726. 11s. 5d., and by loans to £11,065. 10s. 6d.; together, £88,792. 1s. 11d. The expenses of management are £9,606. 15s. 2d.; leaving a balance in hand of receipts over payments of 229,736l. 8s. 1d. Of the 88,792l. 1s. 11d. expended in donations and loans, 6,439l. has been distributed in donations to 61 officers of the military class, 16,012l. to 144 officers' widows, 3,397l. 10s. to 44 orphans of officers, 3,476l. to 35 wives of ditto, 6,490l. 10s. to 83 relations of ditto, 5,683l. 6s. to 890 disabled soldiers; 19,641l. to 660 widows and 846 children of soldiers; 32l. to 21 orphans of soldiers, 1,159l. to 178 other relatives of soldiers, 61l. to the ladies' committee for clothing, and 892l. 14s. to children of soldiers at institutions. 5,140l. 15s. has been advanced in loans to 39 officers, and 2,787l. 7s. to 29 relatives of officers. 7,700l. 9s. has been expended in donations to 112 civilians of all classes, 230l. to the wives of 5 ditto, 5,456l. to 50 widows and orphans of ditto, 759l. 8s. to 17 relatives of ditto, in loans, 2,120l. to 18 civilians of all classes; and 1,017l. 7s. to relatives of 13 civilians. The total number of persons relieved by donations and loans is 3,245; 83 orphans of soldiers and sailors have been sent for education to various institutions, chiefly to the Soldiers' Daughters' Home at Hampstead; the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum, Devonport; and the Rev. C. Woodcock's Institution at Chardstock, Dorset. Of the classes of sufferers by the mutiny who still receive allowances, there are 475 widows of soldiers; 18 widows of ditto, in domestic service; 322 male orphans, 368 female orphans; 22 male and 62 female orphans at institutions; 62 widows, sisters, and mothers of deceased officers and others; 23 male and 28 female orphans of officers. The committee have resolved to continue the payment of these allowances and of those that follow to the end of the present year, after which they will be again considered with reference to the state of the fund and the capital value of all allowances for the periods during which it is intended that they shall be prolonged. 93 disabled soldiers are also receiving an allowance of 6d. a day for twelve months from the date of their admission on the books, unless in the meantime they obtain remunerative employment, when they would be struck off before the expiration of that period. In Calcutta, also, 76 widows, orphans, and other relatives of officers, civilians, &c., still receive allowances; in Bombay, 77 widows and orphans of soldiers; and in Lahore, 10 widows and orphans of officers and soldiers. Among the committee for the management of the fund are the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Marquis of Tweeddale, Lord Ellenborough, Lord Spencer, Lord Shaftesbury, Lord Broughton, Lord Overstone, the Bishop of London, Baron Rothschild, M.P., Sir Moses Montefiore, Mr. Ross D. Mangles, Sir James Melville, Mr. T. Baring, M.P., M. G. C. Glyn, M.P., Mr. Samuel Gurney, M.P., Mr. Haliburton, M.P., Sir J. Lubbock, Mr. Alderman Salomons, M.P., Sir Charles Trevelyan, and many more persons of rank and station. The accounts, of which the above is a summary, bear the signature of Major-General Tremeneheere, the superintendent of the fund, and their accuracy is certified by three auditors, of whom Mr. W. G. Prescott is one.

SMALL-POX is prevailing to a great extent at Delhi. Many of the European troops have fallen victims to the disease.

EXAMINATION OF INSTRUCTORS OF MUSKETRY.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Simla, Dec. 28.—The C. in C. is pleased to direct that the provisions of the following circular memo., issued to the royal regiments in India on 5th inst., be made applicable to H.M.'s Indian forces:—

"The Sec. of State for India having approved of the usual allowances being granted to officers and soldiers performing the duties of instructor of musketry, provided they have been pronounced qualified for the performance of the duty, the C. in C. directs that all officers and soldiers at present acting as instructors of musketry, and drawing pay as such, who do not hold certificates of qualification from Hythe, may be closely and strictly examined by district inspectors of musketry, who will report succinctly and direct to the chief inspector of musketry, at head quarters, the result of their examinations; a separate report being made in each case.

A report of examination to accompany applications for all future appointments.

In the case of officers, the district inspector will report on—

- 1st. Facility in giving lectures.
- 2nd. In instruction in "cleaning arms."
- 3rd. In instruction in position drill.
- 4th. Knowledge of points to be attended to in "judging distance and aiming drill."
- 5th. Accuracy or otherwise of all documents under their supervision.

6th. General knowledge of musketry subjects.
The district inspector should ascertain the qualifications of the individual officers by observing them instruct their men, and by questions.

In the case of non-commissioned officers, the same course to be followed, omitting No. 1.

These special reports have reference only to officers and non-commissioned officers who do not hold certificates of qualification from Hythe. But the district inspectors will make the usual report on the qualifications of all.

Should the district inspector, from any cause, not be available for this duty, an officer of another regiment or on the staff, holding a certificate from Hythe, to be nominated to perform this duty.

Orders confirmed.—Dated 20th ult.—Appg. Capt. G. B. Mainwaring, late 16th N.I., to do du. with the Punjab depot batt.; and unatt. Ens. J. McNally to do general duty at Meerut Meer. fr. 13th idem.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Adj. General's Office, Calcutta, Dec. 18.—Under instructions from the horse guards, officers for the charge to England of invalids and time-expired soldiers, will for the future be selected from among those who may be returning home on leave of absence, on private affairs, as well as from such as are proceeding on m.c., and whose health does not require them to proceed overland.

Medical officers will report in their certificates whether the health of the officer examined is such as to enable him to do justice to the charge of invalids.

Leave of absence:—

Royal Artillery.—Lieut. C. D. Chalmers, to Deyrah, from Oct. 30, 1860, to Oct. 15, 1861, on m.c.

46th Foot.—Lieut. R. E. Brookes, to Deyrah, from Nov. 26, 1860 to Jan. 25, 1861, on m.c.

89th Foot.—Capt. W. Drage, to Deyrah, from Nov. 15, 1860, to Feb. 15, 1861, on m.c.

98th Foot.—Paymr. H. Leigh, to Bombay, for 2 mos., from Nov. 21, 1860, m.c.

At the recommendation of the inspector gen. of H.M.'s hospitals, Surg. G. F. Bone, royal art., will proceed at once to Bombay, and join the 13th brig. royal art., to which he has been app.

Surg. H. C. Walshe, 14th brig. royal art., will, in addn. to his other duties, take charge of the provisional battn. at Dum Dum, as a temp. arrangement.

The New Treaty with the Nizam.

Supplemental Treaty between her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain on the one part, and his Highness the Nawab (Ufzul-oo-Dowlah Nizam-ool-Moolk Asuph Jah Bahadoor) on the other part, settled by Lieut. col. Cuthbert Davidson, C.B., Resident at the Court of H.H., by virtue of full powers to that effect vested in him by H.E. the Rt. Hon. Charles John Earl Canning, G.C.B., Viceroy and Gov. gen. of India, and one of H.M.'s Most Hon. Privy Council.

Whereas it will be for the convenience of both the contracting parties to the treaty of 1853, and will simplify the relations of the two Governments, if certain modifications of that treaty are made, and whereas certain matters not dealt with in that treaty call for adjustment between the two contracting parties, and whereas it is the desire of the Gov. gen. in Council to give all possible solemnity to certain acts marking the high esteem in which his Highness the Nizam is held by her Majesty the Queen: therefore the following Articles have been agreed upon and determined between the Viceroy and Gov. gen. on behalf of her Majesty and the Nawab Ufzul-oo-Dowlah Nizam-ool-Moolk Asuph Jah Bahadoor.

ARTICLE I.

All treaties and engagements between the two States, and not contrary to the tenor of this engagement, are hereby confirmed by it.

ARTICLE II.

The Viceroy and Governor-general in Council cedes to H.H. the Nizam in full sovereignty the territory of Shorapore.

ARTICLE III.

The debt of about fifty lakhs of Hyderabad rupees due by the Nizam to the British Government is hereby cancelled.

ARTICLE IV.

H.H. the Nizam agrees to forego all demand for an account of the receipts and expenditure of the assigned districts for the past, present, or future. But the British Government will pay to his highness any surplus that may hereafter accrue after defraying all charges under Article 6, and all future expenses of administration, the amount of such expenses being entirely at the discretion of the British Government.

ARTICLE V.

The Viceroy and Governor-general in Council restores to his Highness the Nizam all the assigned districts in the Raichore Doab and on the western frontier of the dominions of his Highness adjoining the collectorates of Ahmednuggur and Sholapore.

ARTICLE VI.

The districts in Berar already assigned to the British Government under the treaty of 1853, together with all the Surf-i-Khas Talooks comprised therein, and such additional districts adjoining thereto as will suffice to make up a present annual gross revenue of thirty-two lakhs of rupees currency of the British Government, shall be held by the British Government in trust for the payment of the troops of the Hyderabad contingent, Appah Dessayes Choute, the allowances to Mahiput Ram's family, and certain pensions mentioned in Article VI. of the said treaty.

ARTICLE VII.

The Surf-i-Khas Talooks, and additional districts mentioned in the foregoing article, are to be transferred to the resident as soon as this Treaty is ratified.

ARTICLE VIII.

H.H. the Nizam cedes to the British Government in full sovereignty all the possessions of H.H. on the left bank of the river Godavery, and of the river Wyne Gunga, above the confluence of the two rivers, viz. the Talooks of Rukapilly, Buddrachellum, Cheila, Albaka, Noojood, and Siroucha.

ARTICLE IX.

The navigation of the river Godavery and its tributaries, so far as they form the boundary between the two States, shall be free, and no customs duties or other cesses shall be levied by either of the two contracting parties, or by the subjects of either, on goods passing up or down the aforesaid rivers.

ARTICLE X.

This treaty, consisting of ten articles, being this day concluded and settled by Lieut. col. Cuthbert Davidson, C.B., on behalf of the Viceroy and Governor-general of India, with the Nawab Ufzul-oo-Dowlah Nizam-ool-Moolk Asuph Jah Bahadoor, Lieut. col. Cuthbert Davidson has delivered one version thereof in English and Persian, signed and sealed by himself, to the Nawab, who on his part has also delivered one copy of the same to Lieut. col. Davidson, duly executed by his Highness; and Lieut. col. Davidson hereby engages to deliver a copy of the same to his Highness the Nizam, duly ratified by the Viceroy and Governor-general, within thirty days from this date, when this copy herewith signed and sealed by the British resident will be returned.

Medical Promotion.

Military Dep., Camp Mungwa, Dec. 26.—No. 10a of 1860.—The following extracts from a military letter from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 397 of Oct. 31, 1860, respecting the application of the Royal Warrant for the medical department of the Indian army, dated Jan. 13, 1860, are published for general information:—

2. "The construction * you have put upon the term 'service in India,' used in the 1st clause of the Royal Warrant, in describing the qualification for promotion to the rank of surgeon major, is not strictly in accordance with the intention of H.M.'s Govt. The promotion to this rank of all surgeons who have been twenty years in the service from date of first admission will not, however, be cancelled, but in future it must be laid down that no time passed out of India can be reckoned towards the qualification for the rank of surgeon major, beyond the proportion of furlough which is, or may be, allowed to reckon as service for retiring pension.

3. "For the reasons stated in the 4th and 5th paragraphs † of your despatch, H.M.'s Govt. consent to relax the rule in Clause III., requiring two years' regimental duty as assistant surgeons to qualify for promotion to the rank of surgeons, in favour of assistant surgeons now near their promotion, who, having been employed on civil or other duties, have not completed the requisite service. They desire that this rule be carefully observed in future, and that the rule in Clause III. of the Royal Warrant be observed strictly in the case of all assistant surgeons whose turn for promotion under the old rule may come after two years from the date of publication of this decision in Calcutta.

4. "The situations named in the margin ‡ may, as heretofore, be considered equivalent to regimental duty for the above purpose."

This General Order is applicable to the three presidencies.

* Extract Letter, No. 174 dated July 17, 1860, para 2:—
"We have promoted to the rank of surgeon major all surgeons who have been twenty years in the service from date of first admission."

† Extract, paras. 4 and 5, of Letter, No. 174, dated July 17, 1860:—

"It is pointed out by the principal inspector-general, medical department, that there are many assistant surgeons whose promotion is close at hand, who have been serving in extra regimental posts which have heretofore been considered equivalent to regimental service, but who will not come under the provisions of Clause 3 if it be literally acted on; and that there are others who, from the exigencies of the service, have been employed at civil station without having performed the prescribed military duty, who are, in like manner, ineligible for promotion.

"In favour of these, Mr. Forsyth advocates an exception, and we beg to recommend that the assistant surgeons so situated may, notwithstanding their disqualification, be allowed their promotion, but that the rule in the Royal Warrant be enforced strictly in the case of all assistant surgeons whose tenure for promotion may be arrived at in periods beyond two years from the date of publication of the decision of her Majesty's Government on this reference."

‡ Assistant surgeons of general hospitals; assistant garrison surgeons; medical storekeepers; secretary to principal inspector-general; superintendent of eye infirmary.

The Punjab Tea Plantations.

Jan. 8.—No. 33.—Notification.—The Hon. the Lieut. gov. is pleased to promulgate the following rules for the regulation of the supply of tea seeds and seedlings from Government tea factories in the hills of the Punjab, to private individuals and companies:—

Rule 1. Every person and every company indenting on the superintendent Government tea plantations, Punjab, for tea seeds and plants, shall specify the place or places where his or their plantations are situated, the entire area of such plantation fitted for the growth of tea plants, and the portion of the area stocked with tea plants.

2. The planters or sharers of a tea company shall not be permitted to indent individually and separately for tea seeds or plants. No indent will be received except from one or other of the partners or sharers, in behalf of the company collectively.

3. The quantity to be given gratis to each party indenting shall be restricted ordinarily to fifty maunds of seeds and ten thousand seedlings. But it shall be in the discretion of the superintendent of the plantations to increase the allotment whenever the supply may admit of it.

4. It shall be the duty of the superintendent of the plantations to meet all indents for seeds and seedlings, for the bona fide use of the applicant's plantations, within the limitation above expressed, so far as it may be in his power to do so. But if the aggregate demand exceed the supply of seeds and seedlings available for distribution, a preference shall be given to those who may have been engaged in the cultivation of the tea plant for a period not exceeding five years.

5. The distribution of seeds and plants to the proprietors of well-stocked and well-established plantations, and of plantations which have been at work for five years, or upwards, shall be discretionary with the superintendent of plantations, due advertence being had to the aggregate demand, and the means at his disposal for meeting it.

6. Parties disposing, by sale or otherwise, of tea seed and plants the produce of their own farms, and indenting, nevertheless, on the Government plantations for a supply, shall be required to pay for seeds, at the rate of Rs. 20 per maund, and for plants, at the rate of Rs. 3 per 100. For such cases it shall be further in the discretion of the superintendent of the Government plantations to refuse compliance with the indent altogether.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

AN HUMBLE PETITION.

THE British Indian Association disapprove of the new Penal Code. As an attempt to consolidate the "widely-scattered and isolated regulations of the Indian Code," it is entitled, they admit, to their grateful acknowledgments. Its provisions, too, are to a great extent "based on enlightened principles of criminal jurisprudence." Nevertheless, or perhaps for this very reason, "your humble petitioners" are dissatisfied with the measure, and pray "the honourable the Legislative Council of India," to adapt it more suitably to "the circumstances of the people," and "the capacity and character of the administrative agency of the country." In other words, it is too good for the people for whom it is intended. It is founded on principles of honour and morality that are not yet appreciated, even by the petitioners themselves. Its tendency is to raise the Hindoos to an equality with Britons, instead of lowering the latter to a level with the former. The objection is natural enough, but it is one that redounds to the credit of the framers of the new Code, and is the best evidence of the wisdom and forethought that have guided them in their labours.

The first complaint is against the exemption of British-born subjects and Americans from the jurisdiction of the Mofussil Criminal Courts. This provision, say the petitioners, establishes an inequality before the law. If the Mofussil Courts are bad, which they do not affect to deny, let them be improved, but do not insult the natives by telling them that these Courts are good enough for them, though not for Europeans. As an abstract principle it may be freely conceded that in matters of law there should be no exclusive privileges conferred on any class. The object to be aimed at is equal justice to all, and whatever interferes with this equality is a disgrace to the law-makers and a stumbling block in the path of the multitude. But it is precisely with a view to administer equal justice to all that Europeans are exempted from the criminal jurisdiction of Hindoo and Mahomedan magistrates. What sort of a chance would a Christian have against a Mussulman plaintiff, or defendant, before a Mussulman tribunal? What hope of a righteous judgment, when both his judge and his adversary were of Hindoo persuasion—whatever that may be? It is idle mockery to talk of a measure of self-defence as a privilege that causes "incalculable injustice and hardship" to "the many millions." It is unjust to no one, and, if it does create a difference, that is necessitated by the painful experience of the insults and systematic annoyance to which Europeans have been subjected in civil cases before native magistrates. We cannot, indeed, expect that these petitioners should regard such a clause with either "sympathy or approbation," but it is not for that the less necessary. Large trust, they remark, is placed in native magistrates in other matters, why, then, apprehend an abuse of authority in this? We have already stated the reason. It is because no Hindoo or Mahomedan will hold the balance even between one of their own faith and a Christian. That the circumstance is to be regretted we do not deny, but it cannot be remedied until the natives learn the full value of truth and righteous dealing between man and man. The jealousy thus evinced by the Legislature does not arise, as the petitioners meanly suggest, from any prejudice as to race or colour, but from the disagreeable conviction that the difference of religion would of itself bar the European against any chance of obtaining justice. It is piteous twaddle to talk of "one class of officers" being maintained "for a body of offenders of one colour, and another class for another body of a different colour." That race distinctions do exist is undoubtedly true, and they will and must exist until the races are morally equal. The most ardent philanthropist, if at least he care about facts, must admit that the natives of India are morally inferior to the dominant race, and if this be the case it would be manifestly idiotic to subject the latter to the former.

The appointment of a public prosecutor, we are disposed to think with the petitioners, might prove beneficial, but assuredly not if he is to be a native. But this appears to be what they aim at, seeing that their objection to a European magistrate taking "cognizance of any offence which may come to his knowledge without complaint made," is grounded upon his isolation from the mass of the community, and his assumed ignorance of current facts except through "stray gossip, newspaper tales, or servants' stories." It is clear that a European Public Prosecutor would not be better off in this respect than a local magistrate, nor less likely to be deceived by the Amlah. With strange inconsistency, while insisting upon the fitness of their fellow-countrymen to sit on the judgment seat, the Indian Association do not hesitate to charge the native officers of the law courts and the entire police, from Darogahs downwards, with all sorts of foul practices. One of their principal objections to empowering a European magistrate to take spontaneous measures for the detection of a crime is the probability that, "in the majority of instances, the parties accused may be the victims of the cupidity and corruption of the Amlah."

On one or two points, however, we fully concur with the petitioners. For instance, we cannot think it sufficient that the evidence should be taken in a narrative form. On the contrary, it is essential to justice that the very words should be given. It may not be necessary for the magistrate, or judge, to do more than take notes, which he may, or may not, afterwards reduce into the form of a narration, but assuredly there should be a reporter, or clerk, in every Court to take down the ipsisima verba of every question and answer.

Neither are we disposed to do battle against the British Indian Association on behalf of the young and inexperienced magistrates who preside in too many of the Mofussil Courts. But that grievance, we trust, will shortly be removed. It is quite indispensable that men who decide upon evidence should know something of the law of evidence. It may not be requisite to have the experience of an Old Bailey practitioner, or to be able to split straws like a Chancery barrister, but there can be no question as to the absolute necessity of a regular legal training to render either judge or magistrate thoroughly competent to discharge his very delicate and responsible duties.

Nothing, however, so well becomes the petitioners as the concluding paragraph of their wordy remonstrance. It is modest and hopeful, and affords some encouragement to the sincere well wishers of our Indian fellow subjects.

"It is, say they, a historical fact that the oppressions of foreign Government for more than eight hundred years, coupled with the tyranny of priestcraft which had then full sway in the absence of education and enlightenment, have extinguished among the people habits of independent thinking and feelings of personal reliance, so necessary auxiliaries to the promotion of good Government. It is, however, in the power of the British Government to re-awaken those habits and feelings, and nothing can be a more potent agency for this purpose, they are persuaded, than humane and free laws administered in the spirit of a free and generous people. Except in the early years of the British rule, when Lord Cornwallis gave Bengal its charter of rights in the soil, and at other rare intervals that agency had not, your petitioners are concerned to believe, generally speaking, an adequate scope in subsequent legislation. The Queen's proclamation has, however, inaugurated a new and important era, and your petitioners earnestly hope and trust your honourable Council will take every means—and for which the present Bill offers a most valuable opportunity—to adapt your laws to the growing exigencies of the position of the people, keeping in view the great end so graciously cherished by their royal mistress, viz., to elevate them in mind and spirit by imbuing them with feelings of self-reliance and progress, and enuring them in the exercise of the rights and prerogatives of British subjects."

MR. J. P. GRANT ON THE CULTIVATION OF INDIGO.

THE conclusion arrived at by the Lieut.-Governor of Bengal, after a careful perusal of the Report of the Indigo Commission, is that "the system" is at fault. Of the planters as a body he speaks in decidedly complimentary terms, but adds that, "being within the meshes of a false system, in all that concerns that system they cannot but act as the system constrains them." He fully admits the advantages to be derived from "having English gentlemen, with the loyalty, courage, energy, perseverance, and skill, which is (sic) their patrimony, scattered over the country." In the Benares Division during the outbreak of 1857, Mr. Frederick Gubbins found the co-operation of the planters invaluable towards the maintenance of tranquillity, and gracefully acknowledged their services in the official statement that they are "almost invariably a blessing to the surrounding country." Mr. Grant himself quotes an instance within his own knowledge of the almost incalculable amount of good that may be done even by a single individual who acts upon liberal and enlightened principles. A gentleman of the name of Morell, he says has in the course of ten years cleared upwards of 20,000 acres of hitherto waste land in the Soonderbunds, which he lets out to ryots at the rate of one rupee two annas per beegah (about 6s. 9d. per acre) on a permanent lease. He has no trouble in finding tenants, and these are represented to
